RESIGNED

Judge Nelson Will Retire From the Bench Tomorrow at Noon.

He Has Served Continuously as Judge For Thirty-Nine Years.

Oldest Federal Judge in Point of Service in the Country.

Judge Lochren, Commissioner of Pensions, Appointed to Succeed Nelson.

After thirty-nine years of continuous service, Judge R. R. Nelson has resigned his position as judge of the United States court for the district of Minnesota, and after noon tomorrow will have retired forever from the bench, but will continue to draw full pay, $5000 a year, for the rest of his life. The bar will regret exceedingly to lose Judge Nelson from the bench, but all will admit that he has well earned a rest. The law provides that any federal judge can upon reaching the age of 70 years, if he has served ten years, retire upon full pay. It is this provision Judge Nelson has taken advantage of.

After a few prisoners had been sentenced this morning Judge Nelson ordered a recess of court until 12 o'clock. At that hour the session was resumed and the work before the court was cleared up. The grand jury was called in and after it had reported Judge Nelson said:

"I have this announcement to make which will be a matter of record in this court. My judicial life will terminate tomorrow at noon. I have resigned the position of judge of the United States district court for the district of Minnesota. This step has not been taken by me without due reflection. I have been thirty-nine years in judicial life in Minnesota. I am the oldest federal judge in commission in the United States and the only federal judge whose commission antedates the war of the rebellion. I have seen many changes since I first entered office. I have arrived at the age allotted to man for life in this world, and if I am spared by Divine Providence I feel that my remaining years should be devoted to rest.

"My associations with the members of the bar of Duluth and of the state, so with the officers of the court and the citizens of the state who have been jurors in the courts held by me, have been agreeable and pleasant. My heart is saddened as the time approaches for severing this relation. I have tried to do my duty under the sanctity of the oath which I took when I entered judicial service. Undoubtedly, I have erred sometimes, but it has been an error of judgment, and my conscience does not reproach me in any respect.

"I shall never again preside over the federal courts in the district of Minnesota. It is with a pang of sorrow that I now say the only thing which is left for me to say, which is, to bid you all farewell."

THE JURIES DISCHARGED.

Judge Nelson then announced that the term of court would be adjourned to June 16. He discharged the petit and grand juries and new juries will be called for the adjourned term. Judge Nelson then remarked to the bar:

"I hope you will extend to my successor, whoever he may be, the same confidence you have given me."

As court was declared adjourned and Judge Nelson stepped down from the bench the attorneys came forward and grasped him by the hand expressing their regret at his retirement and their wish that he may be allotted many years of rest.

Judge Nelson was appointed territorial judge of Minnesota in April, 1857, by President Buchanan. When the state was admitted he was appointed United States district judge, which is the commission he has just resigned. Judge Nelson located in St. Paul in 1850. In 1853 he went to Superior and remained to 1856, when he returned to St. Paul and has since resided there continuously.

Judge Nelson was presented with a beautiful gold jeweled match box this morning on behalf of the officers of the court at St. Paul. United States District Attorney E. C. Stringer made the presentation on behalf of the officers. The box is a beauty. It is of solid gold and contains a diamond, ruby and emerald.

Several sentences were passed today. George Cline and Fred Zottman received minimum sentences for violating the internal revenue laws, thirty days in jail and fines of $100, the former in the Kanabec county jail and the latter in Crow Wing county. Paul Rinaldo, for the same offense, will serve thirty days in the St. Louis county jail and must pay $100 fine.

For introducing liquor on to a reservation Pe-daun-a-quod must serve sixty days and pay $10; Wah-me-way-cumig-skung, sixty days and $10; Mish-ocquod, sixty days and $10; John Roberts, sixty days and $10; Archibald Cameron, $150 fine; Antoine Cadreau, $100 fine; John Bassett, six months and $10; Sam Estes, sixty days and $10.

Henry A. Connors pleaded not guilty to selling liquor to Indians.

NELSON'S SUCCESSOR.

Washington, May 15.—The president today sent to the senate the following nominations: William Lochren, of Minnesota, to be United States district judge for the district of Minnesota, vice Rensaleer R. Nelson, resigned; Dominick I. Murphy, of Pennsylvania, now first deputy commissioner of pensions, to be commissioner of pensions, vice William Lochren, resigned.

OPAL MINE FATALITY.

Queretaro, Mex., May 15.—A cave-in occurred at the opal mines, near here, with earth and stones. Word was brought here from the scene of the accident that four of the miners were killed and several of the others injured.

MORGAN'S RESOLUTION.

Senate Will Take it Up During Tomorrow.

Washington, May 15.—In the senate Mr. Morgan presented a resolution concerning the Americans now under condemnation at Havana, and said he would address the senate on it tomorrow. The resolution directs the committee on foreign relations to inquire into and report on the rights of the United States, under our treaties with Spain, as to the trial of our citizens arrested in Cuba and now under sentence of death by the Spanish military tribunals for alleged offenses, of a political or other character, and to report on that subject by bill or otherwise; second, requesting the secretary of state for literal copies of the protocol, signed by Caleb Cushing and the Spanish minister; third, requesting the secretary of state to transmit copies of the recent correspondence relative to the condemnation of the Americans at Havana.

Mr. Gallinger followed with another interesting resolution as follows: "Resolved, that the widespread business depression and rapid increase of the public debt demonstrates that the existing tariff law does not produce sufficient revenue, and that a revision of the law is imperatively demanded in the interest of the people of the United States."

Mr. Gallinger announced that hew ould address the senate on this resolution or some similar measure before congress adjourned.

The resolution heretofore introduced by Mr. Mills directing the finance committee to investigate the effect on American products of the introduction of Oriental products was agreed to with an amendment by Mr. Allen that the inquiry cover the relative labor cost in this country and the Orient.

Mr. Culbom presented a final conference agreement on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, but action was deferred as Mr. Hill desired to look into the agreement on United States commissioners.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 15.—At the opening of the house today, Mr. Howard caused a mild sensation by arising to a question of personal privilege to denounce some published reports made about three months ago to the effect that he had been drunk on the floor of the house. He denied the story as a falsehood from beginning to end. He explained that at the time of the alleged occurrence he was desperately ill, and had been ill ever since, and only day before yesterday had been unable to return to the house to denounce his traducers.

CONTESTED ELECTION CASE.

Washington, May 15.—The election committee No. 1 of the house held a meeting to discuss the action of the house in remitting the Reinacker-Downing contested election case with instructions to recount the disputed ballots, but as the committee did not have official information of the action nothing was done today. The partisans of Mr. Reinacker will urge the immediate adoption of a resolution instructing the sergeant-at-arms to proceed to Illinois and subpoena the clerks of the counties of the district, with an order to bring the election ballots forthwith to the bar of the house for a recount. They believe that the ballots can be recounted and a final decision reached if prompt action is taken before the adjournment of congress.

INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Washington, May 15.—The conferees of the two houses on the Indian appropriation bill, have agreed to allow the amendment made in the senate, in regard to government aid to sectarian Indian schools, to stand, but it is believed that when reported to the house the agreement will not be accepted. If not, another conference will be ordered, probably with instructions to stand by the provision as originally made by the house. The senate amendment gave two years' extension to the sectarian schools.

MILWAUKEE STRIKE.

Another Attempt at Settlement Talked About.

Milwaukee, May 15.—The strike situation is about the same as yesterday. The street railway company is operating all of its lines and there is little or no disturbance. The busses are heavily patronized as against the patronage of the cars, and there is a general boycott that seems to grow tighter every day. The cause of the strikers is being thus advocated by every labor union, and business of all kinds suffers with the railroad company.

Although yesterday's conference between a citizens' committee, the strikers and the company was unfruitful, another attempt to effect a settlement is mooted. The company has 450 men under contract and the remainder under daily agreement. The strikers want to return in a body, but this is impossible, owing to contracts with the new men, even if the company felt willing to accede to the request.

ENGLISH MARINE DISASTER.

Hull, May 15.—A caisson of the new extension of St. Andrew's fish dock here, broke suddenly today and the rush of water swept every vessel in the docks from their moorings and jammed them into a hopeless mass of wreckage. The damage is estimated to amount to $500,000. Later in the day it was ascertained that no loss of life resulted from the breaking of the caisson and the wreckage of vessels which followed the accident.

ENGLAND WILL APPEAL.

London, May 15.—Replying to a question on the subject in the house of commons this afternoon, the parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, George N. Curzon, said that the British vice consul at Boma had been instructed to lodge an appeal against the acquittal of Capt. Lothare, the Belgian officer who was recently tried for hanging Stokes, the English trader of the Congo Free State.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS.

New York, May 15.—The Democratic state committee today selected Saratoga as the place and June 24 as the date for holding the state convention to elect delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GO FISHING.

Commencing May 15, the Northern Pacific railroad will resume the sale of tourist tickets at reduced rates to all principal points along its line. For further information call at city ticket office, 428 West Superior street.

REAR ADMIRAL STEVENS DEAD.

Washington, May 15.—Rear Admiral Thomas H. Stevens, United States navy, retired, was found dead in bed this morning at his home in Rockville, Md.

A REVOLUTION!

In Modern Merchandising. Ancient antiquated ideas revolutionized and superceded by

Panton & White's

Modern Methods and Ideas. The mighty dollars kept rolling means much to us. For you to see it as we see it means much to you; for instance: You all know there is a cash discount on all merchandise, ranging from 2 per cent up to 7 per cent with a possible average of 5 per cent. Take 5 per cent on a business of $500,000 purchase and you have $25,000. We can afford to sell our goods with enough of profit to pay our running expenses and then make money. Smaller insignificant institutions cannot afford to do this. It takes volume, and we alone have got it. Not only have we got it, but we are increasing it every day.

SPENCER

Says He is "on the Inside" and Knows All About It.

England Wants No More But Will Protect What She Has Now.

New York May 15.—The Herald this morning says: John Poyntz Spencer, fifth earl of Spencer, P. C. K. G., M. P., and Countess Spencer have arrived in New York from Buffalo in Chauncey M. Depew's private car. Earl Spencer said in an interview:

"I am convinced that there need be no apprehension of any kind between these two countries arising from the Venezuelan question. Our interests are too closely allied, the welfare of the two peoples are too nearly bound together for any such matter to cause war. I have heard some Americans say, and I have read in some American papers, that Great Britain is endeavoring to increase her territory in this hemisphere. I am sure that there is no such desire on the part of the British government. We will protect British interests to the utmost, and that means the commerce of the world."

"You mean to infer, then, that the claim of Great Britain to certain territory in Venezuela is a rightful claim?"

"Certainly, absolutely. I am well able to speak with authority, for I am acquainted with the inside secrets of British foreign policy. I may say that I have been behind the scenes."

TERRELL IS CAUTIOUS.

And Will Not Fall Into Bayard's Error.

St. Louis, May 15.—Judge A. W. Terrell, American minister to Turkey, passed through St. Louis last night on his way back to Washington, where he has been summoned by President Cleveland. Minister Terrell begged to be excused from discussing Turkish affairs. "Freedom of speech is a privilege," he said, "which we all value, but recent events show that this luxury is one of which our people who stay at home are quite jealous, and they have made some conspicuous objections to its indulgence by our representatives abroad."

He did not say that he expected to return to Constantinople soon, but his replies to questions indicated as much. Asked what he thought of the charge that he had not taken a bold, Christian stand in behalf of American missionaries in Turkey, Minister Terrell replied that he did not consider the criticism or the missionary who made them worth noticing. If any answer to the charge were needed, President Cleveland had given it in his message.

ANIMAL COMFORTS.

Agricultural Department Trying to Secure Them.

Washington, May 15.—Acting Secretary Dabney, of the agricultural department, has issued to inspectors the following general order in regard to the treatment of animals:

"It is the desire of this department that the influence of all employes should be used, so far as is warranted by law for the purpose of securing the humane treatment of animals in transportation and in the stock yards. Depriving animals of food and drink for unusual periods, beating and worrying them, are all practices calculated to make the animals feverish, and their meat unwholesome, and should be discountenanced and prevented. You will, therefore, give to your subordinates such instructions as will lead them to use their influence for this end with all other persons with whom they come in contact.

"You will please make an investigation of the manner in which animals are transported and handled by the railroad companies and stock yards, which come under your observation, and make such suggestions as may occur to you, with a view of improving the service and protecting animals from undue suffering or cruelty. Injured animals, which are evidently suffering severe pain, should be promptly reported to the humane societies, unless the owner of the stock yard company properly cares for them within a reasonable time."

CHOLERA AT MARSEILLES.

London, May 15.—A special dispatch from Marseilles says that several deaths from cholera have occurred there. On Friday last it appears there were three cases, of which two resulted fatally. On Monday last, it is also said, there were five fresh cases of cholera and three deaths from that disease.

MISS GING'S AVENGER.

The Prosecutor of Harry Hayward Breaks Down.

Under the Strain of That Great Trial.

Minneapolis, Jan. 14, 1896.

Gentlemen: The weary months of the Hayward trial involved a severe strain upon my nervous system, and after it was over I was threatened with protracted illness. I needed absolute rest and something to quiet my nervous system. Fortunately a friend recommended Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets as a sure specific, and I gave them a trial. The effects were beyond my expectations, as I found almost immediate relief. My nervousness gave way to restful and soothing feelings, and I could sleep and eat far better. For nervous prostration I regard Kola Nervine Tablets as invaluable. Frank M. Nye.

Mr. Nye is a distinguished lawyer and a brother of the lamented humorist. His experience is that of thousands. Dr. Charcot's Tablets are made famous by their cures. A trial will convince you of their wonderful merit.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

Judge Collins Decides a Number of Cases.

St. Paul, May 15.—Judge Collins, of the supreme court, today handed down six decisions, all but one affirming the lower courts, and one, a local case, is a reversal of the district court. The latter case settles the question of the sale of real estate to enforce the payment of assessments for local improvements. The court holds that the city treasurer cannot sell the property for a lesser sum than the amount of the judgment. The syllabi follow: Security Trust company, as receiver, etc., appellant, vs. Francis Von Hayderstaedt, respondent. Order reversed.

The question of contributory negligence of persons who persist in climbing over trains standing at street crossings is defined in the following cases: "Thomas Wherry, appellant, vs. the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, respondent. Syllabus: First, the fact that a danger is known will preclude a recovery in case of injury, where such danger is apparent and imminent, and of such a character as to impose upon one who undertakes to pass it, a hazard that an ordinarily prudent man would not incur. A person has no right to cast himself upon a known danger when the act subjects him to immediate and great peril. Judgment affirmed."

Partnership is defined plainly in the following decision: O. W. Baldwin, respondent, vs. John F. Eddy et al, defendants, appellants, and L. Chesebrough, appellant. Judgment affirmed.

The rights of lessee and lessor are settled by the court in a case involving a lease of mineral lands: Ohio Iron company, respondent, vs. Auburn Iron company, appellant. Syllabus: First, whenever a lessee transfers and assigns the whole term for which he has leased premises, reserving no reversionary interest whatsoever to himself, the right of re-entry, for a breach of a condition subsequent, is not reserved or retained. The right of re-entry cannot exist as an independent condition, but only as an incident to an estate or interest, for the protection of which it is reserved. Second, the right of re-entry is not an estate or interest in land, nor does it imply the reservation of a reversion. And when enforced, the grantor is in true the breach of the conditions and not by revertor. Third, conceding that the statute 32, Henry VIII, chapter 34, is part of the common law of this country, it has no application in a case where there is simply a reservation of rent and of an estate for years without reversion. Fourth, the right of re-entry for a breach of a condition subsequent is not assignable before the breach. Order affirmed.

The Minneapolis Street Railway company wins its case again in the higher court on an issue of evidence, acting as surprise. The appeal of plaintiff for a new trial is denied. Lydia M. Hull, appellant, vs. the Minneapolis Street Railway company, respondent. It is well settled that new trials on the ground of surprise occurring at the trial, which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against, should be granted with great caution, and that granting or refusing motions founded on this ground rests on the sound discretion of the trial court. Held, under all the circumstances of the case at bar, that in denying a motion based on this ground there was no abuse of this discretion in the court below. Second, held, further, that no reason exists for disturbing the action of the trial court when it passed upon conflicting affidavits relating to the alleged misconduct of a juror, pending the trial. Judgment affirmed.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Irwin, Pa., May 15.—Bernard Koch drowned himself yesterday in the reservoir of the Pennsylvania Plate Glass company after poisoning his brother-in-law, his wife and two children. His wife will probably die, but the others will recover. Koch was injured about a year ago by a train and has acted strangely ever since. It is supposed that he was insane when he committed the deed.

WILL NOT SAIL HERE.

Berlin, May 15.—Col. Primkanau Von Kessel, aide-de-camp to Emperor William of Germany, informed a reporter of the Associated Press today that there is no truth in the statement attributed to Lord Lonsdale, his majesty's representative on board the Meteor, just launched, that the new cutter may challenge for the America's cup if she proves to be a faster craft than Valkyrie III. Kessel added that the Meteor will only sail in European waters.

A GOVERNMENT CALL.

HANGED

Paid the Penalty For the Brutal Murder of Mrs. Randolph.

Joseph Windrath Became Insane and His Execution Is Stayed.

Chicago, May 15.—Today, for the first time since the execution of the Haymarket anarchists, a double hanging was on the schedule in the Cook county jail. The condemned men were Alfred C. Fields, a negro, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Randolph, and Joseph Windrath, a German, convicted of the murder of Carey B. Birch. It was to have been a triple hanging, but Governor Altgeld yesterday gave a respite to Nic Marsden, convicted of the murder of Fritz Holshutter, a butcher. Fields was apparently unconcerned last night, and slept soundly. His companion did not get any sleep until long after midnight. He, however, ceased the raving which he has kept up for the last three or four days, and apologized to the guards for the trouble he had given them, but protested that he was innocent. When his wife left the jail, she cried hysterically for nearly an hour. Then Fathers Dore and Finn were admitted and prayed with him for a time. When they had gone, Windrath lay down upon the couch in the death chamber, and with eyes staring at the ceiling, remained unmoved.

As the hour for the execution approached Windrath again became violent, shouting vehemently "Hang up Mannow." His insanity, or imitation of insanity, was of such a character that it was decided a separate execution would be necessary for him if an awful bungle was to be avoided. Just before the time set for the execution word came that a stay had been granted Windrath, Judge Baker allowing a postponement of three weeks.

Fields, the negro, the only remaining one of the trio, who were to be hanged to day, was executed at 12:27 p. m. Fields smiled on the scaffold, said "Good bye, old sport" to an acquaintance present and was then strangled to death, his neck not being broken by the fall.

The other prisoners in the jail set up a loud shout when the drop fell. Above the din could be heard the shrill yell of Windrath, who had been reprieved. It was the same wild shriek that has nearly distracted the jail inmates for a week: "Hang up Mannow." The purpose of Windrath's respite is to allow further inquiry as to his sanity.

STORY OF THE CRIMES.

Alfred C. Fields according to his own confession, made under oath in court, committed a particularly horrifying murder. On the night of Feb. 20 last, he had a quarrel with Mrs. Ellen Randolph, wife of a Pullman car porter, at her home. She had been married at an early age and left a widow with a considerable fortune, and later was won again by a New York marble man named Kennedy, whom, she alleged, preferred to live on her money after their marriage rather than to conduct his business. She alleged cruel treatment and had no trouble in securing a decree. Her sister, Nellie Levine, had married a New York bookmaker, who she alleged preferred the races to her and she secured a decree on the ground of desertion. Both ladies had formerly established a residence at Bismarck, where they captivated a young man of that place, who followed them here and goes back to New York with them.

When Fargo first began to agitate the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the city, no one anticipated such united efforts as are being put forth to insure a successful event. Several meetings have been held and a general committee chosen which has appointed a number of sub-committees, all of which report progress. A large sum of money has been raised. The Tower City, Detroit, and the famous Lisbon First Regiment bands will be here. Battery A of the First regiment, will also be here en route to the state encampment. All early settlers who have been in the state twenty years or more will be honored guests. Governor Allin and his staff have promised to attend. The fireworks will be the greatest display ever seen in the state and there will be balloon ascensions if proper men can be secured. All this, added to the baseball, horse and bicycle races, promises to be one of the biggest events ever held in the state. In fact, the affair will be more of a state than a local matter, and other cities have promised to attend.

The halfbreed Indians near St. John are making things decidedly unpleasant for the farmers. They insist on taking possession of lands and cultivating them without permission and against the wishes of the owners. Several arrests have been made this week.

The annual convention of the Northwestern Commercial Travelers will be held in Grand Forks commencing on Thursday evening, May 21, and continuing to Sunday afternoon, May 24, and at which at least 1000 members will be present. Arrangements are nearly completed for the meeting of the grand council. The hotels and the citizens of Grand Forks will have the pleasure of entertaining more than 1000 United Commercial Travelers, many of whom will be accompanied by their wives and sweethearts. The council of this city has been busy revising its program, the details of which are practically settled. A special train provided free by the Great Northern will leave St. Paul and arrive in this city at about 11 o'clock Thursday evening, and on Sunday afternoon a special train on the Northern Pacific will convey the delegates to St. Paul on their way home.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Judge Jones has just signed the final papers which conclude the divorce action brought four years ago at Sioux Falls by Edward Pollock, of New York. After Judge Aikens granted the decree Mrs. Pollock appealed to the supreme court. That tribunal affirmed the decision of the lower court but ordered that Pollock must pay $50 a month alimony until the elder child was 21 years of age and then $25 per month until the younger child was 21. It required a bond of $10,000 for the fulfillment of these conditions. Pollock meanwhile had been paying $50 a month into a New York bank and after the final decision was rendered he withdrew this amount affecting to believe that the payments were to begin from the present time. Judge Jones then refused to accept the bond and sign the final papers until this money was turned over to Mrs. Pollock. This Pollock turned over a few days ago and Judge Jones last night accepted the bond and signed the decree. The total cost of this matrimonial venture to Pollock will be just about $25,000.

OVER A CENTURY OLD.

James Reuben the Oldest Living Seneca Indian. Hale and Hearty to-day. To What he Owes His Wonderful Age.

We find around us everewhere men who are young in years, but who in body are actually old and decrepit. This premature old age is becoming more common every year. Thousands are continually living who are scarcely 30 years of age, from a complete worn out state of their systems, just as literally of old age as though they had lived to be 100, and the cause of this is due to a general demoralized condition of the great vital organs of the body—the stomach, the liver, the kidneys and the blood; let any of these become impaired and the blood instead of flowing through the body and carrying nourishment to all its parts, becomes filled with poisonous secretions which generate and multiply continually, ceasing to build up new flesh tissue, so that a gradual wasting and decay takes place until the day comes when a complete collapse is experienced and speedy death ensues.

The Indian is noted for his longevity, due to the fact that he takes no medicine that contains poisonous ingredients, but depends upon his famous Kickapoo Indian Sagwa entirely, which is purely vegetable, made from roots, barks, gums and herbs of the forest. James Reuben, the oldest living Seneca Indian attributes his long life to the use of this wonderful medicine, and his enthusiastic praise.

This wonderful remedy rectifies all disorders of the great vital organs, but above all purifies the blood and enables it to perform its natural function, imparting life and vigor to all parts of the system.

Let a man have perfect digestion and pure blood, and there is a continual restoration of waste tissue taking place in the body. Without this there is a decline. If you feel that you have not your ordinary strength, you do not sleep as you should, your appetite is fitful, you are nervous, have dizzy spells and seem generally run-down, you should not hesitate a minute, for this is the beginning of some serious decline. While you still have strength and life take Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. A change for the better will be experienced with the first bottle, and a speedy return to health will be the result in every instance. Follow the Indian's example, and share with him long life and health. This famous remedy is now sold by all druggists, $1 a bottle, six bottles for $5.

Whipple, mortgagee, to John C. Whiteford, by written assignment dated the 13th day of April, 1893, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 18th day of April, 1893, in Book 87 of mortgages, on page 426, which default has continued to the date of this notice, by the failure and neglect of said mortgagors to make payment of the promissory note for $900 and interest by said mortgage secured, which by its terms became due and payable on the first day of April, 1896, and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of eleven hundred and sixteen and 89-100 dollars, and whereas the power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: Lot number four hundred and nineteen (419), in block number one hundred fifteen (115), in Duluth Proper, Second Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house of said county, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Monday, the first day of June, 1896, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, including taxes so paid as aforesaid, together with seventy-five dollars attorneys' fee, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as by law provided.

Wilkinson, who is now the owner and holder thereof, by written instrument, bearing date the 28th day of June, 1892, and duly recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 8th day of April, 1895, at 9 o'clock a. m., in Book 117 of mortgages, on page 420.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Wheat Fell Off a Cent To-day Owing to Bearish Reports.

The Opening Higher Owing to Light Receipts and Crop Damage.

Rumor of a Bearish Report By Thoman Broke, the Market.

Wheat declined 1c today. The initial prices were at a fractional advance over yesterday's closing figures, due principally to the falling off in Northwest receipts and continued crop damage reports. The later influence and reported appearance of chinch bugs in various localities were offset, however, by the forward condition of the crops, and the market became very passive, the price fluctuating within narrow limits. The receipts at Chicago were five cars, and the shipments 31,851 bus. Minneapolis and Duluth received 274 cars against 351 a week ago and 142 on the corresponding day of the year before. More rain in the Southwest and spreading eastward was predicted for tomorrow. About 12:15 o'clock a rumor was circulated that Thoman had issued a report on the condition of wheat and that it was bearish. That was as much as appeared to be known of the report referred to, but the market was in shape to respond to anything bearish, even as indefinite as the shadow of a rumor, and the price declined to the lowest point at the close.

July opened from 63c to 63¼c and in a short time advanced to 63¾c, but by 11:30 was down to 62⅞c. It steadily declined to the split 61⅞-62c and the last sale was at 62c. The shippers bought 65,000 bus to arrive, mostly No. 1 hard, at ⅛c under July. The mills were not in the market. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62¾c; May, 62¾c; July, 63¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 61½c; May, 61½c; June, 61½c; July, 62c asked; September, 62c asked. No. 2 northern, cash, 58@59¼c. No. 3, 57@58c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 15.—Bullish crop reports were hardly as much in prominence as yesterday and the crowd was in a temper to sell wheat. Unconfirmed rumors of advance information from a private crop report supposed to be very bearish, and an estimate by a leading newspaper authority of 300,000,000 bus increase over last year in the European and wheat crop, caused the tumbling over of several good lines of long wheat and renewed activity among short sellers. The market has been for several days in good shape for an upturn and any help from outside would have resulted in a substantial advance. This help did not come, and the market lapsed into dullness and closes tonight le lower and with every appearance of a further decline.

Corn and oats declined fractionally under heavy selling of the near futures by elevator companies. The export demand continues good for both.

Provisions continue to be sold freely by packers and the demand, though some better, is amply supplied.

Puts, July wheat, 61¾@62c bid.

Calls, July wheat, 62¾@62¾c.

Why is one woman attractive and another not? The most admirable and attractive thing about an attractive woman is her womanliness. Everybody admires a womanly woman. She must have health, of course, because without it she would lose the brightness of her eyes, the fullness of her cheeks and her vivacity. Real health must mean that a woman is really a woman. That she is strong and perfect in a sexual way, as well as in every other. That she is capable of performing perfectly the duties of maternity. Some are born with what is called "constitutional weakness." Those who do not enjoy perfect health, need only take the proper precautions and the proper remedy to become perfectly well and strong. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure any derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. Sold by druggists.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Opening Was Quiet and Very Weak.

New York, May 15.—The stock market opened quiet but weak; sharp fractional concessions being noted in Sugar, Tobacco, Laclede Gas, Louisville & Nashville and Manhattan. The last mentioned was unfavorably affected by the publication of the quarterly statement. Bay State Gas, on the other hand, rose ¾ per cent on the passage of the Whitney gas bill in the Massachusetts legislature.

The speculation continued weak in tone after 10:15 and material losses were recorded in some speculations. Consolidated Gas declining 2 per cent to 15½. Bay State Gas 1½ to 30 and Manhattan receded to 104. The call issued by the treasury department on the depository banks for 50 per cent of their holdings in connection with the bond operations involves the turning over of about $4,500,000. The market was not influenced by this and conservative bankers expressed the opinion that no stir in the money market would ensue owing to the large receipts of currency from the interior.

The government's action is taken to influence the gold export movement, as any appreciative hardening in quotations for money would result in stemming the outflow of metal, aside from the shipments of a special character. The bankers have large sums of money to loan for which there is no market, rates being too low and demand lax.

The pressure against the market continues unabated and the offerings are large and sharp fractional losses have been scored by prominent stocks with extreme concessions in some of the specialties. London selling of St. Paul and Louisville has been quite pronounced; the latter is now off 1¼ per cent. Laclede Gas sold down to 26¾ with a later recovery to 28.

The traders sold Sugar after 11 o'clock, causing the price to sag ⅞ per cent. Laclede Gas displayed heaviness and receded ¾ per cent. The general list was quiet but moved toward a lower level although about one-half of the gold that had been expected to be shipped tomorrow has not yet been engaged. The sales to noon were 35,500 hsares.

PLOWED UP DOLLARS.

A Texas Clergyman's Big Find of Money.

Timpson, Texas, May 15.—Rev. Mr. Rhodes, living twelve miles east of here, while plowing his field, unearthed 30,000 Mexican dollars. It seems that the money was buried in leather satchels and they were almost rotten. Mr. Rhodes bought the place two years ago. For several years there has been digging in that community by unknown parties at night.

MUST ROW ELSEWHERE.

Yale Freshwater Courses Must Be Vacated.

New Haven, Conn., May 15.—The Yale News of today has the following: "The directors of the New Haven Waterworks company have decided to prohibit the use of Lake Saltonsall and Lake Whitney for rowing purposes, because of the many complaints which they have received from New Haven people. This order will, however, in all probability not go into effec; for at least a year, and special permission has been obtained to hold the freshmen-university of Wisconsin race on Lake Saltonsall. The boat house of the University Boat club at Lake Whitney will have to be removed, as well as the one at Lake Saltonsall, and as these are the only available places for fresh water rowing near New Haven, all boating work at Yale must hereafter be done on the harbor."

President Eli Whitney, of the water company, when seen today, said that no decided steps had been taken by the company as yet.

ACT IS REVERSED.

Court Sits Down on Indiana Apportionment.

Indianapolis, May 15.—The supreme court today reversed the legislature apportionment act. Justice McCabe, in concluding the ruling, says:

"Our conclusion is that as the act of 1885 is the only law that has not been repealed or adjudged unconstitutional, under which an election of members to the legislature can be held in November, 1886, and that the appelle has no right to invoke the powers of the courts to declare it unconstitutional, and that, therefore, the complainant did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

The superior court erred in overruling the demurrer thereto. The judgment is reversed with instructions to sustain the demurrer to the complaint.

There is a dissenting opinion by Justice Monks and a separate concurring opinion by Justice Jordan, who holds that the judgment should be reversed and the lower court directed to sustain the demurrer to the comlainant for want of equity.

WILL SEE THE CORONATION.

New York, May 15.—A special to the Herald from St. Petersburg says: Admiral Selfridge, on oard the cruiser Minneapolis, temporary flagship of the European station, has arrived at Constadt in connection with the coming coronation of the czar. He will probably leave for Moscow at once. Gen. Mc-Cook, of the special embassy from the United States, has gone to Moscow.

GOLD SHIPMENTS.

New York, May 15.—Lazard Freres, who have been expected to send out $1,000,000 in gold by tomorrow's steamer, say that they will not ship. L. von Hoffman & Co. will ship $1,000,000, and a shipment is expected to be made by one of the representative German houses.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

Washington, May 15.—The president today sent to the senate the following nominations: State—John Fowler, of Massachusetts, to be consul of the United States at Che Foo, China; Robert Lee Jenkins, of North Carolina, to be consul of the United States at Patras, Greece.

A. P. A. EDUCATION.

Bureau of Information is to Be Established.

Washington, May 15.—Various matters of significance to the interests of the A. P. A. were brought before the supreme council of that body at its meeting today. The session was devoted mainly to the consideration of committee reports and addresses by the members. Five congressmen spoke before the council during the afternoon. Among these were Messrs. Linton, of Michigan, and Hilborn, of California.

The report of the committee on agitation was taken up. The committee took the ground that agitation without education was dangerous to the cause. Education, it was held, must come first, and to this end the committee recommended that a bureau of information be established. This bureau was to consist of the supreme president and one member of each of the various state councils. The work of the Junior A. P. A. was reviewed and the proposition urged that the body be placed under the control of the woman's auxiliary of the A. P. A.

The main point of the report, however, was the recommendation that all the property in the United States, except such as is owned and used by national, state or municipal organizations, be taxed. The report aroused warm discussions, but was adopted. The committee on ritual and paraphernalia also made an extended report. It covers a number of technical changes in the ritual. An Armenian subscription was raised, and resolutions, giving expression to the organization's sympathy for the Armenian cause, will be framed at once by a committee on resolutions. The advisory board is working on its report to the council and will submit it early tomorrow morning.

AS TO BOB DUNN.

The Princeton Union, which is owned by State Auditor Bob Dunn, whose political dishonesty and chicanery have been the subject of frequent reference in the columns of The Herald, says: "Congressman Towne should not be held responsible for the utterances of The Duluth Herald. That venal sheet does not represent Mr. Towne, neither does it voice the sentiments of any considerable number of the people of Duluth or St. Louis county."

Mr. Dunn is correct in saying that Mr. Towne should not be held responsible for The Herald's utterances, because, as has been repeatedly stated in these columns, The Herald is not the organ of Mr. Towne or any other man—it is an independent newspaper, voicing its own sentiments and beliefs, and responsible solely to the people who give it their support. That it does voice the sentiments of a considerable number of the people of Duluth and St. Louis county has been proven upon numerous occasions, and Mr. Dunn, who is now doing what he can to aid the Merriam-Clough-Bixby machine, will find that in denouncing the brazen attempt of this machine to control the Republican party in this state and hoist Bill Merriam into the United States senate, it is representing the sentiments of ninety-nine out of every one hundred people in St. Louis county.

When Bob Dunn was a candidate for state auditor two years ago he worked his carmine headgear into a condition that illuminated the entire Sixth district and threatened a general conflagration, if St. Louis county Republicans did not support a man in their own district, to-wit, Bob Dunn, "our neighbor." They recognized the logic and justice of the situation and supported him, not because they believed that he was the proper man for the place—because his crooked political record was known to them—but because it was considered political wisdom to support a Sixth district candidate, and he, unfortunately, was the only one in the field. But we find now that he is using the leverage of his office and mouth to induce the people of this county to go back on "our neighbor," William E. Lee, and support Clough, and because The Herald has denounced this action in fitting terms, he says it is a "venal sheet." Of course he said this in his paper. In conversation he would have used a string of adjectives that would not look well in print and which no respectable paper would publish. There is one thing, however, which Robert Cassius Dunn should remember: If he succeeds in establishing this precedent now, the next time he is a candidate for auditor he will ascertain that the temperature at the head of the lakes is some 25 degrees cooler than at Princeton. But there is not the slightest prospect that his game will be successful. The Republicans of this county are for the Sixth district candidate for governor. It would not be surprising either to see Bob Dunn supporting him also before the campaign is over. He is for Clough today, but nobody can tell where he will be tomorrow, because he is one of the shiftiest, trickiest politicians in the state and utterly unscrupulous.

The Northern Pacific financiers at New York count upon getting the road organized and in control of the new company by Oct. 1. If the bill introduced in the senate by Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, and in the house by Representative Hartman, of Montana, providing for the reorganization of the road under national authority should fail to become a law at this session, necessary steps will be taken under the existing state laws. The sooner the better for the Northwest. The road is now doing a splendid business and under good management, after the reorganization, it should meet all charges and show a handsome surplus.

WHY NOT A CREMATORY?

The grand jury in its report to the court yesterday discussed at some length the present mode of disposing of dead paupers at the poor farm during the winter months, and recommended that a vault be constructed as a receptacle for the bodies pending their burial. Why would not a crematory be a better solution of the problem? The Herald does not know what a crematory would cost, but it believes that if one could be constructed and operated at a reasonable expense, it would furnish the best mode of disposing of the remains of the inmates of the poor farm and other paupers for whose bodies the county is called upon to provide burial.

The number of papuers buried by the county reaches about 100 each year. During the past two years only four bodies of those who died at the poor farm were claimed by friends or relatives and given burial elsewhere. All these bodies are now interred on the poor farm, and it is a question of but a short time when the space allotted to this purpose will be filled to overflowing. It is also certain that within a few years the present farm must be abandoned and sold by the county, because it is too close to the city. What, then, will be done with the bodies buried there? Would they be removed to another burial place? This is extremely doubtful. It is more probable that the land would be ploughed up and the bones of the dead left there.

A crematory would effectually dispose of the problem that is presented by a consideration of the above contingency. With the bodies cremated, there would be no need of a vault to keep them during the winter until the ground thawed, and the crowding of the poor farm with paupers' graves would be avoided. From every standpoint the crematory idea offers the best solution of the problem—provided the expense of constructing and operating one would not be too great. The county commissioners would do well to give the matter consideration.

NOT DECIDED FEASIBLE.

The Herald has received from Maj. Clinton B. Sears, the government engineer for this district, a copy of his report on the surveys for a canal connecting Lake Superior with the Mississippi river, as directed by congress under a resolution presented by Col. Kiefer, of St. Paul. The report is quite exhaustive and is accompanied by four drawings showing the routes examined. It is evident, however, that there is little probability of such a canal ever being constructed.

Maj. Sears does not report that any of the routes examined are feasible. The fact is that the congressional resolution did not request an opinion upon that point. In his report, Maj. Sears says: "Particular attention is invited to the wording of this law. It prescribes, in a general way, the consideration of three routes, but precludes an opinion as to whether any one of them is feasible, or whether the commercial benefits to be derived will justify the expenditure involved in making the improvement. There may be none feasible; or, if feasible, the cost may be so great as to make it unworthy the consideration of the government; or the same end may be attained by other and cheaper methods, but an opinion as to these features is not called for by the law, and none is therefore submitted. I have confined myself to the question as to which of the routes mentioned is 'the most feasible.'"

The report, therefore, does not state that any of the routes referred to are feasible, but points out one which is regarded as "the most feasible." It is worthy of note, however, that this does not give any authority for asserting that it is actually a feasible route.

AN IMPORTANT POINT.

There was one feature of the report of the joint committee on the bridge bill amendments which the aldermen apparently failed to notice, and yet is a very important point. Under the company's charter as it now stands, provision is made that the bridge may be purchased after a certain length of time by either the cities or counties on both sides of the bay, but that after being so purchased the bridge and its approaches shall be made free of toll to street railway cars as well as wagons and foot passengers. The committee's report, which was rejected by the council, recommended the elimination of this provision, leaving the question of tolls in cases of dispute at the discretion of the secretary of war, a disinterested and fair tribunal.

Those interested in the bridge company had agreed to this clause being stricken out and, considering the fact that the law now on the statute books contains this provision, it was a great concession, outweighing in importance the question of free passage at present to foot passengers.

"The Bible alone of all books," says the Rev. Dr. Crane, of Chicago, "mercilessly uncovers the faults of its heroes." The Milwaukee Sentinel makes this comment: Perhaps the Rev. Dr. Crane has not read many other books. We do not believe he has ever read the novels of Fielding, Thackeray, George Eliot, Hawthorne, Tolstoi or Zola. His time may have been spent to greater advantage on Baxter's "Saints' Rest," Barnes' "Notes on Job," the Rev. Dr. McCosh's "Typical Forms and Special Ends in Creation" and the works of Gen. Lew Wallace. But he ought not to contrast the Bible with all other books until he has read a few others.

In a speech in congress on June 24, 1890, William McKinley said: "I am for the largest use of silver in the currency of the country. I would not dishonor it; I would give it equal credit and honor with gold. I would make no discrimination. I would utilize both metals as money and discredit neither. I want the double standard. The single gold standard men say this shows that he is not 'sound' on the money question. Perhaps so, but the majority of the people will agree with the sentiments that he then expressed.

The Iowa State Register says that in Polk county, Iowa, the Democratic convention of 1895 rejected free silver resolutions by a vote of 82 to 47. Last week the Polk county Democrats refused, by a vote of 68 to 45, to lay free silver resolutions on the table, and then adopted them by an almost unanimous vote. And yet the parrots continue to repeat: "The silver craze is dead."

The most unhealthy capital city in the world, as shown by the death rate, is the City of Mexico. This is said to be due to the fact that the city has no sewer system whatever. Good sewerage is necessary for the public health, and every quarter of a city should be provided with it.

The people, says the Washington Post, demanded Cleveland in 1892, and the people are demanding McKinley in 1896. Possibly in 1900 the people will step to one side and allow the politicians to do a little president-making.

The confident air which Manley, Aldrich and Clarkson affect when they still assert that McKinley will not be nominated at St. Louis is amusing.

A CORRESPONDENT GUYED.

St. Paul Globe: We doubt very much whether the customs officers at Duluth or the millers there are quite as stupid as the correspondent of an evening paper makes them appear. "Private advices," he says, have been received that the treasury has made a ruling of great importance to millers. Canadian wheat may be ground in transit to Europe or Canada, and when the flour is exported all the duty paid but 1 per cent will be refunded by the treasury. "Customs officials have been unaware of such a construction of the existing law." He further ventures the information that this construction of the law was obtained by the millers through the Wisconsin delegation in congress," and cheerfully concludes that, "of course, the ruling would apply to Minneapolis as well as to Duluth, which is very kind, and no doubt will be highly appreciated by the Minneapolis millers, who may wonder why it was left to the Wisconsin delegation to find out what the law is. They may ask Fletcher to explain. The fact that the McKinley act contained, and the present act contains a specific provision for a drawback of nine-tenths of the duty paid on any material imported and manufactured in this country and exported, is so trifling a circumstance as to have escaped the notice of every one but the "Wisconsin delegation in congress." That the act of 1883 gave a drawback of 10 per cent was also unknown. We apprehend, however, that the millers have known this all the time, and been getting their drawbacks, and that some one is guying the correspondent.

NO CLAIM FOR M'CLEARY.

New Ulm Review: McCleary, if he is capable of any political shrewdness, is well aware that the preponderance of sentiment in his district is against a single gold standard and that right within his own party there is a strong faction that does not believe in a Wall street platform and a Rothschild candidate. McCleary isn't so dead sure of a renomination as Jerry J. thinks he is, nor are the common people, the great mass of voters, clamoring for him and his ultra-financial views to the extent that his managers claim. Why, he even hasn't got a band wagon at home—much less in the western section of the district.

RIDING ON THE SIDEWALKS.

Lakesiders Protest Against It Being Allowed.

To the Editor of The Herald:

While the city council is considering a new bicycle ordinance I wish to echo the sentiments of nearly every resident of Lakeside and Lester Park residing on London road when I say that they are opposed to granting the use of the sidewalks in that section of the city to bicycle riders. I have a 4-year-old boy who was nearly run over a few days ago while playing in the middle of the street, by a bicycle rider who was evidently trying to break a speed record, regardless of the safety of children playing in the street. I have since instructed my boy to play only on the sidewalk, because of the danger of being run over by the reckless riders on London road.

Both at Lakeside and Lester Park the residences are just as numerous to the block as they are along the residence portions of East Superior street and the small children playing on the sidewalks should not be subjected to the danger of being run over by riders who are not satisfied with the smooth surface of London road. We are compelled to keep our little ones off the street because of the danger of being run over by passing vehicles, but we do not believe that the sidewalk is intended for bicycle riders any more than for carriages and other vehicles excluded therefrom.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

The Saturday Herald Tomorrow.

The Saturday edition of The Herald is the most widely read paper at the head of the lakes. Its circulation is greater than that of any other paper in the state outside of the Twin Cities. The reason is easily given. It is the largest, brightest and best newspaper published in this section. There are some feeble imitators, but it stands without a rival, unequalled in the presentation of all the news and unapproachable in the character and number of its interesting special features. Tomorrow's issue will be strictly up-to-date, bright and breezy and filled with good things. It is impossible to enumerate all the attractive features, but the following will give a hint of the rich feast to be provided:

Crowning of the Czar.—A remarkable ceremony graphically described. Scenes in the Kremlin palace and in the famous Cathedral of the Assumption. With illustrations of the cathedral at Moscow and the imperial crown of Russian and portraits of the emperor and empress.

Statue of Ole Bull.—The monument to the great violinist to be unveiled at Minneapolis. With pictures of Ole Bull and Miss Caroline Boeckman, of St. Paul, who will unveil the statue.

Spain's Young King.—On Sunday he will celebrate his tenth birthday. His portrait will accompany the story of the event.

The World of Fashion.—All the latest costumes that have been created will be fully described, and beautiful illustrations will be given. The sweet girl graduate's dainty, airy gown will be prominent.

Afield and Afloat.—"Little Ike" resumes his interesting articles on shooting and fishing in the vicinity of Duluth.

Dr. Forbes at Cleveland.—The popular Duluth clergyman will tell the readers of The Herald about the great conference of the Methodist church, to which he is a delegate.

Across the Tea Table.—Under this heading "Agate" will contribute a bright article of special interest to the ladies.

Duluth Social Circles.—All the social happenings of the week in Duluth and suburbs will be given, and interesting events in prospect will be touched on.

The National Guard.—The first column devoted to the National Guard in Duluth appeared in The Herald, and it is always the best. Tomorrow the story of the week's inspections will be told.

The Bicycle Page.—The wheeling craze is general. Nearly everybody and his neighbor rides a wheel. Duluth has a number of riders who can make fast time. They all read the bicycle page in The Saturday Herald and tomorrow they will find much to interest them.

The Field of Labor.—The Herald has the greatest circulation among the workingmen, and organized labor always turns to the Saturday edition with especial interest, knowing that it will contain all the latest news in labor circles throughout the country. They will not be disappointed tomorrow.

Science and Invention.—This is a feature that is peculiar to The Herald, and probably no department has more readers. All that is new and novel in the world of science and invention is discussed.

Among the Sports.—Baseball, rowing and other forms of sport all have their devotees at the head of the lakes. In tomorrow's issue will be found all the latest sporting news.

Gossip of the Stage.—The dramatic season has nearly ended, but the stage gossip does not cease. The popular favorites are always in evidence and the theater-going public likes to read about them. The Saturday Herald is always up-to-date in this respect.

Special Cable Letter.—All the gossip, social, political and otherwise of London and other European capitals, is given in the special cable letter of the Associated Press on Saturday, and The Herald publishes it complete.

The above are a few of the leading features of tomorrow's edition. And there will be many others—and all the news, local and telegraphic.

THE ROUNDER.

Few people appreciate the trials and troubles which the car starter of the street railway company at the corner of Third avenue west and Superior street is obliged to undergo. The common impression is that he simply sits in the little house at the corner, pulls the gong when a car is coming and first and foremost is there to answer questions. This may seem to be all that he does but if you were inside and watched him for a time you would realize that he is a pretty busy man. About 750 cars pass that point every day and he is obliged to take care of them all and schedule their time on a tally sheet. He has to schedule the time each car takes to run from Second street down to Superior, the company having fixed the minimum limit at ninety seconds. He can do all this very nicely and takes pleasure in answering questions, when the cars are on time and he does it courteously, too, as every one knows who has ever applied to him for information. But when the cars are behind time and are coming along in a bunch he is the busiest man in town. The tally sheet becomes a Chinese puzzle, the telephone bell rings every minute or two and there is fun on all sides. At those times it is difficult to answer questions but some people cannot appreciate this.

There was an illustration of this on Wednesday evening just after the storm. The power had been shut down for a few minutes, the cars were behind and were bunched at Third avenue west shortly after they started up again. Under such circumstances the starter does not know when each car will leave. An individual rushed up to the window and wanted to know what time his car left. The starter was very busy, in fact he hardly knew where he was at but he answered:

"I don't know. There is the dispatcher," pointing to a man outside. "He can tell you."

The man gave some snappy answer and turned away. Now, what did this fresh individual do but report to General Manager Warren the next day that the car starter had refused to give him information and answered him in an uncivil manner.

Well, that car starter didn't even get a reprimand from headquarters, for General Manager Warren witnessed the whole proceeding, having been at the Third avenue corner at the time. Probably it has never occurred to the individual that his injustice might have cost that starter his job and his family their means of support, or more probably he did not care.

The Rounder is informed that the community of campers which annually banishes itself to Minnesota Point has made arrangements to pen the herd of moose which the Chicago Tribune says is located on the point after having been scared away from an attempt to land on Superior street. The herd will be kept as an attraction and it is said that G. V. Burgess will furnish the campers with milk from the lady moose.

A HOLE IN THE SLING.

Omaha World-Herald: The goldbug papers are now telling how Congressman McCleary routed Congressman Towne. The latter made a speech which was conceded to be one of the ablest ever delivered in the house of representatives. It was read and commented upon all over the country. Mr. McCleary announced that he would answer it, but his answer was such a miserable failure that it bordered on the ludicrous. He announced that he would imitate David and slay his enemy with a few pebbles—"the pebbles of truth." Well, those who were present say that he went through the motion, but as no pebbles of truth issued forth, they concluded that there was a note in the sling and that the pebbles fell out. The fact that the goldbugs are quoting Mr. McCleary's speech as an argument is conclusive evidence that they are in desperate straits.

IRON TRADE DULL.

A Waiting Policy Observed in All Quarters.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 15.—The American Manufacturer today says: "The closest scrutiny would fail to find anything like a new feature in the iron and steel trade during the past week. In all the various lines, conditions remain about as they were at last report, so far as the volume of trade is concerned, and prices show nothing startling. The waiting policy is still being kept up in about all branches of the market and there are few signs that anything conclusive will be reached in the near future. The Bessemer steel arrangements still occupy a large share of attention in the market, and although there is every indication that they will be made fully effective purchasers of steel are loth to accept the new prices.

The demand in all lines does not seem to be improving to any great extent. One bad feature of the situation is the amount of mill capacity now idle. Some of the leading plants in the district are curtailing operations and temporarily closing down departments because there is not sufficient work to keep them employed. Pig iron is quoted as follows: Grey forge, $10.75 balloon; No. 1 foundry, $12.50 to $13; Bessemer, $13 to $13.25. Finished iron and steel is dull. Best muck bar iron, $1.25; common, $10 to $15; steel bars, $1.15 to $1.20; steel rails, $28; Bessemer blooms, small sales at $19.60 to $19.75.

THE EFFORT FAILED.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 15.—An effort of the Merchants' association to raise a purse of $5000 to induce men employed to fill strikers' places to leave the city has failed. The street railway company refused to consent to the proposition. The company now has a full quota of men. President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, will arrive today.

JUDD LET DOWN EASLY.

Kansas City, May 15.—Homer A. Judd, formerly president of the Indian Rice Milling company, who pleaded guilty several days ago on four counts to violating the interstate commerce laws, has been sentenced by Judge Phillips to pay a fine of $350 on the second count only. The first count was for conspiracy, and the others were for reporting false weights. The penalties on the other counts will be fixed at the November term of court. Mr. Judd was recently indicted by the federal grand jury, and was brought here from Texas to undergo trial.

OPPOSED TO IT.

Commercial Club Objects to Banqueting the Firemen.

The Commercial club will be glad to see the delegates to the state firemen's convention in June, but it wants them to either bring their lunch baskets or get a "hand out" from the fire department people. A resolution was passed at the meeting last evening protesting against the expenditure of $500 for the entertainment of the delegates.

S. W. Hill introduced the resolution. He said it would be an imposition on the taxpayers to spend their money, much of which came from poor men struggling to earn $1.25 a day, to provide toothsome viands for a lot of people whose presence did not benefit the city particularly.

R. C. Sloan coincided with the views of Mr. Hill, and was in favor of letting the local firemen pay the bills. "The O. E. S. asked no help from the city," said he, "and why should the firemen expect it?"

President Helm explained that the delegates to the Masons' convention were here by invitation of the local bodies, while the delegates to the firemen's convention were invited by the council at the suggestion of the fire commissioners.

Alderman Nelson said the council had not yet acted. The matter was now in the hands of the fire department committee, which would report at the next meeting. Mr. Nelson said he was not in favor of spending as much as $500. He thought a sufficient entertainment could be provided on a less sum.

Ex-Chief Armstrong, Henry Haskins and W. W. Allen also spoke on the subject.

The committee appointed to confer with the chamber of commerce executive committee on the subject of uniting the two bodies informed the club that the matter was not in shape for a final report.

The committee on lower fares for pupils attending the Central High School reported that the street railway company had refused to make any reduction at present.

The question of holding the next county fair at the Oneota driving park was discussed, the sentiment of the club being decidedly in favor of the idea.

Alderman Nelson informed the club that a shoot would be held at the driving park in July and that $500 would be offered in prizes.

Baseball This Week.

Saturday and Sunday the Duluth Baseball club will play the Hamm's Export nine, of St. Paul, which is made up of players from the Pickets and Spaldings, of St. Paul. The visiting club is said to be a good one, though the St. Peter nine had no difficulty in whitewashing them by a score of 7 to 0 last week. Chippewa Falls will play here May 23 and 24, and Marquette June 6 and 7.

Company G Inspection.

The inspection of the Second battalion of the Third regiment, N. G. S. M., was concluded last evening, when Lieut. Johnson inspected Company G. Lieut. Cook was in command and fifty-five men were turned out. The inspection was very satisfactory. Col. Shandrew, Capt. W. H. Hart and other staff officers were in attendance.

WHEN NATURE

Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup company.

A TRAVELING YOUTH.

Has Journeyed Westward and Brought Up at Duluth.

A lad named Oscar Peterson stumbled into the office of Poor Commissioner Cook yesterday and said he wanted help to get to his home in Faribault. He was terribly emaciated and his clothes betokened a long, hard journey in box cars and afoot. He said he had run away from his home in Faribault to go West, and had brought up at the home of his brother in Pierre, S. D. He was not wanted there, and after receiving grudging hospitality for two or three days his brother kicked him out and he started for Duluth, walking part of the way and being helped along by kind-hearted railroad men. Peterson, who seemed to be somewhat weak-minded, was suffering with heart disease, the effects of which and the fatigue of his journey and the privations he had undergone reducing him almost to a wreck. He was given a square meal and put on a train for home.

Would Not Tell.

James Foster, residing at 722 Garfield avenue, appeared at the central station about 6:30 o'clock last evening, with his face all plowed with a knife. He had a long gash on his cheek from which the blood flowed freely. A physician was summoned. He was forced to take eight stitches to close the chasm in Foster's countenance. Foster refused to give any information about the matter, except that he had been done up by a capable man for whom he still entertained the most friendly feelings.

The Q. T. F. Party.

The Q. F. U. dancing party will be given this evening at the Spalding, and there is every reason to believe that it will be a very delightful affair. Hoare's orchestra will play and an excellent program has been arranged. The young ladies expect to realize a nice sum from the party, and it will go toward the furnishing of the new building which the Duluth Home society expects to build this year. The young ladies are anxious that all tickets be returned or the money remitted to Miss Ella Fitzgerald, secretary.

The Care of Trees.

"Young trees should not be allowed to become sod-bound," said Secretary Helm, of the park board, recently. "The sod should be cut away for a space of at least six inches on each side of the tree, and the earth in the cleared space should be broken up with a rake or hoe. Mulching is advisable, and a layer of dirt can be placed over the top. After the tree is five or six years old it can take care of itself."

Conversation Party.

The "Progressive Conversation Party" which has been arranged by the Women's auxiliary of the Unitarian church will be given this evening. The program will begin at 8:45 o'clock, and the subjects for discussion are as follows:

"President Krugar."
"Are Women Being Overeducated?"
"The Increase of Our Navy."
"Your Favorite Novel."
"Present Aspect of the Cuban Question."
"Spare the Rod and Spoil the Child."
"The Use and Abuse of the Bicycle."
"Your Favorite Poet."
"Our National Game."

The gentlemen fill their programs as for dancing, choosing a different lady with whom to discuss each subject.

SUICIDE

He Has Been Acting Rather Strangely For Some Time Past.

Ferryman Almost Reached Him in Time to Save His Life.

"Good-bye, boys. God bless us all."

These were the words with which Edward E. Pinkman, a land explorer and dealer, took leave of the world as he leaped to a suicide's death in the waters of the canal this morning.

The deed was committed about 9 o'clock in the sight of a dozen people. It was clearly a case of suicide, Pinkman being seen to deliberately make preparations for the leap. E. Johnson, a tailor employed at 30 East Superior street, was the nearest eye-witness of the affair. He says that he first saw Pinkman talking to somebody on the pier. As Johnson looked, Pinkman started out toward the bulkhead of the pier at the lake end toward the mainland. He stopped just as he reached the bulkhead and gazed into the waters of the canal a while and then, to Johnson's surprise, he heard him saying something in a loud voice, although no one was nearer than Johnson, who was himself some distance away.

As he spoke he took off his hat, laid it on the pier behind him, took a bottle from his pocket, placed it carefully in the hat, and then, waving his arms and uttering his farewell, he threw himself into the water.

FERRYMAN TO THE RESCUE.

The alarm was given and one of the men operating the ferry boats rowed after the drowning man, who was being rapidly carried lakeward by the strong current. Pinkman apparently made an effort to keep himself afloat for a while, but just as the boat reached him he seemed to throw his head forward under water. The ferryman grabbed at him as he went under, but he slipped from his grasp and went under, not being seen again.

Word was sent to the central station. There was some uncertainty about the name and locality of the drowning, and Detective Troyer started out to investigate. He called at the rooms occupied by Pinkman over the State bank. At his first inquiry Mrs. Pinkman burst into tears and asked if anything was wrong. Mr. Pinkman had been acting rather strangely, she said, for two or three days, and when he left her in the morning something in his manner made her apprehensive as to what he might do. She was prostrated by the occurrence.

WAS UP EARLY.

Charles A. Moore, who occupied an office with Pinkman at 323 West Superior street, said that the latter had been ill recently from the effects of which he had not fully recovered. He said Pinkman entered his room about 6 o'clock this morning and talked awhile. Mr. Moore remarked to Pinkman that he was up pretty early, to which the latter replied by saying he could not sleep. Pinkman left Mr. Moore's room after a few moments conversation and returned to his own apartments.

About 7 o'clock he gave his wife $3, kissed her goodby, and said he was going but to get something for breakfast. This was the last she saw of him.

Pinkman on his way to the canal stopped in Alderman Trevillion's store and bought some oranges, it being noticed after he had left that he had left his purse. Near the Booth office he met A. M. Daniels and asked him when the Dixon left for Isle Royale. He was told that it had gone. He said nothing more, but passed on to the canal.

It is said that he told a friend on Sunday that if he ever took another drink he would jump into the canal. He had evidently yielded to his desire for drink and it was in consequence, probably, that he took his own life. Just before throwing himself into the canal he was seen to drink from the bottle of brandy he left on the pier.

Pinkman was 41 years old and had lived in Duluth fourteen years, coming here from the Saginaw valley. He was a pine land cruiser for several years, but lately has only been dealing in pine lands, doing no cruising. He had many dealings with Rupp & Kert, Sibley & Bearinger, Don J. Leathers, and other Saginaw valley pine land men. Fred E. Pinkman, who runs the Lester park hotel is a brother of his. He also has several brothers and sisters in the East.

The life saving crew are dragging for his body.

TRAIN ROBBERS BALKED.

Huntington, W. Va., May 15.—A crowd of armed men assembled at a watering tank near Nolan, on the Norfolk & Western road, last midnight, to rob the north-bound express train. The train crew were notified by wire, and passed the tank at a high rate of speed. The robbers attempted to stop the train with red lights.

SNOW IN DENVER.

Denver, Col., May 15.—Denver is experiencing the discomforts of a snow storm today. The weather is not cold, and in the city the snow melts nearly as fast as it falls, but on the plains it is several inches deep and it is boon to the farmers, who have needed water for irrigation.

DEPREDATIONS BY PUPILS.

School Boys Who Should Receive Some Police Attention.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The prosecution or persecution of Instructress Braithwaite, of the Bryant school, at present engages the attention of most of the citizens, because any unusual occurrence in the public schools is closely watched until it is fully and satisfactorily explained. Now I am not even an acquaintance of the accused, know nothing of her religion or her politics, and therefore am not her apologist except in so far as may be considered a general sense from what I am about to relate, but I have hopes that the result of the investigation into this case will cause a certain class of male scholars of some of the other schools to be placed under stricter surveillance either of the school board or of the police department, the latter being the best equipped and perhaps solely qualified and calculated to cope with the situation.

My observations thus far, which are susceptible of easy and conclusive proof, extend to the Emerson and Jackson schools, and are sufficient to condemn those institutions as places totally unfit for children whose parents desire to educate and bring them up in the paths of rectitude and good citizenship. I will not tire you with a long list of offenses which I have witnessed, but will give instead only a sample in each case as follows: Not above a month ago a colored woman was passing up Fifth avenue west, just as the Jackson school was letting out for the day, when a half dozen or so of hoodlums, whose dress indicated that they were well connected, began applying the epithet "nigger" to her and pelted her with sticks and small stones for nearly a block, the lady sobbing violently meanwhile and doing all in her power to place herself beyond their reach. Such conduct as this is not only a deep disgrace to the school and to every inhabitant of the city, but above all is a sad commentary upon the principle of equal rights and the spirit of toleration which should be, and no doubt is, inculcated in the teachings of our public schools.

As to the Emerson school there are at present three vacant houses in block 44 of the Third division of Duluth, which bear true witness to the depredations committed by the boys who, by the grace of the school board, are permitted to attend that institution. During the cold weather last fall they tore away the railing of the porch, from the only one which had a porch, and used the material in building fires in a vacant lot near by during the noon hour and for an hour or more after school. Every pane of glass and parts of the window sash they broke out with stones and other missiles. They went on top of the house and removed the chimney brick by brick down to a level with the roof. This house presents a worse appearance now than the other vacant ones only because it has been unoccupied for a greater length of time. The boys may be seen every day "taking a pelt" at them with stones and they will soon be in the same condition. I am informed that vacant houses situated along the route of boys from the schools in other parts of the city meet the same fate, but I have no personal knowledge of the fact.

The teachers of the school are not to blame for this lawlessness any more than the Creator is responsible for the vast army of criminals which infest society, and a frail woman with a piece of rubber tube would have about as much effect in suppressing such deviltry as a hand bellows pointed at a cyclone. It seems to me that a smart tap on the head with a policeman's "billy," the jail and the reform school would be about the only efficacious remedy in such case during the period that such boys are to be permitted to disgrace and bring the public schools into disrepute, and if the teachers are afraid to punish or report the boys on account of the influence of their parents, why would it not be advisable for the police department to take charge of the matter and mete out to the offenders their just deserts, irrespective of political pull their parents may have in school or other politics?

NOW SUPPORTS LEE.

A Former Clough Supporter Tells Why He Changed.

C. S. Fulton, formerly chief deputy grain inspector at this point, who was at first supporting Governor Clough for nomination this year, has changed his attitude and is now working in behalf of the candidacy of William E. Lee. In conversation with a Herald reporter today, Mr. Fulton explained the cause of his conversion.

"I have changed," he said, "for the simple reason that I think it is the duty of every loyal citizen of the city of Duluth and of St. Louis county to work for and in the interest of our representative, C. A. Towne, and I can readily see that to work in the interest of Governor Clough means injury to Mr. Towne sooner or later. We are obliged to have the support of the western part of the district in order that we nominate and elect Mr. Towne, and if they are generous enough to grant us their assistance in this, certainly we ought to concede them our assistance in their endeavor to nominate Mr. Lee for governor, and I think it is the duty of all Republicans in Duluth and St. Louis county who have the interest of this district at heart to give Mr. Lee their hearty support.

"Mr. Clough has a number of office-holders here and they are all working hard for him, and then there are some here that are not holding office that are working hard for Clough, but in all or nearly all cases of that kind there is a self interest behind it. It is not so much love for Clough as what they expect to gain from his being governor again, either directly or indirectly."

STATE SILVER CONVENTION.

Judge Rea is Suggested For Minnesota Chairman.

The Hennepin county silver men are untiring in their zeal for the free coinage cause, says the Penny Press, and as a representative of one branch of the organization, Maj. George Blight Halstead, of Minnetonka, has been pressing for the call of a state convention. This action not having yet been taken, Mr. Halstead, late in March, wrote to Chairman J. J. Mott, of the national committee of the American Silver organization, at Washington, suggesting the name of Judge J. P. Rea, for appointment as Minnesota chairman. The delay which has occurred in reply from Mr. Mott is explained, and some very cheering information is received in a letter, which is as follows:

"Dear Sir—Yours of March 18 came duly to hand, but owing to the avalanche of letters that came in upon us about that time it in some way or other got into some of the drawers of my desk and escaped my attention until I came across it today. I offer this explanation and apology for the delay in answering the same and promise that such a thing will not occur again.

"I have had much corespondence from very able and estimable gentlemen in your state, who are interested in our movement, and the matter of appointing a committeeman for your state has been referred to them. Immediately upon finding your letter I communicated with W. H. Smallwood, of Duluth, and Elwood S. Corser, of Minneapolis, who are members of large silver organizations in your state and have a wide acquaintance among our friends there. I gave them the name of John Patterson Rea and yourself and asked them to communicate with you. If it is possible I would suggest that a conference be had between yourself and our friends at Duluth, Minneapolis and other points in Minnesota at some convenient place at an early day and that the matter of selecting a responsible head for the organization in your state be then and there determined and that committees for the various congressional districts be appointed at the same time.

"It now seems to be practically assured that there will be a break-up in the Republican national convention, the silver men of the West withdrawing. It is also very certain that the intense fight that is being made for the control of the Democratic national convention by the opposing gold and silver factions may result in a breaking up in that convention. The fight for the control of the Democratic convention is now so bitter that it does not seem possible that a harmonious reconciliation can be effected. All of this makes the outlook hopeful, because there is no doubt about the result if the line between the gold advocates and the silver advocates can be properly drawn and submitted to the people in such a way that a union of the silver forces can be effected.

"Every exigency that is likely to arise affecting a union is being considered and prepared by our committee to the best of our ability, and we can assure you that from the present indications the outcome is reassuring. Thanking you for your kind letter, and requesting you to corespond with Mr. Corser, of Minneapolis, and Mr. Smallwood, of Duluth, I am, very truly yours,

"J. J. Mott,
"Chairman National Committee American Silver Organization."

A WORN-OUT FAD.

"Spring Medicines," "Blood-Purifiers" and "Tonics" an Old-Fashioned Idea.

Pure blood, strong nerves and muscles, firm healthy flesh can only come from wholesome food well digested. "Blood purifiers" and "nerve tonics" do not reach the cause of the mischief. The stomach is the point to be looked after. The safest and surest way to cure any form of indigestion is to take after each meal some harmless preparation which will of itself digest food. There is an excellent preparation of this kind composed of vegetable essences, pure pepsin, Golden Seal and fruit salts, sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and these tablets taken after meals assist digestion wonderfully because they will digest the food promptly before it has time to ferment and sour, and the weak stomach relieved and assisted in this way soon becomes strong and vigorous again.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to any secret patent medicines, because you know what you are taking into your stomach. They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package.

DROPPED DEAD.

Daniel McGowan Expired Suddenly Last Evening.

Daniel McGowan, a cook, dropped dead shortly after 6 o'clock last evening in George Esh's saloon on West Superior street near Third avenue, the cause supposedly being heart disease.

McGowan had entered Esh's place a few minutes before, and after drinking a glass of whisky, stepped into a rear room and sat down. A few minutes later a noise as of someone falling was heard, and McGowan was discovered prostrate on the floor. An examination showed that he was dead, having undoubtedly expired before he fell from his chair. The police and Deputy Coroner Stocker were notified, the latter, on viewing the body, giving it as his opinion that heart disease was the cause of death.

The remains were taken to Durkan's morgue for a post-mortem examination. The deceased was about 40 years of age and unmarried. From the time of his arrival in Duluth from Hastings, about two weeks ago, up to Wednesday noon he had been employed as cook and porter in Sam Atkinson's saloon. He boarded at 24 East Second street. His relatives in Memphis, Tenn., have been notified.

BISHOPS

Methodist Conference Proceeds to the Election of New Bishops.

There Were Fifty Brethren Willing to Become Methodist Bishops.

A Colored Man Leads and Chaplain McCabe Is Second.

Cleveland, O., May 15.—Interest in the Methodist Episcopal conference today was centered in the election of bishops. Central armory was filled with spectators. Bishop Fitzgerald presided and the devotional services were conducted by the Rev. J. M. Shumpert, a Mississippi colored minister. Promptly at 9 o'clock Dr. Swindell arose and moved that the order of the day—election of bishops—be taken up. Bishop Foss offered a most fervent prayer for divine guidance and freedom from any unworthy motive. The floor was cleared of all except delegates and a laugh was created by Bishop Fitzgerald replying to a request that the initials of all candidates be given: "I will do so if the time be extended."

Fifteen tellers were appointed to collect the ballots. While the various ballots were being counted the regular business was taken up. A resolution by Dr. Ackerman against any delegate leaving before the end of the conference was tabled amid applause.

Dr. J. N. Fradenburgh, of Erie conference, presented a resolution which recited the fact that as doubt exists regarding the constitutionality of the restrictions of popular amusements the committee on judiciary should be requested to present a report on that point. The resolution was adopted.

The first ballot for bishop resulted in no choice. There were fifty candidates. The vote was as follows:

J. W. E. Bowen (colored), 147; C. C. McCabe, 141; Earl Cranston, 115; J. W. Hamilton, 107; Dr. Buckley, 72. A second ballot was ordered.

The second ballot is now being taken. Bowen leads. It will take two hours to count it. The conference has adjourned.

In addition to the five leading candidates, votes were received by others as follows: T. B. Neely, 47; C. W. Smith, 41; J. R. Day, 35; S. F. Upham, 34; J. C. Hartzell 34; J. F. Gouche, 32; J. M. Buckley, 28; W. A. Spencer, 27; F. L. Nagler, 25; J. F. Berry, 22; W. D. Krodbeck, G. E. Reed and G. K. Little, 12 each; H. A. Gobin, 10; W. V. Kelly, 9; H. H. Moore, Emory Miller, A. J. Anderson and J. W. Bashford, 7 each; W. B. Leonard, 5; F. M. Bristol, 4; C. H. Payne, M. B. Mason and A. J. Palmer, 3 each; R. I. Cooke, H. G. Jackson and Merritt Hulburt, 2 each; J. M. King, A. J. Merchant, E. A. Schell, A. F. King, D. W. C. Huntington, C. J. North, W. A. Quayle, John Mitchell, Robert Forbes, F. F. Jewett, Robert Bentley, D. F. Pierce and J. B. Graw, 1 vote each.

While the voting was in progress the conference managed to transact a little business. Dr. Swindell presented a resolution requesting congress to pass a law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in any building under the control of the general government. This was aimed at the emigrant building on Ellis island, in United States army posts, and it was adopted. A recess of ten minutes was taken, and after the recess the regular order of business was taken up and the memorial services were held.

Bishop Fitzgerald called Bishop Bowman to the chair, saying it was eminently fitting that the senior bishop should preside, and the graceful act was greeted with great applause. After the singing of a hymn, Dr. Forbes, of Duluth, read a portion of the Scripture, and Dr. A. B. Kelly offered prayer. The first memorial read was by Dr. W. F. Whittlock on the late Dr. J. W. Mendenhall. A second memorial was read by Dr. George Reed on the late Dr. J. F. Peck. Both papers were masterly productions and held the closest attention of the audience.

The result of the first ballot was greeted with applause, and the colored delegates were delighted over the lead of their candidate. As there was no election, another vote was taken and the tellers retired to count the vote. A motion was made to adjourn and receive the vote in the morning, but Dr. Buckley said it would be impossible to keep the vote a secret, and the conference adjourned until 2:30 p. m., when it will receive the result and take another ballot if necessary.

The result of the second ballot was announced after two hours spent in counting. It resulted in no choice. McCabe led and Bowen fell somewhat behind. Following is the vote on the first five names: C. C. McCabe, 218; J. W. E. Bowen, 175; Earl Cranston, 164; J. W. Hamilton, 147; Dr. Buckley, 96. Necessary to a choice, 343. The convention then adjourned until tomorrow.

FITZHUGH LEE.

New Cuban Consul General Receives Instructions.

Washington, May 15.—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, the newly appointed United States consul general to Havana, arrived from New York, and called at the state department to consult with the officials and receive full directions for his guidance. Owing to Secretary Olney's attendance at the cabinet meeting Gen. Lee was not able to meet him, but spent an hour in close conference with First Assistant Secretary Rockhill, and was informed of the status of all the Cuban cases now pending before the department.

Until he confers with Secretary Olney the consul general cannot tell just when he will depart for Havana but before leaving he will make a short visit to his aged mother at Fredericksburg. Mr. Rockwell, the additional consular clerk, who has been detailed to take his station at Havana left Washington yesterday on his way to Cuba.

SOCIALISTS BEING TRIED.

Berlin, May 15.—The trial of forty-seven socialists, including the president and members of the executive committee of the party commenced here today. They are charged with violation of the law of association during 1893-94 and 1895, by combining various political secrets, through committees, delegations, the interchange of letters, financial support, etc. After Heren Auer, Bebel, Singer and three others of the accused had been examined the hearing was adjourned.

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP.

Political Conditions That Confront the Republicans.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It may in some quarters be considered political heresy not to blindly bow down before the idol of McKinleyism. There are many, however, who, not carried away by a temporary enthusiasm, endeavor to calmly analyze the political conditions that confront the Republican party at this time. To them it is evident that al lthis talk of assured Republican success, however desirable such a success might be, is not the product of mature deliberation. To them it would rather appear that the election of a Republican president in November will demand in June unusual care, foresight and conservative judgment. An election by acclamation in the nominating convention does not by any means foreshadow a similar land slide at election. The Republican party has several painful proofs to offer of this fact. The real issue before and in the minds of the American people today is the money question, and no amount of skillful legerdemain will be able to sidetrack it. A candidate who is neither flesh nor fowl on this question (or perhaps ludicrously both) will not command the necessary conservative support of the East or hold in check the radical defection of the West.

The indications certainly are that with McKinley as the Republican candidate against a strong "sound money" Democrat, Republican success in New York, and more than likely in New Jersey, Connecticut and possibly even other Eastern states heretofore regarded as safely in the Republican column, will be more than a doubtful quantity. True it will be answered (a refrain with which the Republican party is not altogether unfamiliar), "we will elect without New York." But to do this will require the votes of a solid phalanx in the West.

Suppose, however, among other possible contingencies, that the Democratic party should split into two militant factions, the gold wing with Grover Cleveland for its candidate on a pronounced "sound money" platform, and the silver wing with Horace Boies or some other capable leader as its candidate on a free silver platform? The Democratic party is as hopelessly and as positively divided on the money question as it ever was on slavery; and stranger things have happened that that history should repeat itself, that the Democracy should hold two conventions and that two essentially opposite Democratic candidates should be presented to the suffrage of the nation. The dangerous quantity to the Republicans in such an event would be the almost certain loss of Nebraska, the Dakotas, Montana, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, and, possibly, Kansas, the states on the Pacific, as well as Iowa, should Boies be the Democratic nominee. In order to offset this defection the Republicans would have to carry every Eastern state, and no candidate, with blurred and uncertain views on finance, could hope to effect this result. McKinley has warm friends in the East. This is beyond question. But the conservative business judgment of the East is positively and irrevocably against him.

There are public expressions without number from reliable sources that establish this fact beyond peradventure. No well-informed person believes for a moment that, failing to harmonize and to win the business confidence of New York Republicans, McKinley could possibly carry that state as against Cleveland or other prominent "sound money" Democratic candidate.

Where then would we be at without New York? True, neither the gold nor silver wing of the Democratic party, in case of a split, may separately have enough electoral votes to elect their respective candidates; but giving both wings collectively enough votes to control the electoral college, it is only reasonable to suppose that some point of mutual agreement will be arrived at, and that the election of the president in this year of grace will not be thrown into the house. Surplus Republican enthusiasm had better be tempered by conservative judgment and reflection.

SIX CHILDREN FAINTED.

Lincoln School Ventilation is Very Poor.

It was reported to the health department today by James Lindberg, of Twenty-seventh avenue west, that six pupils at the Lincoln school had fainted away yesterday in the assembly room, being overcome by the foul air.

According to Mr. Lindberg, his son, who attends the school, told him last evening that the pupils to the number of 100 were gathered in the assembly room for singing exercises. The windows had all been closed on account of the bad weather, all access for fresh air being cut off. Six of the scholars, four girls and two boys, swooned, one, a girl, being resuscitated with difficulty.

Mr. Lindberg was told to furnish the names of the pupils who fainted, which he promised to do tomorrow.

PANDO IS PESSIMISTIC.

Madrid, May 15.—Gen. Pando who has just returned from Cuba, and who is mentioned as the possible successor of Gen. Weyler, as captain-general of that island, in an interview is quoted as expressing himself pessimistically through the declaration that the insurrection was due to the American assistance. It is believed that Maximo Gomez has crossed the river at Habana, and consequently has left the province of Santa Clara and is now in the province of Matanzas and on his way westward.

ARRAIGNED TODAY.

John H. Brigham Brought Before the Court.

John H. Brigham, the attorney whom the grand jury indicted Wednesday for grand larceny in the second degree on complaint of Rosa Fiedler, who charged him with defrauding her of $500, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Dash this morning on a bench warrant.

He was arrainged before Judge Morris and waived the reading of the indictment. He will plead Monday morning, and he was released on his own recognizance to get bail in the sum of $500.

H. R. Tinkham, indicted jointly with E. A. Tinkham and A. D. Cummings for grand larceny in the first degree, demurred to the indictement and pleaded that he had already been acquitted of the offense charged in the indictment; when Judge Moer signed an order overruling the first indictment and ordered his release.

The other two defendants will enter similar pleas.

Judges Moer and Morris at noon were still engaged on cases taken up yesterday.

Before Judge Morris the case of Engels against Scott & Holston was being argued to the jury. In Judge Morris' court the case of the estate of Harry Mea against the Banker's Life association of Minnesota was being argued to the court on a motion by the defendant to dismiss on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to make out a case. Judge Moer took the matter under advisement at noon.

Today—27, 94, 102, 104, 109, 114, 115.

Wednesday—52, 107, 120, 21, 80 74, 112.

Judge Morris will hear the criminal cases, leaving Judge Moer to take care of the civil calendar until Judge Ensign returns. The first case on call is the case of the William A. Bailey heirs against the Bankers' Life association of Minnesota, which would follow the Mee case.

INTERESTING CASES.

Argued Today Before the State Supreme Court.

St. Paul, May 15.—Two interesting cases were argued in the supreme court this morning. One was the case of Attorney Broughton, of Red Lake Falls, against whom the Bar association has made charges of offering to settle the claim of a client with the client's debtor for a trip pass to St. Paul. The testimony taken by the referee shows Broughton to have been a man of good reputation and character, and the chances are that he will clear himself of the charges. The second case was the quo warranto proceedings brought against Daniel C. Darrow, to oust him from the position of alderman from the Fourth ward in Moorhead. The ward is a new one, just created before the election, and the opponents of Darrow claim that it was never legally created.

D. J. Sinclair, now associated with the Alabama Fruit Growing and Vinery association at Fruithurst, Ala., arrived in the city yesterday and expects to leave with a large party about June 1 for that point. Parties interested call at the office of the company, 205 Providence building.

THE EASTERN STAR.

Election and Installation of Officers Last Evening.

Last evening's session of the grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star lasted until 3 o'clock this morning, the election of officers for the ensuing year being the business before the convention.

Duluth was accorded the honor of the bestowal upon one of her residents of the office of worthy grand matron, the most exalted position in the grand chapter, the mantle of that prominent station falling upon the shoulders of Mrs. A. N. McGrindley.

The officers elected are as follows: Worthy grand matron, Mrs. A. N. McGindley, of Duluth; worthy grand patron, Thomas H. Warren, of Stillwater; associate grand matron, Flora A. Pattee, of Minneapolis; associate worthy grand patron, Joseph A. Ecksteln, of New Ulm; secretary, Miss Eleanor M. Young, of St. Paul; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah A. Miller, of St. Paul; grand conductress, Miss Estella V. Fuller, of Graceville; associate grand conductress, Mrs. Wescott, of Albert Lea.

The impressive ceremony of the installation of officers was conducted by Past Grand Matron Mary C. Taylor, of Minneapolis. A noteworthy step taken at this session was the opening of the lodges of the order to sisters of half blood, they being eligible to membership.

The following appointments by Worthy Grand Matron McGindley were announced: Grand aide, Miss McClarney, of Chatfield; grand Ruth, Mrs. Lena Tracey, of Appleton; grand Esther, Mrs. Blanche Hand, of Wilmer; grand Martha, Mrs. Swartout, of Herman; grand Electa, Miss Lou Palmer, of Sauk Rapids; grand chaplain, Mrs. Elise, of Albert Lea; grand marshal, Mrs. Huntington, of Minneapolis; grand press correspondent, Past W. G. M. Mary C. Taylor, of Minneapolis; foreign correspondent, Past Grand Secretary Ida S. Wing Brown.

At the conclusion of the business of the session there was speech-making and an exchange of good wishes for the ensuing year. The new worthy grand matron was presented with a mammoth bouquet, accompanied with a few remarks expressive of the regard and loyalty of the order, to which she responded gracefully.

The sun, which had ungallantly sulked in a tent of clouds and mist during the major portion of the stay of the sisters of the Eastern Star, came out resplendent this morning, and Lake Superior put on his robe of emeralds and diamonds in honor of the occasion.

The delegates who yet lingered spent the forenoon in riding about the boulevards enjoying the magnificent panorama which had been unrolled for the first time during their visit. The outgoing trains at noon and evening carried the majority of the visitors to their homes.

The next meeting of the grand chapter will be held at Litchfield.

TEXAS CYCLONE.

Six People Injured---One of Them Fatally.

Newton, Tex., May 15.—Six persons were injured, one of them fatally, by a cyclone which passed near Mound Ridge, a station on the Missouri Pacific twelve miles north of here this morning. Five others whose names are unknown were more or less seriously injured. The storm could be seen from here and took a course from southwest to northwest. Torrents of rain fell after the cyclone had passed. Outside of the damage done in the narrow strip mentioned, nothing was injured. Help was sent to the scene from Mound Ridge.

ALMOST HEADLESS.

Probable Case of Suicide at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 15.—The almost headless body of a man, supposed to be J. C. Carlson, of Brooklyn Center, was found this morning at the west end of the bridge across Twin Lake, on the Soo tracks, about a mile out of Robbinsdale. The body was found by two men who were going fishing. By the looks of the man's mouth it would appear that he had taken Paris green. The coroner thinks that he took the poison, then waited for the freight train and threw himself underneath the wheels.

Boats Indifferent to the Advance in Lake Michigan Coal Rates.

The Decline in Rates at Chicago Thought to Be Ended.

Amherstburg, Ont., May 15.—(Special to The Herald).—The steamer Siberia, upbound with coal, grounded at Lime Kiln crossing where the south light ship was, at 5 o'clock this morning.

VESSELMEN NOT EXCITED.

Buffalo, May 15.—(Special to The Herald).—Boats are indifferent to the 10c advance in Lake Michigan coal rates, and are mostly leaving without cargoes. The new steamer W. D. Rees came in with 134,000 bushels of wheat from Duluth, and went to an elevator without a tug.

RATES OFF AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 15.—(Special to The Herald).—Buffalo rates went off to 1⅜ cents for full cargoes. Small lots commanded 1½ cents. Not many boats are on the market, and it is believed the decline is at an end.

AVOIDING LOW RATES.

Cleveland, May 15.—Boats on Lake Michigan are forced to take loads tomorrow or Monday, and are offered only 60 cents today, but shippers are not trying to make low rates on cargoes late next week, as they realize such a course would drive boats to Lake Superior and leave them later without tonnage at Escanaba when they may need it.

THE BRADLEY GROUNDED.

The steamer C. H. Bradley, which arrived yesterday to load lumber at New Duluth, went on a clay bank in the St. Louis river near the mouth of Spirit Lake last night, and she is still there. Several tugs worked at her last night, but she was on so hard that the attempt was given up, and at daylight this morning a lighter was sent up to lighter her coal. This was completed this afternoon and four tugs went up to release her.

A FAST BOAT.

Amherstburg, Ont., May 15.—In a trial of speed yesterday between the new steamer City of Buffalo and the City of Alpena, from Detroit to the Limekilns, the new craft beat the Alpena by about three minutes, averaging twenty-one miles an hour.

THE DEAN RICHMOND.

Concerning the supposed location of the wreck of the steamer Dean Richmond, which foundered Oct. 14, 1893, with all on board, the following particulars are furnished: Monday afternoon the fishing tug Sea Bird, while pulling pound nets west of Van Buren, discovered, about four miles northwest of Van Buren, a spar floating bottom upwards in water 100 feet deep. It was held down by a wire cable, so that only about two feet of it appeared above water. A buoy was anchored, and the Sea Bird brought in a plank about four feet long with a piece of large rope drawn through a hole and knotted. Tomorrow the Sea Bird will attempt to loosen the spar or a portion of it, and tow it into the bay for identification. The location of the wreckage discovered corresponds with the track in which it has always been believed the Dean Richmond would be found.

PORT OF DULUTH.

MARINE NOTES.

Vesselmen forced an advance of 10 cents in the Lake Michigan coal rate yesterday.

The men at the yards of the Globe Iron works at Cleveland are still out on a strike, and say they will not return to work until their demands are granted. Work at the yards is practically stopped.

The steamer Omaha, with grain from Duluth, was examined by a diver yesterday, who found several timbers partly sprung, but not seriously damaged, and she proceeded.

Capt. B. B. Inman has sold his small tugs Ariel and Lida to Alderman D. E. Stevens, who will use them in completing a large contract for getting logs out of the Nemadji river. The tugs were the smallest in the Inman fleet, the Lida being thirteen tons burden and the Ariel four.

The repairs on the Northern Pacific dock made necessary by the onslaught of the United Empire are completed.

The Ashland consignees of the merchandise cargo of the steamer J. V. Moran, which suffered damage through collision in St. Mary's river, have refused to contribute the cargo share of the damage and the delivery of the merchandise is therefore refused.

The steamer W. L. Wetmore fetched up at the Limekilns crossing on Wednesday, but succeeded in releasing herself at the end of half an hour.

On Tuesday the large lake tug Brockway struck the south lightship at the Limekilns crossing, causing damage which rendered it necessary to send the lightship to Detroit for repairs. The keepers of the lightship were badly injured by the collision.

The damage of the steamer G. W. Morley, caused by running on the rocks in St. Lawrence river, consists of a broken forefoot, also some broken frames and plank. Needed repairs will occupy a week.

The search for the lost steamer Chicora next week will begin at a point seven miles south of Benton harbor, and continued to the point where the first search commenced. It will only take about a week to complete the search and then the lake will have been searched from Stevensville to Holland. The new Graham & Morton tug Andy and the tug George D. Sanford, Jr., will be used in the search.

The death of Capt. E. M. Peck has necessitated a reorganization of the board of officers of the Northwestern Transportation company. They are now as follows: Harvey H. REFORMS

Spain's New Cuban Policy is Outlined By Minister Muruaga.

Practical Autonomy Which is to Be Compared to Canada.

Washington, May 15.—The Spanish minister here has acquainted Secretary Olney with the tenor of the reforms which the Spanish government proposes to make in the administration of affairs in Cuba and the subject has been earnestly discussed between them. The minister states that liberal as were the measures of reform held out to the Cubans in the act of the cortes of March, 1895, which were prevented from going into operation, as he contends, solely by reason of the actions of the separatists they are surpassed in generosity by the term of the new act to which the queen regent alluded in her speech from the throne at the recent opening of the sessions of the cortes.

In the Spanish view, Cuba, under the operation of the terms of this act, would enjoy a measure of autonomy comparable to that enjoyed by the dominion of Canada.

The principal obstacle to the immediate application of these reforms to the island lies in the indisposition of the Spanish government to be placed in the position of being obliged, by fear of the rebels, to make these concessions, but there is reason to believe that this point may be yielded, and the measure applied shortly, if it can be shown, perhaps through the good offices of the United States that the Spanish government may do this without reflection upon the honor of the nation.

YOUTHFUL FIREBUGS.

Have Destroyed Over $1,500,000 of Property.

Waltham, Mass., May 15.—William T. Reid, 18 years old, and William H. Daly, aged 20, both residing in Cambridge, who last night acknowledged that they were the perpetrators of many incendiary fires which have recently occurred in Waltham, Newton, Cambridge, Somerville, and other places, were arraigned in the district court here today. The charge of incendiarism against the boys refers to the destruction of property valued at more than $1,500,000, besides many other small fires which were extinguished before serious damage was done.

The Boston & Albany, at their Brighton stock yards, and the George T. Gale Lumber company and the Holt & Bagbee Lumber company, of Cambridge, have been the heaviest losers from incendiarism, the latter firm losing nearly $1,000,000. Nearly all of the fires which have occurred during the last two years in this district gave evidence that they had been set. A few days ago a barn near here was burned. It was then ascertained that two bicycle riders had been seen in the vicinity of the barn just before the fire broke out. From descriptions obtained afterwards, the police of Cambridge arrested Daly on suspicion.

When questioned Daly said that he alone set the fire at the lumber yard of Holt & Bagbee, but that he had an accomplice in Reid on other occasions and the latter was arrested. Reid substantiated Daly's statement regarding a score or more of fires. The reason for the acts of incendiarism given was "a desire to se the blaze." Both Reid and Daly were formally accused of three acts of incendiarism.

VIADUCT

Council Committee and Railroad Men Discussed It This Morning.

The Michigan and Superior Street Approaches Were Looked Into.

Suggestion That the Street Railway Company Stand Part of the Cost.

The council committee on bridges and viaducts, J. L. Washburn, of the Duluth Transfer Railway company, and who also looked after the interests of the Northern Pacific railway, and General Manager Plough, of the St. Paul & Duluth railway, met in conference on the Garfield avenue viaduct question at the city hall this morning.

City Engineer Patton was present and submitted his plans, of which there were two, one carrying the viaduct from Superior street, cutting off Michigan street, and the other placing the north approach of the viaduct at Michigan street, giving entrance from that thoroughfare to Garfield avenue. The latter plan will leave quite a dip at the north end of the structure, with a grade up to Superior street on the one hand and to the viaduct on the other. It was stated, however, that the street railway company did not object to this arrangement.

The sentiment seemed to be that the last named plan should be adopted in order not to depreciate the value of property on Michigan street at the intersection of Garfield avenue. If built according to the first plan the viaduct will be forty feet above water level at Michigan street.

The interests of the owners of property between Superior and Michigan streets were also discussed. If the viaduct is directed to be carried to Michigan street under the power vested in the council to change the grade where necessary, it would appear that the owners would have to submit.

The cost of the structure, it was estimated last September, would be $159,800 at then ruling prices of materials. City Engineer Patton informed the conference that a rising market would render necessary an increase in this estimate. How much greater the cost would be he said he could not say.

It was proposed to the council committee that, inasmuch as it was now the endeavor to bring about an amicable and equitable arrangement of the matter, it might be the proper thing to give the street railway company a chance to point with pride to the viaduct as having been erected by the help of a contribution. This was put tentatively in all friendliness and not with any ungracious desire to place the street car company under a burdensome debt of gratitude.

A general discussion as to the necessity of a viaduct was had. The representatives of the roads conceded that in case the Duluth-Superior bridge was built, that a viaduct would be needed, but they did not regard the necessity as immediate.

The conference broke up without any date being fixed for a further meeting. Superintendent Wilsey, of the Northern Pacific railroad, was not present, although he had been expected. The street railway people had asked to be notified of the conference that they might be represented, and a notice was sent accordingly, but nobody put in an appearance in their behalf.

ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP.

Two Men Tackled Fred Sahlberg But Got Nothing.

Frederick Sahlberg, proprietor of the East End Ice company, was stopped Sunday night on London road near Eighteenth avenue east, by two men who told him to hold up his hands. Sahlberg, instead of obeying the order, jumped back. At this the men made a rush at him. He ran across the street, pursued by them. He called out to them to stop or they would get hurt, whereupon they came to a standstill and Sahlberg made good his escape.

He says one of them was tall and wore dark clothes, the other one being shorter. The tall one had some sort of a weapon in his hand, but whether it was a revolver or not, Sahlberg could not say. Sahlberg did not report the affair to the police.

Not a Filing.

This is the day upon which the Red Lake Indian reservation lands were thrown open to settlement, but although there are about twenty sections in this district not a filing was made here today. Special Agent Naff, of Crookston, who is here, says the rush is much smaller there than was expected.

Chairman Harrity Here.

Hon. W. F. Harrity, of Philadelphia, was in the city for an hour or two yesterday. Mr. Harrity is chairman of the Democratic national committee. He has been fishing at the Brule river for several days.

"OH, PRETTY MAID!"

"Its' the best bicycle school in the city," she said.
Why give an entertainment on the street and injure yourself and break your wheel when you can learn it quickly and safely at Wieland & Munsey's, 26 East Superior street. Evening entrance, 25 East Michigan.

THREE HUNDRED ARE DEAD.

Cyclone Passed Through Several Counties In Northeastern Portion of Texas.

VILLAGES WIPED OUT; MANY PEOPLE KILLED; SCORES DYING OR INJURED.

Immense Damage Done to Property By the Storm Which Was of Terrible Severity.

Sherman, Texas, May 16.—About three miles of wire belonging to the city electric light works was torn down by the cyclone yesterday afternoon and in consequence the city was in darkness all night. A great number of inquiries for lost persons are being made, over 100 having been received by the police thus far. Physicians from Van Alstyne, McKinney and Denison are here in numbers, also nurses from all of these cities. Later reports show that Mrs. J. J. Johnson and child were killed four miles west of Howe, twelve miles southwest of this city. Mrs. Sam H. Hendricks, who lives near them is fatally injured. The latest reports indicate that a family by the name of Connor, consisting of an old lady, her son and daughter are seriously injured. They cannot live.

Reports are coming in constantly of persons who have been found injured. Reports from the south indicate that the direction of the main cyclone which passed through Sherman went between Denison and Pottsboro. The width or strength of the storm has not varied. It still maintains a breadth of about 150 or 200 yards through the entire county between Sherman and the river no fatalities have been reported, though there are unconfirmed rumors of a number of houses being blown away. The total number of injured will reach 150, and the total number of killed outright, so far as word from other points in the country is received, is about sixty, and it is estimated that at least that many more who are missing are dead.

Conservative estimates place the total number of killed in Grayson county at between 130 and 150. The path of the storm, which passed west of town, passes through a section of country which has no telephone or telegraph connection with the city. The telephone communication west and northwest of the city is torn down.

When the first blast of the storm was felt at Justin in Denton county, more than a hundred miles from Sherman, men, women and children were wholly unprepared for it. Justin was the first town to feel the blast. The work of ruin was quickly accomplished there.

WOUNDED—COLORED.

Ben Cupus, fatally. Jane Maupin, legs broken, head and body injured, may die. Mrs. Wesley Patty is expected to die with innumerable face and body bruises. Harrison Lane, head wounded. Jim Mitre, son and daughter. Mrs. Bridget Patrick, Charles Puckett, Bertha Patrick, Mrs. J. Lenz, George Nickerson, Mandy Patrick, May Patrick, Jane Luckett, five unidentified.

SOME OF THE RESULTS.

The results of the terrible cyclone which swept Grays Hill and Fairview additions to Sherman, at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, are not complete. The list of dead recorded up to noon today included 78. At least a dozen more are expected to die before night. It is estimated that twenty or thirty bodies yet are unrecovered, but several hundred men are searching the fields, digging up the debris and dragging the creeks.

Six more bodies, four dead, two alive, were recovered this morning. The missing child of Luck Montgomery was found this morning fifty yards north of Washington bridge, two hundred yards from its home. The little one's skull was crushed in, and the brains are gone as if scooped out. This completes the destruction of Mr. Montgomery's family, his dead wife and two babes being found last night.

A negro child, unidentified, was picked up in the city cemetery. Two bodies were found in the creek dead. It is reported that twelve bodies of dead whites are being brought in from the north of Sherman. Several parties are still in quest of bodies. The streets are filled with grief stricken people. Hundreds of farmers are in town, and it seems as though half the population of Denison is here today. The details of the storm grow more horrible as they are made fuller. Bodies have been decapitated, limbs torn off, eyes gouged out and lying on cheeks, fingers and toes cut off clean as with a knife, hair pulled out, great slivers of wood sticking through limbs, noses flattened in, skulls crushed and brains scooped out.

Some of the victims are lying in the morgue with necks broken, others are mutilated horribly. Some are not broken or bruised at all, but apparently lie peacefully and serenely in death. Many private homes are used as hospitals. Ladies of the cities are doing all in their power to save and succor the wounded, caring for and dressing the dead.

Undertakers' establishments are overrun with work. The city is crowded with newspaper men, every paper that comes to the city containing an account of the storm is eagerly seized upon and the contents are devoured.

The people are greatly excited. They view the dark skies and threatening clouds with evident apprehension. The work of caring for the wounded still continues. Many bodies are being brought in hourly. The total of dead here will reach 120, and the wounded will aggregate 100.

The people of the city are responding generally and generously to calls for help from the destitute and homeless people. Over $6000 has been raised. A relief committee was appointed at a mass meeting last night, and will take charge of the funds raised for the unfortunate.

NEWS AT ST. LOUIS.

Work of the Storm King near Denison.

St. Louis, May 16.—A special telegram from Denison, Texas, today, to the Post Dispatch says: At the same hour of the tornado at Sherman yesterday evening, a tornados wept over the northeastern portion of Grayson county, ten miles from Denison, and great damage was done. Only very meager details are at hand. The best information obtainable is to the effect that there were three storms traveling in the general direction and all of terrific fury. Seven miles east of Denison, the Turkey home was wrecked and the Turkeys all hurt. Further north the farm house of Louis Duivall was in its path and every member of the family were injured, some of them dangerously. From there the tornado crossed Red river and moved in a northerly direction toward the Chickasaw female academy. Across the river the country is thickly populated and apprehensions are felt for the safety of the people.

Further east in Grayson county another storm swept down the Chocktaw bayou and desolated the country. It moved in a northwesterly direction across the river and left a path of destruction. Everything is gone and searching parties are looking for the dead and wounded. A number of persons are missing.

Within twenty minutes after the Sherman catastrophe four special trains from this city, with all the city physicians, and all assistance procurable, were enroute. Then came a call for surgical assistance from the neighborhood east of Denison, and five or six surgeons left for the country at once leaving Denison with only one physician.

Reports from Isolated Indian territory points in the track of the storm are beginning to arrive. On Reynolds prairie, twelve miles east of Denison, a dozen houses were wrecked and many people injured. Reports from Joel, I. T., are that much property was destroyed. The store house, gin and home of Joe Kemp are in ruins and several of the Kemp family hurt.

FOOT OF HAIL.

Heavy Storm Which Ruined Kansas Crops.

Sterling, Kas., May 16.—Reports come in late from the district swept by the hail storm yesterday. The storm had its origin in the southwest, and traveled toward the northeast, increasing in violence as it progressed. It was about four and one-half miles in width, and extended beyond the town of Saxman, on the east side of the county. Growing wheat and corn was literally pounded into the ground, and fruit trees were completely stripped. Twelve hours after the storm hail stones were found piled up against barns and out buildings one foot in depth. It was the worst hail storm of years.

RUIN AND DEATH.

Justin, Gribble Springs and Keller Are Desolate.

Justin, Texas, May 16.—At this town, W. J. Evans was killed by the cyclone and seventeen wounded. The most severely injured are: Mr. Wilson, wife and child, Ed R. Reynolds.

At Gribble Springs, north of here, three persons were killed and several more injured. The dead are:

Mrs. Shannon and her small child.
Mr. Hill, a young man.

A baby, which was thought to have been killed by the storm, was found to have died just before and had been blown away. Mr. Hurst and family are severely injured. It is expected that at least two of them will die. One child was found with a large wooden splinter stuck through its head, but was, when discovered, still living. Ed True, a farmer northwest of here, had three ribs broken by being blown from his wagon. Gribble Springs is almost demolished, but few houses remaining standing.

Keller, a small town to the north of Justin, was almost eneirely wrecked by the cyclone, and it is reported that only one house in the hamlet is now standing. All that section of the country immediately northwest of Gribble Springs is in ruins. The injured there will number thirty.

A JOPLIN FLOOD.

Scores of People Driven From Their Homes.

Kansas City, May 16.—A special to the Star from Joplin, Mo., says: This place was visited this morning with an extremely heavy rain swelling Willow branch, which crosses Main street, to a depth of 200 feet. Many business houses were flooded, causing damage of fully $15,000. Two hundred feet of the Pittsburg & Gulf road is washed out south of the depot. Many mines are flooded and will throw hundreds of men out of work for some time.

A score of families were driven from their homes. The water on Main street arose to a height of six feet, and stores were flooded so that the doors were burst open, while the foundations of three were undermined. The day is still overcast and it looks like more rain. Later estimates place the aggregate loss at $40,000, the larger part of which is suffered by mine owners.

MISSOURI HAIL.

Heavy Damage Reported in a Missouri Town.

Lebanon, Mo., May 16.—A terrible hail storm visited this city and vicinity last evening, accompanied by wind. It was the most destructive storm ever known here. The hail fell thick and fast and the rain came down in torrents. The hail was terrific and very destructive throughout the city. Windows in nearly every residence and business house were riddled. There are probably 3000 broken window lights in the town. The trees and shrubbery were stripped of their foliage and gardens are devastated and in ruins. Fruit trees were beaten down and stripped of their load of promising fruit.

WHERE IT ORIGINATED.

Denton, Texas, May 16.—The cyclone which cut out the heart of this county and Grayson county to the northeast, started within a mile of Justin in this county. A terrific wind was experienced here. People were blown down, houses demolished and farm buildings completely removed. Reports from the country districts indicate some five people killed, most of whom were traders in Denton, but whose names cannot be ascertained at this time.

The roads are impassable and the small streams of the county swollen beyond their banks. So far no one has been reported killed in this town but the place is in darkness, half under water and searching parties are slow in reporting. Reports from Justin, Sherman and Gribble are to the effect that $500,000 worth of property has been destroyed in the two counties.

AT CARPENTER BLUFF.

Denison, Texas, May 16.—At Carpenter Bluff, seven miles east of here, the dwelling of John Devant was blown down and four persons, Devant and wife, and Devant's hired man, named Armour, and a little child, received injuries from which they will die.

BOOTH-TUCKER AND WIFE.

Newcastle, Wyo., May 16.—Commander and Mrs. Booth-Tucker passed East over the Burlington last night. Mrs. Booth-Tucker is much improved in health.

M'KINLEY

And He Was Greeted With the Greatest of Ovations.

Conference is Still Voting on the Election of New Bishops.

Cleveland, O., May 16.—When the M. E. general conference was called to order this morning, the third ballot for bishop was announced, amidst intense excitement. The vote was taken yesterday afternoon, and its result was kept a secret until this morning, when it was made public. It showed that 10 votes had been cast. Three hundred and forty were necessary to a choice. The following six candidates lead: C. C. McCabe, 252; Earl Cranston, 191; J. W. E. Bowen, 165; H. A. Buttz, 153; J. W. Hamilton, 138; E. B. Neely, 42.

No sooner had the result of the third ballot been announced than a fourth was ordered. It required the tellers nearly two hours to count the votes. It showed that 512 votes were cast and that no choice was made. Three hundred and forty-two votes were necessary to a choice, the vote on the first five candidates standing as follows: C. C. McCabe, 243; H. A. Buttz, 233; Earl Cranston, 214; G. W. Hamilton, 141; J. W. E. Bowen, 109. Another ballot was ordered.

There are two bishops to be elected. The 512 votes which were cast on the fourth ballot indicate the vote for one bishop only, and in reality represents 1024 votes. The apparent discrepancy of of 512 votes being announced, caused some confusion when, in the report of the ballot, it was shown that over 1000 ballots had actually been cast. This explanation was made by a prominent delegate to the satisfaction of the conference. While the vote was being counted the regular order was taken up. The death of Dr. J. W. Reed, of New York was announced and a committee on resolutions was appointed.

Rev. William J. Mastindale, of Kansas, presented a memorial requesting congress to prohibit the licensing of the sale of liquor in states where prohibition is in effect. It was adopted and ordered sent.

The routine proceedings were interrupted by great applause near the door and a short man was seen ascending the stage. As he turned to the audience it was seen that the man was Maj. William McKinley, and the applause was deafening. Bishop Joyce presented him, and the air was white with handkerchiefs. Three times the applause died away and three times it was renewed. It was the greatest ovation of the conference. Dr. Kynett wanted to take a recess at once, but the motion was defeated and the business was continued. The regular recess was made fifteen minutes instead of ten, and nearly every delegate in the house took advantage of the opportunity to greet Governor McKinley.

After recess the chair announced the next ballot. It resulted in no choice, but revealed some remarkable surprises. The vote on the six leading candidates was as follows: H. A. Buttz, 266; Earl Cranston, 245; C. C. McCabe, 236; J. W. W. Hamilton, 317; J. W. E. Bowen, 75; T. B. Neely, 21. Another ballot was ordered.

The conference next decided to take up the memorial service. Bishop Joyce called Bishop Foster to the chair to preside over the memorial services. This act of courtesy was greeted with great applause. The remainder of the session was occupied by the reading of memorials. A memorial on Henry J. Liebhardt was read by A. J. Nash, another on F. R. Crazy, editor of the California Christian Advocate, by John Coyle, and the third on Sanford Hunt, by E. S. Eaton. Upon the conclusion of these services the conference adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

At 3 o'clock the conference convened long enough to hear the report of the ballot, which was as follows: Buttz, 291; Cranston, 257; McCabe, 228; Hamilton, 122; Bowen, 56. No choice.

FILING AT CROOKSTON.

Red Lake Homesteaders Clinching Their Selections.

Minneapolis, May 16.—A Crookston special to the Journal says the second day's rush at the land office, where Red Lake filings are taken bids fair to surpass that of yesterday. The first guard of settlers who went on the lands yesterday, and the sooners, arrived on early trains and made a wild night. To catch the trains from Fosston to this city, they traveled all night in mud and rain. Before the train stopped 300 men dropped from the coaches and made a stampede for the land office.

On arriving there no attention was paid to a line, and for a long time the efforts of the police were unavailing to form one. Finally one was formed, and at its head were a score of men who had come overland during the night and had immediately placed themselves in line. The work of filing today will be slow. Every lumber jack and blacksmith in the country has posed as a land attorney, and as a consequence the papers are all faulty.

BREAK OFF TREATIES.

Rumor That Spain Will Take This Step.

New York, May 16.—A dispatch to the Herald from Havana, Cuba, says: Advices from Madrid say that a bill will be presented in the cortes abrogating all existing treaties with the United States.

IS NOT GUILTY.

Yet She Confessed She Was a Poisoner.

Oregon, Mo., May 16.—The trial of Gertrude Taylor, charged with the murder of her father, Dilion B. Taylor, has ended in a verdict of not guilty.

Gertrude is only 14 years old. Some weeks ago in a fit of anger she put rough on rats into the coffee. Her father died, and her brother and sister-in-law were made invalids for life, while others of the family were made temporarily ill. The girl, after several days, confessed. Her uncle, who is wealthy, stood by her, going her bail, and furnishing the money for her defense. The jury was out but two hours.

SPAIN'S ALLIES.

Russian Opinion Says England and France Are.

New York, May 16.—A dispatch to the Herald from St. Petersburg says: The Viedomosti says that Spain can count on England and France in the event of war with the United States, since by interfering with Cuba the United States enters their colonial spheres. The same authority also says this is a good time for Spain to fight the United States. She must spend millions to conquer the insurgents, and it would be better to fight the United States than the insurgents.

SPAIN'S NOTE.

Tells the Powers She Has Observed Treaties.

Madrid, May 16.—It is stated that the Spanish government, in a circular note to the powers, regarding the attitude of the United States towards Cuba, has taken the position that while Spain has scrupulously observed all treaties, the United States has infringed all conventionalities.

MILWAUKEE STRIKE.

Company Will Try to Run Cars Tomorrow.

Milwaukee, May 16.—The status of the street railway strike is unchanged. The company is running a full quota of cars, and it claims that the patronage is increasing daily, despite the bus lines of the strikers and the boycott of the sympathizers. It announces that it will run cars on every line tomorrow, notwithstanding that there is to be a great labor demonstration and procession through the principal streets of the city.

It is feared that this determination of the company will result in trouble, as tomorrow's procession will include all of the labor organizations of Milwaukee and a large labor contingent from Chicago.

COAL SHIPPERS.

Meeting at Pittsburg to Consider Freight Rates.

Pittsburg, May 16.—A special meeting of the lake coal shippers is being held here today to consider the question of freight rates to Northwestern points. The reduction in rate granted the Illinois shippers by the Rock Island road has cut the Pittsburg operators out of the steam coal trade for the northern markets and threatens to reduce the year's output, unless the competing roads make an equally favorable rate from this district.

Contracts are being held back pending the outcome and a committee will probably be appointed to represent the shippers before the Central Traffic association to advocate an equality of rates.

MIDNIGHT MURDER.

Terrible Tragedy in an Ohio Village.

Fremont, O., May 16.—A terrible tragedy occurred last night, one mile east of the village of Lindsay and about eight miles from this city, in which one man was killed outright and two sons are in such a condition that death may result at any moment. The deed was committed about midnight, and evidently was well planned. At this hour of the night the family of Jacob Hesse was aroused by an explosion, which shattered their home, but no one was injured.

Mr. Hesse and his two sons immediately prepared to leave the house to ascertain the cause, and they had hardly stepped out when a shot was fired and the old gentleman dropped over dead. Another shot and one of the sons fell pierced in the breast with a load of buck shot. Another gun shot and the other son was wounded. The fiend then escaped, and thus far has not been captured.

Suspicion points strongly to the deed having been committed by a young farmer named Louis Billan, who has been desperately in love with the daughter of Mr. Hesse, but his suit has been strenuously opposed by the father and also the brothers. Lately he has been prohibited from making calls, and this so enraged him that he has been nearly wild.

People who know the young man think that he has brooded over the love affair so much that he has become insane. The sheriff and a posse started at once to capture the man, but so far have not been able to locate him. A report has since been received, which says one of the sons has died, and that the other will probably recover.

EMBEZZLER ADAMS.

Brought Back From Europe This Morning.

New York, May 16.—Matt Adams, of Denver, who was arrested in England early in April upon papers alleging that, as clerk of Arapahoe county, Col., he had embezzled $40,000, reached this city today on board the Cunard line steamer Campania. He will be taken to Colorado to stand his trial.

LONDON

Returning Pleasures Make the Big Old Town Lively Again.

Unctuous Lot of Divorce Cases---Arabian Prince and His Lawyer.

Pierre Lorillard's Success at Horse Racing is Well Received.

London, May 16.—(Copyrighted 1896 by the Associated Press).—The continued warm, dry weather of the past week imparted gaiety to the streets, the parks were unusually full of people and the river and clubs, where polo playing is in full swing, were largely patronized. The terrace of the house of commons is again crowded at tea time by gaily dressed ladies, but many of the smartest set are still in the country, and Newmarket this week has absorbed all the racing set, including the prince of Wales.

Great interest centers upon the next drawing room, upon which occasion Lady Blandford will present the young duchess of Marlborough, and Lady Henry Somerset will present her daughter-in-law, formerly Lady Catherine De Vere Beauclerk, daughter of the duke of St. Albans. Many other nobilities will be presented on the same day. The princess of Wales, it is expected, will represent the queen. The duke and duchess of York returned from Copenhagen on Thursday last, and the princess of Wales and her daughters arrived from the south of France yesterday evening.

The duke and duchess of Marlborough have taken up their residence in Dudley square, and were very much sought after for the various functions of the week. The duchess is being critically inspected by society, which is much struck by her simplicity and absence of jewels at the opera, etc. One newspaper said: "She is contented with a small town house on account of her determination to some day restore Marlborough house to the family. The inference being that when the queen dies the duchess will be able to buy it."

A series of remarkable divorce, breach of promise and other trials are at present occupying the law courts. The chief interest centers in a romance which was unfolded before Justice Hawkins. It was the case of Briggs vs. the Emir Haffiz, an Arabian prince, who has paid several visits to America, and who has resided in princely style for years at various London hotels. Briggs, who is a lawyer, testified that he met the emir when the latter was a youth, under the guardianship of Miss Burton, a sister of the famous travelers. According to a letter from Miss Burton, Emir Haffiz's father was a prince, the ruler of Mecca, and a third descendant of the prophet.

Haffiz claimed that his family fortune amounted to £20,000,000, of which he was entitled to one quarter. In 1888 Haffiz summoned Briggs to Oxford, and informed him that his family was coming to England to invest the fortune, which had been melted into gold bars and packed in salt in order that they might be carried more easily. On the strength of this story Briggs lent money to Haffiz and afterwards, on various pleas, and upon the emir representing that it was necessary, sent messengers to Arabia to communicate with Haffiz's parents, and to send ships to the coast to meet the treasure caravan, etc. Briggs also furnished other sums of money, amounting to £3500.

The lawyer admitted writing a letter to Haffiz to the effect that the advances were made "out of love," but he explained that this letter was written at the dictation of the emir, whom he described as excitable. Counsel for Haffiz said that the latter lived on an income furnished by his tribe, amounting to £12,000 yearly. He added that Briggs' family had for years lived with Haffiz, dominated him and hoped to profit ultimately when Haffiz ruled over Mecca. Haffiz, according to his counsel, had given Mr. Briggs sums of money, amounting to £6000, in addition to clothes, jewelry, etc. Ultimately the Briggs family and Haffiz quarreled and the suit to recover the money advanced followed. The trial lasted five days and resulted yesterday in a verdict for Briggs, with costs.

The success of Pierre Lorillard at Newmarket has been exceptionally well received. Some Englishmen say that the success of the American horses is due to the English jockeys.

Adelina Patti's concert was a great success, and the well known diva was received with great applause.

It is reported that Perry Belmont is here on a mission in connection with the silver question. He had a long conference at the United States embassy yesterday, and has interviewed Lord Stalbridge, who has been prominent in the movement, today.

The principal event of the week, in a dramatic way was the long announced performance of "Romeo and Juliet" on Friday afternoon at the Prince of Wales' theater, by Misses Esme and Vera Beringer. The entertainment was for the benefit of the actors' orphanage fund. Miss Esme Beringer took the part of Romeo to her sister's Juliet, and the result was a charming performance which delighted all present. No more graceful, well proportioned Romeo was ever seen on a stage, and it is doubtful if many prettier Juliets have been produced. The love making of Esme Beringer was especially catching and both sisters were heartily applauded.

The one hundredth performance of "Jodbury, Jr.," which is a great success at Terry's, was given on Thursday.

Daniel Frohman, who is staying at Brown's hotel, said to a representative of the Associated Press: "My plans in London are very simple. I shall remain in London until the end of May and then go to Paris. While here I am trying to arrange for producing Olga Nethersole in her version of 'Carmen' at some London theater. I am also negotiating with several authors for plays for my Lyceum theater season in New York."

The new play "Josiah's Dream," by Charles Rogers, is now in active rehearsal at the Strand theater where it will be produced with a strong cast on the first of June.

Miss Fortescue has been playing during the week at the Theater Metropole, it being her first appearance in London since her return from Africa. The bill has been "Pygmalion and Galatea," and "Comedy and Tragedy," and her support has included Julius Knight, Adele Measor, Helen Ferrers, Kate Hudson, Gerald Maxwell and John Buckstone.

Fred Terry will shortly appear as the principal character in Malcom Watson's play, "The Haven of Content."

Some of the Laws Which That Body Passed.

Washington, May 16.—The annual session of the congress of Honduras closed on April 9, and among the acts of interest which it passed, as reported to the state department by United States Consul Little at Tegucigalpa were the following:

First, concessions granted New York capitalists for the building of an inter-oceanic railroad from Puerto Cortes to Amaju. Before carying out the concession the company must consolidate the foreign debt and make arrangements with the holders of the former concession for the same road.

Second, confirmation of the treaty of union celebrated last year between Honduras and Nicaragua and Salvador.

Third, confirmation of the treaty of friendship between Honduras and Costa Rica.

BOLLN

Omaha's Ex-City Treasurer Gets Nineteen Years and $211,000 Fine.

Durrant Case Hung Up in the California Court of Appeals.

And He May Not Be Hanged Until Some Time Next Year.

Omaha, Neb., May 16.—Henry Bolln, ex-city treasurer of Omaha, was this afternoon sentenced by Judge Baker, of the criminal court, to serve a term of nineteen years at hard labor in the state penitentiary and in addition to pay a fine of $211,000.

Bolln was for nearly four years city treasurer. His peculations commenced a few months after his election. His shortage was discovered last July. He was convicted on his second trial last week, the jury having disagreed on his trial. Bolln is 55 years of age, and nineteen years practically amounts to a life sentence in his case.

DURRANT'S CASE.

Probably Will Not Be Executed Until Next Year.

San Francisco, May 16.—The bill of exceptions in the Durrant case has been filed in the supreme court. District Attorney Barnes said today that even should the prosecution win every point on appeal, Durrant could not possibly be executed before November or December. The prospects are at the best that the execution will be thrown over into next year. The delay, says Mr. Barnes, is the fault of California's appeal system.

A CHICAGO TRAGEDY.

Chicago, May 16.—Robert E. Edwards, a paper hanger, formerly a palace car conductor between Pittsburg and Chicago, shot his wife in the face last night while she was asleep. The woman was not fatally injured. She jumped through a window and escaped from her husband, who turned the pistol on himself and died instantly. A letter said to have been written by a Pittsburg saloonkeeper to his wife, and signed "Butch," is reported to have been the cause of the shooting.

KILLED TWO, WOUNDED ONE.

Columbus, O., May 16.—Jacob Hesse, near Fremont, shot and killed his sons Alvin and Reuben and wounded Louis Billow. They tried to blow up his house with dynamite. Billow is at large. Miss Hesse's father objected to him as a suitor.

THE VERMILION RANGE.

Two Thousand Tons of Ore Shipped Daily.

Tower, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—About two thousand tons of ore per day are being hoisted at the Minnesota mine, and shipped directly to Two Harbors, in addition to a number of cars from the stockpile. The company has not yet chartered enough tonnage for the season's shipments, and as soon as the anticipated reduction in vessel rates to Lake Erie points are made, the ore will go forward much faster. Twenty-five hundred tons a day are being shipped by the Chandler mine at Ely.

Another fatal accident occurred at the Minnesota this week, whereby John Taittonen, Finlander, was killed. The deceased was tramming ore when a mass of rock fell from overhead, causing instant death. His funeral was held yesterday, and 300 members of the Miners' union attended the services. He left a wife and several children in Finland.

During a row at Soudan a few days ago, Anton Preato shot and seriously wounded three fellow miners, all Austrians. A shot gun was the weapon, and as it was used at short range, the result was serious, one of the men having twenty-three shot removed from his face. The prisoner was given an examination before Judge Owens and bound over to the next term of the district court in $500 bonds.

The mining students of the state university were given a reception and lawn party last Sunday afternoon by Miss Fanny Barrett. Monday evening they were tendered a dance at the Vermilion. They will complete their work here this week, and then spend a few days in Ely.

Tramps are getting numerous and the city authorities have made arrangements to board them while they help improve our streets. Six of the fraternity were run in this week, two of whom were released on their showing enough money to pay their fare out of town.

The baseball season of the Iron Range league opens Sunday with a game here between the Ely and the local teams. The gun club of the two towns will also contest at the same time.

Women's Ill Health

is the cause of untold suffering and sorrow. Bad health steals away youth and beauty and darkens many a life. It makes many a woman feel sad, weary and despondent, but women might easily overcome all their distressing ailments if they would only assist nature by using that great health-giving stimulant.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

RED LAKE LANDS.

Reservation Rush Not a Very Big Affair.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 16.—Heavy rains, swollen streams and lack of conveyances, either boats or wagons, tended to keep down the rush for the Red Lake reservation lands, but yesterday's sunshine inspired the crowds somewhat and hundreds got away into the promised land.

The crowds have already started from the reservation after the rush to make their filings at the Crookston land office. Some of the settlers report trouble over claims. One man is said to be dying from injuries received from a pistol shot during an altercation over priority of settlement. Had the weather been favorable as usual this spring, this section would have seen a rush comparable to the Oklahoma opening.

The people at Crookston, through which all comers to the reservation have to pass, sought to convince settlers that the first filing would take preference over the first settlement, and thereby they kept homeseekers in Crookston as long as possible. The result will be an unlimited amount of contests. Persons coming hereafter will have a better show than ever as any amount of choice land will be left and settlers will be able to take their time finding it. A gradual influx of people is expected all summer.

CHILIAN FLOUR.

It Hurts the Pacific Coast Trade.

Washington, May 16.—The flour trade of the Pacific coast with Ecuador via San Francisco and Guayaquil, which has been brought up to considerable importance, is now threatened with destruction at the hands of the Chilians, and already it is suffering very seriously from competition. The merchants explain that this state of things has been brought about by the high freight charge made by the steamship company since it no longer has to meet competition.

United States Consul Dillard, at Guayaquil, who reports this matter to the state department, says that if the people of Ecuador once become reconciled to the use of Chilian flour, American exports of flour to the country will almost entirely cease.

CHURCHES

Ascension Day Musical Service to Be Repeated at St. Paul's Church.

Bishop McGolrick to Preach at the Cathedral Tomorrow Evening.

Dr. Humason Will Preach a Sermon to the Young People.

At St. Paul's Episcopal church there will be holy communion at 8 a. m. Sunday school at 10 a. m. Morning prayer and sermon at 11 a. m. Evening prayer and sermon at 7:30 p. m.

In spite of the untoward state of the weather, the Ascension day services at St. Paul church Thursday evening were well attended, and the musical program alternated with appropriate readings was well carried out. The choir, reinforced by the High School Musical society, gave some very effective choruses, the best one being the "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah." The solos were all good. Mrs. Holcomb sang "Mendelssohn's "O Rest in the Lord," and Mrs. Snapp, always a favorite, gave "O for the Wings of a Dove," with the sweetness of expression which is her great charm. "Nazareth," that beautiful creation of Gounod's, was given by Mr. Gearhart, and the choir and those who remember how exquisitely this was sung at Christmas time were delighted to hear it again. Another good number was the High School Girls' quartet, which sang Professor Custance's arrangement of "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." By request the program will be repeated tomorrow evening, and will include solos by Mrs. J. L. Snapp, Mrs. Burt Holcomb and Harry C. Gearhart, and choruses, including the famous "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah," by a full choir of about eighty voices. The High School Girls' quartet will also sing "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." A collection will be made in aid of the choir fund for music, etc.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Six Turtle Mountain Indians, including Red Thunder and Chief Little Shell, left Rolla yesterday for Washington to see the great father with regard to their land claims. Lawyer Anderson, of Washington, was here two months ago and effected an agreement with the Indians according to the terms of the treaty of 1892, which excludes all Canadian halfbreeds from participating in the settlement. The present deputation will urge the claim of the excluded members of the tribe. A valuable tract of land near St. John is settled by these foreign halfbreeds and they propose to make a fight to retain this land. The bloodless conflict of last year was caused by the same foreign halfbreeds. Congress will be urged to settle this dispute immediately and avoid further friction. At the present time there is difficulty at St. John over these St. John lands and considerable trouble between farmers and breeds is already started. A number of breeds have been arrested and threats have been made on both sides.

The county coursing meeting, held at Cogswell Wednesday, was attended by a large crowd. In the all-age L. H. White's Sam won first money; G. A. Berto's Village Girl, second. In the puppy stake, Dr. Patterson's McKinley got first and Dr. Patterson's Johnson got second. There were eight entries in each stake.

At Grand Forks the police picked up a boy, aged 14 years, and handed him in the police station. He gave his name as Leslie Peebles, of Sterling, Ill. He said that his father was named O. E. Peebles, was a broom maker and the family had recently moved from Carter, Neb., to Sterling. He said his father was out of work and he could not go to school on account of no books or suitable clothes, and he decided to run away. This he did three months ago and he has been on the tramp ever since then. He is exceedingly bright for a boy of his age and he was willing to go to work if it was offered him. When arrested the youngster was begging. His father has been notified of the boy's whereabouts, and if he is not heard from he will be given a job and set to work.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

At Chamberlain Frank Champaign, a crayon portrait fiend, who has been victimizing the people in Western South Dakota, was arrested for obtaining money under false pretences, and in default of $300 bonds lies in the Lawrence county jail until the next term of the circuit court. Champaign claimed to represent O. B. Reeder, a crayon and portrait artist of Fairbury, Neb., but in answer to inquiries Reeder stated that Champaign had no authority to solicit orders about town or collect money in any sum.

KATY IN TROUBLE.

Big Strike Which Will Tie Up a Railroad.

St. Louis, May 16.—A special to the Republic from Denison, Texas, says: The most serious strike ever known in the Southwest is threatened. The grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which has been in St. Louis to lay the case of Engineer William Lanams before the Missouri, Kansas & Texas officials, returned today. After a conference the company refused to reinstate Lanams and the grievance committee entered into a federation with all the organizations of railway trainmen, six in number, and the entire system of the road has been federated.

A committeeman said today: "You can state officially that unless Engineer Lanams is reinstated inside of five days there will not be a wheel moving on any part of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas system. We are organized for the fight and every order of railway trainmen is bound with us that every wheel shall stop within five days if Mr. Lanams is not put back to work." The ultimatum of the brotherhood has been sent to the Katy headquarters.

AN IDAHO CONUNDRUM.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 16.—Governor McConnell, of Idaho, speaking of the state convention to be held at Pocatello today says: "The Dubois men undoubtedly make a majority of the convention, but it is not certain by any means that they will be able to prevent the election of Senator Sheppard as a delegate to St. Louis. No fight is being made against sending Dubois to St. Louis as a delegate, provided he will go as a Republican. Eminent Republicans will contend for the adoption of a resolution pledging the delegation to St. Louis to abide by the resolution of the convention. I think if the resolution proposed is not adopted there will be two conventions."

WIZARDS OF THE AIR.

DaComas and Other Celebrities With Ringling Bros.

There is probably no single feature of a circus program that claims so much breathless attention or that thrills an audience to a greater degree than an intrepid performance upon the flying trapeze. This is particularly true of the DaComas, the wonderful aerial family who will be seen with Ringling Bros. world's greatest shows during the engagement in this city Monday, June 8. This notable family of gymnasts comprises one gentleman and two ladies, and their act is not only unique, but also far superior to anything of the kind ever before seen in this country. They actually fly through space, turning single and double somersaults in mid-air, and never failing to catch each other at the critical moment of descent.

The crowning feature of the performance is one in which the younger girl exhibits a precision rarely acquired by gymnasts, even after many years of experience and success. Swinging under the immense dome, head down, forty feet apart, Lewis and Marie toss their sister Fancion across the intervening space, catching her with outstretched hands, and repeating the maneuver until the audience is fairly electrified by the apparent dexterity of the performance. The beauty of the exhibition given by the DaComas is greatly enhanced by the physical grace of the performers and the superb manner in which their act is costumed, and while their mid-air evolutions are startling in the extreme, they also constitute a series of pictures that attract and delight the artistic eye.

In addition to the DaComas, Ringling Bros. offer many other brilliant aerial specialties. The performance of the three Picardos upon the aerial bars is a novelty and worthy of being classed with the best of high-class arenic exhibits. Europe has never before sent us anything so clever in this line. It is thrilling, unique and entirely new to the United States.

Mlle Irwin, known the wide world over as the "human top," is also attracting unprecedented attention. This marvelous lady combines with a fascinating personality and picturesque figure the most astonishing strength of jaw. She is drawn to the dome of the amphitheater on a cable stretched at an angle of 45 degrees, and then, suspended by the teeth, glides to the ground with the rapidity of a cannon shot. Another feature of Mlle Irwin's performance, and the one which, perhaps, arouses the greatest enthusiasm, is the dizzy speed with which she spins while thus suspended high above the heads of the audience, turning with such rapidity that the contour of her figure is lost in a perfect maze of artistic motion.

The head-balancing of William Irwin is also a memorable incident of the show, which comprises all the world's greatest gymnasts, acrobats, contortionists and arenic specialists; the finest horses, the costliest menagerie, the most resplendent introductory spectacle, the most exciting, realistic real Roman hippodrome and the grandest free daily street parade ever seen in this or any other country.

WEST END

Entertainment By the Longfellow School Pupils Yesterday Afternoon.

Complete Cantata Sung By the Scholars--Some Very Pretty Dancing.

Opening of the Clough Island Summer Resort Tomorrow--Other News.

The entertainment given yesterday afternoon by the pupils of the Longfellow school met the highest anticipations of the visitors present and reflected great credit upon Miss Ensign and her corps of teachers. The rendition of the complete cantata by pupils so young was a revelation to many of the special training in music accomplished in the public schools. The "Dream of Fairyland" was made up of solos, duets and choruses by bands of fairies dressed in white and black and a cute little band of sprites dressed in red.

One of the prettiest features of the program was the Maypole dance by Miss McCall's school. The drills in callisthenics and physical exercises were well executed and showed careful and considerate training on the part of the teachers. The exhibition was given in the main hall of the building, and notwithstanding a lack of proper space for an entertainment of the kind and inconvenience to spectators, a large number of people were present and highly enjoyed the ins-resting program.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. WAS DULL Trading In Wheat Was Light Today on the Duluth Board.

The Opening Was Weak on Bearish Reports From Every Source.

A Large Falling Off In Argentine Shipments Caused a Reaction.

Wheat was weak at the start today on bearish reports from almost every source. There were warm rains throughout the winter wheat states and cables were weak. It was raining in the West and Southwest and cool and clear in the Northwest. Then it firmed up on a large falling off in the Argentine shipments. The weekly crop report in the Chicago Times-Herald and Thoman's crop report—rumors of the latter having been issued causing yesterday's break in wheat—were the principal influences at the opening. They caused weakness at the start on account of the lack of confirmation of them. The insects are acknowledged, however, by the professional reports referred to, to be present in large numbers in many localities, with a capacity for mischief which would be easily developed by favorable weather conditions. The effect of the crop reports was largely discounted by the rumors current yesterday afternoon foreshadowing the general tenor of the Thoman report, so that after some preliminary weakness it firmed up, and ruled steady and dull. It is estimated that Duluth wheat stocks will show a decrease of about 1,000,000 bus this week.

July opened unchanged at 62c, declined to 61¾c, reacted and sold up to 62¾c, at which it closed. The mills bought 15,000 bus to arrive at ½c under July an dshippers took 60,000 bus at 1c under July. No. 1 close was ¼c higher all round than yesterday. Following were the closing prices:

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 16.—Wheat opened lower on continued showers in winter wheat, and after unimportant fluctuations closed a fraction better than yesterday. The day was not prolific of any important news. Crop reports were about a standoff, and though some vague reports of export inquiry came from New York, the news was too good to be true and was not confirmed. The trade was mainly in selling by tired out bulls and buying by bears who have got on the bull side temporarily. France reports better crop prospects on the recent rains and sends selling orders here, while Argentine is now preparing to seed a new crop under perfect weather conditions. Undoubtedly our own crop prospects have been greatly improved by rains, but the next two or three weeks may develop almost anything of insect life, and the market will bear close watching.

Corn and oats dull and easy. If present prospects continue, they will be a good sale even at the present low prices.

Provisions had some support from shorts, but the packers continue to supply the demand.

Puts, July wheat, 62c.
Calls, July wheat, 63c.

New York, May 16.—The stock market opened dull and irregular, with the changes unimportant. The market was extremely sluggish in the final hour, without noteworthy change in prices. The closing was firm, with the net changes irregular and fractional. The aggregate sales were 48,800 shares.

THE ONLY THING TO DO.

The following appeared in the political column of the Minneapolis Journal the other day: "Word comes to Minneapolis from the west end of the Sixth congressional district that the opposition to Congressman C. A. Towne is trying to unite upon a candidate with whom to oppose him in the nominating convention. Not many days ago I understand a meeting was held in St. Cloud of several of the choicest spirits of the Towne opposition, at which it was decided to press the position of standard bearer upon Frank E. Searle, the St. Cloud lawyer and banker. Whether Mr. Searle was present, or will consent to such an arrangement, I do not know. Several Duluth men were at the conference, and it was decided that Towne could be defeated easily if the right sort of a man were brought out. Towne never has had the support of what is known as the 'gang' in Duluth. He defeated it two years ago, when he defeated Kinney for the nomination, but it comes up as smiling as ever again this year. Thoughtlessly, by his extreme silver views, and his policy of what looks like studied neglect of certain men who were his strongest support two years ago, Mr. Towne has played into the hands of the 'gang.' Had he so behaved during the first term as to merit the approval of the district as a whole, the 'gang' would not be heard from this year. It remains to be seen what sort of a figure it will be able to cut again: Towne this year."

The Herald does not believe that Mr. Searle, who is now an esteemed resident of Duluth, was present at the conference alluded to above, or that he would consider for one moment the idea of accepting the Republican nomination for congress this year. But that there are others who would defeat Mr. Towne if they could, there is no doubt. The "gang" in Duluth, as the Journal calls it, may be "smiling," but it is not smiling very audibly, because it knows that it cannot control this county. Just now it is engaged in a futile attempt to capture the St. Louis county delegation for Dave Clough, and, while ready at any time to stab Mr. Towne in the back, it is endeavoring to convince his friends that the proper thing for them to do would be support Mr. Clough, who, they say, can control enough counties in the Sixth district to ensure Mr. Towne's nomination at St. Cloud. They know well that Mr. Clough will not carry one half of the counties they claim, and that he could not deliver their votes to Mr. Towne or any other man. These same counties will support Mr. Towne in any event. And so the siren song of the Clough "gang" is sung in vain.

The intimation in the Journal of the gang's intentions should be a sufficient warning, however, to every friend of Mr. Towne in St. Louis county as to the attitude he should assume in the governorship fight. It is to the interest of St. Louis county to keep in harmony with the rest of the Sixth district, and nearly all the other counties are unquestionably for Lee. The friends of Mr. Clough in Duluth are, for the most part, the political enemies of Mr. Towne, the men who fought him two years ago and would fight him now if they thought they could carry a single ward in the city against him. The friends of Mr. Lee are all supporters of Mr. Towne. Congressman Towne has no greater admirer than Mr. Lee, and there is no Republican in the district who can do more to help Mr. Towne politically than Mr. Lee can, and he is willing to do it. His friends in the western end of the district think, however, that Mr. Towne and his friends in this county should reciprocate by supporting Mr. Lee, and The Herald believes that they will do so.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

The grand jury of the district court on Thursday presented a report to the court in which the statement was made that St. Luke's hospital is "a veritable fivetrap and dangerous," and Judge Moer was requested to forward a copy of the resolution to the board of county commissioners.

This action places the county board in a somewhat peculiar position. When the typhoid epidemic was prevailing here last winter there was a general demand for more hospital accommodation and an agitation was started for the building of a county hospital. A petition to that effect was signed by a large number of heavy taxpayers and presented to the commissioners, who appointed a committee to investigate the subject and learn what has been the experience of other places with county hospitals. Then there was an apparent change of public sentiment, and a majority of the board decided not to pursue the matter any farther.

The action of the grand jury revives the subject in a manner that places the commissioners in a rather awkward position. It has been held by the courts that commissioners are criminally liable for any neglect of duty which places the lives of county patients in jeopardy. There was a case in an Eastern state not long ago where a hospital in which county patients were confined burned down and several of the patients lost their lives. The attention of the county commissioners had been drawn to the fact that the hospital building was not safe and that it was not a safe place in which to keep county patients, but the commissioners neglected or declined to take any action. After the fire and the consequent loss of life, the commissioners were indicted for criminal neglect of duty and, if The Herald is not mistaken, they were found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment.

These facts make the presentment of the grand jury in this county a very serious mattter for the county commissioners. What will they do?

THE TRANSVAAL QUESTION.

The trouble in the Transvaal has not ended, by any means. The refusal of President Krueger to accept the invitation of the British government to visit England and discuss the Transvaal question is regarded in London as an intimation that further serious developments are in prospect. The disclosures made at the trials of the Uitlanders at Pretoria, when cipher dispatches were read which directly connected prominent members of the British Chartered company, including Cecil Rhodes, in the invasion of the Transvaal, have raised complications which may lead to a direct conflict between England and the Boer government.

The London correspondent of the Cleveland World stated in a recent letter that the Boer strength is 35,000 well-armed men, and that for some time the Transvaal republic has been building forts, importing ammunition, field guns and German officers. The Orange Free state is the close ally of Oom Paul's government, and there are 75,000 Boers, British subjects, in the Cape Colony who would very likely go over en masse to the Boers were there another war with Great Britain. Recent events have aroused the strongest feelings of nationality throughout the Dutch-speaking people in South Africa, and Mr. Rhodes himself confesses that this feeling is as intense in the English colonies as it is in the two republics.

The Africander Bond, the most powerful political organization in the Cape, denounced the Jameson raid as a menace at Africander nationality. Indeed, prominent men from Cape Town who have recently been in London state that they have not the slightest doubt that one of the chief reasons for Mr. Chamberlain's somewhat humble attitude towards President Krueger was his knowledge that military operations on the part of the English against the Transvaal republic would insure a rebellion in the Cape and the Dutch-British subjects going over en masse to the Transvaal burghers.

For such a condition of affairs the British at the Cape are not only unprepared, but are incapable of taking the field and would at the first outbreak of hostilities be forced into the ports. The British imperial force, with the reinforcements about to be dispatched, is about 3000 strong. There are 20,000 British colonists, and in Natal another 7000? But they are not properly armed and have no knowledge of drill or discipline. The two British garrisons of the Cape and Natal are 800 miles apart. The Boers in the Cape are in the majority in every district except those between Port Elizabeth and East London, and before a blow had been struck the whole railway system outside the port and the whole telegraph system would be in the hands of the Dutch. Only two ports, those of Cape Town and Durban, are protected by shore defenses, and there is little exaggeration in believing that within a fortnight of an outbreak of war the British possessions in South Africa would be confined to those two ports.

And yet, England has in diamond mines, gold companies and municipal loans at least $500,000,000 represented in South Africa, so that it is no small interest that would cause the British government to send enough military reinforcements to the Cape to retain its position without question as the paramount power in that country.

A CHANCE TO EXPLAIN.

Why should David M. Clough be nominated for governor?

The Herald has never heard the question answered, and has wondered what it was that fired the heart of some thirteen statesmen in this county in his behalf. Perhaps they will be willing to enlighten the people upon the subject.

Is it because Dave Clough is preeminently fitted for the position? Does his education, experience and environment point him out as the man to be at the head of this great state and help make its history?

Do the people think of him as the fitting successor of Ramsey, Marshall and Davis in the gubernatorial chair?

A man to be governor of this superb commonwealth should be able to reach the rounds somewhere near the summit of the ladder, as respects ability. Can Mr. Clough reach this point? The Herald does not know; it is simply wondering. Will some one give an intelligent reason why he should be nominated for governor? The Herald's columns are open to any of the statesmen here who are pulling the strings in his behalf.

COL. GRIDLEY'S DEMOCRACY.

The West Duluth Sun, the only Democratic paper in Duluth, says: "E. C. Gridley is ambitious to be a delegate to the Democratic national convention. Though he is a friend of silver his record on the tariff question is that of a back-slider. He may therefore find it necessary to nurse his worthy ambition to another time, farther from the recent past."

This seems to do Col. Gridley an injustice. It is the first time that any paper here has questioned his Democracy. It is true that he denounced the action of Maj. Baldwin in voting in congress to repeal the protective duty on iron ore, but he could not consistently adopt any other course. Col. Gridley said that during the campaign Maj. Baldwin told him that, if elected, he would vote in favor of retaining the duty on iron ore, and relying upon this statement, Col. Gridley went through the county and told the people on the iron ranges and in the city of Duluth that they could rest assured that if they cast their votes for Maj. Baldwin he would see that the new Democratic tariff would protect their interests. Maj. Baldwin did not live up to his promise, but spoke and voted in congress in favor of removing the iron ore duty altogether. He joined the administration "cuckoos" in demanding "free raw materials." What could Col. Gridley then do but denounce the man who has broken his promise and placed him in a decidedly awkward position? Surely it should not now be urged that for this reason he is not a fit man to be sent to the Democratic national convention.

If Col. Gridley is to be virtually read out of his party because of his record on the tariff question, there will be many more Democrats in danger of similar treatment, because there are mighty few, in this section of the country at least, who want free trade or anything approaching it.

Col. Gridley is as good a Democrat as there is in the land, and the Democratic national convention would be enriched by his presence as a delegate from this district.

BILL MERRIAM NOT WANTED.

The Crookston Tribune says: "W. R. Merriam, the dictator of Republican politics in Minnesota, wants to secure a cabinet position or go to the United States senate. He is working state politics with both places in view, and if he fails in the first, he will then fall back on the latter. If McKinley is nominated and elected, it is understood that Mr. Merriam will secure a cabinet position—probably secretary of the interior. If he fails in this, then he will make a strong pull for the senate, and the first move will be an attempt to nominate D. M. Clough for governor." Referring to the same subject, the St. Cloud Journal-Press declares that Mr. Merriam's selection to be secretary of the interior would be a wise one, and one that the people of the West would very cordially approve."

The latter statement is so directly opposed to the truth that it should not go unchallenged. The Herald believes that there is nothing which Mr. McKinley could do, if elected president, that would more disgust the people of Minnesota than if he selected Mr. Merriam as a member of his cabinet. The Republicans of Minnesota are opposed emphatically to any further recognition of Mr. Merriam politically. The very mention of his name in connection with any public office is nauseating. His political record is rotten to the core. There is not the slightest chance of the Republicans of Minnesota disgracing their state by sending him to the United States senate, and Mr. McKinley would make a fearful mistake if he outraged public sentiment in the Northwest by taking Bill Merriam into his political family.

The appointment of Judge William Lochren to succeed Judge R. R. Nelson on the federal bench is very popular. Not only is it a popular appointment, but it is a good one in every respect. Judge Lochren was a district judge in this state for many years, and he made a splendid record on the bench. He proved himself an able and thoroughly impartial judge, and he will be a worthy successor of Judge Nelson. It was understood when Mr. Lochren accepted the appointment of commissioner of pensions that President Cleveland would, before retiring from office, give him a federal judgeship.

Dominick Murphy, of Pennsylvania, the new commissioner of pensions, is well qualified for the position. He was chief clerk of the pension office during President Cleveland's first administration, and the details of the office were largely intrusted to him. Later he became first deputy commissioner, and has been in that position a valuable assistant to Judge Lochren.

Senator Teller has no doubt regarding Mr. McKinley's views on the money question. He says: "He is not a friend of silver. Silver will not receive any recognition at St. Louis, for the gold men will make the platform and McKinley will stand on it, after being nominated by acclamation."

The prisoners in the Transvaal, whose sentences were commuted from death to five years in jail at Johannesburg, will hardly be able to appreciate the clemency extended to them. Imprisonment in a Johannesburg jail is equivalent to slow death.

Judge Nelson retires from the federal bench with the respect of everybody. He was an able, conscientious judge and a hard worker. The oldest federal judge in point of service in the country, he is justly entitled to retirement with full pay.

David B. Hill, whatever may be said against him, has been a consistent Democrat, and presidential aspirants in the Democratic party would do well to keep an eye on him. The Chicago convention may be for Hill.

The Washington papers are scoring that city's baseball club for playing on Sunday and getting beaten. If they had won on Sunday they would have escaped the roast.

The Washington Post asserts that an effort to free Cuba would doubtless mean free coinage, and the St. Louis Star says: "We may be dull, but we fail to catch on to this brilliant logic."

The selection of Bill Merriam as secretary of the interior would be an insult to every honest Republican in Minnesota.

Congressman Cockrell of Texas has refused a nomination because his constituents adopted a gold platform.

HER COMMANDMENTS.

1—Remember that I am thy wife,
Whom thou must cherish all thy life.

2—Thou shalt not stay out late at night,
When lodges, friends or clubs invite.

3—Thou shalt not smoke indoor or out,
Or chew tobacco round about.

4—Thou shalt with praise receive my pies,
Nor pastry made by me despise.

5—My mother thou shalt strive to please,
And let her live with us in ease.

6—Remember 'tis thy duty clear
To dress me well throughout the year.

7—Thou shalt not be a drinking man,
But live on prohibition plan.

8—Thou shalt not flirt, but must allow
Thy wife such freedom anyhow.

10—Thou shalt get up when baby cries,
And try the child to tranquilize.

These my commandments from day to day
Implicitly thou shalt obey.

GOODNOW IS CURIOUS.

Little Falls Transcript: Governor Merriam has returned from his Eastern trip, and he surprises the newspaper reporters by declining to tell all that was said and done when he had his consultation with McKinley and Hanna. John Goodnow and others would like to know.

JOHN OWENS' SUGGESTION.

The Mesaba Range: John Owens, clerk of the district court, makes a sensible suggestion in a communication to The Duluth Herald concerning the taxation of mining property. He would call a convention, having all the towns and business organizations of the county represented as well as the mining companies, for the purpose of discussing the question and arriving at some definite understanding as to the desires of the people of this county in the matter. Then it would make no difference who might go to the legislature to represent this district, as they would go thoroughly instructed what to do and would be expected to do it. This plan would be all right if there were not too many representatives of the mining land owners allowed to participate in the convention. If they had a majority of the delegates there the true wishes of the people of the county would not be known. And the Range would also suggest, if such a convention is called, that it take steps to educate the people of the state concerning the proposed constitutional amendment embodied in senate file No. 4, which seeks to saddle upon the state the present unjust method of taxing mining property.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Duluth News Tribune: Wages in Japan have gone up 87 per cent. We don't live in Japan.

Drayton, N. D., Echo: No, certainly not. W live in a gold standard country, where money instead of wages appreciate.

THE PUBLIC EDUCATOR.

Wabasha Herald: The ideal newspaper man is he who has ideas of his own and the courage of his convictions to express them. He should be courteous to all and cater to none. He should be able to give the people 100 cents in service for every 100 cents he receives from them. More than this the public has no right to demand and he who tries to give more is untrue to himself and his own best interests, as well as those of the profession that he represents. The newspaper is the great public educator of the age. It occupies a position that no other agency can fill. This is but another reason why the tone should be pure and its character unimpeachable and its sentiments grand and elevating.

JABS AT JERRY J.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: "Jerry J.," the kidlet who writes political romances for the Minneapolis Journal, makes a very handy football for the state press. Editor Mitchell, of Alexandria, the other day, said "that classically speaking, Jerry J. is an ass," and now comes the Nestor of the Seventh district, Elmer Adams, and says "the Jerry J. man is altogether too much of a jay." The journalists evidently enjoy jerrying this chamber utensil jay of the Journal, except Macdonald who loves him as jenny.

NOT MUCH LONGER.

Delano Eagle: The newspapers are generally discussing what Congressman Towne will do when the Republican national convention adopts a platform opposed to free silver. He has been a Republican a good deal longer than he has a free silverite.

ACROSS THE TEA TABLE.

"Who first beholds the light of day
In spring's sweet flowery month of May,
And wears an emerald all her life,
Shall be a loved and happy wife."

The emerald month is like all of her sisters, a bit fickle now and then, but she has the "voice of one who goes before to make the paths of June more beautiful," and in those paths she throws recklessly her sweetest blossoms and most exquisite buds. Leaf after leaf unfolding veils all the world in a tender green, so refreshing to the eye, so exhilarating to the mind that May's glad song of spring is the sweetest thing we know; it is the harmony of nature, the symphony which rouses in us all aspirations, longings and hopes. May is the birthday of the earth, the light comes to us through many changing and brilliantly hued colors, the air is full of perfume, and the earth is sown with flowers; her sweetest children are those modest little wild flowers which peep up shyly in the woods and forests, and are so delicately, daintily pretty and fragile that they refuse to live out of their own cherished environment where nature placed them, and where they hear the sound of May's sweet voice and spring to greet her. No gem so fittingly shines as an emblem of the month as the emerald of May. Take it for your lucky stone.

You must go to nature for inspiration these days if you are seeking it in making up those billowy muslins and laces so suggestive of spring and youth and the altogether feminine. Nothing is prettier than the greens and whites, with touches here and there of the blush shades of the rose. Think of a dainty pale green dimity trimmed with white lace and insertion and girdled and belted and finished with ribbons upon which are painted the daintiest pink roses and buds and blossoms. Or a blue gown which should resemble the mandate of the Chinese emperor to his potters, "blue as the sky is after rain, when seen through a rift in the clouds." And as for white, there is an endless variety, white in thick goods and thin, tailor-made, or in puffs and fluffs and billows of lace to suit the most persistently frivolous of feminine butterflies. Take, for instance, the lily, which, unlike ourselves, "toils not," yet her gown is a melody which sings right to our hearts. She shall serve as a model for your swellest white frock. It should be thinnest, sheerest India or linen lawn, made with a ruffled skirt and full baby waist, trimmed with your prettiest lace and belted with deep yellow satin ribbon, the exact shade of the golden pistil and stamens which shake their yellow dust upon the lilies' spotless white; this should be tied in a bow with sash ends; about your throat another golden circle brings out the clear tints in your rosy cheeks and bright eyes, and casts a golden gleam on your shining hair. A hat all white and yellow, a parasol covered with soft white lace easily and economically done by your own fair hands, and topped with a yellow bow, another on the handle, and with yellow suede gloves, you are arrayed like one of these, after a fashion. Or take a hint, the dainty little blue wild flower which nestles in its bed of green; it is pale in shade, and just the blue to have accessories of green ribbon in an equally pale shade, if your green ribbon has shine flowers all over its shining surface, a soft pink elusive look of rose or apple blossoms or any other pink flower fancy may dictate, you are following fashion's dictum, and may at the same time be satisfying your own artistic feelings.

There is no more dainty and satisfactory work in the way of dressmaking than this of summer frocks. They are comparatively inexpensive in first cost, but a trifle bothersome and expensive if given to a dressmaker, so that one longs to put one's own ideas into them and evolve the perfect summer gown, if possible. The help of a seamstress about the hanging of the skirt is all that is necessary, or if one has obliging sisters, or mamma will turn her valuable time and attention that way, the seamstress can be dispensed with. Dressmaking was, I know, abhorred of the gods, else why are goddesses arrayed to our mental vision as scantily as possible, or with but classic folds enveloping them. However, though we may not implore the aid of the gods, and may hate the suggestion of dressmaking and begrudge the time and energy spent upon the clothes and fashions which perish, yet there is a satisfaction in achieving success and wearing a gown in accord with the day and the season. When the hot blasts blow over the earth and fan our cheeks with heat-producing languor, and even the grasshopper is a burden, and one longs to sit in the shade and sip iced drinks, Ah! then, how delightful to be able to don a thin, daintily-fashioned gown, one's own handiwork, and feel that all of the arduous labors have been productive of success. Then one knows a mild species of feminine intoxication.

The sweetest song of spring I have heard has come from the throat of a fat robin redbreast. All of this morning he has been hopping about the branches of my neighbor's balsam poplar tree. I know he has sought it because of its sweet, pungent aromatic odor, and I have a touch of sympathy with him on the subject. His greyish brown back, fluffy, downy, black head and golden brown breast are sleek and shining. He himself is eminently well groomed and fed, and is extremely indifferent thereby to the blandishments I have offered to him, or the suggestions of inducements to take up his abode in that tree and make it his roof-tree. I have put crumbs and earthworms, beloved of his soul, in tempting array before his vision, but I fear me there are more attractive spots. Not once has he brought madam to look the tree over and see if it suggests the architectural possibilities necessary to their desires. But robins are varieties here, and this fat, sleek, well-fed fellow recalls a vision of long ago, when I watched those of his kind build, year after year, in an old apple tree outside of a window in a loved home, when I assisted the youngsters in their first flights with good wishes, and many a time had thrilling fights with predatory bluejays, for whose annihilation I kept a long handled broom with death-dealing powers for intruders. All of the early explorers in this region mention the absence of birds, but that is true of every forest region, strange as it may seem. Naturalists tell us that the forests of our country contain few birds. They prefer the outskirts of civilization, and could Schoolcraft or Agassiz again make a journey to Lake Superior, as they did nearly fifty years ago, how they would find the aspect of nature changed, and what pleasure the singing of birds might give to them.

Mrs. Sherwood, who is considered an authority on matters social, who talks in drawing rooms on subjects dear to the feminine heart, has taken the American tea-table in hand, and has given a history of the rise and fall of this institution. She tells us that the tea-table, as first set up, was in answer to a demand for those who had been hunting or indulging in athletic exercise. They required some refreshment before dressing for dinner. The tea-table, therefore, arose, and with it the sandwich or a bit of cake. It was popular, and became a regular 5 o'clock habit for friends and neighbors to gather around some particular table. Then women began to send out cards announcing their presence at home, and that of their tea-table at certain hours. Mammas introduced visitors or daughter thus informally to friends. Ladies came in walking dress, were relieved at the door of heavier wraps, or carried them with them into the drawing room or tea-room, where the hostess, or preferably a young woman, poured tea for the guests. Servants were dispensed with, and there was a delightfully informal air about things. The hostess received in a plain house gown, which was not out of keeping with the walking dress of her guests. Then teas came so popular that women, to repay social obligations, would rush from one house to the other. The afternoon tea began to lose its primitive significance, the hostess and daughters to wear evening dress, while the guests were in walking costumes. Drinking so much tea produced nervous prostration, sleeplessness, the nameless misery of women with overstrained nerves, and thus a healthful, agreeable adjunct to entertaining became a large function at 5 o'clock, where half of the women were in full ball dress and half in fur wraps and tippets. Then arose the outcry against 5 o'clock teas. Mrs. Sherwood makes a plea for a return to simplicity and a banishment of the afternoon reception. She suggests that a hostess announce her intention of being at home one afternoon each week, and if she will practice simplicity she can create a salon out of her tea cups.

Five o'clock teas should be true to their name. No other refreshments should be served but tea, bread and butter and little cakes. If you wish to give an afternoon reception—that's another story. Do so and have it as elaborate as you wish, but don't call it a tea. If you are fortunate enough to possess a cool and shady porch in the summertime, with awnings which secure a degree of privacy, spread out your prettiest rugs there, hang your hammock near, bring out the rattan lounge and porch chairs, and pillows galore, put your handsomest plants in jardinieres about here and there, and set up the tea-table in the cosiest nook. You will find it will become a very popular corner, and the iced tea you can serve with crushed ice, tinkling against the sides of the thin glasses, will be as nectar to the gods. Iced tea and strawberry sandwiches, or iced tea and lettuce sandwiches, suggestive of all of the best that summer can offer to stimulate the palate.

To this coolest corner you will probably carry your prettiest work basket and daintiest bits of embroidery, and others will follow your example and substitute a pleasing exchange of "stitches" and silks and patterns. But if you wish to be up-to-date in your embroideries for the dinner table, you must undertake something a little more elaborate than the squares and rounds of embroidery that have had such an important place in the treasure closet. If you are not already the luck possessor of such a one, then save up your dollars and buy a table cloth of the length you desire, but of the plainest satiny damask. No break is seen on the smooth surface, but in the elaborate all around border, the center is one smooth satiny shining surface of very best linen, Irish, English or German, whichever you prefer. The Irish is smooth and exquisitely fine, the English of heavier, coarser weave, and the German still heavier and a trifle coarser, but many good housewives prefer the German to all others. Then your flower center or wreath is stamped right in the middle of the cloth and embroidered in your very best stitch upon this superfine cloth. It is a little more difficult than it is to work upon linen which was used for center pieces, or flower pieces as they are more correctly called, but the work stands out better. Near to the hostess' right hand also exactly opposite to the right hand of the host, is embroidered the scriptogram as it is called. This is done in white cotton embroidery and the letters are padded so that they should stand up quite high. The scriptogram is preferable to the monogram, as it is easily deciphered, which was not always the case with the monogram. The letters are long and narrow and the owner thereof takes great pride in allowing them to be seen.

I wonder, sometimes, if men ever realize what women sew into the stitches their nimble fingers make. All the hopes, the aspirations and longings of a life time are often sewed in with these, and there is nothing a woman can do which will teach her as many lessons as will that same little needle when she takes it in hand. It will teach her patience, will soothe fretted nerves and give occupation when other things prove distracting. It is a friend in lonely hours, a relief in desperate and troubled times. And the woman who knows how to cat-stitch and back-stitch, and run, and hem, and button hole, and hemstitch and patch, and undecide knows how to do well the small things of life, which will help her in working out the greater problems of existence. I once saw a very beautiful blue and white rag carpet, it was made into a handsome square rug, and the owner told me in speaking of it, that it had saved her from mental wreck. She said that a great and terrible grief and trouble had come to her, and even the slighest occupation seemed too intricate for her to grasp. That she was unable to think of anything but herself and her trouble, but that she had been saving rags for a rag carpet for a long time upon which the housemaid sewed at odd times. She noticed one day a number of blue rags lying against a bundle of white ones and idly thought they might be pretty sewed just as they were into a ball. She sat down and cut the pieces into long strips, sewed them together in rag-carpet fashion, blue and white, a yard of blue and then a yard of white, until she became interested. The next day she went back to it and in her desire to get her "ball" to its required pound weight sewed diligently, then she thought she would make a small rug; after she had sufficient for this she decided to make a larger one and then finally made one for her room. She took great pains in having it woven with the blue thread one way and white another, and the result was a very beautiful blue and white cotton rug, and into it were sewed many troubles which time's kindly hand was healing, many woes for which there was no cure but steady persistent occupation which relieved the mind and forbade brooding.

I was reading not long since a little sketch called "The Pathology of Sorrow," and was very much impressed by it. It looks now as if modern science were going to overthrow Shakespearean philosophy ("men have died from time to time, but not for love") and to prove that a broken heart may be as depressing to the system and as dangerous in its effects as acute pneumonia. Everyone has heard with, perhaps, more or less incredulity of animals dying from homesickness, of children pining among unfamiliar surroundings, of people who have always lived by the sea moving inland to die with longings for the salt cold winds and the sound of the surf. Now such scientists as Pere, Schulz and several others have substitute a pleasing exchange of "stitches" and silks and patterns. But if you wish to be up-to-date in your embroideries for the dinner table, you must undertake something a little more elaborate than the squares and rounds of embroidery that have had such an important place in the treasure closet. All the hopes, the aspirations and longings of a life time are often sewed in with these, and there is nothing a woman can do which will teach her as many lessons as will that same little needle when she takes it in hand. It will teach her patience, will soothe fretted nerves and give occupation when other things prove distracting. It is a friend in lonely hours, a relief in desperate and troubled times. And the woman who knows how to cat-stitch and back-stitch, and run, and hem, and button hole, and hemstitch and patch, and undecide knows how to do well the small things of life, which will help her in working out the greater problems of existence. I once saw a very beautiful blue and white rag carpet, it was made into a handsome square rug, and the owner told me in speaking of it, that it had saved her from mental wreck. She said that a great and terrible grief and trouble had come to her, and even the slighest occupation seemed too intricate for her to grasp. That she was unable to think of anything but herself and her trouble, but that she had been saving rags for a rag carpet for a long time upon which the housemaid sewed at odd times. She noticed one day a number of blue rags lying against a bundle of white ones and idly thought they might be pretty sewed just as they were into a ball. She sat down and cut the pieces into long strips, sewed them together in rag-carpet fashion, blue and white, a yard of blue and then a yard of white, until she became interested. The next day she went back to it and in her desire to get her "ball" to its required pound weight sewed diligently, then she thought she would make a small rug; after she had sufficient for this she decided to make a larger one and then finally made one for her room. She took great pains in having it woven with the blue thread one way and white another, and the result was a very beautiful blue and white cotton rug, and into it were sewed many troubles which time's kindly hand was healing, many woes for which there was no cure but steady persistent occupation which relieved the mind and forbade brooding.

I was reading not long since a little sketch called "The Pathology of Sorrow," and was very much impressed by it. It looks now as if modern science were going to overthrow Shakespearean philosophy ("men have died from time to time, but not for love") and to prove that a broken heart may be as depressing to the system and as dangerous in its effects as acute pneumonia. Everyone has heard with, perhaps, more or less incredulity of animals dying from homesickness, of children pining among unfamiliar surroundings, of people who have always lived by the sea moving inland to die with longings for the salt cold winds and the sound of the surf. Now such scientists as Pere, Schulz and several others have advanced the opinion based on the closest observation, that the effects of violent saddening emotion are the same as those of certain infectious diseases. Animals dying from nostalgia were examined and it was found that the bodily tissues had wasted from lack of nutrition. It will be a relief to those who in the intensity of their grief are urged to resume their daily pursuits as if nothing had happened, and who are told that it is their duty to face the world as cheerfully as before, to be assured that to do so is a dangerous mistake; it is like urging a patient convalescing from fever to walk before he is able to make any exertion. The cases are considered similar and the course of treatment advised is the same as would be given to a patient recovering from a severe illness. Here, as in most cases, nature is the best physician. As much time as possible should be spent in the open air, as much rest as is needful taken and gradually the old interests will revive, the old avocations will be taken up, and "Wrecked hope and passionate pain will be,

As tender things of the spring-time sea."
—Agate.

In Duluth's Social Circles

The Q. F. U. party at the Spalding, to which the ladies of that excellent society have been looking forward for some weeks, was given last evening, and not only was it a complete social success, but the treasury of the society, which has a most noble purpose in view, was enriched to quite a handsome extent. The young ladies have assisted greatly in the work of the Duluth Home society, and besides that have accumulated a nice bank account, which will be used in furnishing the new home which will be built soon.

The officers of the society are Miss Barnice Crowley, president; Miss Ella Fitzgerald, secretary; Miss Eunice Simonds, treasurer. The members are: Misses Crowley, Ingalls, Brearley, Fitzgerald, Margaret Graff, St. Clair, Simonds, Watson, Dodge, Waugh, Silberstein, Maxwell, Bailey, Frazer, Humason, Hirsch, Bradley, Edwards, Ames, Jones and White.

The party was a delightful one in every way. It was managed entirely by the young ladies, and they did it well. The program contained sixteen numbers, and but two or three encores were allowed. There were two ladies' choice dances. As a surprise—and it proved to be one—the old English custom of playing and singing patriotic airs at midnight was introduced. At precisely 12 o'clock twelve strokes were given on the cymbals, and the orchestra played "America" and the young ladies sang. It proved to be quite a novelty. Hoare's orchestra played and the floor was in charge of Miss Elizabeth Frazer, Miss Clara Ames and Miss Frances Edwards.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. David Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. G. Knapp, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Fishbein, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Hale, Dr. and Mrs. Cullum, Dr. and Mrs. Holden, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lucas.

Mrs. Crowley, Mrs. Ames, Mrs. Huntress, Mrs. Tomlinson, Mrs. Waugh, Mrs. Snapp.

Misses Bradshaw, Butler, Fogarty and Nellie Fogarty, of Superior; Ames, La Vaque, Simonds, Magoffin, St. Clair, Potter, Lillian Ingalls, Waugh, Belle Simonds, Crowley, Edwards, Gridley, Jennie Magoffin, Margaret Graff, Fitzgerald, Watson, Elliott, Brearley, Moon, Gallagher, Parke, Maud Moon, Sellwood, Mishler, Barber, Martin, Frazer and Susie Bailey.

Messrs. James, Stewart, Watrous, McKinley, Leslie, Potter and Culver, of Superior: Eddy, Martin, Frank Leach, Geggie, Macdonald, McDougall, Parker, Paddock, McBride, Mishler, Brearley, Wigband, Niles, Noyes, Stephenson, Martin, Shepard, McLaren, Bywater, Barber, Stocking, D. R. McLennan, Murray Peyton, W. McLennan, W. R. Peyton, Phillips, Norman Leach, Gilbert, Prescott, Sellwood, Eaton, Miller, A. W. Hartman, Baldrick.

The "Progressive Conversation party" at the Unitarian church last evening was a unique and entertaining affair. The men arranged programs as for dancing, and discussed a variety of subjects from the question "Are Women Being Overeducated?" to "Our National Game," the latter, by the way, being either poker or baseball. The idea proved to be a good one and productive of much amusement and entertainment.

Mrs. Anna Perry Derby and Willard B. Cross were married on Tuesday evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The ceremony was very quiet and was performed in the presence of a few personal friends. Mr. and Mrs. Cross left that evening for St. Paul for a wedding trip. Mr. Cross is secretary of the Sugar Drug company.

A party of young people went out on the Singer tug Excelsior on Tuesday afternoon for a roll in the big sea. Those in the party were: Misses Bradshaw and Butler, of Superior; Ames, Sellwood, Parker, Fitzgerald, Watson and Scott. The sea was running high, but the young people enjoyed it hugely—that is, most of them did. They were drenched through, but as they were prepared for that they did not mind it much. One or two of the young ladies were quite sick. The young people are having any amount of fun over the fact that one of the men, a crack sailor who lives on the water half the year, was badly shaken up. He went below and endeavored to conceal his condition, but the engineer gave it away and passed the word around that the poor boy was having a pretty hard time of it.

The song recital given by Frank M. Stephenson at the First Methodist church on Tuesday evening was one of the most artistic and entertaining musical successes that Duluth has known. Four or five hundred of Mr. Stephenson's friends were present and gave him a cordial reception. He sang nine numbers which displayed in an excellent manner the possibilities of his fine baritone voice. Mr. Stephenson has been studying under Mark C. Baker and has been one of his best pupils. He is entitled to the entire credit for Mr. Stephenson's training for he has never taken a lesson from anyone but Mr. Baker. He has been studying about sixteen months.

"The audience that went to hear the noted singer, Edward C. Kuss, were extremely delighted and well they might be, for Mr. Kuss gave a fine sample of his singing; his varied program showing his fine voice to wonderful advantage. Miss Rebecca McKenzie and her company are now on the Pacific coast and will return after a tour of part of California and Colorado. They expect to be back in the latter part of June. Fred O. Renard, manager of the company, writes to The Herald as follows:

"Our trip from Winnipeg to the coast, including the new and wonderful Kootanai, has been one of the most pleasant I ever made, not alone has the artistic work of Miss McKenzie and her associates, Misses Fellows and O'Reilly met with the highest appreciation, but the whole trip has been a social as well as artistic ovation. In Winnipeg the young ladies were entertained by some of the best people of the city. Their first concert there was attended by Lieutenant Governor Patterson, of Manitoba, and party, including Sir Donald Smith, Mr. Dickey, minister of justice, of Canada, and wife, Mr. Disjarden, minister of militia, of Canada, Lieutenant Governor McIntosh, of Northwest territory, and several other distinguished Canadians who were in Winnipeg during the conference regarding the Manitoba school question. After the concert the whole party asked for an introduction to the three young artists, and in the kindest manner expressed their admiration for their work. At Regina a reception was arranged for them in the government house by Lieutenant Governor McIntosh, and as in every city did the people in a social way, make our stay as pleasant as possible.

"On entering the Kootanai we met Capt. Moore, of Duluth, and his charming wife, who during our two weeks' stay in the new and remarkable country made our visit as agreeable as if we had been in the very heart of civilization, and I might add that in this remote and rugged, but beautiful country you meet as kind and intelligent people as you will find anywhere in this great continent. In Vancouver, the commercial center of British Columbia, several receptions were given the company. The press of the city without hesitation gave the company the credit of being the best concert company that ever visited the city."

The Daily Advertiser, of Vancouver, said of Miss McKenzie:

"Miss Rebecca McKenzie's voice is the richest, sweetest, soprano that has ever been heard on a Vancouver concert platform. Every note was full and pure. Her singing of the "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod, was a model of efined vocalism."

JUDGE LOCHREN.

Successor of Judge Nelson on the Federal Bench.

Judge William Lochren, who was appointed yesterday by President Cleveland to succeed Judge R. R. Nelson on the federal bench for the district of Minnesota, was born in Tyrone county, Ireland, April 3, 1832. In 1834 his mother, together with some other relatives, came to America and settled in Franklin county, Vermont. Mr. Lochren was put to work on the farm as soon as he was old enough, and continued to do farm work till 1854, when he began the study of law. He had, in the meantime, been at Auburn, Mass., where he had been employed on a farm and in the mills, and had succeeded in giving himself a fairly good academic education by studying during his spare moments.

In 1856 he was admitted to the bar and in August of that year he came to Minnesota and obtained employment with the law firm of J. S. and D. M. Demmon at St. Anthony. The following winter he went into the law office of George H. Day, where he remained till spring, when he formed a partnership with James R. Lawrence. For three years this firm did business and then the breaking out of the war severed the connection, as Mr. Lochren was one of the first to enlist in the famous First regiment of Minnesota volunteers.

After hard service for his country he received an honorable discharge in 1863, on account of broken health caused by exposure during the Potomac campaign, when he did more than one man's work. He returned to Minnesota and took up his residence in Minneapolis. He became a member of the law firm of McNair & Gilfillan, and in 1868 was elected state senator. During the years of '77 and '78 he served as city attorney, and in 1881, was made third judge of the Fourth judicial district. This was by appointment by Gov. John S. Pillsbury, and in 1882 he was elected to fill the same position for six years. In 1888 he received the reelection with no opposition, and later was appointed commissioner of pensions at Washington.

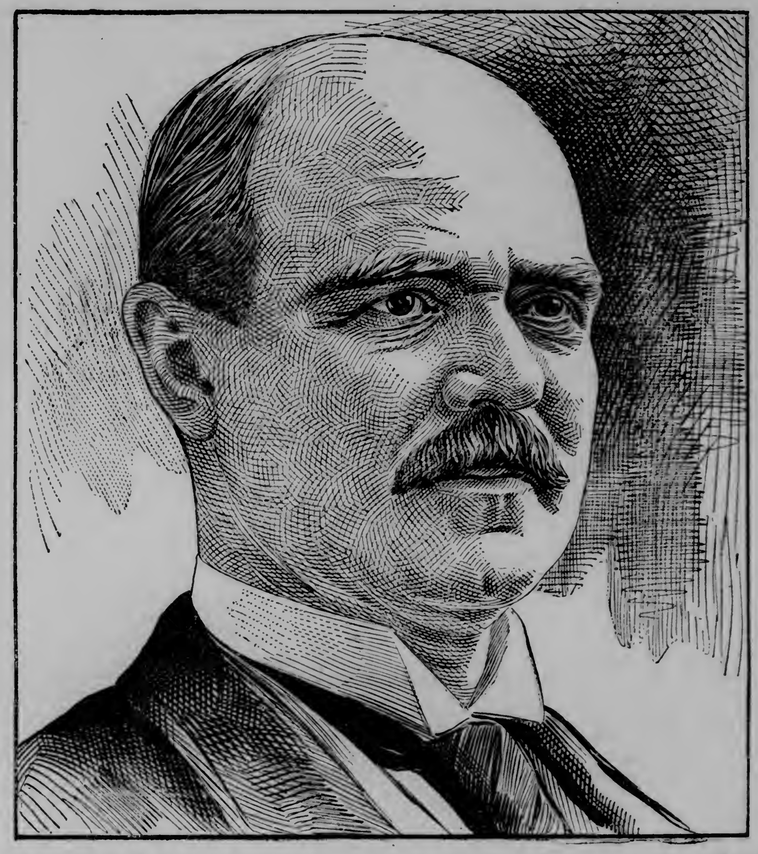
NEAR THE WHITE HOUSE!

Personal Friends of the President Indorse Paine's Celery Compound.

Following the Testimonials of Judge Powers and Congressman Grout Come Hearty Letters from Congressman Meredith of Virginia, Asst. U. S. Attorney John G. Capers, Maj. Gen. Birney, Congressman Wilber of New York, Congressman Bell, Lieut. McAllister, Congressman Neill, and Many More.



The proprietors of Paine's celery compound have never exaggerated either the virtue of this wonderful remedy nor the estonishing character of the endorsements it has received.

This greatest of all blood purifiers and restorers of nervous energy, this remedy which is today in greater demand than all the so-called spring remedies put together—

This Paine's celery compound, which was first discovered and prescribed by America's most eminent physician, that giant among medical scientists of this progressive age, Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., of Dartmouth college—

This remedy, which has been a blessing to thousands upon thousands of homes in every state and city of the country, which has been energetically endorsed by the ablest physicians, which has received thousands of heartfelt testimonials from women and men in every station of life, and has been publicly recommended without solicitation by persons of such high character that they are honored by the whole nation—this remedy that makes people well, has received so many letters in its praise within the last two or three months, coming in every mail from every section of the country—that it would be impossible to print them all in the daily issue of any one paper.

Mr. Hearst's great paper, the Journal in New York, the Globe and the Journal in Boston, Mr. Kohlsaat's powerful Times-Herald in Chicago, have each of them, within a month, devoted from one to three pages at a time to the most remarkable canvass ever made of the druggists in the great cities. And their best reporters, unprejudiced one way or another, have found that the druggists are meeting not only a larger demand than ever before for this one remedy, but that this demand—because Paine's celery compound cures where everthing else fails—is so far greater today than that of any other remedy that it has no competitor.

Among the thousands of testimonials that have been received by the proprietors of Paine's celery compound this spring, none have been more noteworthy than those that came from the national capital. The enthusiastic letters of Judge Powers and of Congressman Grout were recently published in this paper. Above is a good likeness of one of the ablest members on the Democratic side of the house, a leader of acknowledged ability, a personal friend of the president, a man of great weight—Congressman Elisha E. Meredith, of Virginia. A letter from him, dated Feb. 4, from the house of representatives, says:

"After a fair trial I have no hesitation in saying that I believe Paine's celery compound all that is claimed for it, and it gives me pleasure to commend it."

A letter from Congressman Robert Neill, of Arkansas, contains the following:

"My home is at Batesville, Ark. During the last spring and summer my eldest daughter, then 17 years of age, was in very poor health, suffering from general debility, nervous prostration and frequent slight fevers. She had the best medical attention, but apparently with little benefit. In the latter part of September last, while still feeble, she began the use of Paine's celery compound, and improved in health continuously. In three months she had fully recovered and is still in perfect health. I am bound to think the remedy is an excellent one, and do not hesitate to recommend it to the suffering."

Lieut. C. A. McAllister, writing from Hotel Oxford, March 28, said:

"For several years past I have been a sufferer from severe attacks of dyspepsia, caused by too close attention to business; on the advice of a physician I took several bottles of Paine's celery compound, and have been greatly benefited thereby. Since the first of last September I have gained twenty-five pounds and am now feeling in first-rate health.

"C. A. McAllister,
"1st Assistant Engineer, U. S. R. C. S."

Hon. John C. Bell, member of congress from Colorado, in a letter to Wells & Richardson company, about the same time, told how he had used three bottles of Paine's celery compound for dyspepsia and rheumatism, with satisfactory results.

Maj. Gen. Birney, who is now, at the age of 75, practicing law and doing departmental work in Washington, the unflinching commander at the battle of Fredericksburg, of the famous Thirty-eighth New York regiment, in a letter to Wells & Richardson company, says:

"My wife has been taking the Paine's celery compound for some time past, and is so much pleased with it that she wishes me to express to you her high opinion of its merits. She thinks it the best she has ever tried."

Congressman Wilber, of New York, writing in March, used these significant words:

"I was persuaded by a friend to try your Paine's celery compound some time ago, and after its use, am pleased to recommend it to anyone who is in an overworked or run-down condition, as doing what is claimed for it."

Many other letters from prominent people who are not so well known are included in this year's files of testimonials from Washington.

Every city and every town in the country is equally well represented in this wonderful popular indorsement of the remedy that purifies the blood, rebuilds the shattered nervous system, restores strength, regulates the kidneys, liver and bowels, cures disease, makes people well.

In these latter days of spring, in the last of the three great months, the close of nature's yearly revival season, when the recovery from sickness is the most rapid and lasting, Paine's celery compound will make vigorous nerves and good blood.

During these latter spring days there is a clearing of the air; it is the most favorable time of the year to cure nervousness, neuralgia, sleeplessness, headaches and low spirits by the use of Paine's celery compound.

Paine's celery compound points to a wonderful record already achieved. The most wide-awake, intelligent part of every community in this country are among its most enthusiastic vouchers and indorsers.

SCRATCH AND SCREAM

My baby broke out with a rash. He would scratch and scream. It would take two to hold him, and one to put medicine on him. We had to hold him sometimes an hour before we could get him quieted down. All said that they never saw such a face or body on any baby as on him. I had to tie his hands tight in a cloth, night and day, for five months. A plaister had used CUTICURA, and I began to use it. After only one application, he lay down and slept as he had not for a month, poor little fellow. He has not a scar on him now, and is as fair and his flesh is as soft as any baby. While he had this disease I had to cut the sleeves out of his clothes, and put gauze underwear on him to keep him cool. I had to keep pieces of soft cloth around his neck, it was so wet with moisture from the sores, and I had to change the cloths sometimes ten or twelve times a day. MRS. A. HAYNES, Lisbon, N. D.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Athletes Are Preparing For Field Day Contests.

The High School Athletic association has not been very active this year. Many good athletes were in last year's graduating class and the loss of them somewhat discouraged the boys, but this interest seems to have revived and they are busy now preparing for a field day to be given at the Driving park on May 23. The association has an enviable record and the field day programs promises to be very interesting. There will be nineteen events, among them being a hurdle race, bicycle race, pole vault and running high jump.

The girls of the high school have offered a gold medal to the winner of the greatest number of points, and besides this they have also offered several silver medals. With such encouragement the boys cannot but do their best, and it is to be hoped that a large crowd will attend.

On Tuesday the senior class met at the usual practice of the commencement songs, after which a short business meeting was held to decide upon the invitations.

The girls' club swinging class recently organized, is progressing finely. The girls have learned to brandish their clubs in a very warlike manner, but as yet no one has been fatally injured.

On Friday the regular meeting of the Adelphic society was held. The program presented was a "freshman program," and the "little freshies" acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner. It was as follows:

Vocal trio.....
Misses Spears, Hector and McMillan.
Recitation—"Awfully Lovely Philosophy".....
Jessie Brownell.
Oration—"Employment of Leisure Moments".....
Thomas Chisholm.
Class poem—"Road to Knowledge"
Henrietta Ostergen.
Short History of the Freshman Class.....
Lewis Campbell.
Music—"Voices of the Western Wind".....
Misses Spears, Hector and McMillan.
"Class Prophecy".....
Anna Mallett.
Piano solo.....
Amy Bale.

ENDORSE

A. P. A. Supreme Council Practically Endorses the Executive Committee.

But Says Witnesses' Testimony Was of Doubtful Stripe.

Day's Proceedings at the A. P. A. Meeting in Washington.

Washington, May 16.—Today's session of the American Protective association's supreme council was the most interesting of the convention, because the action of the executive committee of the advisory board in black-listing Mr. McKinley as a presidential candidate was to be reviewed. The report of the advisory board upon the action of its committee was made to the council late in the evening. It was technically an endorsement of the executive committee.

It asserted in substance that the executive committee was warranted, in view of the evidence presented to it, in placing a ban upon Mr. McKinley. But in addition it states that a further examination of this testimony by the full board has convinced the members that the witnesses were unreliable and that their statements were incorrect. Therefore the board concludes Mr. McKinley should be placed upon the same footing, so far as members of the A. P. A. are concerned, with the other candidates for presidential nominations, and should not be discriminated against.

Appended to the report was a statement in writing by Delegate Huddleson, of California, who asserts that a committee, of which he was chairman, interviewed Mr. McKinley at his home in Canton, Ohio, on May 14, and that the interview was satisfactory. The other members of the committee are stated to have been Delegate Van Fossen, of Washington, and C. E. Zept, state chairman of Kentucky.

The morning session was devoted to the consideration of amendments to the constitution in the committee of the whole. One was adopted to establish the permanent headquarters of the order in Washington, and to make it obligatory upon the supreme president and supreme secretary to reside here. A second amendment takes away the privilege of seats in the supreme council for presidents and past presidents of state councils, except those regularly elected to be delegates. The recommendation of Supreme President Traynor, that the right vested in the supreme president to arbitrarily remove state officers be taken away, was carried into effect by another amendment.

JENNIE IS HARDENED.

She Only Laughed Mockingly at Getting Sixty Days.

Jennie Rosco appeared in the municipal court this morning on a charge of drunkenness. Jennie was tastefully dressed. Her face showed no trace of dissipated, and to the uninitiated, looked like one who had offended for the first time. But her looks belie her, for Jennie is as well known to the police as any tough in town. She has been going the pace about a year, but in that comparatively short period she has made a record that places her up in the van among the "vags," and chronic drunks who keep the police busy. She was booked this time for the third offense. That was the form of the charge, but, as a matter of fact, she has appeared in court on similar charges on three times that many occasions.

"This, I see, is your third offense," said Judge Edson.

"Only the second this year, judge," responded Jennie.

"You have given the police a good deal of trouble, and you are now booked for the third offense. You have been let off easy before, but I shall have to send you up this time. It will be sixty days. I hope you will be admonished to reform," said the court

Jennie looked at the judge a moment. Those around half expected to see her burst into tears. She laughed. Her voice sounded fresh, and her laugh was that of a school girl's.

"Do you think that will do any good, judge," said she.

"I hope so," was the reply.

"Well, I don't think it will," said Jennie, and she passed out, raising her eyebrows and drawing down her mouth in mockery.

Jennie went to school in Duluth not many years ago. At the age of 15 she married a man who yet lives here. They separated, and she went to live with her father, who is a farmer, near Deer river. She came back to Duluth about a year ago, and started on a career that can have but a sad end. She told the officers this morning that she did not care a "whoop" what the judge gave her.

C. M. Johnson told the court that he had only had two drinks. They must have been large ones, however, for Mr. Johnson acknowledged that all had been a blank to him after taking the last one until he awoke in the station. He was fined $10 and costs, and went up on the hill.

T. G Jarvis had had one of the narrow guage two drink jags also. He had been found in a freight car. He told the court that he had been working all day, and took two beers along in the evening which, with the fatigue of the labor of the day had overcome him with drowsiness and he had pillowed his head on a car link and resigned himself to slumber. He insisted that he had not been drunk and the fact that he selected a car link for a pillow when there were several bags of bran handy he accounted for on the score of excessive fatigue. He promised to go back to his job in Superior and his sentence was suspended.

T. M. Jackson said he was a freight inspector. He also had taken but two drinks. He said two drinks had floored him because he was not accustomed to trifling with the stuff. He was fined $10 and costs, which he paid.

Gus Schonfield and James Brown were fined $10 and costs each for drunkenness. They went up on the hill.

Although the prices quoted are so extremely low, the quality and styles are the best. This is not a lot of old garments, but the very latest, choicest styles, and the reason that we are enabled to offer such fine garments at these ridiculous prices is on account of the unfavorable weather all over the country. Manufacturers are overloaded with goods and are anxious to sell at almost any price for cash, and we have taken advantage of this state of affairs and purchased over 700 garments at less than fifty cents on the dollar. They are all marked and ready for sale, and if you want a bargain that is a bargain, come in at once and make your selection before the assortment is broken. REAL CHARITY.

Ruth Ashmore contributes a helpful and practical paper on "Is Charity Worth While?" to May Ladies' Home Journal, thus summarizing her discourse: "But, after all, what we want to do, you and I is to fill our lives with charity so that to whomever there may come need we can give help. The help may express itself in material things; it may be in the sympathy of kindly words, or it may be spoken only by the pressure of the hand. There is no charity in having your name on the list of generous givers while some one near to you stays within doors because her coat is shabby, or because her clothing is not sufficiently warm enough. There is no charity in the giving of much money if you have been harsh and cruel to some one who deserved consideration, and have made that one heart feel that there is nothing in the world but bitterness. There is no charity in your being willing to write checks that represent much money when you are quick to speak the unkind word or to show to those around you a heart eaten up by pride, and lips that utter no words save those of scorn.

All the gold in the world will count as nothing unless your charity is like that which was taught to the world nearly 2000 years ago. It meant that to feed the hungry, take care of the sick, to forgive the sinner, and to help, always in the best way, whoever asks for help was Christ's charity. That is the charity, my friend, that you and I want to try to imitate. Begin by being charitable with your lips, by being caritable in your thoughts and acts. And if, of your little store there can only be offered a few pence, you may be certain that they will be reckoned by God Himself as greater than the many millions given by those who are so unwise as to think that charity means only the giving of the least of all things—money."

Attempt to Be Made to Release the Schooner Mattie C. Bell.

Milwaukee, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tug A. J. Wright is being fitted out at Sturgeon bay to release the schooner Mattie C. Bell from Big Sumner island, where she stranded last fall with the steamer Jim Sheriffs. The latter was recently released and is now in dry dock here, where Capts. Dennis Sullivan and Cyrus H. Sinclair are holding a survey. Their work has progressed sufficiently to indicate that the craft is in such bad shape as to constitute a constructive total loss. Hence only repair work sufficient to stop the leaks in the hull has been ordered, and the underwriters will sell her as she is.

CORN RATES LOWER.

Chicago, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Buffalo rates went to 1¼ cents on corn this morning, and the feeling was weak at that. Vesselmen who have been trying to stop the decline are beginning to fear that the 1 cent rate will be here before the flurry is over.

NEW FLOUR WAREHOUSE.

Buffalo, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Steamship company has bids in for a flour warehouse 1000 feet by 100 feet, which is to be finished by August. There will be no elevator, as was at first supposed.

HAY LAKE CHANNEL.

The steamboat channel on Hay lake, St. Mary's river, and especially at the dyke at the foot of the lake, will soon have to be widened, or another outlet provided for the increasing commerce through the west Neebish. From the foot of Hay lake around the Encampment to Mud lake is the most dangerous portion of the river to navigators, owing to many abrupt turns in the channel. The route through the west Neebish, on the other hand, would be a comparatively straight one, and in addition would be nearly a mile shorter.

THE BRADLEY STILL AGROUND.

Four tugs worked yesterday on the steamer C. H. Bradley, which is on a hard clay bank at the mouth of Spirit Lake, but without effect. She is still in the same position she has occupied since Thursday night. Another attempt is being made this afternoon.

A SEPARATE COMPANY.

Green Bay, Winona & St. Peter Road's Future.

Milwaukee, May 16.—The Green Bay, Winona & St. Peter Railway company's property will not be absorbed by the Northwestern system or by any other company, but will be continued as an individual property, and operated as a separate line by a new company that will be shortly formed. The plans for reorganization were decided upon at a meeting of the parties interested in this city yesterday.

Under the plan, to which virtually all of the bondholders have consented, the road is to be placed upon a sound basis by the expenditure of large sums of money necessary to place the property in good condition. The plan, it is stated, also contemplates the extension of the line from Merrill to St. Paul, following the original route that was mapped out years ago and the right of way which is largely owned by the company.

FUNDING BILL DENOUNCED.

THE TRAPS OF PARIS.

British and American tourists in Paris are being robbed in an ingenious manner, says the Cleveland World. In the neighborhood of the Opera and the Louvre, any person speaking English is bound to be accosted by some individual who offers his services as guide. There may be exceptions, but the less that the average visitor has to do with these gentry the better.

Here is a case in point. A Swiss subject has been arrested in Paris for robbery conducted upon an ingenious plan. He speaks English and German fluently, and his happy hunting grounds were the Eastern and Northern railway stations.

If any new arrival in town displayed the least hesitancy in his movements the guide and interpreter took him in hand, and when his proffered services were accepted he would conduct his prey to some hotel.

He was profuse in his advice of "Be sure not to carry your money about with you; leave it at the hotel." The hint was often taken, and tourists were induced to carry about with them very little cash. In the course of the day the guide would discover some convenient excuse for quitting his charge at a cafe, and would hurry to their hotel.

No difficulty presented itself when he desired to enter the rooms of the party, and in these apartments, with a jimmy, he was accustomed to break open locks and to possess himself of portable property.

Heart Trouble Quickly Cured.

A Convincing Testimonial.

MISS ELLA KURTZ.

"For 19 years I suffered from heart trouble. During that time I was treated by five different physicians. All of them claimed that I could not be cured. I was greatly troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation and pain in the side. If I became exetted, or exerted myself in the least, the pain in my side became very severe. At times it seemed as though needles were shooting through my side. Sometime in the month of November last, I commenced taking and since then I have improved steadily. I can now sleep on my left side, something I had never been able to do before. I can walk without being fatigued, and am in much better health than ever before, I would recommend all sufferers from heart trouble to try Dr. Miles' invaluable remedy without delay." MISS ELLA KURTZ, 518 Wright St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Restores Health

HE WAS MILKING.

Proof That Hoboes Are Hard to Kill.

Dallas News: "It was away back in the seventies," said an old engineer. "I was pulling 'the limited' east from Council Bluffs to Chicago over the Rock Island. The night was bitter cold. We had gone about twenty miles out and had stopped at a night office for orders and had started up again, when the fireman reached over and said: 'There is a hobo on the pilot; saw him get on at the depot.' 'Sure?' I said. 'Go out on the running board and see if he's there yet.' The fireman did as he had been ordered to do and returned with the information that the hobo was still there. 'Well,' said I, 'it's a bitter cold night, and if he can stand it out there I am willing he should ride with me.' And on we went toward Chicago, with 'old 211' barking like sixty at the low joints ahead, and forgetful of our 'head end' passenger on the pilot, who had ceased to have any existence for us.

"By and by, by the faint glimmering of the headlight, I thought I saw ahead what seemed to be a bunch of cattle on the track. As we approached it the bunch seemed to grow larger. It was now too late to do anything, so I just pulled her wide open, and old 211 hit that bunch of cattle ka bi. To paraphrase the language of Tennyson, who glides into raptures of admiration over the charge of the light brigade at Balaklava, there was just cattle to the right of us, cattle to the left of us and cattle to the rear of us, but none any more in front of us. After it was all over our thoughts reverted to the hobo on the pilot. 'Go out and see if he is still there,' I said.

"Well," said an old chack, under whose feet the frosts of many winters had cracked, as he wended his way in the dark over many a long train of box cars, and who had been listening to the story. "Well," said he, "was he killed?"

"No," replied the engineer. "There he sat as large as any hobo could sit on the pilot with an oyster can, milking one of those cows."

And the old man went on his way, venturing something as he left about the life of the average American hobo being on a par with the proverbial nine lives of the feline we have all heard so often about.

BEGINNING TO FAIL.

In a small town about eight miles from Boston there lives an old gentleman who is hale and hearty at the age of 81, and whose erect carriage would put many a younger man to shame. Within the last year, nevertheless, he has found that his favorite exercise, walking, while still giving him pleasure, must be pursued with more caution than formerly, says the Youth's Companion.

Not long ago he had a visit from an old school friend, a few years his junior, who exclaimed at the old gentleman's strength and youthful appearance.

"I may look fairly young for my age," was the reply, made with some sadness, "but I am not what I was. Why, last week I made one of my monthly trips to Boston, and I had to take to the cars coming home."

"Take to the cars coming home?" repeated his friend. "You don't mean to say you're in the habit of walking any such distance."

"Why, man alive, I'm only 81," cried the old gentleman, testily. "Of course I've always walked to Boston and back and I can tell you, sir, that when I took those cars to come home I said to myself, 'If this thing's going on, Martin Foster, you might just as well take to your bed and be done with it!' That's the way I felt, sir! Only 81, and obliged to take the cars home from Boston."

"OH, PRETTY MAID!"

Where are you going, my pretty maid?
"To Wieland & Munsey's, sir," she said.
Why do you go there, my pretty maid?
"To learn to ride gracefully, sir," she said.
Why go you not elsewhere, my pretty maid?
"Its' the best bicycle school in the city," she said.
Why give an entertainment on the street and injure yourself and break your wheel when you can learn it quickly and safely at Wieland & Munsey's, 26 East Superior street. Evening entrance, 25 East Michigan.

Thomas LaValee, who was arrested for the theft of some clothing at the Windsor hotel, pleaded guilty to petit larceny in the municipal court yesterday afternoon and was sentenced to pay a fine of $25, or be confined in jail for thirty days. He chose the latter alternative and went up on the hill.

The case of John P. Herman against James Dahl and Fred Heucke, for the recovery of $240 alleged to have been lost in a "crap" game, was dismissed yesterday afternoon by Judge Edson on the ground that there was no evidence connecting the defendant with the affair.

Bishop McGolrick will lecture tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the cathedral, for the benefit of the poor. No admission will be charged, but the customary plate collection for the cause will be taken up.

Miss Clara Palmer will play a violin obligato to Mrs. Schultz's offertory Sunday morning at the cathedral.

The case against Miss Mary Braithwaite, the teacher who is charged with an assault on Henry Geytdahl, a pupil, which was set for today, was continued until Monday morning, the attorneys being engaged on cases in the district court.

Rev. Mr. Silkey, of Riceville, Iowa, who was to fill the pulpit at the First Baptist church tomorrow, has sent notice that he will be unable to be here. The pulpit has been supplied, however.

The health officer has notified the board of public works to drain off the pool in front of the Providence building.

John Bennett, sent up from Eveleth for peddling without a license, was ordered released by Judge Moer this morning on a writ of habeas corpus.

There will be no special term of the district court on Memorial day.

The congregation of the Glen Avon Presbyterian church last evening gave the new pastor, Rev. W. C. Aull, a pleasing reception. There was an excellent musical program, after which a number of young women from Maynard hall served refreshments.

Through the rise of water in the Nemadji river about 3,000,000 feet of logs in the Nemadji Boom company's booms broke away and went down the river into the bay and lake on Thursday night. Tugs have been gathering them in yesterday and today.

A fire at 1522 West Michigan street caused an alarm from box 52 at 12:22 o'clock this afternoon. The flames were quickly extinguished and the loss will not exceed $10. Sparks from a defective flue were the cause of the blaze.

GATE CITY LODGE.

It Has Taken New Quarters in Hunter Hall.

Gate City lodge No. 35, Knights of Pythias is now installed in Hunter hall and is provided with an excellent lodge room and all necessary appointments. The burning of the Parson's block left the lodge without a home and destroyed all its paraphernalia. The quarters there were admirably arranged and were fitted in a manner which gave Gate City lodge one of the best lodge rooms in the state. Since the fire the lodge has been considering several locations and has finally selected the Hunter hall.

The rooms have been completely furnished. All the paraphernalia is entirely new and the work of the lodge will be greatly enhanced by this fact. The furnishing of the hall required an outlay of about $1000 and any one who sees it will appreciate that.

Next Wednesday evening will really mark the formal opening of the new rooms. Gate City lodge will on that evening begin the conferring of the third degree on a class of eighteen. All the K. of P. lodges have been invited to attend and there is sure to be a large attendance.

A Coincidence.

A singular coincidence has developed in connection with Judge Nelson's resignation. David Sinclair, of Winona, one of the well known newspaper men of Minnesota, was foreman of the grand jury, which was discharged yesterday and was the last jury to be called before Judge Nelson. He was also in one of the jurors which was called before Judge Nelson at the first term he presided over as judge thirty-nine years ago.

TALKED IT OVER.

Entertainment of Firemen Was Discussed.

The fire commissioners, Chief Black and Alderman Trevillion, chairman of the fire department committee of the common council, met yesterday to confer in regard to plans for the entertainment of the delegates who will be here in attendance on the convention of the State Firemen's association in June.

All present agreed that $500 would no more than pay the expenses of treating the visitors in a manner worthy of Duluth. On this sum there could be provided a ball, a drive on the boulevard and a boat ride, together with refreshments. It was pointed out that the visiting firemen, members of volunteer companies, would represent the leading business and social elements of their respective homes, and that the city could not, in decency, ignore their presence.

The Commercial club was scored for its resolution on the matter of entertainment, which was designated as narrow guage and penurious. In the absence of a majority of the council committee no final agreement could be reached.

Building a Launch.

There is being built in the manual training department of the Central high school a boat that already shows that, when completed, she will be a beauty. It is of the launch type, 33 feet over all, 6 feet 2 inches beam and 4 feet molded depth. The engine is the ordinary upright, high pressure type. The school's plant contained no machinery for manufacturing the necessary parts for the reversible link motion and the boys had to do much of the work with a file and cold chisel. The boiler is the only thing that will not be constructed at the school, and the boys will give an entertainment to raise the money for its purchase. It is expected that the boat will be in the water by commencement time.

Found For the Plaintiff.

The jury in the case of Mary Engel against the Scott & Holston Lumber company this morning reported a verdict of $626.89 for the plaintiff. The suit was to recover for logs belonging to the plaintiff, alleged to have been used by the defendant.

In the case of the estate of Harry Mase against the Bankers' Life association of Minnesota, Judge Moer ordered the jury to return a verdict for the defendant.

A new setting of jury cases has been made for next week as follows:

RAILROAD

Duluth Great Western Railway Has Filed Articles of Incorporation.

It Proposes to Build an Air Line to the Red River.

Incorporators Say It Will Be Built in the Near Future.

There is another railroad projected for Duluth, and unless the promises of success which its promoters now feel justified in expressing are prevented from fulfillment by some unexpected happening, another season will see it in operation.

The new road is an air line railroad from Duluth to the Missouri river in North Dakota, tapping in its progress the best part of the wheat fields of Northern Minnesota and North Dakota. It is to be called the Duluth Great Western Railway company, and it is backed by Eastern capitalists who are as yet in the background so far as their identity is concerned. They are represented by George E. Mansfield, of Greenfield, N. H., who is also the president of the new road. Caleb S. Cox, of Hubbard, Minn., a well-known merchant, is the vice president of the road, Isaiah H. Bradford, of the same town, is treasurer, and John A. Keyes, of Duluth, is secretary and general counsel. Edward H. Spalding, of this city, is the fifth incorporator, and the five incorporators make up the first board of directors.

PERFECTING THE PLANS.

Mr. Mansfield and Mr. Bradford have both been in Duluth for some time perfecting their plans and arranging the preliminaries for the formation of the company, which has been accomplished within a few days, though the plan has been under consideration for some time. Mr. Mansfield, the president of the company, is a stranger in Duluth, though he has made a number of trips over the proposed line of the road. Mr. Bradford is a banker at Hubbard, and he represents a number of Eastern capitalists who have holdings in the Red River region.

The road as projected runs from Duluth in a generally western direction, crossing the St. Louis river between Rice's Point and the dividing line between ranges 15 and 16 west. It cuts a small piece from the northwestern corner of the state of Wisconsin and strikes Minnesota again on the west border of township 58, range 15. Thence it proceeds west through Minnesota in a practically straight line to the southern boundary of Hubbard county, thence west to a point near the southwestern corner of the White Earth Indian reservation. Thence it proceeds northwest to the boundary line of Minnesota on the Red River of the North at or near Caledonia, thence west through North Dakota to a point on the Minnesota river which has not yet been definitely determined. A branch line runs from a point near the southwestern corner of the White Earth Indian reservation southwest to Moorhead.

GREAT WHEAT COUNTRY.

In this manner a great stretch of wheat country is tapped, including the choicest portions of the fertile Red River valley, some of which is now quite a distance from any railroad. Patronage for the road is assured in advance, for it will be the most direct line to Duluth from all the territory it reaches. At present some portions of this territory are compelled to go long distances to reach the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern, and even then they cannot make as direct a shipment as the new road will enable them to make. From some portions of the territory the Northern Pacific is the only route, and that runs so far south that the stuff has to be carried fifty miles farther than it would if it could take an air line.

After the Mississippi river is passed the whole line of the road is well settled by farmers, and as far as wheat carrying is concerned, the new road will not only have the best parts of the field all to itself, but it will take from the Twin Cities territory, which is now perforce tributary to them.

AN ASSURED SUCCESS.

Messrs. Mansfield and Bradford are at the Spalding, and The Herald man saw the latter this afternoon in reference to the road.

"We have little to give out to the public at present, as we have as yet reached but a little way beyond the preliminary stage. You may say, however, that the road is practically an assured success already. The advantages of the field it is to tap would preclude the possibility of failure after the road was started, and the necessary steps for starting are already made. The road is backed by Eastern capital, represented by Mr. Mansfield, and, as I said before, its success is practically assured. Further than that I cannot say."

Mr. Mansfield was in Superior this afternoon, so he could not be seen.

The articles of incorporation of the road were filed with the register of deeds this morning. They state the purpose of the incorporation, and fix the capital stock at $100,000. The limit of indebtedness is $6,000,000, and the indebtedness, aside from mortgaged or bonded indebtedness, is limited to two-thirds of the capital. The general offices of the company are to be in Duluth, and the incorporation begins May 27 and lasts ninety years. The articles will be filed with the secretary of state Monday, after which the surveys of this line will be begun.

DINHAM WILL ACT.

Says the Grand Jury's Warning Must Be Heeded.

County Commissioner Dinham feels that the report of the grand jury as to St. Luke's hospital makes it incumbent on the commissioners to urge the necessity of a fireproof county hospital.

"The grand jury," said Mr. Dinham, "has reported that St. Luke's hospital is a fire trap, and it has, also, practically said that St. Mary's hospital is not fireproof. The jury, in its report, recommended the matter to the consideration of the commissioners. Now if we neglect to heed the utterances of the grand jury and continue to place patients where we have been warned they will be in danger, and a fire should occur and lives be lost, it seems to me we would be liable to indictment. Such a case occurred in Illinois, and the indictment was held good.

"I, for one, propose to go on record in favor of a county hospital that shall be fireproof. The county needs it. As it is now, with our patients scattered among three hospitals in town and at the poor farm, it is difficult for the county physican to get around and look after them properly.

"However, irrespective of expense and convenience, the grand jury have put us in a position where we are bound to urge that a safe place be provided for the county's sick."

Think of Changing.

The board of public works is considering the question of altering the plans for the new armory building so as to have the engine room below the first floor. By this arrangement, the water condensed in the pipes will be returned to the boiler by gravitation, while otherwise it would have to be pumped back. It is estimated that the saving which will be effected by doing away with the necessity of a pumping apparatus will more than counterbalance the additional outlay of $300 which will be called for by the proposed change.

AN EARLY CONVENTION.

Republicans Will Hold a State Convention in July.

St. Paul, May 16.—Chairman Tams Bixby has called a meeting of the Republican state central committee for next Wednesday at the rooms of the committee in the Endicott building. The call of the committee has been made at the request of some of the candidates for governor, who are anxious to have the date for the state convention settled as soon as possible, no matter whether it is to be an early or a late convention.

The chances are, however, that the convention will be held early in July. Clough does not care and a majority, if not all of the other candidates, call for an early convention, claiming that, in case they are nominated, they will need all the time they can reasonably expect to get by holding an early convention for the purpose of organizing their campaign. Another reason is that some of them have been in the field so long that they have found the campaign very wearing physically, mentally and financially—especially financially—for even if one has passes over all the railroads, which all of the candidates have not, a campaign is a very expensive affair.

CROWNED BY GOD AND MAN

The Remarkable Ceremony Attending the Crowning of the Czar of Russia.

THE FAMOUS CATHEDRAL; THE CROWN AND SCEPTER; BANQUETING THE NOBLES.

The Czarina's Gown Cost $200,000 and Took Six Months of Toil.

Moscow, May 16.—The melancholy produced at the court by the last days of the czarewitch, the czar's brother, will result in material changes in the program of festivities arranged before the czarewitch's condition became serious. This program, as officially given out, arranged for the movements of their majesties as follows: After attending a Te Deum at the Uspensky cathedral, the emperor and empress will visit the Archangel and Blagovestschensk cathedrals. Then they will proceed to the Alexandrinsky palace, near Moscow, where they will stay until the 25th. On May 22 and 23 the czar and czarina will receive the congratulations of the foreign ambassadors on the throne room of the grand Kremlin palace. On the 23d, 24th and 25th the date of the coronation will be formally proclaimed by heralds to the people. From the 22d to the 26th the emperor and empress will perform their devotions. On May 24 there will be a regimental review, to be followed by the consecration of the imperial flag at the Nowaia Ordjeinaia palace. On May 25 the regalia will be transferred to the throne room, and the czar and czarina will proceed to the Kremlin palace. In the evening a special mass will be celebrated in all the churches.

On the 26th the coronation itself will take place, and will be followed by a grand ball in the Granovitala palace. On May 27, 28 and 29 congratulations will be received at Kremlin palace. On the 27th a state dinner will be given, to which the ecclesiastics of high rank and the chief officials will be invited. On the 27th and 28th the city will be illuminated and the emperor and empress will drive through the streets. A reception will be held in the Kremlin palace on the 28th. On May 29 the regalia will be again transferred from the throne room to the Orujeinala palace. There will also be a gala performance at the grand theater. On the 30th there will be a popular fete on the Hodynsky square, and a ball will be given by the comte de Montebello, the French ambassador. On May 31 the foreign envoys will be entertained at dinner at the imprial palace, and in the evening Prince Lichtenstein, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, will give a ball. A solemn service will be held on June 1 in the Tchudovo convent. In the evening there will be a ball given by the Grand Duke Sergius, the governor general. On June 2 the nobility of Moscow will give a ball. Earlier in the day the czar and czarina will make a pilgrimage to the Troitza convent. On June 4 a ball will be given by them in the Kremlin palace. It will be followed on the next day by a concert at the quarters of Prince Radolin, the German ambassador. On June 6, the czarina's birthday, the emperor and empress will proceed to the Uspensky cathedral and a dinner will be given in honor of the diplomatic body. On June 7 there will be a review of the troops in garrison at Moscow and a dinner at the palace.

THE CHURCH AND CEREMONY.

Filled with gold, silver and precious stones and made sacred by religious tradition and as the site of the most important phases of Russia's history, the cathedral of the Assumption is inevitably the church of the coronation. The interior of the cathedral will be scintillating. In the center, between the four great columns, will be a scarlet canopy with double-headed eagles, emblazonings, and yellow, black and white plumes. Under this canopy will be the throne, and, before it, a table for the regalia. Every point of space, save that occupied by the imperial tombs, will be crowded with spectators in brilliant uniforms, and the clergy in their gorgeous robes will be in a double line from the dais to the entrance.

The choir chants the Te Deum, the clergy advance to the door to receive the czarovitch and the grand dukes, the bells ring, the clergy advance to the door again to receive in the wake of the archbishop of Moscow the czar and czarina. The archbishop of Kieff presents the holy water to them, and the archbishop of Novgorod holds the cross to be kissed by them. The choir intones the Psalm, "Mercy and Justice," the czar and czarina bow three times before the imperial gates of the Elkonostasis, kiss the holy icons, and take their seats under the baldachino. The czar's throne is of carved ivory, the czarina's is silver, gilt and jewels. The psalm is hushed, the bells cease ringing, and the metropolitan of Novgorod advances to the steps of the throne and asks the czar to profess the orthodox Catholic faith. He then holds before the czar an open book, from which his majesty reads aloud the profession of faith. The metropolitan then says: "The blessing of the Holy Ghost be with thee, Amen," the other archbishops repeating the words sotto voce. Then follows the ordinary litany, to which petitions are added on behalf of the czar.

The crown is taken from the table by the official appointed for the purpose and carried on a cushion to the metropolitan of Novgorod, who, in turn, presents it to the czar. The latter takes it and places it on his head, while the archbishop repeats: "In the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, amen." He then reads to the emperor from a book, in which he is called the most this and the most that, and is repeatedly told that he is crowned by Christ and the Almighty, and not merely by mortal man.

The czar, returning to his seat on the throne, lays the regalia on their cushions, summons the czarina, and, taking off his crown, holds it for an instant over her head. Then, resuming it, he crowns her with her own smaller crown, which four ladies-in-waiting fix in place. After this the czar invests his consort with the purple mantle and the collar of the Order of St. Andrew the Apostle. The empress returns to the throne and the emperor resumes the orb and scepter. The archdeacon says, "May God grant you a prosperous and peaceful life, health and salvation in all things, and may you be happy in success and vanquish and overcome your enemies, and may He preserve you many years." The choir repeats three times the words "many years," and at the end of the prayer all the bells are set ringing. All persons, lay and clerical, bow three times in congratulation to their imperial majesties. When the noise of bells and cannon ceases, the emperor puts aside his scepter and orb, kneels and prays. Then the czar gives his sword to the official, goes to the imperial gates, followed by the czarina, and, standing on a carpet of cloth of gold, is anointed by the metropolitan with the sacred unguent: on the forehead, the eyelids, the nostrils, the lips, the ears, the breast and the arms, with the words: "The seal of the gift of the Holy Ghost." A second archbishop wipes each spot as it is touched with cotton. The bells ring again, and 101 rounds are fired from the guns on the Kremlin wall. The czarina is then anointed on the forehead only. The brush used for the anointment is set in gold and crusted with precious stones. The vessel holding the unguent is of the same rich materials. The archbishop leads the czar by the hand into the holy of holies, where the czar receives the sacrament after the manner of the clergy, not of secular communicants—that is, bread and wine separately. For laymen the bread is soaked in wine, and both are given together with a spoon. The second archbishop gives to the czar a consecrated loaf and tepid water, while the third attends to the ablutions of his majesty. The imperial couple resume their places on their thrones. A prayer is made for long life and health. A triple refrain resounds once more, and the clergy and all other spectators congratulate their majesties on the completion of the ceremony of coronation.

The procession is re-formed in the same order in which it had entered the church, and makes its way to the neighboring cathedral of the Archangels, where the czar and czarina kiss the relics and icons and do reverence to the tombs of the Russian sovereigns. In the same way they visit the Cathedral of the Annunciation, the czar being crowned and adorned with the imperial purple, having the scepter in his right hand and the orb in his left. While at his devotions, attending officials hold his regalia.

The czar and czarina wear their crowns at the state banquet in the evening. They are seated at a table apart, and state officials wait upon them. Royal visitors and members of the diplomatic corps are served in another apartment. Medals are distributed in honor of the coronation.

The crown is formed of two hemispheres, symbolizing the Eastern and Western empires. Its style is Byzantine—that is, closed at the top like a cap. The button is a large ruby, and there are attached to it five diamonds, which make a cross. In the scepter, executed in accordance with the orders of the Czar Paul for his coronation in 1797, is the largest undoubleted diamond, the Orloff, which weighs 194¾ carats. It is cut in the rose form, with a flat face below, resembling the half of a pigeon's egg.

THE CZAR'S LIFE.

Nicholas Alexandrowitch was born May 18, 1868. He is small of stature, pallid, frail, nervous, delicate; he is a double for the duke of York, of England. The czar learned to write and speak fluently Russian, German, French and English. He does not know the classics, but he knows the modern sciences; he is not an art lover, but constitutional history, law, administration of Russia, finance, political and social economy have been made familiar to him. He took the throne in 1894, and was married in that year to the Princess Alix of Hesse, who took the name Alexandra Feodorovna. The couple have one child, a girl, born in 1895.

Moscow became the metropolis in the middle of the fifteenth century and retained its ascendancy until the eighteenth century, when St. Petersburg was founded. In the eyes of all true Russians Moscow is the center of national life and the only suitable city for the coronation of Nicholas.

THE CZARINA'S GOWN.

The gown which the Czarina will wear cost $200,000. It was made in Paris, took six months of toil, and more than 600 men and women had a part in making the materials. The skirt is covered with a decoration of pearls and tiny diamonds, secured by a fretwork of golden wires so arranged as to form a conventional design. This decoration is an achievement of the most modern scientific work, and while its completion has consumed months of patient toil by the most skillful jewelers of Paris, the effect of the whole is that of elegant simplicity. The bodice is low cut, with angel sleeves falling from shoulder to hem. Both bodice and sleeves are literally covered with the jeweled trimming that adorns the skirt. The decoration of the sleeves and bodice, however, differs in design. The ermine-lined mantle of burnished silver brocade is attached to the shoulders and sweeps away the length of several yards in long, graceful lines.

The czarina will wear on her sunny hair the peculiar Russian crown, from which will hang a magnificent veil of lace, matching in pattern that used upon the body of the gown. The satin slippers wrought in pearls and gold, as well as the gloves, with their jeweled buttons, will be of Parisian make. The czar will wear his military uniform.

GIFTS OF THE NATIONS.

The nations of Europe are "falling over themselves" in their desperate efforts to win the czar's smile with the costliest gift. Singularly enough, France, which claims to be the most enlightened nation, is trying to outstrip all others in her tribute to the most benighted. The count of Montebello, of the diplomatic corps at St. Petersburg, has carte blanche to make France glitter. He has hired a stately edifice in this city, in which he will give a series of brilliant fetes during the coronation holidays. The finest statuary, bronzes, tapestry, canvases and marbles of France have been sent to adorn this temporary palace. If she can hold Russia's friendship to play against Germany, France will consider the money well spent. Deprived of Russia's aid in the event of a European war, France would be helpless. Germany is putting her best foot forward, and Austria has appropriated $13,000 for palace hire here. As the czarina is the granddaughter of Queen Victoria, of course England will give a testimonial that may eclipse all the others. But the czar himself may make the greatest gift of all, as it is rumored he will issue a proclamation guaranteeing religious liberty throughout the empire, the dream of the great spirits of his dominions since Russia took a place among the nations of the world.

Church of the Assumption, Moscow.

Every nation that has any standing at all will be represented at the ceremony. The most interesting envoys will be Li Hung Chang, from China, and Field Marshal Yamagata, who will make a very pretty struggle to secure the favor of the great potentate. Every move of these two ambassadors will be watched closely by the representatives of the powers. Gen. McCook, who has been commissioned by President Cleveland to represent the United States, has already engaged quarters in the fashionable part of the city.

SPAIN'S YOUNG KING.

Will Celebrate His Tenth Birthday Tomorrow.

Madrid, May 16.—Despite the gloomy outlook for the most beautiful of his provinces, the lovely Isle of Cuba, the young king's tenth birthday will be celebrated tomorrow with considerable ceremony, and that sycophancy which grows rank round royal robes will do its utmost to manufacture a display of affection from his subjects. King Alfonso is the son of Alfonso XII, and was born after the death of his father. He first saw the light May 17, 1886. His mother is Maria Christine of Austria, under whose regency the affairs of the kingdom have been carried on. His grandparents, Isabella II and Francois of Assise, are still living. Isabella is the notorious woman whose intrigues and amours brought the Spanish court to the lowest ebb. At one time no self-respecting woman would be seen at the palace. Most of Isabella's life is now spent amid the gayest surroundings of Parisian life. The aunt of the baby king, who takes the title of Alfonso XIII, is the Princess Eulalie, who visited the World's fair at Chicago in 1893, and was the center of a great deal of attention from the American people. Her other aunts are Isabella and Maria della Paz. Young Alfonso has two sisters, Maria de las Mercedes and Maria Theresa. His mother's conduct has been such as to restore the court to its former decency, and her administration of the regency has been marked with considerable ability.

King Alfonso XIII.

Those who hope great things from the king rejoice that his education is in the hands of so capable a mother. Alfonso, like his predecessors, was baptized in the Roman Catholic faith, which is the dominant religion of the kingdom.

DWELL IN UNITY.

A Twenty-Year Church Squabble is Ended.

New York, May 15.—The Manhattan and New York and Brooklyn conferences of the Congregational church have united after a separation of more than twenty years, occasioned by difficulties growing out of the Beecher trial. The union was effected at the session of the Manhattan conference in the Tompkins Avenue Congregational church. A committee, of which the Rev. Dr. A. J. Behrends was chairman, reported that since its creation last October, it had held numerous conferences with a small committee of the New York and Brooklyn associations, and the conditions of the union, satisfactory to both, had been agreed upon.

This was reported by a unanimous vote and the delegates of the New York and Brooklyn conference who were in waiting in the parlors of the church were visited by an equal number of delegates from the main conference and escorted arm and arm into the auditorium. The assembly received them standing and saluted their entrance with long and continued applause. The roll was called without further ceremony and the Manhattan-Brooklyn conference began its first session. A commemorative address by the Rev. Dr. Murdoch felicitating the churches on their reunion, closed the exercises.

STATUE OF OLE BULL.

The Monument to Be Unveiled at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 16.—The unveiling of the statue of Ole Bull, erected in the memory of the great violinist by the Norwegians of the Northwest, will take place in this city tomorrow. The statue, which is of bronze and by Sculptor Fjelde, shows the musician with his instrument ready for playing. The cost of it is $8000, which has been contributed in small amounts, so that the testimonial is really a representatively popular one. The statue had quite an experience in the studio. A piece of the clay forming the cast gave way, ruining a part of the face. Fjelde started to repair the damage and had nearly completed his work when taken ill. Mrs. Sarah Bull, of Boston, widow of the musician, has seen it, and says it is an excellent likeness.

Miss Caroline Boeckman, of St. Paul, has been chosen to unveil the statue. Miss Boeckman was born in Bergen, Norway, the birthplace of Ole Bull. Her early schooling was received in her native village. She came to America while still a young girl, and remained three years. She passed her fourteenth and fifteenth years in a Catholic convent in Paris.

John W. Arctander is president of the Ole Bull Monument association; Charles Kittelson, treasurer, and T. E. Nelson, secretary.

The unveiling will be quite an event, and leading Scandinavians of the Northwest are expected to be present. Mrs. Bull, the widow, and her charming daughter, Miss Olea Bull, will be among the distinguished guests.

Miss Boeckmann.

Ole Bornemann Bull was born at Bergen, Norway, Feb. 5, 1810, and died near there Aug. 17, 1880. From his arrival in Paris in 1831, when he began to develop under the influence of Paganini, he traveled from city to city, playing with great success. He visited America five times between 1843 and 1879.

KILLS DIPHTHERIA.

Roentgen Ray Destroys All the Disease Germs.

Columbia, Mo., May 15.—The experiments that have been going on at the state university electrical laboratory testing the effect of the X rays upon diphtheria baccili, all confirm the theory that the germs may be destroyed by the rays. The last experiment was made with live guinea pigs, probably the first experiment of the kind upon a living animal ever made in this country.

The guinea pigs were inoculated with a culture of diphtheria. One of the pigs was exposed to the Roentgen rays for four hours. After seventy-two hours this pig showed no signs of diphtheria and is just as lively as before, whereas the pig which was not exposed to the rays died within twenty-eight hours after the injection, and the post mortem showed his death was due to the injection of diphtheria baccili.

INTERSTATE TAX ABOLISHED.

Washington, May 15.—Mexico has finally followed the example set by the United States and has abolished all taxes on commerce between the states. These taxes have been in existence for many years in Mexico and have given rise to much embarrassment to external and internal trade. United States Consul General Crittenden, in reporting to the state department that the repealing law takes effect July 1 next, says that while the repeal meets with general approval, some of the states will be obliged to seek other methods of taxation, to supply the revenue heretofore derived from the tax on goods entering one state from another.

THE DISCOVERY SAVED HIS LIFE.

Mr. G. Caillouette, druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with la grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Represents All the States

As an Aggressive Force, the Methodist Episcopal Church Stands Unequalled.

Cleveland, May 13.—(Special correspondence to The Herald.)—Our conference is moving along nicely with its work, and the work is one of vast magnitude. Representatives are here from every state in the Union, and from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Bulgaria, India, China, Japan and South America. John Wesley said "The world is my parish." If from the better land he can look down on the representatives of so many lands sitting together in this great ecclesiastical gathering, a new joy must come to him, even in Heaven.

From New England to the Golden Gate, and from Tower to Texas, they are here—black men and white men, Americans and Japanese, Europeans and South Americans to the number of 557, representing 129 annual conferences, having a membership of 2,766,656, and owning churches and parsonages valued at $125,000,000. The Western book concern owned and managed by the church has property worth over $1,000,000. The Eastern book concern owns property valued at $2,500,000. The greatest religious publishing house in the world is owned and operated by the M. E. church. As an aggressive force in the country the M. E. church by its large number of communicants, its great publishing interests, its thoroughly organized system of benevolence and above all its evangelistic spirit stands unequalled.

It is not strange that the gathering attracts attention and that its doings are reported in all the daily papers in the country. I trust the church will be saved from making any serious mistake for as Joseph Cook once said, the largest share of responsibility for American evangelization rests upon the Methodist church.

The greatest interest centers in the election of bishops. St. Paul said if any man desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work. The church is rich in able and scholarly men, no dearth or suitable material. Since my last letter matters have taken shape so that probably three bishops will be superannuated, namely: Taylor, Bowman and Foster, and probably only two elected. There is some discussion of the question of a bishop of African descent, and why not? Eight millions of those people in this country, and among the 1200 colored ministers there are many who by education and character are well qualified for the office. And has not "God made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on the face of the earth?"

The standing committees of the body are composed of over one hundred members each, and are as follows: Episcopacy, itineracy, revisals, state of the churches, book concern, Sunday schools, church extension missions, freedmen, education, etc. Matters presented to the conference are usually referred to one of these committees and the report is fully discussed in open conference. Here is where the great debates occur, and the members are usually vigorous and powerful extemporaneous speakers, and as a result visitors in large numbers are in constant attendance on the sessions.

The usual number of progressive and conservative members manage to keep it lively. Some would cling to the old, others say the new is better. One is a constant check upon the other, and a kind Providence watches over the affairs of the church, and as a rule changes in polity and discipline will come very slowly in a body so large—and probably this is as it should be.

It ought to be said before closing my letter that the statistics given are for our own branch of the great Methodist family, and that the M. E. church, South, and the minor branches of Methodism would nearly double the number of communicants and vastly increase the figures giving the valuation of church property.

THE RAINY LAKE COUNTRY.

Seizures of Logs Cut on Government Land.

As a result of the investigations made by Col. Naff, special agent of the general land office, seven seizures of logs cut on government land have been made, says the Fort Frances News. Acting under instructions from Col. Naff, L. A. Ogaard made seizure on Friday last of the logs cut by Louis Alexander, the Stillars, George Scarlett, C. H. Wilson and Patrick Fitzpatrick. About 300,000 feet of logs are involved in the trouble.

Martin Sanders met with a peculiar accident on Saturday which might have been much worse than it was. He was carrying an ax on his shoulder, when he slipped and fell forward, the blade of the ax cutting quite a deep gash in the back of his neck just at the base of the skull.

Some very rich specimens of rock are being exhibited from location S 28, Little Manitou lake. Jack Quirk and Mike Noonan have been sinking test pits on the property for the owness, and the samples were taken from these pits. The owners are highly elated over the prospect.

D. J. Gillon, O. L. S., and crew came in from the Manitou yesterday. He reports activities begun in a lively manner up there. He took up three locations this trip, one of which he thinks will compare with the best of them. He will return the last of the week and begin development work on it. The location adjoins 328 P at the upper end of Little Manitou lake.

D. P. Redding, postmaster at Rainy Lake City, was recently married to Miss Florence La Tour, the ceremony being performed at Fort Frances by Father Cahill.

CONVENTION RATES.

Passenger Lines Wrangling Over Pacific Coast Figures.

San Francisco, May 15.—The leading passenger officials of the overland railroads, as represented in the trans-continental passenger association meeting, are still wrangling over convention rates from the Pacific coast. According to the report submitted by the committee having the matter in charge, reduced tickets will only be offered for sale in any town or city west of St. Paul, Omaha and Kansas City during two days. The dates will be so fixed as to allow the purchaser to buy his ticket and make a continuous trip to the convention city.

Under this arrangement reduced tickets to the Republican national convention at St. Louis will be put on sale here June 10 and 11. Returning from St. Louis holders of these tickets will have them honored coming home if they leave St. Louis June 21, July 14, July 21 or July 28, provided they specify any one of these dates. The exact dates affecting the sale and life of tickets to the other conventions will be arranged today.

GOSSIP OF ★ ★ THE STAGE.

Sarah Bernhardt played in Chicago week before last. Before she reached the Windy City, the Tribune, to be ahead of its enterprising contemporaries, sent a reporter to St. Louis to interview her. At the St. Nicholas hotel he found her, a trifle stouter than she used to be, but otherwise unchanged—as fascinating as ever.

"I shall be glad to get to Chicago," said Mme. Bernhardt, "but tell me, is it hot in Chicago? It is hot here. Gracious, open the window quick. I shall stifle," and the great actress leaned back in her chair, utterly exhausted at the thought of the heat. On being assured that the cool lake breezes of the Windy City would moderate the prospective heat, her spirits revived, and she devoted her attention to her breakfast, which had only then been served. The madame is not by any means an early riser. Twelve o'clock is, in her estimation, an excellent breakfast hour, and at that hour she partakes daily of her morning meal, which consists usually of eggs, a chop, rolls, a glass of milk, diluted with appollinaris water and some subtle fruit.

With Mme. Bernhardt is little Blanche Legereau, the daughter of a dear friend in New York. "Chere petite bebe," as the divine Sarah calls her. The child is her constant care. "Serve the baby first," said she to the waiter, "Now Cella?" she asked as the child ate her eggs. When the chops were served the actress carefully cut them up for the little one and insisted on her eating the meat. "It will make you grow," said she, then noticing the child was quiet she became solicitous, "Eh, bien, bebe, que avez-vous" (what is the matter), and leant over her and touched her cheeks. "Ah, you are cold." With this announcement Mme. Bernhardt jumped up from the table to get a wrap, calling to the waiters to close the windows. "Why did you not tell me you were cold, bebe?" and she continued to feel over the little one, to whom apparently she is a devoted slave.

"I find," continued Mme. Bernhardt, when assured the "bebe" was quite warm again, "the greatest improvement and advancement in the American public. Such increased intelligence, such comprehension. I shall never forget my first experience in New York. I came on the stage. In a few minutes I heard a remarkably hissing sound. It frightened me. Five minutes later it was repeated. Mon Dieu, what could it be? I listened. I watched; soon I discovered the cause. Every woman in the house had a libretto; in fact, had come armed with copies of the play. As they simultaneously turned the pages, lo! the hissing sound, which, fortunately, I hear no more.

"What do I think of Americans? They are glorious, intelligent—yes, more than any other women in the world. This is a country where woman reigns and reigns absolutely. She comes and goes. She orders, wills, exacts, instructs, spends money recklessly and gives no thanks. This shocks some people, but it only charms me. What is more idle than a 'thank you'? As if one were not thanked enough by the mere pleasure that one gets in doing service to a woman. Ah, American women are fortunate. In my country it is not so. Men do not work for women to spend. Neither do women make great marriages if they are poor, as is possible in America. Without a 'dot' no French girl can marry; it is absolutely impossible. She must work like a 'trigger' married to a poor man or she must remain an old, poor thing."

And madame expressly shrugged her shoulders and looked as if that was the worst fate that could befall a member of the fair sex. Girl bachelors are unknown to her; the old maid she pities. "American girls have so many opportunities to make living agreeable," continued she, pursuing the train of her thought. "In France few avenues are open to them, but it is getting better," and she looked hopeful over it.

Behind the scenes one has a fine opportunity to observe the wonderful expression so marked in Mme. Bernhardt's hands. Not a worthless gesture, nor, an unnecessary movement each one discover. They are her great aids in emotional interpretation. Affection and yearning she denotes by running her finger tips through the hair of the object of her love. Through them she peers when she wishes to express horror at some dreadful sight. When excited her incessantly moving fingers denote her otherwise expressed emotion. When triumphant she beats them together with joy. When raining thanks or flattery both palms work with flexions and undulations. Her determination she expresses with a swift, subtle movement of her right hand. Upon the receipt of unpleasant news, La Sarah expresses her disapproval by protruding her thumb and little finger; the others she keeps closed. As if to express her feelings as she becomes excited, her fingers stretch out straight and curl up again, and stretch out straight and curl up again until finally she fully expresses her rage by snapping them together and making a fist that looks as if it could well serve her ends, whatever they might be.

In love scenes her right hand, with writhing fingers and curving sweeps, tells many things and in her emotions her arms are outstretched, gliding to and fro in subtle caressing motion.

With her intimate friends, Mme. Bernhardt is generous almost to a fault. She is bright and witty, and dearly loves a joke. She is a woman of wide experience; well versed in the ways of the world, and as far as the general work of her charity is concerned it would be difficult to find a more feminine woman. However, she possesses many elements of femininity in an exaggerated form. In complexion the great French tragedienne is a most pronounced blonde, with white skin and blue eyes. In manner she is simple as a child and both spontaneous and frank. Her sympathies are broad, and the general tendency of her character is seemingly to engage in ceaseless activity of some kind.

Speaking on the subject of mysticism, she said:

"I have a certain fondness for the mystical. I am naturally of a devotional, if not strictly religious, turn of mind. I am intensely interested in the new play Sardou is writing for me, a spiritualist play. He is, however, a believer."

When asked if she would return to America, Mme. Bernhard, shrugged her shoulders and replied: "I believe not; this is, I think, the last of America for me. Yes, I hope they will regret me, and some, I hope, too, will miss 'the divine Sarah,' as the Americans call me. No one else has ever bestowed on me that title.

"What future developments one may expect in this wonderful country I may not even guess, it is a place of progress too rapid to be even calculated on."

MISS ISADORE RUSH.

She's the Best Dressed Man in 'Frisco.

The San Francisco Examiner says the best dressed man in town is a woman. At least in the matter of wearing men's clothes she is the best dressed, for her collars, cuffs, hats, coats, vests, shirts and ties are immaculate. This young lady who affects masculine attire with such excellent taste as to win for herself the above title is Miss Isadore Rush, of Roland Reed's company, at the California. At the waist line, however, the masculine attire ends. Below that point the plebeian skirts of her own sex loom up to mar the symmetry of the figure.

Still the skirt is quite as immaculate as the rest of the attire.

In "The Politician" Miss Rush wears six or eight different coats, vests and skirts, and in none of them can a single wrinkle be detected. The fit is absolutely perfect. Off the stage she does not affect the mannish costume to any great extent, as many suppose, but is a woman, with all a woman's foibles, but the fit is still there. Her dresses are invariably striking, but never out of taste, and are beautiful examples of the tailoring art.

"I think," she said in a recent interview, "that the twentieth century girl is the greatest girl on earth, but I am not a woman suffragist, for all that, as many people seem to believe me. Woman has a certain sphere, and I think she should remain in it. Man is the stronger of the two sexes, and we should lean on him to a certain extent. Why, if these women who are running around demanding what they claim to be their rights should secure them they would no longer be women; they would lose their identity, as it were. Besides," she added, with a twinkle in her eye, "I don't believe they would know how to exercise their so-called rights if they really got them. Excuse me, but I want none of them in mine.

"When Mr. Rosenfeld handed me my part in 'The Politician' he said that it was something new, and he wanted me to dress it up to date. The only suggestion that he made was that I wear bloomers. After I had read the part through I determined not to do so, but to make it very swell. I went at once to a prominent New York tailor, and for eight weeks we worried with my clothes. My, but what a time we had with the Prince Albert coat which I wear in the third act. I had to try it on five times before we could get it just right. The others were not so hard, but all of them were fitted several times."

MAX O'RELL'S PLAY.

Rose Coghlan Secures the French Author's Production.

Rose Coghlan has secured by cable the American rights for five years to produce a play written by Max O'Rell (Paul Blouet), the well-known French author and lecturer. As it is his first effort at play writing, there is naturally great interest manifested in his work. When it became known that he was writing the play there was a frantic scramble by New York managers to secure it, and since O'Rell's return to Paris, about a month ago, he has been besieged with cable and personal messages for the rights to put the play on in this country.

Having finished his play, all but the revisionary touches, Mr. O'Rell carefully looked over the field to select the proper parties to present it. He decided upon Rose Coghlan for this country and Forbes Robertson and Mrs. Patrick Campbell for Europe. He cabled to Miss Coghlan, offering her the American rights, and her husband, John T. Sullivan, at once wired back accepting the terms.

The new play will probably be called "Heart Basc." The scenes are laid in the upper Bohemian circles of Paris, and as the author is "to the manor born," a true picture of life in artistic and literary circles can be guaranteed. Those who have read the manuscript say O'Rell has more than duplicated the brilliant, forceful language used in his books and on the platform.

Miss Coghlan will play the part of a young wife who is suddenly transported from comparative poverty and happiness to riches and misery. She is afforded opportunities for a thorough display of her dramatic ability; more so, even, than in "A Woman of No Importance," in which she was so successful.

The comedy element is said to be in the author-humorist's best style. It is furnished by two Americans who visit Paris on a pictures-buying trip. In "Brother Jonathan" Mr. O'Rell indulges in many quiet jests at our expense. Many of his "impressions" of Americans will be found embodied in his play.

Negotiations are now under way with A. M. Palmer for the first American presentation at his theater. Miss Coghlan will begin her starring tour in August at a San Francisco theater. She will play "Madame" in all the principal cities, rehearsing "Heart Ease" while en route, and will probably open her engagement with the new play in New York.

Mr. Sullivan has not yet decided if he will take part in the forthcoming production. If it is suited to him he will play the leading male role, that of a poor artist. The scenery necessary to stage the play will be most elaborate, and the production will be one of the chief features of next season.

IN KNICKERBOCKERS.

Lillian Russell Has Finally Appeared in Fleshlings.

The motive that has induced Lillian Russell to appear upon the stage in any costume of which the enveloping skirt is not the most conspicuous part is shrouded in mystery, but the fact remains that she has. Many will recall the interesting suit brought against the fair Lillian by a New York manager to compel her to appear in tights, as required by her part, which the artist won on the ground that fleshlings were not specified in the contract. That was some years ago, and up to a few weeks ago, when Miss Russell appeared in "The Little Duke" she has steadfastly held her course. Spiteful rivals said it was because her figure was not flawless; others because she was too old. But the managers could only wonder until the buxom Lillian suddenly stepped upon the stage in knickerbockers. At the time of the suit the prima donna was far more slender than she is now, but recently the rapidly increasing rotundity of her figure has aroused more comment than her singing. As the "airy, fairy" Lillian, now nearly 40, 'tis said, was never very tall, and as she is acquiring flesh at an alarming rate, her sudden desire to discard skirts is more surprising than the obstinacy with which she refused to do so some years ago.

Perhaps the recollection of the old days when she trod the depth and breadth of the variety stage in a military suit, epaulets, boots and all, had great influence in tempting her to appear in a similar costume at this late day. The military air—that is, the military air of the stage—becomes her well, and in a close-fitting coat, with many stripes of gold and crossbars, with the cocked hat of revolutionary times and tall boots slick and shining and without a solitary crease from thigh to ankle, she presents a soldierly appearance, even though the decisive stride of the warrior bold is lost in the patter of high heels.

STAGE BEAUTY AND TALENT.

Eight Actresses Who Won Distinction This Season.

Maxine Elliott, the most regally beautiful woman on the American stage, has advanced in her profession with remarkable rapidity. She was born in Rockland, Me., and played small parts in E. S. Willard's company. Then she played in "The Prodigal Daughter," "Diplomacy," and "A Woman of No Importance," steadily advancing. With Augustin Daly, Miss Elliott made phenomenal progress in her art. She was admirably placed in "The Transit of Leo," as Olivia in "Twelfth Night," and Widow Stephenson in "Two Escutcheons." She last appeared in "A House of Cards" at the Fifth Avenue theater, and now goes to San Francisco as leading lady with the Frawley stock company. Incidentally, she will obtain a divorce from her husband.

Mary Hampton's stage career has been brief, but brilliant. She played Ruth Claybourne in a special matinee of "Louisiana" at the Madison Square theater in 1891. She was the ingenue in "Merchant," and played in "Jack Royal of the Ninety-second." For two years she has been playing Rosamund in Charles Frohman's "Sowing the Wind" company on the road, and has won much praise and popularity everywhere. She played Barbara in "Maree Van," at the Empire theater last year, and is considered one of the most promising leading ladies of the season. Miss Hampton's real name is Smith, and she is a native of Louisville, Ky. She has been twice married, her last husband having been Actor E. J. Henley, from whom she secured a divorce. Rumor has it she is engaged matrimonially every few months. Miss Hampton is tall and graceful, with dark hair, soulful dark eyes and regular features.

Isabel Irving, leading lady of the Lyceum theater stock company, and one of the most photographed young actresses of the day, was born in Bridgeport, Conn., and made her debut with Rosina Vokes in "The School Mistress," in February, 1887. For six years she was a member of Augustin Daly's company, playing with that organization in London and Paris. Resigning in March, 1894, Miss Irving was promptly engaged by Daniel Frohman for his road "Amazons" company. When Georgia Cayvan left the Lyceum theater, Miss Irving was promoted to the position of leading lady of the stock company. She has appeared in the principal part in "A Woman's Silence," "The Amazons," "The Case of Rebellious Susan," "The Home Secretary," and "The Benefit of the Doubt." Her best performance is probably Princess Phyvid in "The Prisoner of Zenda." Miss Irving is a blonde of the fragile type, and is noted for her gowns.

Amy Busby, sweet and dainty, was born in Johnstown, N. Y., Jan. 19, 1874, and played Grace Harkaway in "London Assurance" with Helen Barry at the age of 15. After further schooling with Miss Barry she joined Stuart Robson's company for two seasons, and then played important parts with W. H. Crane. Following this engagement, she joined Richard Mansfield's company, and her admirable performances of Louka in "Arms and the Man" attracted the attention of Charles Frohman, to whom she has since been under contract. Miss Busby has since given a sympathetic performance in "The Real Carol" and a new type of adventuress in the recent production of Charles Coghlan's "Madame." She also appeared in "Burmah" and "The Law of the Land" during the season just closing. Miss Busby was at one time the wife of Aubrey Boucicault, but secured a divorce a couple of years ago. She is a very pretty girl of graceful figure, and affects blonde wigs on the stage.

Julia Arthur, who went to England two years ago because she was not appreciated in this country, returned this season, and played leading roles after Ellen Terry to Henry Irving. It was a conspicuous and quick triumph. She was born May 3, 1869, at Hamilton, Ont., and played for several years with Daniel E. Bandmann, who has the faculty of discovering talented girls. Then Miss Arthur went to Germany and England to study. Returning she found an opening at the Baldwin theater, San Francisco in 1887. Subsequently she became leading lady of Willard's Lyceum theater stock company, often playing six different roles a week. Her first New York success was in "The Black Mask" at the Union square. A brief starring tour followed, and the promising actress became leading lady of A. M. Palmer's company, playing in "Mercedes." "Lady Windemere's Fan," etc. With Leonard Boyne she was featured in T. Henry French's production of "The Prodigal Daughter." Her last appearance before leaving for England was in "Sister Mary" at the American theater. With Henry Irving on his present American tour, Julia Arthur has played Blanche in "King Arthur," Redmond in "Becket," Hero in "Much Ado," etc. Miss Arthur has dark, lustrous eyes, raven black hair and a musical voice.

Olive Oliver was born in Carson City, Nev., but was brought up at Oakland, Cal., where she graduated from the high school in June, 1888. When but 18 she made her debut as Queen Gertrude to the Hamlet of Daniel E. Bandmann, with whom she remained until May, 1890, playing all the heavy roles in his extensive repertoire. Then Miss Oliver came to New York, playing in "Alone in London." She filled the heavy roles with Frederick Warde, and created the part of Sarah Gooch in "House on the Marsh." Subsequently she appeared in "Ye Earlie Trouble," "Power of Gold," "Crust of Society," and "Lady Windemere's Fan." Her greatest successes have been won this season with E. M. and Joseph Holland as Zoora, the Hindoo girl, in "A Man With a Past," and Senora Lolla Capriosi in "A Social Highwayman." She remains in the same company next season. Tall, graceful, and of uncommon brunette beauty, Olive Oliver is an attractive woman. She is an expert fencer and attributes her health as well as much of her grace and lithesse to her skill with the foils.

Katherine Grey became an actress in Augustin Daly's company in 1889. After one season she joined Charles Frohman's forces, playing in "Shenandoah" and "All the comforts of Home." Then she appeared in "The New South," and for one season played Nell Berry in "Shore Acres" with conspicuous success. Last season she joined Richard Mansfield's company, where she added greatly to her experience and her popularity. During the present season Miss Grey has played in "The Great Diamond Robbery," and is now playing in "His Absent Boy" at the Garden theater. She has ability, ambition and personal charm, and excels rather in strong character roles. Miss Grey was at one time the wife of Paul Arthur, but was legally released from these martial bonds.

Grace Kimball is E. H. Sothern's leading lady and was well liked at the beginning of the season for her Princess Flavia in "The Prisoner of Zenda." She has been a member of Richard Mansfield's company and acted with the Theater of Arts and Letters. Her first appearance with Sothern was in "Sheridan," and she has since played all the leading female roles of his repertoire. As Betty Lindley, the Maid of Bath, in "Sheridan" she was a beautiful stage picture. Her portrait in that character was painted by J. Wells Champney and Mary Cooper also modelled her bust. Miss Kimball has undoubted histrionic talent and convincing beauty.

SECRETS OF TIGHTS.

A Fitter Tells Something About Their Wearers.

"I can't say that a good American leg, in grace, form and beauty, is second to any other. It is just as good as that of any other nationality," said the woman who has fitted millions of tights in her career.

"The German leg is beefy; too much so for our American taste," she continued. "The English leg is athletic and muscular. The Italian is pretty, but always the ballet leg.

"No," she added thoughtfully, "the American is just as good form as any and is second to none."

This woman is an expert on tights. She is what in other professions or trade would be called an "artist." A tight is a work of art in her eyes and chiefly attains that standard because of her skill.

In eighteen years she has dressed all the most famous legs of the stage from Lydia Thompson down to the present stage queens. The secrets of New York stage legs that she does not know are very few. Miss Garner could tell just what famous legs were not nature but art and just how much was nature and how much was due to her.

The reputations of some of the so-called "magnificent figures" and legs would be lost if Miss Garner should tell what she has done for women. But they are all safe.

Miss Garner will no more tell the secrets of a padded leg than a physician will reveal the affairs of his patients. So it is utterly useless to go down Broadway to the shop where Miss Garner rents expecting her to tell what proportion of the contents of the fascinating pale-green tights in last night's play is lambs' wool and what is flesh and muscle.

Miss Garner was asked if athletics and bicycling had hurt the stage leg yet.

"It certainly hasn't improved it much. Athletes make muscle and take off flesh. So we have to cover the muscle with lambs' wool 'flesh.' The bicycle hasn't had any effect to speak of yet. There's just as much padding as ever, so it seems to me. Tights ought to be made to measure. Besides making them for stage wear, we make them for many society women who wear nothing else under their skirts. A new customer I measure and fit myself. A good tight should be perfectly fitted and without a wrinkle, no matter what position the wearer assumes."

"What is a perfect measure?" I asked.

"The ideal measure," Miss Garner explained, "for a woman of medium weight, five feet and a half tall, is twenty-one inches about the waist. This is what I call a 'strip' measure. About the hips the measurement is thirty-seven inches. The thigh will measure the same as the waist, and the calf of the leg should be fourteen inches, the ankle eight and the foot eight and a half. That is the proper form for a perfect woman of the height given. I have tables of measures that have been made by artists purposely for me. I build tights to harmonize with these according to height and weight."

"Do any bow-legged women wear tights?" Miss Garner was asked. She and her assistant laughed and looked at each other as if each knew what the other was thinking of.

"Of course they do," she said, "but bow-legged actresses are rare specimens. They can be padded up to a proper shape, however, unless the defect is too noticeable. Tights may be made to cover all sorts of physical deficiencies."

"Where is the most lambs' wool needed?" I asked.

"Usually on the inside of the leg. The ideal pair of legs just closes. There should be no open line between them. They should meet easily and form a straight line to the knee. Below the knee is another place where lambs' wool is very sure to be needed in the ordinary run of tights. I have never known anyone connected with the stage differing as to the question of the straight close line above the knee. It is imperative.

"Who has the most beautiful legs, please?"

"How can I tell that when there have been so many since Lydia Thompson started the wearing of tights here?" Miss Garner answered. "I suppose Pauline Markham's legs have never been surpassed. Marie Jansen and Pauline Hall had magnificently shaped legs. Vernona Jarbeau had absolutely ideal legs. Della Fox was small, but her legs were built on correct lines. She wears a small No. 1 tight, Millie Fuller a No. 2 medium and Marie Jansen a No. 2."

"Miss Russell?" I suggested.

"That talk about Miss Russell being fat is not quite accurate," Miss Garner said. "Miss Russell wears only a medium size, No. 2. Her weight is about the line. Below that measure she has a beautiful figure, especially from the knee down. Few women have lovelier lower limbs.

Miss Russell wears tights under all her dresses; exquisite ones of either pale pink, gray or white. Many society women come to me for tights for wear with all their dresses. A great number of society women wear them with loose trailing house gowns. They were very generally worn when the Empire gown was fashionable. For both cycling and riding tights are preferred by such women as young Mrs. Lorillard, Miss Whitney and Miss De Wolfe."

The expert says there is less ripping and running of tights than formerly because they are better made now. Silk tights made to order, such as Miss Russell wears, cost $8.50 a pair. They are exquisitely made, with every bit of loose mesh narrowed off. They are woven on hand machinery, and are very different from the first American attempts at tight-making of twenty years ago.

A stock of tights of all sizes and descriptions to the value of $20,000 is kept on hand all the time. A woman may select any color or material and in twelve hours a tight will be dyed to match. Inside of three days a tight can be woven to order. From $8.50 the price ranges up to spangled tights at $50.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Very Common During Hot Weather of Early Summer.

The symptoms are twitching of the eyelids, moving, brown specks before the eyes, and metallic ringing in the ears, sour stomach after eating, with belching of gas, a feeling of great weight in the stomach, morbid fear of leaving home, a constant desire to talk of their symptoms, chills and hot flashes, hands and feet usually cold and clammy, general tendency to dryness and coldness of the skin of the whole body, neuralgic headache, nervous chills, hysteria, sinking and faint spells, distressing palpitation of the heart, inability to read, write or do any business, urine abundant, without color, loss of flesh, sleeplessness and sexual excitability. Some of these symptoms are present in every case.

Mrs. Hannah Lind, of 1132 East Long street, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I was for many years a victim of nervous prostration and neuralgia. I would have spells, during which my suffering was great. All sorts of treatment was tried, from which I received little or no benefit. At last I was induced to try a bottle of Pe-ru-na, and after using two bottles of this medicine I found myself more improved than from all the other treatment I ever received. I believe it to be the best medicine for the nervous system that I have ever known. I would heartily recommend it to all people who are suffering from any form of nervousness. I can hardly estimate the value Pe-ru-na has been to me."

LONGER DAYS.

Will Be a Month Long Sometime.

Do you know that the day, which is now only twenty-four hours long, is slowly increasing in length, and that it will eventually be twenty-five, twenty-six, or even 160 hours in length? asks the St. Louis Republic. This statement, strange as it may sound to one who has never read the results of observations made on that score, is believed to be true in every respect. The only will the earth's motion slow up until the day will be one, two and three times as long as it is at present, but this pace slackening process will increase with time, until the day will eventually be of a length of a month in length. The "retarding medium," which the astronomers speak of as being the cause of this phenomena is not fully understood at present. Professor Ball says that it is the friction of the tides which is responsible for the most of it. He urges that the time will come when the day will be a month in length. Others among the investigators along this line declare that it will be impossible for the day-lengthening process to increase beyond one lunar month.

This certainly looks plausible if we consider the tides as being the cause of the trouble. However, Professor Ball who has long been astronomer royal of Ireland and the greatest British authority on astronomy, knows just about whereof he speaks, and if he says the day must eventually lengthen a year, we had better prepare for the nightless season without asking any questions. The editor has never seen a word from Professor Ball as to what it will be the final end of this day-lengthening process—as to whether it will increase or decrease after the one-year-day period has been reached. Evidently the process will continue, and the next day will be a fraction longer and finally the earth's rotation will cease altogether. Some sayings that when that time arrives the earth will take a sudden tilt to the west, and from that time forward the revolution will be in the opposite direction.

A NERVE FOOD FOUND

You Must Feed the Nerves, not Strain Them; Build Them up, not Stimulate Them; Coax Them, not Drive Them.

Ordinary Foods do not Supply Sufficient or Proper Nourishment for Wasted Nerves—They Must be Carefully Treated on Scientific Principles.

THE CASE OF A PARALYTIC WHOSE NERVES WERE SO NOURISHED THAT HE WAS CURED.

From the Courier-Herald, Saginaw, Mich.

Do you see those two men walking up the street? One has a vigorous, firm, elastic step, his head well up, his eyes bright—a picture of a sound and perfect man. The other is bent, his knees weak and unsteady, a listless air about his whole make-up. He has the appearance of one who is broken in health and who has to whip himself to every task. The difference between these two men is a difference of nerve power. With nerve power comes energy, enterprise, force, vigor—all things which make existence enjoyable; without it the muscles cannot act, the brain cannot think. Bear in mind that life is nerve power, and if you wish to keep it you must feed the nerves. Do not simply stimulate them, but coax them—feed them. Give them the food which will renew their life and make them sound and healthy, that they may ward off disease.

Probably paralysis is the nearest disease to nerve-death that we know, and we therefore cite a case of it below, to show what a certain famous nerve-building preparation can do to feed and absolutely restore almost hopelessly wasted nerves.

There are but few in the Saginaw Valley but who have known personally or made the acquaintance indirectly of W. H. Dawson, 618 Union Avenue, Saginaw, Mich., West Side. It is here that the hand of sickness has fallen heavily and caused a man to become widely known and extremely pitied.

It is the hand of fate that often nips in the bud that which nature has started with the greatest predictions for the future. Until three years ago W. H. Dawson has known but little of sickness and pain but the last few years have brought with them untold suffering. With many doctors taxing their brains for something that might benefit, all remedies known to the scientific medicine man were applied and without avail. The patient meanwhile faded and became worse but still lingered to fulfill a wonderful mission which will be the cause of less suffering among his fellow creatures. It was that unseen hand directing all things who permitted this one man to live in misery so that the world might become enlightened.

To hear the pitiful story of one who has suffered who could not move a muscle for one whole year and who is now convalescent through the aid of a wonderful medium might lead one to believe that miracles are performed in this day and age. They are, but not as in times of old. This time it is through the hand of men that life is restored.

"Until the fall of '92," said Mr. Dawson, to a reporter, "I was as hearty and as full of life and vigor as any young man could hope to be, in fact sickness was then unknown to me. About this time I was taken sick with la grippe and after having two relapses my spine became affected. This trouble grew worse rapidly and in March of '93 I was completely paralyzed from my waist down. Having taken everything my doctors could prescribe without any effects, I decided to go to the Indiana State Institute at Indianapolis hoping to receive at least some benefit from their specialists. I was there for a period of ten months during which time I was taken sick with scarlet fever which left me in a worse condition than ever before.

"As soon as I was able I was removed to Saginaw for my friends could not see any improvement under this treatment, and besides the expense was entirely too great for me to entertain thoughts of staying there longer. The most annoying period of my existence was lived after my return to Saginaw. I sometimes prayed that my worthless life might be taken away, that my suffering might be ended and that the care I was to others might be brought to a close. I did not then dream that God had yet a mission for me to fulfill. That work which I can now put all my soul into with which my being is thrilling, is proclaiming to sick and suffering humanity the wonders of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have given me new life.

"It was in April of '94 that a friend told me of the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and asked me to try them. I had no faith in anything, in fact my life was now burdensome and I hated to take anything that might chance to prolong it. I was at length persuaded and the pills were obtained. When I began taking them I was pale, weak, helpless and almost without life, as before stated, was completely paralyzed from my waist down, my limbs were simply bones and skin with no life or feeling in them and had been so for one year. Before the first box was used I could move my toes a little and could begin to feel new life all through me. This was encouraging and I continued to use these marvelous pellets.

"In two months time I could move my limbs about on the bed and by the time another month had seen me swallow this medicine, to which I owe my life, I was able to get out of bed alone. It has been just about one year since I learned of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and during that time I have made such marked improvement that I gladly proclaim what they have done for me to all the world and ask you fellow sufferers to try them and receive new life. My life, my all, I owe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"I am now comparatively fleshy with good color and high spirits, and every day brings new strength and more happy life through the continued use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

W. H. DAWSON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 27th day of May, 1895.

Notary in and for Saginaw Co., Mich.

The foregoing is but one of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Diseases which heretofore have been supposed to be incurable, such as locomotor ataxia and paralysis succumb to this wonderful medicine as readily as the most trifling ailments. In many cases the reported cures have been investigated by the leading newspapers and verified in every possible manner and in no case has the least semblance of fraud been discovered. Their fame has spread to the far ends of civilization and there is hardly a drug store in this country or abroad where they cannot be found.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE BICYCLE WORLD.

The time is drawing near for Duluth's annual road race, which has become one of the greatest permanent sporting institutions at the head of the lake, if not the only one of consequence. As the date comes nearer interest grows warmer, and the number of prospective record-breakers and prize-winners grows larger and their frantic dives up and down London road grow more frequent. As yet no one of them has entered his name on the lists, which are in the hands of Roy N. Hoople, but it is yet early for that, as the lists do not close until May 26, the Tuesday before the race.

Because there are no names on the list is no sign there will not be lots of them. There will be at least thirty entries, and in all probability, what with the added speed of the riders and the improvements in bicycles, the road record of the state should be cut down a notch or two. The road record was made last year by A. Mertins, of St. Paul, who made the 10-mile course in 27 minutes and 32 seconds.

With all the excited work of the prospective entries, there is a feeling that the uncanny, unknown handicap committee may be around when a fellow is making his best spurt, so when a rider sees a wheelman suspected of being on that committee, his first impulse is to drop down to a snail pace.

The work of the handicap committee is a thankless one, anyway. If thirty riders are placed, probably every man except those who are given the very highest handicap are dissatisfied with their positions, all of which makes it unpleasant for the members of the committee when their identity is disclosed.

The prize lists are not completed, but the prize committee reports good success, and the list of prizes will be of a nature attractive to cyclists. There are already a number of pairs of tires from dealers and a number of bicycle adjuncts, including cyclometers, suits, etc.

FASTEST IN THE WORLD.

This Country Possesses Some Very Swift Riders.

Cycle competition has kept pace with cycling until this country possesses the fastest riders in the world, and its champions hold nearly all the important records. As a sport in which are combined the essentials necessary to secure the endorsement of the thousands of Americans who are interested in clean and exciting athletic contention of any character, cycle racing stands second to none, and its popularity will be largely augmented during the coming season, the indications for which are exceedingly bright and inviting.

At Boston, Mass., on July 4, 1878, the first bicycle race ever held in this country took place, and the winner of the event was Will R. Pitman. When one compares the time made, 3:51, with the competition record of P. J. Berlo, 1:50 2-5, made at New Orleans in December last, the increase in the speed rate can be appreciated. Of course, the conditions under which Pitman set the ball rolling were vastly inferior to the state of affairs that existed at the Crescent City when Berlo established his world's records figures, but the cutting off of two minutes from the time for a mile illustrates how the racing game has progressed. The improvement in the machine itself, the advantage of a modern track, and the worth of pacing are all apparent in Peters' effort.

While in the early years of the sport the riders who came here from England were very successful in obtaining the lion's share of the prizes and glory, in recent years the invaders have found their match in the Americans, and, in consequence, there have been few foreigners on our tracks. Americans have not only retained honors at home, but have gone abroad in pursuit of fame, and in nearly every instance have returned with added laurels.

The success attained by Zimmerman on the occasion of his initial trip to England in 1893, and his more brilliant expedition, in company with Wheeler, Banker and Crooks, the following years to France and other countries on the continent, are well remembered. Last year George Banker represented the stars and stripes on the other side, but an unfortunate attack of fever, from which he is just recovering, has practically put him on the shelf for this year.

Eck's aggregation will have to look out for the American reputation, and with John S. Johnson going faster than at any time in his remarkable career, and Ray Macdonald and Al Weinig moving very fast, it is as good as assured that the flyers from this side will be very much in evidence and will bring home with them a good share of the spoils. It may be that another contingent of Americans will be in Europe before the season is far advanced, and negotiations to this effect are now in progress.

Professionalism will be on trial in this country during the coming season, the obliteration of Class B removing the last vestige of amateurism of a rapid grade. The conduct of amateurism on a large scale in a scale of immaculate purity is impossible. The question of whether it is wise to draw the lines for this class so fine that it will be impossible for a rider to do any racing of extent, except as a professional, or if it is preferable to have an amateur definition liberal enough to allow the rider to receive a limited remuneration in the way of expenses, will be answered. If the cash prize flyers conduct themselves above reproach—and there is no reason why they should not do this, professionalism seems destined to meet with the same favor that it has found in other countries.

Nevertheless there will always be an amateur class, and the time is coming when the prize alone will determine whether a rider is an amateur or professional. There will be no antique restrictions guiding the conduct of the former.

Of the array of professionals who will strive for honors—Bald appears to be the king pin of the lot. Unless indications are at fault, big Willie Sanger will be a dangerous candidate for the top of the heap. He rode like a fiend last fall at the Springfield meet, and earlier in the season his poor work could be laid to the fever which it had been his misfortune to experience in the winter preceding. With the germs out of his system, the Milwaukeean can be counted upon to make a most determined fight for premier honors. The prediction is hazarded that the battle will be between Bald and Sanger.

Tommy Cooper, Arthur Gardiner and Charley Murphy are the ones who are very likely to have something to say in the disposition of the crown for 1896, and little Ziegler will not be very far away in those rattling finishes that will make the races for the coin during 1896. Johnson will be back in time for the fall meets, and what figure he will cut in the game after a hard campaign in Europe and a sea voyage it is hard to prophesy.

Down at Savannah there are three riders who are not out of the reckoning by long odds, any one of the three is likely to prove one of the surprises of the season. Conn Baker was only in front off scratch in the handicaps last season at Manhattan Beach, and he did not get near his real quantity of speed until the year's events were nearly at an end. He scared even Sanger at Tioga track in the final night meet, but in another event suffered a fall that put him on the retired list for the few remaining weeks. Frank Jenny is at his best in the handicaps, and, considering that last year was his first in fast company, his showing was very creditable. Harry Wheeler, under the tutelage of Willis Troy, is expected to show some of his form of a couple of seasons ago, and in his preliminary work he has given good ground for the hopes of himself and his master.

Then, among the others, are diminutive Kiser, who captured third in the big record race at Hampden Park in September last; Clint Coulter, who bobbed up now and then with a brilliant win; "Billy" Hamilton, who thought he had the unpaced record of 2:00 2-5, until the racing board reconsidered its decision and allowed Sanger to hold the honor exclusively, and Fred Allen, who figures he is fast enough to get across the tape first, even when pitted against the best of them. Of course, "there are others," but the list of notables is about exhausted. A "phenom" can be expected to head the cash prize ora, and would not be surprising if the offering of gold does not bring out much latent talent of the winning kind.

Chairman George D. Gideon is noted for his conservatism, and never gives utterance to a statement until he has weighed the matter in hand very carefully. His comment on the racing period of '96 is as follows:

"All I can say is that to me the prospects for this season appear to be extremely good. If there is any indication in the amount of work that is pulling into this office, the season is bound to be a success."

Henry W. Robinson, the New England member, gives this view of the situation:

"The prospects of cycle racing are very bright, and if the professional riders will conduct themselves in the manner that they did at all meets which I attended last year, the newly accepted division of the racing men will, I believe, prove a wise move. The success in all race meets has largely in the men who ride, and if they can be made to see that it is bread and butter for them to keep the sport clean, then we are bound to have successful meets for many years to come. The applications for sanctions in my district, I think, are equal to former years, and, of course, by this the prospects for the season can be estimated."

Ed H. Croninger, of Cincinnati, gives this statement of affairs in his district: "From the number of inquiries made, cycle meets in my district will be numerous. Here in Cincinnati, with the completion of the Chester Park cement track, which is undoubtedly one of the finest in the land, many contests will be held. Already sanctions have been granted for May 9 and 16, and for which a large number of entries have been received. These meets will be held in the afternoon, while it is proposed a little later in the season to give electric light meets, the park being lighted by thirty immense arc lights."

CENTURY ROAD CLUB.

How the Now Famous Organization Was Started.

Can you ride 100 miles in fourteen hours?

If so I would advise you to join the Century Road club, of America.

The badge of the club with as many pendant bars as the bearer has ground out centuries always attracts attention, and proclaims, if not the veteran wheelman, at least one who has ridden a wee bit.

The Century Road club, of America, was first organized and chartered under the name of the Century Road club, of Chicago, and as the club grew both in popularity and numbers to be the first cycling organization in the United States next to the League of American Wheelmen, the name was changed to the present one.

The present organization probably owes its existence to "Billy" Herrick, known from one end of the country to the other as the "Only Herrick." Mr. Herrick is chief centurion of the organization (a life office), which honor is rightly paid him for his services in the past.

The Century Road club, of Chicago, was organized some five years ago by an old-time Chicago crowd of cyclists, mostly members of the Lincolns, of the North Side, who were in the habit of hustling off by themselves each Sunday and making centuries. This was in the cushion tire days.

One day in June, in 1891, some one suggested forming a century club, and six or eight weeks later, in August of the same year, the Century Road club, of Chicago, was given birth and chartered under the laws of the state of Illinois. There were fourteen charter members—R. G. Betts, now one of the editors of the Wheel, of this city; F. W. Gerald, an ex-chief consul of the Illinois division of the League of American Wheelmen; Fred E. McCune, of Boston; J. E. Temple, J. R. Root, Joe Gulnea, "Billy" Herrick and several other well-known wheelmen.

The first annual century of the club was over the Elgin-Aurora course, Sept. 12, 1891, and over 140 riders turned out, with 112 finishing. Among the latter were several ladies. From this time onward the century fever struck Chicago, and the club gained many members. In applying for a charter the members of the club stated that the object of the organization was to promote road riding and road racing, entirely dissimilar to the League of American Wheelmen, which only recognizes track work and track records, while the Century Road club only recognizes road work and road records.

At the end of two years the club had about 600 members, and the total of expenses of getting them had been a little over $80. When the officers were elected Mr. Herrick was enabled to turn over to the treasurer some $600. At this time there were about 1000 members, and now the club is over 3000 strong. The first national officers of Century Road club were as follows: President, W. A. Shinkle, of Cleveland; vice president, Dr. Milton Kelm, of Philadelphia; second vice president, L. J. Berger, of Chicago; chief centurion, W. Herrick, of Chicago; treasurer, W. M. Brewster, of St. Joseph, Mo.

The first woman to join the club was Mrs. F. E. McCune, wife of F. E. McCune, of Elgin, now of Boston, and one of the club's original members. Mrs. McCune rode only two centuries, ill health preventing further rides. The organization now includes nearly 100 women, among them being Miss Haggerty and Miss Porter, of Chicago, both of whom have over thirty bars. Miss Margaret Kirkwood, of Boston, was, I believe, the second woman to join the club, and was the first state centurion of Massachusetts, being my predecessor. Although she has not ridden for two years, now being a devoted trap shooter, she has a bracelet which is made of her badge and twenty-eight bars, which at that time was the woman's record for the club.

The club is now large and extensive, with centurions in every state, England, Canada, France and Germany, and it may well be added without exaggeration, that a Century Road club badge is as much of an introduction as a Masonic charm.

This year the club is larger and stronger than ever, and, to a practical degree, while it does not sanction road racing, controls it. The organization recognizes all road records from five miles up, given distances between two points and local course records. The club offers, through its state centurions this year, valuable die medals to the members in each of the state divisions who obtain either the largest mileage or ride the greatest number of centuries. This is open only to the members in each state. Besides this the club offers yearly the following competitive awards: For meritorious rides, a bronze die medal; greatest individual mileage, M. & W. gold medal, value $50; best individual century record, diamond medal, value $50; greatest club century record, club banner. The individual century record was won last year by W. A. Rubey, of Louisville, Ky., who ground out thirty-two centuries within the year, while R. E. O'Connor, of Chicago, won the greatest individual mileage medal, with 14,178 miles to his credit.

This year the Century Road club intends, if possible, to grow more than ever, and besides the awards I have mentioned, medals will be offered by almost every state centurion for the greatest mileage and largest number of centuries ridden. It is thought that this will serve to awaken a lively local interest in each state centurion.

FEATS ON BICYCLES.

Tricks Performed By Some Expert Riders.

Last year it was stated that a trick bicyclist had ridden his whel backward from London to Brighton. He did not turn the machine around, but set with his face toward the rear wheel, and the handle bars accordingly behind him.

In 1887 a couple of Englishmen, animated by a queer mania for the odd, rode their wheels down to Dover and then took a boat over to Ostend. Sands at low tide. They then proceeded to ride their wheels along the sand as close to the water's edge as possible, and, after thus riding on a portion of the earth where no one had ridden before, calmly went back and had tea.

In the early days of the wheel one man made two or three trips on a 96-inch wheel. A Coventry cyclist eclipsed that feat, however, by appearing on a machine about twelve feet in height. He appeared so constantly that he grew to be no novelty, and people soon tired of him and his tower-like machine.

In the year 1884 a trick-rider attempted to ride down the steps of the main entrance on the east side of the capitol, Washington. His first essay was to attempt the descent upon an ordinary bicycle, and this was accomplished with comparative ease. Next he detached the saddle, backbone and rear wheel, preparing to ride down upon the front wheel only. This, however, was a trick that had been the subject of no previous practice, and he commenced by taking the steps in sections. He had ridden down the last two sections and was about to essay the complete descent from top to bottom, when he was stopped by the capitol police. An enormous crowd had assembled to watch this feat, and, being disappointed, they had nothing left but to howl at the police for having interrupted the sport. Some years afterward—namely, in October, 1891—he rode down the full length of the same steps on a solid-tired safety bicycle.

Another freak was accomplished for a small bet, and might easily have cost the rider his life. During October, 1887, a member of an American team of bicyclists then making a tour of England rode the front wheel of his bicycle along the wall of the north pier, Aberdeen. This wall was twenty-five feet in height, and twenty inches in breadth. The feat was one of exceptional daring and skill and certainly of a character to endanger the life of the adventurous rider. There was a boat in attendance below ready to render any assistance in case of need. Luckily, however, there was no hitch of any kind and the adventurous feat was accomplished in a very short space of time. On the following day the same rider repeated the performance in the presence of about 300 people. Evidently he was prepared for failure, because he dressed himself in light racing costume, which would have incommoded him but little, had he obtained an involuntary immersion. This daring freak had its origin in a wager of £5.

THE PROPER POSITION.

How to Sit on a Wheel Gracefully.

A woman may look very charming on her wheel, or quite the reverse. It rests with herself, as all depends on how she sits and manages her machine.

First of all, it is most important that a wheel adjusted to the weight of the woman who is to ride it should be found. A nervous woman cannot ride as light a machine as her robust sister. Its stronger vibrations would soon send her off on her head. A twenty-six pounder is a good weight for the average woman. The saddle should line up slightly back of the pedals, and should be sufficiently elevated to allow the heel to rest comfortably on the pedal at the lowest point of its arc.

The handle bars should be so adjusted that, when sitting erect, the rider can easily reach the grips without fully extending the arms.

To look attractive on her wheel and get the best results from the exercise, a woman must hold her head well up, throw her shoulders back and get rhythmic and correct leg motion. The "camel's hump," which only belongs to the professionalism of the track, is at all times inexcusable and vulgar in a woman. The greatest difficulty a woman rider has to encounter when learning to ride is how to mount and dismount properly. Horseback riding has perhaps something to do with this, as woman has always been extended the "helping hand" on which she lightly vaulted into the saddle. Men are perhaps still as accommodating, but they are useless to the woman bicycle rider, and probably the new woman would dispense with their services anyhow.

To mount easily and gracefully one should turn the off pedal (which will be that on the right) to its greatest altitude. Then place the right foot on it and, lightly grasping the handles, vault lightly into the saddle. It is folly for a woman to go on the road until she has mastered the mounting and dismounting difficulty. At times it may be a matter of life or death to be able to jump off a flying wheel, and with steady practice in this, as in most things, one can easily attain perfection. The wisest course the would-be woman rider can pursue is to take her first lessons from a thoroughly competent teacher. Then, later, she will have no bad habits to correct. The management of her wheel will come as natural to her and require as little apparent thought and exertion as walking does, while the keen delight and exhilaration of spinning through the air will more than compensate for the trouble of properly acquiring the art of bicycle riding.

COSTUMES FOR FAIR RIDERS.

Two Novelties Sprung During the Past Week.

A bicycle costume is all right when worn a-wheel by the fair bicyclienne, but very few women have advanced to the point where the bloomer, divided skirt or the short skirt can be worn with complacency at any other time. Many women dislike to walk to and from the cycling school, bicycle stable or club rendezvous in the garb that is essential to comfort and safety while enjoying their recreation on the wheel. Microbes or no microbes, it will be many a long day before the woman in short skirts and leggings will cease to attract attention when on the promenade.

True, many level-headed women seize every opportunity to appear in public in what they call rational attire, and predict that the day when the long skirt will be as much out of date and place on Broadway as bloomers would be today. But that day has not yet arrived, and in consequence one of the difficult problems which the modiste of two continents have for a long time wrestled with is the production of a combination bicycle and promenade skirt, "suitable for all occasions," as the women say.

An eminent dictitor of fashion in Munich seems to have made a decided advance upon several rather clumsy and ineffective devices of English and American origin.

For outing purposes, either bicycling or golf, the skirt is constructed in such a way that by an arrangement of hooks and eyes on the inside of the skirt the entire skirt is brought up to reach from twelve to fourteen inches above the ground, according to the desire of the wearer. The change from skirt to bicycle dress, or back again, is accomplished in less than a half minute. In fact, the change back to promenade length is accomplished in less time, as with the release of two hooks the skirt resumes its natural position of its own accord.

A Parisian cycling paper a year ago offered a prize for the invention of bicycle "knickers" that can readily be changed into full-length, well-fitting trousers. A Bavarian knitting mill owner has just patented such a garment. The material is a tricot of pure wool, both warm and elastic. The shape of the trousers is in the fashion, and the material can only be discovered upon close inspection.

When it is desired to use them as bicycle trousers the legs are pulled up, the hose and garters being fastened over the bottom of the trousers.

With a possible view to the introduction of the bicycle in Oriental lands, where it is forbidden of man that he shall gaze upon the faces of the pearls of the harem as they venture abroad veiled, two Americans have taken out patents upon what may be termed canopies. They are an evolution from the umbrellas and sunshades for attachment to cycles, many of which have been invented, but few ever put into practical use.

The canopy of the new invention is made of silk or linen curtains, falling as low as the ankles at sides and rear, with a gauze veil draped from the front, of sufficient transparency to permit the cyclist to see the road.

Thomas Cherry, presumably a very modest young Virginian, and Miss Minnie Reid, of Pond Creek, Indian territory, were the simultaneous originators of these devices to protect the blushes of the over-sensitive fair young bicyclienne.

Miss Reid had believed for a long time that young women and good women who have been young would be more ready to ride bicycles but for a natural modesty. timidity in appearing in public wearing bicycle garb. Revolving this fruitful thought in her mind, the idea came to her suddenly, as it did to Columbus when vexed with the question of making the egg stand on end. She would give to the world a boudoir, a cloister, on wheels.

Future generations of women, she believed, would call her blessed as they scorched over the roads, seeing everything, but themselves secure from the profane gaze of rude man. She at length patented nothing less than a canopy for bicycles, of which she writes in her specifications forwarded to the patent office: "It will protect the rider from the glare of the sun and the vulgar curiosity of the public. From the canopy are appended curtains of linen or some other opaque materials which extend to the heels of the rider, completely screening her from view, making the wheel as much a place of retirement as the interior of a family coupe."

Mr. Cherry's canopy for bicycles was conceived in the same spirit that actuated Miss Reid, but it is not so elaborate. It consists simply of an umbrella top, to the sides of which are affixed the secluding curtains. When not in use they are gathered up and tied around the folded umbrella, which is then unshipped and strapped beneath the saddle.

RACING SCHEME IN FRANCE.

Racing men in this country will be interested in a scheme recently put in operation in Paris. A correspondent speaks of it as follows: "A novel competition has been instituted at the Velodrome de la Seine under the name of the Prix du Brassard; otherwise, a race in which the winner will be authorized to wear a No. 1, and so long as he can hold it against all comers he will be entitled to receive 20 francs a day. The distance to be ridden is 2000 meters, without pace-makers. Anyone can challenge the winner by depositing 400 francs, and if the challenge is approved by a committee which has been appointed for that purpose it must be accepted by the holder within five days. In the event of his winning he will pocket the 400 francs, and will continue to enjoy the income of 20 francs, but in case of defeat he surrenders the No. 1 to the new champion, who receives the daily income of 20 francs until he is in his turn vanquished. The arrangement stands good until Oct. 15 next, so that in the event of a man holding the number all through the season he will make something like 3600 francs, to say nothing of the stakes that will have to be paid over to him by his defeated rivals. The competition, it need hardly be said, is awakening the keenest interest. The first race was run off on Sunday in the presence of an enormous crowd, and it was easily won by Jacquelin."

440-MILE ROAD RACE.

A race will be over the road from Moscow to St. Petersburg, a distance of about 440 miles, on June 13, and will be for cash prizes and a medal. The prizes will be good, substantial sums, and will, no doubt, attract a great number of the best riders of, not only the whole of Itussia, but from the surrounding countries, as well. The first prize will be $500 in cash, the second $250, the third $150, the fourth $100, and the fifth, $50. In addition to these cash prizes, the winner will receive a medal, which is being offered by the Grand Duke Serge, and everyone who finishes will receive a commemorate medallion. A novel feature of this race is that all the riders will receive free of charge, all the care, massage, food, etc., they need. Last year a Russian rider named Dovetchko went over this course and covered it in thirty-six hours, ten minutes and thirty-five seconds, which is now the Russian record for the distance. Under the more favorable circumstances now prevailing, it is only right to expect that this record will be considerably lowered.

IN THE ANTIPODES.

They are arguing about pace making even in Australia, W. Caselt, a cycling critic in that far-off country, writes: "The question of pace making has been exercising the minds of the committee of the League of New South Wales Wheelmen, and as a result, they have prohibited pace making by tandems or triplets in the five-mile scratch race at their next big meeting, which takes place next month (April). Single pacers, however, will be allowed. As a substitute for pacing by the big machines, they have allotted $50 for lap prizes, $2.50 to be given to the leading pacer in each lap. This will probably have the effect of making the races somewhat slower, but they will be infinitely more satisfactory from the spectator's standpoint.."

THE ENGLISH MICHAEL.

The English racing season has been open some time. J. Platt-Betts went for several records last week. He did the standing quarter in 29 3-5 seconds, one-fifth of a second better than the time put up by Borden on the previous Friday. Betts then went for the mile, which he covered in 1:52.4-5, three-fifths of a second better than the previous European record, held by Gibbons Brooks, the last effort being the half mile, which he did in :56 1-5, an improvement of one second on the previous record. This Platt-Betts has come on wonderfully this year, and there can be little doubt that he is about the fastest one we have in England. There are those who maintain that he is not inferior to Michael and that the latter will have to look to his laurels should they ever meet.

IN THE LABOR FIELD

The past week has been rather barren of events in labor affairs. A meeting of the Tinners' union and the bosses was held on Wednesday evening for the purpose of formulating shop rules for the coming year. The rules will be much the same as those of last year, with, probably, one exception, but that is an important one. If adopted, it will reduce the number of apprentices, the proposed provision allowing but one to every six men instead of one to four, as now. This is in line with the action recently taken by the plumbers, and the wise ones say that a general tendency in that direction will develop in many other of the trades unless present conditions materially change.

The carpenters are beginning to experience the beneficial effects of the recent revival in their organization. They let things run along until they were anybody's meat and were thankful of a job at as low as $1.25, and that for good men. Now, a carpenter who is not worth more than $1.25 is no; worth that figure less the dollar, and the craft finally awoke to this fact that they were giving away their labor, all because they were disorganized. Figuratively speaking, they were helping kill each other off. The union was rejuvenated and they are now getting from $1.75 to $2.00 per day and the price is as stiff as a ramrod.

The question of an insurance company conducted by laboring men is a leading topic of interest. It is expected that the insurance commissioner will meet the assembly in regard to the matter in the near future.

The club is standing the depressing effects of warm weather a great deal better than was expected, although the test has hardly been, as yet, such as to be conclusive. The attendance is good, and the new quarters are found to be somewhat cramped. A new location is desired.

WORKMEN'S WAGES INCREASING.

A comparison of the rate of wages at the present day, according to Carroll D. Wright's figures, with those of past decades tend to show that the workingman fares much better now than he did formerly. Mr. Wright states that wages in 1840 averaged $445 a year, or $1.45 a day. In Professor McMaster's "History of the United States" some former figures are given, as follows: Ten representative trades paid in 1840 an average of $1.31 per day, and in 1890 the same ten—excepting plumbers, who are not reported—paid only 80.5 cents a day. In 1784 unskilled labor commanded 25 cents a day, and that was twice as much as was paid for it ten years earlier. On the other hand, the necessities of life have not increased in price proportionately to the advance in wages. While wages in 1890 were nearly double what they were in 1800, the price of beef had increased only from 8 to 11 cents a pound, pork was exactly the same price—11 cents a pound—and other leading articles advanced a fraction, while wheat flour declined from $9 a barrel in 1800 to $5 in 1840 and $6 in 1890. In the same time sugar dropped from 18 cents a pound to 6, and tea from 90 cents a pound to 50, though coffee advanced from 27 cents a pound to 30.

These figures seem to disprove the popular fallacy that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer—unless, indeed, the American artisan is ranked with the former, a position which his brethren in other lands are much inclined to accord him.

LABOR BILLS IN CONGRESS.

Two bills of interest to labor men have been in the hands of congress committees for some time, and last week each of them was advanced a step. The senate committee on education and labor has reported favorably the bill to establish a commission on labor, agriculture and capital for the purpose of investigating those questions and recommending such legislation to congress as may be necessary. The board is to consist of fifteen members. Those reresenting labor are to be selected by the resident upon the recommendation of labor organizations; those representing agriculture, three from the Farmers' alliance and two from the National grange; those representing capital from various manufacturing industries.

The house committee on labor has decided to report favorably the bill introduced by Representative Erdman in relation to arbitration between carriers engaged in interstate commerce and their employes. This measure has been advocated by representatives of a number of labor organizations.

DIVINES ON LABOR ORGANIZATION.

At a recent meeting in New York of the Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor, two eminent divines spoke in approving terms of the purpose of trade unions. One of them was Bishop Potter, who said that nothing had interested him more than the growth of the church's conception of the magnitude of organized labor.

"Organized labor," he continued, "is regarded by many intelligent people as a constant menace to society, but the number who so regard it is happily decreasing. I have had the honor to act during the last nine months as umpire in four important strikes, and if I were asked to say which side was distinguished by the better manners I should unhesitatingly declare in favor of the laboring men. I have listened to both sides, and I thank God for the singular dignity with which the workmen listened to the arguments of their opponents."

Later on Bishop Potter told a story. "I was walking in one of the downtown streets the other day," he said, "and as I passed by two small boys one of them said to the other: 'There goes the "bish." He's no chump.' Now, I don't know what the word chump means, but I am gratified that the boy was able to identify me."

Dr. William S. Rainsford said in part: "No stability is possible as long as the unrightful use of money is endured in this country. Democracy is an experiment. We are proud of the baby, but it isn't yet a man. It is far more important how a man makes his money than how he spends it, and we want more men in this country who are careful of the manner in which they acquire their wealth. The theory that a man who makes a thousand of his fellow creatures suffer during his life is deserving of praise so long as he leaves a million to found a library is rotten rot."

PROFIT IN VILLAGE LIGHTING.

A few years ago the more enterprising people of this town got a notion into their heads that electric lights would be a good thing for it, says the Arlington, Minn., Enterprise, and consequently an electric plant was purchased and installed, but not without considerable opposition on the part of some of the people, who thought that the expense of maintaining the same would be too large for the village to stand. The town was then a good deal smaller than it is today, and the number of consumers of the new light was few. With considerable forebodings for the future the promoters of the new system took hold of the venture and pushed it forward. No one at that time dreamed that the plant would ever prove self-sustaining, much less a money-maker. It is therefore gratifying to learn that not only has the plant proved self-sustaining the past year, but has actually produced a net revenue over and above the expense of running the same.

By reference to the financial statement of the village you will see that this is correct, and while the amount is small, being only $27.98, it is in reality considerably more than this, as there are only eleven months' receipts and twelve months' expenses paid. This is accounted for by the fact that the electric light bills are collected monthly in advance and March of last year was counted in last year's statement and the present month has not been collected or accounted for.

Besides a net profit the city has its street lighting practically free, which is quite an item when it is considered that the same amount of lights at the prices consumers are paying would have cost the villagers considerably over $200 per year, and even at that figure is cheap when it is known that we have the best lighted village in the county, if not in the state.

BENEFITS OF UNIONS.

The argument is often advanced that the union men receive the benefits they enjoy at the expense of the non-union workmen. It might be more correctly stated that such benefits as are derived from organization are secured in spite of the men outside of the fold, and that they share in them at the expense of the union men, says the Labor Leader. The average standard of wages, low as it is, has been secured and maintained through the influence of labor organizations.

Every law in the interest of the laboring classes on the statute books of the various states of the Union and the United States has been placed there through the efforts of the organized workmen, yet the benefits they confer are equally shared by the non-union men. In some instances men are prevented from securing employment by a trade union, but rarely without giving the applicant an opportunity of becoming members, and even if the charge were true in its radical sense there would be no apology to make. Since one of the fundamental principles of trades unionism is fraternity, it must protect its members.

How many organizations under various titles practice identical principles in perhaps a more restricted sense? Suppose an employer who is a K. of P. or an Odd Fellow, as the case may be, wishes to engage the services of one or more individuals in any particular line, and there are as many applicants who are not members of the order as of those who are, how many of the former will be employed? Just as many as there are places for after all the members are given situations. The trade union goes a step further and insists on the applicant becoming a member. Each organization confers specific benefits and uses its own methods in conferring them. Why condemn the trade union?

NEW INVENTIONS PERFECTED.

Wonderful stories are told of two new labor-saving inventions which have just been perfected, each of which is expected to cut a large figure in its respective industry. One of these is a self-feeding platen printing press in operation in an establishment in Cleveland. It prints 10,000 or more cards in an hour, registering to a hair. It does the work of five boys easily. For years inventors have sought to produce such a press and pressmen and feeders have laughed at their efforts. But the machine is certain, and, while it only feeds card board at present, its patentees are carrying on experiments, and it will ultimately feed the thinnest paper. Then the platen press feeder, like the old-style newspaper press feeder, will be unknown in a printing office.

The other invention is also intended to displace employes. One of the pioneer fruit canners of California has just perfected an invention that will revolutionize the can making industry. His machine can be operated by a child. It is fed at one end by sheets of tin of the proper size and it turns out at the other end sixty-four cans of any size every minute. At this rate the machine will produce 230,400 cans in 60 hours. All the joining of seams and soldering are done by parts of the machine. With a number of these machines one factory would be able to supply all the cans on that coast for fruits, vegetables and salmon at one-tenth of the present cost.

SHORT HOURS OF LABOR.

To have shortened the hours of labor during the industrial depression so that all could have been employed, even if they had to be shortened to four a day, would have curtailed the duration of the industrial depression, which has now lasted two and one-half years, to more than six months' duration, says the Bakers' Journal. Without going into the economic influences that bring about industrial stagnation, we will say that one cause of their prolongation is the fact that the people who are out of work cease to consume. This brings on a general stoppage in all lines.

If, however, all were allowed to work even if only a few hours a day they will still consume just in proportion to their earning capacity. This would have kept the wheels of industry turning, first at a slow pace, but never stopping, and gradually increasing in speed until the usual pace was again reached, which under this plan would have been earlier by at least two years than it will be under the present go-as-you-please plan.

It is possible that under a plan that would shorten the hours of labor until all were employed the duration of the depression would have been so short as to pass without notice.

UNIONISM IN ENGLAND.

Factory legislation is thus spoken of by Sidney Webb in "Trades Unionism in England:" "The wage earner does not, like the shopkeeper, merely sell a piece of goods which is carried away; it is his whole life which, for the stated term, he places at the disposal of his employer. What hours he shall work, when and where he shall get his meals, the sanitary conditions of his employment, the safety of the machinery, the atmosphere and temperature to which he is subjected, the fatigue or strains which he endures, the risks of accident or disease which he has to incur—all these are matters no less important to the workman than his wages.

"Yet about the majority of these vital conditions he cannot bargain at all. We see, therefore, that many of the most vital conditions of employment cannot be made subjects of the bargain, while, even about wages, unfettered freedom of individual bargaining places the operative at a serious disadvantage. But there is one important matter which stands midway between the two. In the most typical processes of modern industry individual choice as to the length of the working day is absolutely impossible. Directly we get machinery and division of labor, directly we have more than one person working at the production of an article, all the persons concerned are compelled by the very nature of their occupation to work in concert.

"This means that there must be one uniform rule for the whole establishment. The hours at which the bell must ring must either be left to the automatic decision of the employer, or else settled by collective regulation of some kind or another, to which every workman is compelled to conform. Now, it is important to us to be clear upon one essential fact—namely, that both trades unionism and factory legislation are equally inconsistent with the so-called personal liberty of the individual workman to make his own bargain.

"We cannot understand this question without fully realizing that trade unionism, in substituting for the individual's choice of the employer or workman a general rule binding on all concerned, is just as much founded on the subordination of the individual whim to the deliberate decision of the majority as any law can be. The common middle-class objection to factory legislation—that it interferes with the individual liberty of the operative—springs, in fact, from ignorance of the economic position of the wage earner. We can now see that, far from diminishing personal freedom, factory legislation positively increases the individual liberty and economic independence of the workers subjected to it."

LABOR QUESTION IN COURT.

Judge Clement of the supreme court of New York, in the case of Bandmaster Luolen Conterno against the Musical Mutual Protective union, has handed down a decision which supports the right of a union to control the action of its members. Mr. Conterno denied the right of the union to dictate the employment or dismissal of his employes; so, under the rules of the union, he was called to account. In August he was before the union court, solemnly indicted, found guilty and fined $100. Still continuing "defiant and contumacious," he was again tried in December for having failed as a member of the union to obey an order of its court, and suspended from membership.

Conterno then sued the union for $5000 damages, alleging that he would lose that amount by the enforced violation of his own twelve-months' contract with the non-union men. His counsel obtained a temporary injunction forbidding the union from interfering with the work of the union men in Conterno's band, or taking any action prejudicial to his interests.

Counsel for the union moved for the vacation of the injunction and of the whole suit. The court granted the order recently.

MEMBERS OF UNIONS NEGLIGENT.

Many men in all labor unions never rise to their feet or utter a suggestion when any subject is under discussion; unfortunately this class is usually greatly in the majority, says the St. Louis Journal. Those who are willing to speak, who have ideas and a desire and ability to express them, fall into the habit of taking the lead and their fellows push them to the front and keep them in the offices. The next thing, you hear some of the diffident ones saying that they do not care about attending meetings, as Tom, Dick and Harry run the whole thing—and so on ad finitum. Now, we wish to say to such members: Tom, Dick and Harry "run the thing" because you force them to do so.

Somebody must be alive, if the union is to be kept from dying. You won't act and they are forced to. We say, attend the meetings, do your duty and there will be no room for complaint on the grounds spoken of.

TO THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION WITH THE CELEBRATED REPUBLICAN FLAMBEAU CLUB.

A special vestibuled train of sleeping cars, dining and baggage cars, will be run from Minneapolis and St. Paul to St. Louis, June 13, via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway (the popular "Hedrick route"), to accommodate the Republican Flambeau club and their friends throughout the Northwest.

Leave the Twin Cities afternoon of June 13, and arrive at St. Louis next day. This train will be side-tracked at a point within two blocks of Auditorium convention hall and six minutes walk to the principal hotels. Passengers desiring to do so can occupy the sleepers during the convention at low rates.

The service, in every particular, will be absolutely first-class and all may depend upon thoroughly comfortable and pleasant accommodations, both going and returning, and while occupying the cars in St. Louis.

The Republican Flambeau club is composed of leading business and professional men in Minnesota, and their trips to former national conventions and inaugurations have always done great credit to the Northwest.

The railroad rate is one fare for the round trip. For exact information as to sleeping car rates and accommodations, meals, etc., address Frank P. WINGED SEEDS.

Nature's Good Plan for Distributing Plants.

The terrible eruption of Krakatoa, in the Sunda Strait, in 1883, furnishes the opportunity for illustrating the ease with which nature can replant with vegetable life a district that has become completely desolated, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat. The volcanic eruption was one of the most destructive recorded in history, the loss of human life being estimated to exceed 100,000. Of the thirty-five volcanoes on and near the island of Java, twenty-six were in violent eruption at the same time. The center of disturbance was the island volcano of Krakatoa, which emitted molten lava and burning ashes in such abundance that every living thing, whether animal or vegetable, on the island was destroyed, and an observer from a ship which approached close to the land declared that the whole island was red hot. Four years from the date of the eruption the island was visited by an eminent naturalist, who found that the ashes and lava had cooled to such an extent as to permit the beginnings of vegetable life, and on making a closer examination he discovered that during the brief space of four years nature had stocked the island with 246 different kinds of plants.

There are many seeds which seem, by their formation, to be specially designed for transmission through the air, and of these several are quite as good illustrations as the thistle. The seed of the common dandelion, a plant to be seen on every common, has wings which will carry it away on the slightest breath of air. The wings are very slight filaments, radiating backward from the seed, so that, when the latter finally lodges, it falls tip first, in the most favorable position for taking root. Country children in the United States often find amusement in blowing the seed from the stalk and watching to see how far they will go before falling to the ground, but whenever there is even a moderate breeze the experiment is uniformly a failure, as the fleecy seed fly out of sight and are gone in an instant, and the next season a dandelion springs up in somebody's lawn where the plant was never seen before. The common tumble weed is another example of the winged seed. The plant grows in a woolly bunch, which, when dried, is easily separated from the stalk, and a slight breeze sets the ball rolling over the ground, to scatter its seed wherever it goes.

The seeds of many ferns and microscopic plants are so constructed as to be readily lifted and carried away by the wind, while some of considerable size are provided with an elaborate arrangement for aerial transporation. The common maple is an example of the last kind, for projecting from its large head is a membrane closely resembling in size, shape and general appearance the wing of the locust. When the seed is separated from the tree, even if the air be quite still, it does not fall directly to the earth, but by its peculiar construction, acquires in falling a spiral motion that takes it several feet from beneath the starting point, and when a brisk breeze is blowing one of these winged seeds has been known to twirl through the air for six miles before it sank to the ground, there to germinate and start a maple grove.

CYPRESS GROWS SLOW.

The cypress is a notoriously slow-growing tree, and its wood is just as notoriously durable. It is capable of not only resisting the action of the weather in a manner totally different to all other woods, but is wholly uninfluenced by immersion in water over a long period of years. It has many curious chemical properties, which hold its fibers and other constituents together so indissolubly that the ordinary changes which break down the tissue of ordinary woods are in cypress wholly resisted, says the New York Mail and Express.

Instances are known where the wood of the cypress has endured for more than 1000 years, leaving it still in a solid condition, subject only to the attrition of the elements, such as the gradual wearing away one sees in exposed rocks. In the lower valley of the Mississippi a species of cypress is extremely abundant. And in New Orleans lately, while some men were excavating a trench, a cypress stockade was found which was erected in 1730 by the French as a protection against the Indians. Some of the pieces measured 21 inches in width, with a thickness of about 12 inches, and, though it had been buried for so many years, it was in perfect condition when exhumed, even the total marks being still clearly visible.

By a series of experiments extending over many years, it has found that the cypress wood endures the varying conditions of greenhouses better than any other wood, greenhouses exposed to all the vicissitudes of heat, moisture and changes of temperature show the cypress timber used in their construction to be practically unchanged after more than fifty years of use; and, being sufficiently tough for the purpose, it is probable it will come more generally into use for building where a wood of great resistance is required. Many old doors made by the early Spaniards in America are still as serviceable as ever, although exposed to a most trying climate.

SOME INSURANCE RISKS.

Washington Star: A well-known insurance broker said, in speaking of fire insurance risks: "Contrary to the general ideas, insurance companies would rather take a risk on a powder magazine or a powder manufactory than on an ice house. In the case of a powder manufactory there is the greatest care taken by those who work in it or who visit it. There is no need of signs hanging about warning persons not to smoke, for they would never run the risk of entering with a cigar or pipe, even if the rules of the place allowed it. Now, with ice houses it is different. Go into any of them and you will find the no-smoking signs in plenty. There is but little care, however, for many people think such places will not burn. They do burn, however, and the result is the insurance companies charge the higher risk on ice house property."

AS OLD AS EGYPT.

Coptic the most Ancient Christian Ritual.

"Gone over to the Copts!" This short phrase has been going the rounds of the press lately anent another change in the very elastic belief of Pere Hyacinthe Loyson, ex-Roman Catholic, ex-priest, and ex-bachelor, and it rather sets people to wondering what the essential elements of this religion are that Pere Hyacinthe has "gone over" to, for the general public has but a hazy idea of it, says the New York Mail and Express.

The Copts are the descendants of that old, old race on the banks of the Nile—the Egyptians. The history of the Copts in Egypt is the history of the land itself from St. Mark to the Arabic conquest. Gradually, as the centuries passed, they have dwindled in numbers from various causes until now they are computed to have in Egypt only about 150,000, somewhat more than a fifteenth of the entire population, but they are still the principal sect of Christians in the valley of the Nile, and they claim that their ritual is the most ancient Christian ritual in existence.

The monophysites, or Coptic Christians, deny the doctrine of two natures in Christ, and insist that after the incarnation He had but a single nature, that of the incarnate word.

The head of the Coptic church is styled the patriarch of Alexandria, with headquarters at Cairo. He is selected from among the monks of the Coptic convent of St. Anchony, on the gulf of Suez, and holds office for life. The other rulers of the church are thirteen bishops, archpriests, priests and deacons. Baptism is practiced and the rite is performed by dipping in water three times during the early weeks of babyhood, for male children forty days after birth and female fifty.

Their festival days are those familiar to all Christendom, and they correspond in season very closely to those of the Western church—the nativity and baptism occurring in January and the resurrection, ascension, Pentecost, etc., in April, May and June.

All Copts in good religious standing make yearly pilgrimages to the convent in Jerusalem, and are accorded a hearty welcome by the 100 or more Copts who are resident there. In controversy they are known as Jacobites, as they were first given a permanent organization by Jacobus Barodaeus, bishop of Odessa, in 541 A. D.

PICTURESQUE JAPS.

The Japanese are essentially picturesque, says the Louisville Times. The last evidence of the fact is borne home to us through their method of launching a ship. The utmost that Americans and English have essayed to do is to break a bottle of wine over the bows. With true poetry, the Japanese make something very different of the event. Recently the Fuji was launched at Blackwall, and Mme Raito, wife of the Japanese minister, was chosen for the honor. At the appointed hour a silver knife was put into her hand, and with it she cut the cord of twisted red and white silk that held the vessel in check. At the moment a cage-like structure that hung over the bows opened forth a number of pigeons, and with them a cloud of paper squares, showing the national colors. As they fell some sprinkled the bows and some clung to the sides, covering her, so to speak, with the emblem for which she is to do battle.

VOLCANIC DUST.

Volcanic dust is so light that it will float in the air for a long time, and may often be carried to a distance that in the light of our ordinary knowledge seems incredible, says the Cleveland World. Passengers on a ship nearly 900 miles from a volcano found dust that had been carried through the air by currents, and when a settled on vessel in sufficient quantity to be easily gathered and examined. Microscopic investigation fixed the substance as positively volcanic. It is somewhat in the nature of glass or a vitrified substance, very strongly resembling it. In Texas, Nebraska and various parts of the West, there are enormous deposits of volcanic ashes. Just where this came from is a source of much speculation, and scientists are trying to fix the locality whence it proceeded. Of course, it is not impossible that there may have been volcanoes in some portions of our land, but that the site of them is obscured by ordinary earth, vegetable growth and other substances which have resolved themselves into the usual soil of such localities.

GOT WHAT HE WANTED.

An Englishman who came over to this country a short time ago, bringing letters to a number of society people, was shortly after his arrival was invited to dinner by a well-known New Yorker and his wife, says the New York Journal. In replying to the invitation, which he accepted, he added:

"Permit me to say that I always drink St. Julien claret."

On the night of the dinner, as he took his seat at the table, he saw that a bottle of the wine that he had named stood beside his glasses. At the proper time red wine from a decanter was served to the others at the table, whereupon the Britisher turned to his host and said:

"May I inquire what that is that you are drinking."

"Certainly," was the answer. "It is chateau of 18—," mentioning something particularly choice. "Of course, I gave you what you asked for, but I would not think of offering such an ordinary wine to my other guests."

QUITE A DIFFERENCE.

Washington Star: "What's the matter, William?" said the wealthy householder. "Anything gone wrong?"

"Not exactly gone wrong, sir; but I want a new understanding."

"What about?"

"My pay, sir."

"Why, you get very good wages for a cook."

"Yes, sir. They does very well for a cook, sir. But I overheared you when you were talking to your friends, sir. You called me your chef."

"Well, you ought to be complimented."

"Yes, sir. I'm complimented. But business is business. I can't be a chef for less than $3000 a year. Wages is all right for a cook, but a chef has to have a salary."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by William C. Sargent and Rhoble L. Sargent, his wife, mortgagors, to Alexander Macrae, mortgagee, dated the 23rd day of October, 1894, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of December, 1894, at 3:50 o'clock p. m., in Book 127 of mortgages, page 340, and which said mortgage and the debts thereby secured were duly assigned by said Alexander Macrae to the undersigned Mary D. Newton, who is now the owner and holder thereof, by a written assignment dated the 19th day of December, 1894, and duly recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 4th day of January, 1895, at 8:40 o'clock a. m. in Book 107 of mortgages on page 177.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

Saturday, May 23, the Duluth High School Athletic association will hold its annual field day, and a royal time is expected, for there is a large and excellent list of events and there are entries in each event which will insure some splendid contests. The day will open at 2 o'clock at the old driving park grounds at Woodland, and the track has been fitted up in a manner which will insure good races. The events next Saturday will be preparatory to the joint field day at Superior June 6, when the two highest men in each event at Duluth will go over to worry the boys from Superior.

The starter will be Dr. McNulty, the judges Dr. Richardson and Frank Thompson, and A. S. Ames will be timekeeper. The boys who have already entered are all working hard, and the developments from this work augur well for the success of the field day. There are twenty events in all, and the list is well selected. The events are as follows:

Fifty-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, quarter-mile dash, half-mile run, mile run; 120-yard hurdle, 220-yard hurdle; quarter-mile bicycle, half-mile bicycle, mile bicycle, two-mile bicycle; quarter-mile walk, half-mile walk; pole vault, running high jump, running broad jump, putting 12-pound shot, putting 12-pound hammer, hitch kick.

The entries close Monday night, and they are already well filled up. There will be three prizes in every event, first, second and third, all of merchandise. Among those who will go into the runs are Will Morrison, E. Gridley, Ralph Miller, James Shannon, Joseph Lloyd, Robert Goodmanson, McGinnis. In the mile and half-mile runs Shannon, Lloyd and Miller will be principally interested. Paul Clarkson, E. Gridley, Walter Murphy, Guy Ireland and Fred Farmer are among the principal entries for the bicycle races. In the weights Arthur Richardson, Paul Clarkson and Walter Lafans are the principal contestants, while for the pole vault Clarkson, Miller and Applehagen are interested.

In the hurdles Morrison, Gridley and McGinnis will try conclusions, while Courtland Holliday seems to have the walks all to himself. Gridley, Miller and Lafans will do most of the kicking—high kicking, that is; while Miller, Gridley, Morrison and Lafans will try the high jump, Morrison and Lafans are in the broad jump.

At Superior, in addition to the above, there will be two tennis courts, the singles and doubles. Richard Bailey, E. Gridley, Ralph Davis, Chase and Walter Lafans will take care of Duluth in tennis.

Jimmy Murphy, the well-known lightweight pugilist, is forming an athletic club, which will have as its object the promotion of clean, wholesome sport. Murphy will give instructions in all branches of sport, particularly in boxing, fencing, wrestling, etc., and from time to time he will give entertainments in which his pupils will take part. His club will be located on the top floor of the Howard building on Michigan street, just east of Lake avenue, where there is a spacious hall admirably adapted for a gymnasium or for club purposes.

The first entertainment will be given May 25, a week from Monday night, and the program will include a number of bouts between local talent, and in the course of which Murphy will probably go on for a few friendly rounds with some good man. Murphy has long had in mind the formation of such a club, and he hopes to make it a permanent institution by pursuing a policy which will give it the support of all classes.

As an afterclap of last winter's fight in the snowy woods of Carlton county, Jimmie Murphy has sued George Esh for $65, which he claims is due him from the fight. He claims that Esh, who was the ostensible manager of the fight, gobbled all the receipts and refused to give them up.

Today and tomorrow the Duluth Baseball club will play the Hamm's Export nine, of St. Paul. McDonogh and Cullen will pitch for the beer nine and Burns and King will catch. McCarthy and Jules Conrad will pitch for Duluth and Connors will catch. Chippewa Falls will play here May 23 and 24, and the Marquette club June 6 and 7.

It seems to be the general opinion among prominent Gotham attorneys that Corbett and Fitzsimmons, if they so desired, and so far as the present law is concerned, could fight for the heavyweight championship in New York state after Sept. 1, the date when the new law goes into effect. The law reads as follows:

An act to amend the penal code in relation to prize fighting and sparring exhibitions:

Section 1. A person who, within this state, engages in, instigates, aids, encourages or does any act to further a contention, or fight, without weapons, between two or more persons, or a fight commonly called a ring or prize fight; either within or without the state, or who engages in a public or private sparring exhibition, with or without gloves, within the state, at which an admission fee is charged or received, either directly or indirectly, or who sends or publishes a challenge or acceptance of a challenge for such a contention, exhibition or fight, or carries or delivers such a challenge or acceptance, or trains or assists any person in training or preparing for a contention, exhibition or fight, is guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, however, that sparring exhibitions with gloves of not less than five ounces each in weight may be held by a domestic incorporated athletic association in a building occupied by it for at least one year under a lease, or in a building owned and occupied by such association.

The attorneys say that unless the law was changed Corbett and Fitzsimmons could meet with five-ounce gloves before a club incorporated as provided for by the new law. The question of right of police authorities to enter such clubs, except as guests, or to attempt to stop a glove contest when in their discretion it resembles a prize fight, is disputed, some holding that such access can only be legally procured upon a warrant, which would be difficult to obtain, in view of the fact that it can not be shown that a violation of the law is contemplated. The absence of any clause limiting glove contests to a stipulated number of rounds leaves a wide opening.

Among the prominent attorneys who have given an opinion to that effect are Frederic Coudert, of the Venezuelan commission; Frederick B. House, William F. Howe, E. M. Friend, Everett Caldwell, assistant district attorney of Brooklyn; Francis M. Scott, corporation counsel of New York, and others. Attorney Caldwell says: "I believe, after a casual glance at the amended section, that Corbett and Fitzsimmons, Maher, Slavin or any two men, may spar with gloves of not less than five ounces in any incorporated athletic association which has previously complied with all of the provisions of the section. In fact, there is no question of the legality of this interpretation, as the law is very plain. It is also clear that any two men can box just as many rounds as they care to in any one of these incorporated clubs, provided that their hands are incased in five-ounce gloves. I venture to say that no police officer would have a right to enter one of these clubs without a warrant."

Even if the New York law does not permit holding prize fights, it is doubtful if Corbett and Fitzsimmons could ever fight in that state. Public sentiment would be such in regard to the big fight that it would be impossible to pull the fight off, even if it were necessary to enact a new law to prevent it. Look how Fitzsimmons and Corbett and Maher and Fitzsimmons were hounded from one state to another, and even driven almost from off the face of the country. Even Mexico, with all its brutal fights, caught the contagion, and it was only with extreme difficulty, entailing considerable loss, that the fight was finally pulled off in the land of the Matador and cactus. Now no one for a minute supposes that the Mexicans objected to the fight on principle. They only did so because the governors of different states in this country had made it fashionable to pursue the fighters. That was all.

There is great inconsistency, in the way law rises in the United States to prevent a fight between exhibitions and Corbett, say, and "winks the other eye," while Hall and Choynski or any other of the lesser lights battle in much more brutal fashion. The offense does not seem to lie in the fact that it is a prize fight but that it attracts public attention. In a nutshell a big fight gives certain people always on the lookout for notoriety a chance, which they never fail to take. For instance Gardner and Tommy Dixon are scheduled to fight and do fight within a few miles of Kansas City. The fight is heralded in advance in all the newspapers. It comes off without a protest from anybody. The man fight to a finish. Does the Ministers' Alliance meet beforehand and take steps to prevent the fight? Not a bit of it. But just for a minute suppose that Corbett and Fitzsimmons should be scheduled to fight in Kansas City. How soon would it be before Governor Stone would issue an order that the law must be obeyed, how soon would the clergy of the city in indignation call for the preservation of the fair name of Kansas City? Innumerable texts for sermons would be evolved from the fact that the men were to fight here and the whole city would be in a ferment. And yet both events would be prize fights, one would not be, could not be more brutal than the other. Laying aside all question of the rightness or wrongness of prize fights, is not there great inconsistency in the way they are treated by the people who decry them?

* * *

It is definitely settled now that Bob Fitzsimmons' manager, Martin Julian, will leave for England next week. While abroad he will book Fitzsimmons at the principal theaters and attend to his contemplated tour in general. There is a well-defined rumor around the hotels that while Fitzsimmons is waiting to hear from Julian he will probably see Corbett and talk with him about their prospective meeting. It is feared that if Fitzsimmons does this that the meeting will result in something like a clash and that blows will be exchanged. While neither have any love for each other, it is possible that Fitzsimmons will avoid any rough-and-tumble scrap, realizing that it will hurt him in many ways.

When asked if he would consent to fight Corbett now that Slavin and Maher are to fight, he said: "Maybe I will and maybe I won't. I'll tell you better, perhaps, next week."

At the February congress of the national Trotting association, in New York, numerous changes were made in the rules, some of these quite radical.

The rules of trotting never recognized the right to lay up a heat, but it has been the practice for drivers to lay up heats at their own sweet will, so long as they could escape the charge of "throwing" races. The argument was always ready when a heat was palpably thrown away, or a horse plainly "pulled," that by so doing the horse's chance of ultimately winning the race was improved. This was not so serious when all betting was through auction pools on the result of the race, but in time the bookmaker and the pari-mutuel system came, with betting on heats. The auction pools were available only for the heavy bettor, the "rank and file" of followers of the tracter who liked to back their opinions, naturally did it through the books and mutuals, operating solely on heats.

To permit drivers to lay up heats at will in races on which betting on heats was permitted was an abuse and an opportunity for robbing with impunity that became a scandal and a reproach. Repeatedly have horses been seen winning one or two heats so easily as to make them odds-on favorites for the next heat, then finish in the rank one heat, and finally go on and win the race.

It was none too soon that the February congress adopted the following rules on this subject:

"Every heat in a race must be contested by every horse in the race; an honest endeavor on the part of every driver to win. (This shall not be construed to mean that when a horse is hopelessly beaten or from a bad start or other unavoidable cause the chances to win are destroyed, that the driver must force the horse to his utmost capacity, but to do away as far as possible with the pernicious practice of laying up heats.) Should a driver be found guilty of laying up a heat, he shall be fined, suspended or expelled."

Many horsemen fear that this rule will prove a dead letter, because the idea has so long prevailed that it is a driver's right to please himself in these matters that the violation of the rule will be connived at by the judges generally. There is good ground for these apprehensions, no doubt, but a point was at least gained for honest racing when the rules were made to expressly forbid this indefensible custom. Hereafter the driver who practices "monkey work" will know that he is always taking the risk of "running up against" a judge, with the perception, honesty and courage to do his duty.

There is a certain class of horsemen not more common on the turf perhaps than in the sale business, who think it smart to boast of their own smart rascality. These fellows conceive it to be clever to boast of the jobs they have engineered, and the races they have sold out, and, of course, in nine cases out of ten, the alleged jobs are mythical. There are others, drivers and owners, who are shallow enough to think it more creditable to say that they pulled, or caused to be pulled, their horses, rather than acknowledge defeat.

This talk promiscuously and ostentatiously uttered, is repeated and believed by thousands of people to the great scandal of racing, and is used as ammunition by the enemies of the turf. For the benefit of the people who purvey this sort of injurious report, the last trotting congress adopted this sensible rule:

"Should a driver publicly state that he purposely lost a race he shall be fined, suspended or expelled; should an owner state that he gave orders to the driver of his horse not to win a race, he shall be expelled, on proof before the proper tribunal."

These two rules in themselves, if only properly enforced, would do much to clear the trotting turf of evil report, and it will be interesting to note with what degree of respect and zeal they are observed by trotting officials when the hour of action arrives.

NOTHING NEW.

M. Bouniceau-Gesmen has written a big book, stuffed with erudition, to prove that the servants of the good old times were not better than those of the present, says the New York Times. If there be consolation in his success, enjoy it. The world does not change much; there is a law of gravitation in psychology as in physics. Bricklayers work like slaves of Thebes and Nineveh, poets recite at your table their verses which they say are immortal, bakers cook their bread in ovens as in the days of Abrahim and Gudea, members of the National Guard wear on their helmets the plumes that frightened the child Astyanax in the arms of the nurse with the beautiful girdle, and our civil laws were drawn up when Caesar Justinian made a code of them. We have in candescent lamp and hope for gas in the elevated railway trains, but the janitor's wife told the milkman yesterday morning that her son, who is too studious, studied his Latin lesson, when the lights went out, in the pile clearness of the coals burning on the hearth, and that is how Jacques Amyot read Plutarch.

SHE CONVERTED DIAZ.

If it had not been for Miss Alice Tucker, the Rev. Mr. Diaz would probably not have been subjected to his recent unpleasant experience in Cuba. For it was to Miss Tucker that the Rev. Mr. Diaz owed the conversion to those religious views which are reported to have made him a person not pleasing to the Spanish authorities in Cuba, says the New York Journal.

When Mr. Diaz was a young man he came to America and stopped at a Brooklyn hotel. The balmy climate of Brooklyn did not agree with him, and he fell ill of pneumonia. In the same hotel lived Miss Alice Tucker. When she heard that a friendless young man lay dying and that he was not only alone, but without religion, she armed herself with a Testament and went to read with him quite unmindful of the fact that he could not understand her. After her purpose had been explained to him, he became sufficiently interested in it to buy a Spanish Testament, and to read it. From this time his conversion to evangelical Christianity was dated.

WHY IT WAS INCREDIBLE.

Everyone knows that Trieste forms a part of the "unredeemed Italy" which still belongs to Austria, but sighs to become a part of her own country, says Harper's Weekly. At a church in that city a traveler was shown a large number of votive offerings, and among them a silver mouse, which had been presented by a lady whose house was horribly infested with such vermin. After this gift to the Madonna the nuisance entirely disappeared.

"Do you believe that?" inquired the skeptical traveler.

"Of course not," replied the sacristan, "or we would have made a silver Austrian long ago."

STETSON

Dead Showman's Wife Follows Him to the Grave Quickly.

She Was a Beautiful Woman and Was Known Most Everywhere.

A circle of honest friends which girdles America will be shocked to hear of the sudden death of Kate Stokes-Stetson, the beautiful creature who married John Stetson, the Boston manager of the Globe theater, says the Chicago Daily News.

Mrs. Stetson was ardently attached to her peculiar husband and grieved with such sincere heartache that the nervous prostration following his demise a short time ago finally resulted in death this morning in Boston.

Kate Stokes was one of the most dashing and brilliantly handsome women in America. She began her career as a bareback circus rider of the most daring accomplishments and grace. Her father used to run the Stokes amphitheater over on Clinton street here in Chicago, and bewitching Kate was the joy of impressionable youth and bald searchers after novel sensation. She would run into the ring like a blaze of superb loveliness, toss her hair and leap to the horse's bare back with as sure a foot as Steve Brodie's. She smiled and grew rosy in the most bewildering fashion.

When Kate grew into womanhood she was taken away from the sawdust ring and placed in a boarding school, where her beauty and various escapades brought her into romantic view of an interested coterie which had never reveled in her public exhibitions of marvelous pluck.

Just when the rumor that Stetson would marry Vernona Jarbeau was rife, Kate Stokes appeared in New York, chaperoned by her comely mother, and the two were frequent guests at John Stetson's Fifth Avenue theater. Without more than the usual financial warning in quiet breach of promise cases, came the announcement of the probable marriage of pretty Miss Stokes to John Stetson.

LIVED LIKE A PRINCESS.

She married Stetson, and the manager squandered his money on his lovely wife. There was between them that unemotional, placid sort of sulky devotion sometimes observable in compatibly mated pairs in peasantry or bourgeois couples. Stetson permitted Kate all sorts of liberties and Kate took them neither greedily or indifferently, but as due, with no particular return of thanks, and her affection for John was deep rooted and big hearted.

She left the stage immediately upon her marriage and never returned, though once in a while she threatened it. John laughed in his large, bearish way, and Kate gave it up.

In winter she was a wonderfully active creature, always out, wrapped from her lovely black head to her tiny feet in costly furs. She would walk leisurely and seemingly unconscious of the sensation her beauty created wherever she chose to wander. She had Russian vehicles, toboggan sleds, horses of her own selection, and she was the most daring and accomplished rider on the Back bay and carried terror to timid winter drivers in Central park and on the tally-ho roads in New York.

In summer she had one of the triggest steam and sail yachts among Boston craft, and often went on long cruises alone with her crew and a few congenial spirits. Her sailor suits were wonderfully swagger affairs, usually imported and always original and immensely fetching. Sometimes in her hunting trips and long sails about in strange waters she would arm herself with a piquant brace of pistols set in jewels and stuck in a leather belt studded with gold and made more amusingly terrific by a jeweled dagger showing its hilt and sheath tip.

Her fairy like shaped feet and her footgear occupied shelves enough to fit up a good sized shop. Her jewels were fabulous in price and once in a while exceptional in value. She owned one or two of the world's most celebrated gems and had coronets, necklaces and a bundle of garter buckles not equaled by the treasures of any other Boston dame's private casket.

When Stetson's wealth and the beauty of his wife had grown into great notoriety John thought himself of society and made a masse shot to seat himself and the buxom Kate in the heart of Back bay aristocracy. But a silent thunderbolt

AFIELD and AFLOAT.

The fishing season opened May 1, but with the exception of a few days last week the weather has been against the anglers. The heavy rains have made of the little trout rocks rushing, raging rivers of muddy waters, choked with logs and driftwood, and it will take a couple of weeks of dry weather to reduce them to their usual size and condition. Some of the anglers who were out last week claim good catches, some large ones, but as yet most of the trout fishing has been done on the Wisconsin streams. The bass fishing at Deerwood is good, and improving every week. Good fishing is reported from the lakes near Duluth and upon the range. A number of fishing enthusiasts will leave today for favorite trout streams, and several more are only waiting for the water to go down when they will hie them away to streams well known of yore.

We have frequently read of its having rained fish in different parts of the country, showers of fish entirely foreign to the locality where they fell having covered quite an extent of country, so deep that the farmers gathered them up by the wagon load and spread them on their fields for a fertilizer, but just how and why it rained fish has not been explained to our satisfaction. During the recent heavy rains we had occasion to make some investigations, and our conclusion is that when it rains fish of the salmon family, at least, it comes about in this way: The salmon are great jumpers and climbers, as is well known, so why can't they just swim, climb or jump up the sheets of water that pour down when it rains like it did this week, and carried by the winds, come down in some other locality when the water in the clouds gives out. This may explain, also, how the inland lakes were stocked with fish in the first place, and why some trout streams suddenly run dry of fish.

The zealous advocates of game protection have won a signal triumph in the United States supreme court, to which was appealed a case from the Connecticut supreme court. The United States court has affirmed that it is constitutional to allow the killing of and the acquiring of property rights in game, and yet prohibiting its shipment out of the state. That the state has the right to regulate the killing of game within its limits and prohibit the export of the game so killed. That a state may accord its own citizens certain privileges and yet deny the same to citizens of other states. That the power of the state to control the killing of game within its borders being admitted, the commercial rights of that game could be restricted, were not subject to the United States constitution, and restriction of its shipment was part of the grant of property right thereto. This decision of the highest tribunal puts an end to the pot hunter and game dealer, at whose doors are laid so many crimes of ruthless slaughter in and out of season. Being deprived of a market and transportation facilities, there will be nothing for the pot hunter to do now but go to work and earn his living in an honest manner.

The game and fish commission have had their hands full this season. During the first few days of this month they secured twenty-seven convictions for illegal fishing with nets. Deputy Warden Greene has put a stop to the illegal netting on the St. Louis and Cloquet rivers, and he proposes to see that it is kept stopped.

Some time ago the Minnesota Society for the Protection of Dogs was organized in St. Paul by a number of Twin City dog owners, and the membership is rolling up into the hundreds. William C. Sargent, of Duluth, was elected vice president for the Sixth congressional district. The chief object of the society is to protect dogs of value from loss by theft. Dogs of members of the association can be registered and tags issued to make their owners membership known, and in case they are stolen or detained every member of the society is posted at once, and instead of trying to recover his dog single handed, and prosecute the thief, the owner has the assistance of every member of the society in every part of the state, and the society's detectives and attorneys will take a hand, and it will go pretty hard with the rascals who yearly make a practice of stealing valuable field dogs just as the hunting season opens.

The Minnesota game and fish commission not only believes in protecting game birds, but in propagation as well. Their latest scheme is to introduce Mongolian pheasants into the woods of the northern part of the state, restricting their slaughter until 1900. J. J. Hill has turned loose twelve pairs of these birds, which were secured in Oregon, on his farm at North Oaks. The experiment is in charge of Manager S. I. Hutchinson, of the commission, and its success will be watched with interest. But if any of these birds find their way up into this neck of the woods it is to be hoped that they will not learn to turn white in winter time. The good old American partridge is plenty hard enough to find when he don't want to be seen.

The fifth annual report of the state game and fish commission has been printed and distributed by Warden S. F. Fullerton. The report is the best of its kind yet issued, concise, practical and reasonable in its suggestions. The work accomplished by Mr. Fullerton and his efficient deputies during the short time he has held the office has been of more lasting benefit than all the work of all his predecessors. The appropriation at the disposal of the commission to carry on the work of enforcing the laws and looking after the various branches of the work that comes under their supervision is altogether too small and some of the most important branches suffer accordingly. Instead of $15,000 the annual appropriation should be at least $25,000.

Early in the week Messrs. W. D. Lowry, G. C. Main and Alexander Campbell, of Minneapolis, and L. S. Tuttle, of Oshkosh, went up on the Mesaba range in a private car on a business trip, but they were well provided with fishing tackle. When they came back they reported an enjoyable time and had some great black bass stories to tell, but they denied the morning blunderbuss' story that they had been out on a hunting expedition at this season of the year, and in the face of the vigilant game wardens. Evidently the fish and snake editor of the News Tribune is out of his proper element. Stick to the shears and paste pot, old boy.

If reports are correct, one of the interesting features of the North Dakota Sportsmen's association tournament, to be held at Fargo in June, will be a friendly contest at the traps between Mrs. Shattuck, of the Minneapolis Gun club, and Mrs. Dr. Day, of the Central Gun club of this city. Here is a suggestion that if the Dakota sportsmen would postpone their tournament until prairie chickens are ripe, the number of participants in their contests from outside the state would be much larger.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

What R. G. Dun & Co. See in the Market.

New York, May 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade, which issued today, says: It is now the middle of May, too late for business changes materially, until the prospects of coming crops are assured, and definite shape has been given to the presidential contest by the conventions. Until the future is more clear there is a prudent disinclination to produce much beyond orders, or to order beyond immediate and certain needs. If this waiting spirit prevails two months longer it will crowd into the last half of the year an enormous business, if the outlook then is good. For the present there is less business, on the whole, than a year ago, though in some branches more, and the delay following months of depression is to many too trying and causes numerous failures.

An attempt was made to manufacture excitement in cotton out of the government report, but the price closed exactly as it began the week, and the port receipts have been actually larger than last year. All current arguments based on the assumption that the quantity used in manufacture has been, or is now, at a maximum rate is disproved by the closing of many mills for want of demand and the general effort to reduce wages, which has caused some strikes. Wheat is unchanged, in spite of all rumors and the Atlantic exports, flour included, which were last year greater than it was for two years, 3,059,484 bushels against 2,917,365 received, have this year been only half as large, 1,906,414 bushels exported against 4,079,239 Western receipts.

The most fortunate of the chief industries at present is the boot and shoe trade, which is not only shipping to customers within 6 per cent of the largest number of cases ever forwarded in the first half of May, but it is getting many new orders, and there are many urgent requests to anticipate orders for June and July delivery, indicating that distribution to consumers has much outrun expectations.

The iron and steel industry, on the other hand, is pronounced as dull as it ever has been in its whole history at Pittsburg, in part, because of doubt about the maintenance of prices recently advanced, and the demand is so small that, in spite of orders, prices average lower for the week. Bessemer pig is no higher than it was three months ago, while No. 1 is also lower, $12.50 at New York. The attempt to hold common bar iron at 1.2 cents leads many large consumers to prefer steel bars, which sell at 1.1 cents, and prices of nails are expected to be reduced because of scanty demand. There is much promise for future structural work, but orders are deferred.

Sales of wool have been a little larger than last week, 3,543,200 pounds at the three chief markets, but for two weeks only 6,539,200 pounds against over 11,000,000 pounds last year and in 1892. The large drives in clothing have cleared out stocks of some ready-made concerns, but check new business, and the general disposition is to postpone orders as far as possible.

Failures for the week have been 224 in the United States, against 211 last year, and 33 in Canada against 37 last year.

WHAT BRADSTREET SAYS.

New York, May 16.—Bradstreet's today says: General trade throughout the country remains quiet, wholesale merchants continue conservative and the distribution of general merchandise is almost of a hand-to-mouth character. South and Southwest business remains dull and featureless and unchanged from last week. At larger Eastern centers travelers report they are preparing to start out, but unfavorable features in recent weeks with respect to cotton and woolen and steel and iron industries show no change. Collections in most directions continue unsatisfactory.

Concessions have been made in prices of wool, and manufacturers of cotton goods complain that prices are below parity with the cost of raw material. Tobacco is depressed by the same embarrassments and quotations are weaker, except for Havana. Demand for iron and steel is disappointing, and quotations for Bessemer pig have been shaded further. Unseasonable weather has had an unfavorable influence on sales of clothing and other staples, while labor disturbances at some Western cities have checked demand. Request for lumber is smaller than anticipated, and dry weather at the South has emphasized the dullness of last week.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week amount to 1,827,000 bushels, against 1,882,000 bushels last week, 2,397,000 bushels in the corresponding week one year ago, 2,420,000 bushels two years ago, and as compared with 3,885,000 bushels in the like week in 1893.

The recent average weekly commercial death rate is continued, with a total of 265 business failures throughout the United States this week, against 267 last week, 210 in the week one year ago, 186 in the corresponding week of 1894, and as compared with 255 in the like week in May, 1893. There are 34 business failures reported throughout the Canadian Dominion this week; last week the total was 38 and in the week one year ago it was 28.

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE A MILLIONAIRE?

Was asked the other day of a rich man. "I never thought of that," he replied, "but now that you speak of it, I believe I am no better off, certainly no happier, than when I didn't have a dollar to my name and had to work from daylight to dark. I wore a good suit of clothes then, and I only wear one suit now. I relished three meals a day then a good deal more than I do three meals a day now. I had fewer cares; I slept better, and I may add generally that I believe that I was far happier than I have been many times since I became a millionaire."

Lord Bacon was about right when he said that money was "like muck—not much use unless spread."

That's what the Metropolitan Life Insurance company is doing —spreading money. It is spreading it this year among 60,000 families, the great bulk of whom would have nothing but for industrial insurance. It paid to its beneficiaries last year over $6,500,000.

It has a branch office in this city, where full information concerning its operations may be had.

Natives of Alabama are called "Lizards," from the abundance of these creatures along the streams.

Mississippians are called "Tadpoles," the ancient heraldic device of France being "Three Toads Erect Saltant."

Alabama was long ago nicknamed the "Cotton state," being centrally located in the cotton belt of the South.

Rhode Island over 100 years ago was called "Little Rhody," an allusion to the diminutive size of this commonwealth.

West Virginia, in allusion to its mountainous territory, has not been inaptly denominated "The Switzerland of America."

Texas has been aptly denominated the "Lone Star state," from the appearance of a single star in the arms of that commonwealth.

Maine is called the "Lumber state," or "Pine Tree state," from the character of its leading industry, the name being self-explanatory.

Colorado has always been called the "Centennial state," from the fact of its admission into the Union in the centennial year of our national history.

Mississippi has been called the "Bayou state," from the long stretches of almost stagnant water, backwater of the Mississippi river, found within the limits of the state.

Tennesseeans are "Butternuts," from the color of the clothing worn by the Tennessee volunteers during the civil war. They have also been called "Whelps" and "Mudheads."

Ohio was early called the "Buckeye state," the name being derived from the presence of great forests of buckeye trees when the country was first invaded by the whites.

California has been named the "Golden state," from the mines of precious metal discovered in 1848, which have since proved a source of enormous riches to that commonwealth.

Georgia brings the complimentary sobriquet of the "Empire State of the South," from the fact of its natural wealth and superior advantages in industrial and manufacturing lines.

Tennessee is the "Volunteer state," the name being acquired during the Seminole war, when a large number of volunteers went forward from Tennessee to take part in the struggle.

Kansas has been nicknamed the "Garden of the West," the productiveness of the soil, the many water courses offering unusual facilities for irrigation probably inspired the name.

Michigan has been called the "Lake state," for an obvious reason. It is better known as the "Wolverine state," from the former presence of great numbers of these animals in its forests.

Arkansas, a great many years ago, was nicknamed the "Bear state," from the abundance of bears in the mountainous districts. For over forty years Arkansas had almost a monopoly of the bear stories of this country.

South Carolinans are "Weasles," "Sand Hillers" and "Rice Birds;" the first an allusion to the thinness of the early natives; the second, to their place of residence; the third, to a common crop and bird which feeds on it.

South Carolina is called the "Palmetto state," either from the abundance of that plant, which grows to great perfection in its semi-tropical climate, or from the appearance of a representation of the palmetto in the state arms.

Iowa almost from the date of its admission has been called the "Hawkeye state. Hawkeye was the name of a noted Indian chief who, in the early days, caused no little trouble along the Western border of American civilization.

Indiana is called the "Hoosier state." The origin of the word hoosier is veiled in obscurity, but the most reasonable conjecture is that it was derived from the word "husher," formerly used in the Western states to indicate an overbearing person or bully.

North Carolina in colonial days was called the "Old North Colony," and the name, with state instead of colony, has been retained to the present time. It has also been called "Turpentine state," from the importance of this article in the list of its exports.

Vermont, before the revolutionary war, acquired the name of "Green Mountain Colony," the sobriquet having been bestowed on account of the verdant appearance of the mountains. The name of the state was originally French, and means green mountain.

Wisconsin was early dubbed the "Badger state," from the representation of that animal on its coat of arms. Why the badger should have been chosen does not appear, as it is not in evidence that badgers were more numerous in Wisconsin than in other surrounding states.

New Hampshire very early in its history was denominated the "Switzerland of America," on account of its mountainous character and the hardy habits of its people. It has also been called the "Granite state," from the abundance of that mineral within its boundaries.

New Jersey has been called the "Garden state," from the fact that a large proportion of the farming land in its boundaries is given up to growing vegetables for the markets of New York and Philadelphia, so that it has been said New Jersey is a kitchen garden of these two cities.

Maryland long ago was known as the "Old Line state," the reference being to the line drawn by Mason and Dixon along the northern boundary of Maryland and the southern limit of Pennsylvania, an effort having been made to consider this line the northern boundary of the slave line.

New York was long ago denominated the "Empire state." From its great wealth, industrial, commercial and political importance it ranked first among the states in many particulars. It has also been named the "Excelsior state," from the fact that this word appears as a motto in the state arms.

Louisiana has been called the "Creole State," from the character of its population, many of the French settlers having married Indian or mulatto women. It is also known as the 'Pelican State." This bird was formerly very abundant in the delta of the Mississippi, and its representation in the state arms probably inspired the nickname.

Massachusetts has been called the "Bay State," from the great inlet on its eastern shore. It has been designated the "Old Colony," from the antiquity of its foundation. A more recent and less respectable nickname is the "State of Baked Beans," an allusion to a well-known article of food prepared in great quantities within its limits.

Oregon has been known as the "Webfoot State." During the rainy season the precipitation is so constant and heavy that it is humorously said the climate of that state is best appreciated by animals having webbed feet. It is also called the "Beaver State," from the former abundance of these animals along its water courses.

Nevada has two nicknames, the "Silver State" and the "Sagebrush State." The former name arises from the principal product of the state, which is derived from the great Comstock mines; perhaps the most productive of any in the world. The name "Sagebrush State" was given on account of the presence of that herb which, in many parts of the alkali plains, forms almost the sole vegetation.

Nebraska has been termed the "Blackwater State." The explanation of this poetical nickname is found in the fact that the water of the principal streams is as dark as that of the rivers flowing from the bogs of Ireland. The soil of Nebraska is very rich and loamy, and it is said there are peat beds in the state, the statement being apparently confirmed by the color of the water, which is caused by the presence of organic matter.

Delaware has been called the "Diamond State," for, though small in size it formerly was of great political importance. It also enjoys the nickname of the "Blue Hen State," this having been bestowed on account of a gentleman named Caldwell, who made the state famous in sporting annals by the quality of his gamecocks, which he always bred from the eggs of a blue hen, believing that this was the best color for the mother of a gamecock.

Connecticut enjoys the proud distinction of having three sobriquets. It has been called the "Land of Steady Habits," from the sobriety and gravity of its people; the "Freestone State," from the enormous quarries of that description of stone, and the "Nutmeg State," from the tradition prevalent in surrounding communities over a hundred years ago that the chief industry of its inhabitants was the manufacture of nutmegs of wood, to be passed off as genuine on unsuspecting purchasers.

Illinois has two nicknames. It was called "Prairie State," from the character of its land, which in most quarters is a rolling prairie. It was nicknamed the "Sucker State" from the fact that early travelers on the prairies often suffered great straits for lack of water. They soon learned from the Indians how to satisfy their thirst, for proceeding to a low place in the prairie they would search for crawfish holes, into which they inserted a long straw, and sucked up the water beneath. Such, at least, is the story told and explanation given of the nickname.

Minnesota has been designated the "North Star State," of which expression two or three explanations have been given, one on account of its geographical position; another that the north star appears in its coat of arms. It has also been called the "Lake State," from the great number of small lakes within its limits, and the "Gopher State," because the early settlers found these animals in such abundance that they proved a serious nuisance. Even a careful rider passing over a plain where gophers abounded was in danger of being thrown by his horse accidentally stepping in a gopher hole.

Kentucky is known as the "Corncracker State," from a game bird enjoying the same name which was formerly found in great abundance in most parts of the state. It is also called the "Blue Grass State," from the belt of land running through the center in which this variety of grass grows to great perfection. In the early days of our history it was known as the "Dark and Bloody Ground," being so termed by the Indians. It was then a debatable land between the Indians living north of the Ohio and those living in the mountains of Tennessee and Georgia, a sort of battleground of these tribes, which fact gave it the name long before it was settled by the whites.

Pennsylvania is called the "Keystone State." Two explanations have been given of this name. According to the first, the Declaration of Independence was trembling in the balance, six colonies having voted for and six against it, the vote of Pennsylvania was cast in favor of the declaration, and thus a majority was secured. According to the other explanation the name was purely an accident. When the Rock creek bridge was constructed, near Washington, the stones of the great arch were inscribed with the names of the states, and when it was finished the discovery was made that the name of Pennsylvania was on the keystone of the arch, and thus was applied afterward to the state.

Missouri has been called the "Puke State." This disrespectful and almost vulgar designation is said to have the following explanation: In 1827 lead in great quantities was discovered at Galena, in Illinois, and such numbers of Missourians went from their own state over into Illinois to work in the lead mines that the people of Illinois facetiously observed that Missouri had puked its inhabitants over into Illinois. From some inexplicable reason the name struck the public fancy, and in spite of the objections of Missourians it clung to the state. An effort has been made to call Missouri the "Iron State," from the great deposits of iron ore found at Iron mountain, Pilot Knob, and other places in the southeast, but the name has never proved so popular as the one given it in 1827.

Virginia has been called the "Mother of Presidents," from the fact that it has furnished seven men who aided to guide the destinies of the nation. It has also been denominated the "Old Dominion," from a singular and little known historic incident. Being settled under the auspices of cavaliers, the colony remained loyal to the Stuarts, even during the Puritan revolution, and Cromwell is said to have more than once been on the point of preparing an expedition to sail to Virginia and reduce to submission the rebellious colonists. Not long before the accession of Charles II to the throne of his fathers, the Virginians sent a deputation to the exiled prince, inviting him to come to the New World and become king of Virginia; and, according to this story, he is resorted to have been on the point of sailing when he received an invitation to the throne of England. As the story goes, in gratitude for the loyalty of the Virginians, he quartered the arms of that province with those of England, Scotland and Ireland, and thus the province received its complimentary designation. A less popular designation is "The Mother of States," an allusion to the fact that its settlement was in 1607, before that of any other colony.

DRINKING

Soda Water and Soft Drink Season is Now Under Way.

Great Progress Made in Both the Fountains and Flavors.

Genuine Fruit Has Succeeded the Old Manufactured Flavors.

As the warm summer days come on, the citizen seeks the bar and the soda fountain as the hart the water brooks. Of course there is a moiety of him that remains anchored at the bar all winter, but of that contingent and its beverages nothing at present. Of the egg flip, is this lay—of the lemon phosphate and the ice cream soda.

It is said that the citizen of today drinks less whisky than his ancestors, but he makes up on what the red nosed individual of the old regime sniffs at contemptuously as "slop." He shows a preference for drinks that are, or, at least, that he fancies are, less calculated to peel the lining of his stomach and petrify his liver, and the soda fountain now opens purse strings that will no longer loosen under the persuasion of a cock-tail or a gin-fizz.

Times have changed since the days when a cheap fountain was set up and loaded with artificial flavors that traveled under aliases. In those times, as the thirsty season approached, the enterprising druggist retired into the cellar, where he pounded up marble dust, with which, in combination with sulphuric acid, he proceeded to prepare a decoction for the relief of every one who thirsted. The flavors then stood under the necessity of being identified, and they unblushingly claimed relationship with fruits with which they had never been on speaking terms. These flavors were entirely artificial, being constructed of combination of ethers, figured out by analysis to bear a resemblance to flowers and fruits. Sometimes the ingenious chemist worked out a result that was strawberries, and sometimes it was dead cats—but such is the perversity of things that while the imitation of the latter was usually good, the fruit flavor was at best but distantly approached.

HAD THEIR PECULIARITIES.

The fountains in the days when the soda water business was an infant industry had peculiarities, too. They were, as a rule, crudely constructed, and, as is the case with some orators, their gas was not well under control. It was safe to indulge in familiarities with it only with a diving suit on. In the more playful moods of one of the old kind, it might content itself with hanging back and then spitting like an angry cat and ejecting a stream that would come out of the glass and spread out over the shirt-bosom of the player. Sometimes, when the monotony of business routine grew unbearable, it would go out through the roof or clamber around on the shelving and break the bottles.

The modern soda fountain, however, is better behaved and, with true breeding, conceals its feelings and refrains from unseemly ebullitions. The affairs of choice marbles and silver and gold trimmings that are now manufactured are often truly magnificent, and their cost runs often as high as $10,000. The mixtures drawn therefrom are frequently triumphs of the confectioner's art instead of mixtures put together by the apprentice, the sole claim to excellence of which consisted in the fact that they had not proved fatal to the cat. Great establishments now exist to supply the demand for both fountains and flavors, in the latter, the public demand genuine fruit extracts in place of the ether artificial flavors, and the dealer who supplies their demand gets the trade.

The variety of mixtures is now great, and while there are a few standbys, there are many changes from season to season. Instead of the limited range of "strawberry, vanilla and lemon" of the old days, there is now a list to call off which would tax the lungs and memory of a Midway fakir. The name of the various "soft" drinks now served is legion. Next to the ice cream soda, which stands first in the order of popularity, and which, as mixed with a dipperful of ice cream and a generous allowance of crushed fruit, is a pretty good meal, come the phosphates. The latter run through the whole list of fruits and includes some of the nervines, such as kola, celery, and so forth, for which a demand is created by the pace at which we live. Then there is pepsin phosphate, sought by those whose digestive organs need jollying up. A correct phosphate has not been concocted, but it will undoubtedly come along in the march of progress.

After the phosphates come flips; all kinds of "ades," beginning with orange and lemon and ending with goldenade, which latter is not bichloride of gold, as might be imagined; swizzlers, cobblers and a long procession that would take several hours to pass a given point.

With the ladies, ice cream soda stands first in popularity, as many a man will testify, and the phosphates next. The men go in for egg-flip and brome-seltzer, the latter being much worn in the morning. In all, the variety of drinks includes over a thousand mixtures.

A DISASTROUS FAILURE.

Financial convulsions which disturb the equilibrium of the business world are productive of far less mischief than the failure of the kidneys to perform the office assigned to them by nature. When these organs become inactive the circulation acquires impurities which bring on dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel, catarrh of the bladder and other maladies. To impart to the kidneys and bladder a healthful impetus, very different from the excitement produced by an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest diuretic in existence. This excellent remedy for inactivity of the kidneys is also the greatest service in malarial, dyspeptic, bilious and rheumatic troubles, and has received the unqualified sanction of eminent physicians. The nervous, the elderly and infirm and convalescents derive unspeakable benefit from its use. Use it with persistence and at fixed intervals, and anticipate with confidence the happiest results.

WAITING FOR BUSINESS.

A New York paper says that "the days when you could open a bicycle store and wait for the people to come to you, with a fair prospect of their coming, have passed away—and they won't come back."

They won't come back, because they won't pay. There are a few lines of business in which by reason of etiquette the waiting plan is still pursued; but as for trade in any general sense, it isn't to be gotten in these days without advertising for it. Nor even then, unless the advertising possesses the power to arouse public interest and keep it on edge.

Science and Invention.

Although several times within recent years it was known that efforts were making to establish a Mannesmann tube mill in this country, nothing tangible resulted. For that reason when the incorporation of such an institution, with a capital of $3,000,000, was reported two weeks' since, it failed to create much more than a ripple in the cycle pool. This latest effort, however, proved to be fruitful, and has already resulted in the quiet acquirement of the necessary property.

The Springfield, Mass., Republican states that the deal was consummated last week. Under the terms the Mannesmann Cycle Tube Co. obtains possession of the plant and property of the Adams (Mass.) Power company, consisting of the old zylonite property and about 100 acres of land, including the best undeveloped water power in Northern Berkshire.

The new company is an organization of New York, Boston, Springfield and Berkshire capitalists, who have acquired certain rights under the patents covering the famous "Mannesmann process" for rolling metallic seamless tubes from the rough bar or ingot of steel to the finished tube. As the process and the product are thoroughly protected in this country by patents, all importations will cease as soon as these works at Adams are running, which will be in about two months.

The rolling machinery for the plant has arrived in this country from Europe and will be set up immediately. Over 600 men will be employed at the works. The company is formed to manufacture cycle tubing, but it holds other valuable rights under patents owned by the Mannesmann Tube company the parent organization in this country, for operating the "Mannesmann process" and kindred devices. The Mannesmanns and several members of the new company were in Adams last week examining the property and to decide on the alterations that will be necessary. They were accompanied by a force of engineers.

A "Parson's bill" has been introduced in the Ohio legislature. As a result, and with that unreasonable and thoughtless judgment that characterizes the reception of all "bicycle bills" not proposed by wheelmen, an Ohio correspondent rushes into print with the declaration that while the measure "is not so inimical to the interests of wheelmen that should it pass it would greatly restrict the freedom of cyclists, it is, nevertheless, no satisfactory to the wheelmen of this state."

If the law is really a parson's bill, as stated, it is an admirable measure, and should be welcomed heartily by wheelmen throughout the state, and similar bills suggested to other legislatures. Far from being "inimical to the interest of wheelmen," it is of a positive and immeasurable benefit to them. It imposes no restriction whatever—that is, except on dunderhead councilmen in anti-cycling communities. It tells these gentlemen that they shall have power to go only so far, and no further. If they must pass cycling ordinances they must conform to the terms defined by the state law. They must incorporate no absurd notions of their own. The law is not mandatory. It rather induces a conformity of local ordinances, which will prove a happy state of affairs for cyclists generally. Every town cannot then make laws and impose fines of a varying nature, and of varying amounts, as suits the fancy of the so-called "town authorities."

It would be well did wheelmen give such matters a little thought before taking up arms. They would not then make themselves appear so foolish as in the instance in question. New Jersey has already passed such a law, and Senator Parsons is now guiding one through the New York legislature, and has, we are pleased to know, received the approbation of the state officials of the L. A. W. Indeed, Mr. Parsons has under consideration further amendments to his bill, which will make it an additional benefit to wheelmen. This amendment provides that when wheelmen are arrested for violation of local cycling ordinances they may leave their bicycles as bail. This is a wise provision, which is justified by circumstances, and will, we hope, be made the most of by Mr. Parsons. There is no class of citizens who "get about" as much as cyclists. Not infrequently they pass through two or three or more counties in a day's ride. As the laws governing bail now stand, they require as security real estate or property located within the county in which the arrest is made. This means that if a cyclist is arrested outside of his home county he will be in sore straits to secure his liberty. In most cases it would mean imprisonment until tried. Nothing further is needed to illustrate the desirability of the amendment, which, by the way, is a suggestion of Chief Consul Potter.

The most important advance in the study of the X rays has been made by Professor Dewar, who has found that the transparency or permeability of their mysterious radiations possesses a direct relation to their atomic weight.

* * *

The Amatur Photographer (English) in a recent issue says: But it will surprise many to learn that the Roentgen rays have been anticipated by the writer or prophet of romance. There is a book, not very generally known, by a Dr. Andrew Plair, entitled "Annals of the Twenty-ninth Century." The author in speaking of a remarkably advanced race of men who are supposed to people the world ten centuries hence, writes as follows: "I perceive Secundinus could not only make glass and stones and all inorganic substances malleable, but possessed a power undreamed of by man of making them transparent. I was shown animals upon which the youths were taught zoology and comparative anatomy, in some of which the skin was like a glass case, showing beneath the working of the muscles. In others the skin and muscles were pellucid, showing the circulatory system; in others all was perspicuous, save the bones, with the view of their being subservient to the study of osteology; while in others still the whole body was vitreous."

"Anode rays" is the term advocated by Professor Oliver Lodge for the X or Roentgen rays. Writing to "Nature" he says: "They certainly do not start from the cathode, but from an opposed surface, which may be an actual anode, and which always has some anodic properties."

Electric lamps of 2000 to 5000 candle power have been in use by many photographers for a number of years, but the results have been quite unsatisfactory; first, for the reason of insufficient light, and second, the unsteadiness of the same. Attention has recently been called to a new form of electric light apparatus of 10,000 candle power, by the use of which it has been demonstrated in a number of studios that photographs can be made, the quality of which are equal to those obtained by daylight. The advantage of these high candle power lamps must be apparent to all, inasmuch as the time of exposure is greatly reduced, the result being that bright, sharp negatives can be made in from two to four seconds. The photographer owning one or more of these lamps may operate in any convenent location and be entirely independent of weather conditions, expensive skylights and long flights of stairs, for the ground floor may be sure of the lion's share of the business. The advantages may be summed up as follows: First, the 10,000 candle power electric light apparatus is specially designed for studio use, and is the only one on the market capable of producing negatives equal in every way to those obtained by the daylight. Second, it matters not whether sittings are made day or night; the results are the same. Third, the expense of operating is reduced to a minimum, the cost per negative being 1 to 2 cents. Fourth, a great saving of plates, owing to the fact that the quality or power of the light is always the same, while daylight is constantly shifting, hence when using the latter many plates are either under or over exposed. Fifth, one need no longer depend upon the sun's rays when printing, for this 10,000 candle power light will print with great rapidity, thus enabling the photographer to deliver his work when promised. Sixth, unlike other artificial lights, the half tones so necessary to the creation of soft and natural effects are retained, this being accomplished by the perfect diffusion of the light from the screens.

Al engineers know how fatal are defective castings in cylinders, fly and car wheels, and as a handmaid for this branch of mechanical engineering, the so-called new photography offers to become a phenomenal aid. Recent research has shown beyond doubt that by the shadow process, cracks, blow holes and, indeed, hidden flaws in any form of castings, may be detected with absolute accuracy. We think it would be very wise precaution to make it a precedent that all fly wheels and cylinders should pass the test of photography by the X rays. This would at once show up any weakness in their construtcion and obviate a great and ever-increasing danger. It is also extremely likely that these rays would show distinctly whether or not there was any strain in the casting. This has several times been done in the case of large glass objectives with ordinary polarized light, and should these X rays admit of being polarized, this "searchlight," as we may say, will certainly be of great help. In this way the responsibility of the engineer would be very largely obviated, one of the great dreads of his life removed. It is these hidden and unknown flaws and cases of strain not previously detected which at present keep the mechanical engineer in a fever of uncertainty. We look forward with hope to the day when modified appliances for the new photography will become a distinct part of all large foundries.

The report of the commissioner of patents for the year ending Dec. 31, 1895, shows that the receipts over expenditures for the year amounted to $160,750.42 and that there is a balance in the treasury of the United States on account of the patent fund of $4,529,886.23. Under these circumstances there can be no reason why the patent office should not be provided with more convenient quarters, or more examiners employed so as to further the more prompt disposal of applications, or the cost of application slightly reduced to the encouragement of invention and the benefit of the country. These reforms are, perhaps, too many and too expensive to permit of their materialization all at the same moment, but there seems to be no good reason why one or the other of them should not be put into effect and some benefit be derived from that surplus by the class who contributed to it.

Minnesota takes out one patent for each 4339 of its population, while Mississippi, at the foot of the "Father of Waters," receives only one for each 31,854 of her population.

The patent commissioner has recommended to congress the establishment of a patent bar, with suitable rules for admission to practice, to keep out the incompetent and unscrupulous so-called "patent attorneys" who are neither lawyers nor possessors of any other qualification for the positions which they assume to hold as representatives of applicants and inventors. "It not infrequently happens," says the commissioner, "that a practitioner, perhaps under the stimulus of a contingent fee, has so presented a meritorious invention that no adequate claims are found to be allowable, while yet one letter claim has been allowed. It is obvious, on careful inspection, that claims might be drawn which would cover the invention and thus secure to the inventor that which was his own and which would be allowed on a later action on the case; but instead of bestowing the requisite attention and labor upon the case, the unfaithful solicitor promptly directs the cancellation of all claims objected to and thus puts the application into condition for allowance with an inadequate claim." Again he says: "Another class is not infrequently seen about the elevator in the patent office, lying in wait for those who have traveled hither for the purpose of presenting their inventions in person. They are without a known place of business, other than the attorneys' room in the patent office; and against all these the establishment of a patent bar would provide a barrier and it would to some extent insure to inventors a guarantee that those who have rights to practice here are men of recognized integrity and of ascertained fitness and capacity." It is certainly the fact that very many patent applications are refused for no other reason than that the applicants or attorneys who present them are ignorant of the technicalities of patent laws and rules and are incompetent to perform the service required. The establishment of a patent solicitors' bar in accordance with the suggestion of the commissioner would undoubtedly be a vast improvement and a great protection to the inventor.

Thomas A. Edison started in life as a man whose sole capital was brains. He has spent over $50,000 in applications for patents alone, and yet it is estimated that, as a result of his "observation, reflection and experiment," more than $1,000,000 stands between him and poverty.

Any inventor desiring to read the entertaining and instructive report of the commissioner of patents will find it in the back of the official Patent Office Gazette of May 12, 1896, on file at 504 Palladio building. Single copies of the Gazette are not obtainable from the patent office.

Charles M. Horton, of Duluth, has secured the contract from the county for the bridge to be erected at Short Line Park. The structure will be in accordance with Mr. Horton's own inventions and will be 242 feet long, divided into four spans, 150 feet, 70 feet and 152 feet respectively. It is estimated that the steel work will cost about $2115. The columns upon which the bridge will immediately rest are also according to Mr. Horton's special designs.

Patents were issued to Minnesota inventors for the week ending May 12, as follows: To Edward T. Gibson, Minneapolis, for paper toy; to Charles C. Horton, Minneapolis, for clothes line fastener; to Adolph Knudson, St. Paul, for wave motor; to H. A. Krupke, Paynesville, for horse power; to Otto Lenzinger, Anuandale, for harness buckle and trace attachment; to Ralph Martin, St. Paul, for photographic salting solution; to Michael J. Nugent, St. Cloud, for lamp chimney holder; to Asa Palmer, Moorhead, for potato digging machine; to John H. Swadling and H. H. Kelley, Minneapolis, for car seal; to William C. Trafton, Fairfax, for windmill.

HEADED THEM OFF.

"You say Maria has run away? he said. "She's eloped with Bill Jones, and they've started for town."

"Hosses?" inquired the old man.

"No; bicycles," replied his wife.

"One or two?"

"Two—one for each."

"That settles it," said the old man. "We can catch them before they get to the parson's."

"They're both good riders," suggested his wife.

"That's so," admitted the old man," and they could beat either one of us alone; but we're a powerful team when we got together, Hannah. Can you leave your bakin' for a little while?"

"If anythin' burns I can bake again," she said sententiously, "but if Maria gits away with Bill Jones she's gone for good."

"Git on your bloomers in a hurry, then," exclaimed the old man." "I'll be gittin' the tandem wheel out of the woodshed meanwhile, and if we don't make those two scorchers think there's a whirlwind after them it'll be funny.

"Do you s'pose they forgot about the tandem?"

"Maybe they thought we'd forgotten how to ride it," replied the old man grimly, as he made his back into the form of an arc just to satisfy himself that he had not forgotten how to do it.

And that night, as Bill Jones looked longingly up at the window of the room where he knew his fair one was confined, he bitterly reproached himself for his foolishness in thinking that a single wheel could get away from a tandem, and he swore softly to himself that when next he tried to take the maid away, he would have a sextuplet, fully manned, and with an auxiliary gas engine attachment.

AN AWFUL EXPERIENCE.

"Awful experience? Yes," said the tramp, as he sat at a Holland street kitchen Thursday forenoon and cut into the second piece of custard pie, according to the Lewiston Evening Journal. "I was sleeping soundly in a box car out in Iowa one night last summer, and the wind was blowing like thunder across the plains! Suddenly that car got loose—the brakes broke or suthin' and it began to crawl along out of the siding and onto the main track. It was puis for me. I thought the wind wouldn't blow me far and so I kept on. I stood in the door and saw the houses and fences go by faster and faster, till all of a sudden I realized that I was going too fast to get off, and no way of stopping it. Half an hour after we—the car and I—dashed through a little station and I had just time to see the telegraph operator run out and look after us and then run back to telegraph down the line to clear the track. We were going more than a mile a minute, and my hair was standing on end. Forty miles down the line we went through another station, and on a siding I caught sight of an engine with steam up, and a man with a rope on the cow catcher. That engine chased us twenty miles down the track. The man with the rope threw it around the brake wheel on top of our car and gradually stopped it, while all the time the wind was blowing a gale.

"We had just got headed back toward the depot when an express train showed up where we should have met it kerchunk—that's good pie," and he took another piece.

ABOUT THE X RAYS.

The German doctors maintain that of the pathological alterations of the soft parts only ossifications and calcifications can be rendered visible by Roentgen's rays, while accumulations of pus can be rendered visible only when they have taken the place of lost bone tissue, says the London Journal. They have a bright appearance in contrast to the darker bones. The soft parts can be penetrated by the rays more deeply than the bones, but not more than seventeen centimetres. The photographs permit only limited diagnostic conclusions, and seldom reveal anything new to the practiced eye of the doctor. The replacement of the bone tissue by soft lifeless tissue is the symptom which more than any other can be utilized in diagnosing a tumor of the soft parts; but, in this case, too, cautious and expert examination of the photograph is necessary, and a correct diagnosis will rarely prove attainable by means of the photograph alone. On the other hand, Roentgen rays afford an important aid in ascertaining the presence, and especially the exact position, of alien bodies, especially of small alien bodies in the hands and feet. During and after future wars bullets and fragments of bullets will easily be discovered by means of Roentgen's rays, and such discoveries will be of great value in judging of the complaints of patients, and in estimating the degree of invalidity and in operating. The use of Roentgen's rays is also very advantageous in case of bone fractures and dislocations, of doubtful statements regarding very small alien bodies that have entered the flesh, and of morbid fancies.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

The past few weeks have been full of business for militiamen and the ceremony of inspection, more dreadful to many than war and famine, has been gone through with by the Duluth battalion. The men will now have an opportunity to draw a few leisurely breaths before the tents are pitched for the camp at Lake City, though they will be far from idle in the interim.

* * *

It is generally conceded that Company C, under Capt. Resche, passed the best inspection in the local battalion. The relative standing of the other companies is, as a matter of courtesy, not suggested. Naturally there were some points to be criticised in the drill of each of the companies, including the first, and naturally, also, there were many apologies offered to excuse each little fault. Chief among these excuses was that of the obstacles on the floor and the confinement of the armory, which, indeed, was a very acceptable apology for most of the errors, though, perhaps, confinement of heads and cobwebs on the brain were the causes of a few others. Happily, however, the mistakes were few and the battalion uniformaly passed a very creditable inspection.

* * *

Maj. Van Duzee, of St. Paul, and Capt. Persons, of Anoka, attended the inspection of Company A on Monday evening and Adjt. Gen. Muehlberg, Col. Shandrew, Capt. Hart and Capt. Clarkson, of the Saintly City, came up to see G go through the ordeal on Thursday, when they expressed themselves as highly gratified with the present condition and future prospects of the company. The visiting officers looked over the plans for the new armory, and congratulated the battalion on the acquisition of the more commodious quarters.

* * *

Battalion drills will occur weekly between this date and the time of leaving for camp. The dates of battalion drills will be announced from time to time; the first one, will, however, take place on next Thursday evening at Ninth avenue east. Men will assemble at the central armory at 7:45 p. m. sharp, and sergeants will do well to brush up on battalion formations.

* * *

Second Lieut. Wilson of Company G, and Second Lieut. Towner of Company H, received their commissions on Thursday.

The date of camp will probably not be changed to an earlier date, as lately suggested.

Companies A, C and H each had fifty men in line at inspection. Company G had fifty-three.

The bathing beach at Lake View camp is being improved and work is being pushed on the new rifle range.

* * *

The brigade will take part in the ceremonies at the G. A. R. encampment at St. Paul, on Sept. 3. The state will furnish transportation for the guardsmen, and board and lodging for one day, but it is understood that the companies may remain longer, at their own expense, if they so desire.

* * *

the armory last night for the purpose among other things, of recommending an officer for appointment to be battalion adjutant. The choice of those present was Lieut. Salter, who, it is understood, will receive the appointment. It was further decided to tender the services of the battalion to the G. A. R. to act as escort on Decoration day. It was also resolved that the battalion will attend church in a body on Memorial Sunday of each year, and a committee of three was appointed to decide upon which church to attend this year. An effort will be made to attend the same church as the G. A. R. if accommodations can be obtained, otherwise some other edifice will be selected.

The non-commissioned officers will meet on Monday evening at the armory at 8 p. m. for the purpose, among other things, of recommending one of their number for the appointment of sergeant major of the Second battalion. A general school of the non-commissioned officers of all the local companies is one of the suggestions which will be offered. Should such a school be formed an officer or possibly a non-commissioned officer would be appointed as instructor.

An endeavor will be made to secure the privilege of using the rifle range above the boulevard so that the men can practice and shoot a score before going to camp. There seems to be no good reason why the effort should not meet with the success which it deserves.

We wonder if G has enlisted the hero of the following incident? A thirsty gentleman—a member of one of the F. P. V.'s—visiting in Kentucky, was strolling along a country road when he met an intelligent looking lad who was shooting squirrels. Remembering the fame of Kentucky bourbon he asked the youngster to show him a "private still." The boy tipped him a wink and led him about ten miles over hill and through valley until he came to a place where some soldiers were drilling and pointed out a sergeant. "Do yo' see thet saargeant yonder," he asked? "Yes." Well, thet's not him, but that boy next to him—he's my brother; see yonder?—he was to be a corporal, but he's a private still."

DANGEROUS.

Pick Me Up: Binks—My dear boy, how did you manage to cut your face like that?

Jinks—Well, you see, I can't stand a barber's chatter, so I hired a dumb one to come and shave me every morning.

Binks—And he didn't know how to shave, eh?

Jinks—Oh, yes; he could shave all right, but he persisted in talking to me on his fingers all the while.

THE WORLD OF FASHION.

NOW COMES THE SWEET GIRL GRADUATE'S DAINTY, AIRY GOWN.

MANY SCHOOLS FORBID THAT IT SHOULD BE EXTRAVAGANT.

Pure White is Always Associated With Graduates as Well as Brides---Some Lovely Examples of the Costumes Now to Be Seen---The Simpler the Gown the More in Good Taste it is Considered.

With the apple blossoms come thoughts of the graduating gown. These are momentous moments in a girl's life when she steps up for the diploma and steps out; with "an education," and it is no wonder she dresses for the occasion as anxiously almost as for the later "coming out" in society. Many schools wisely forbid anything in the way of extravagance in the graduating gown. And the bright young misses lose nothing by it. There is really a peculiar fitness in the airy lightness and dainty whiteness of the costumes most in favor.

Silks are not out of the way, nor yet out of reach in the matter of price, but the crispy coolness of a delicate white organdie is quite as charming. Of all the thin white goods in favor for graduates the organdie is the most popular. It is as airy and fine as one could wish, and with it all has more substance or "body" than the majority of similar materials. Pure white is always associated with graduates as well as brides, and the simpler the graduating gown the more in good taste it is considered. Some lovely examples are seen now, made with just a plain full skirt, having perhaps one or two rows of insertion above the deep hem, and a full round waist, trimmed with delicate lace and ribbon.

Elbow sleeves are the prettiest of all styles for gowns of this kind, and they are either finished with a band and knot of ribbon at the elbow, or a gracefully falling ruffle. Of course there are ways and ways of making the graduating gown, but the simple and more girlish it is the more it seems to fit the occasion.

These same organdies made over some delicate color, such as pink, light blue or yellow, make the sweetest little summer evening gowns. If yellow is the foundation color, then trimmed with cream lace and ribbons the effect is lovely. The foundation need not be of silk—lawn makes a very satisfactory substitute, and, best of all, holds the gown down to a very reasonable figure. Silk linings, though unquestionably lovely, make the expense of a summer gown creep up at an alarming rate.

Mlle. New York can go down into the sea so picturesquely pretty as to dress that Neptune himself will be charmed.

If possible, the bathing suits this year are even more saucily "sweet" than in seasons gone by. There is a certain sleeve puffiness borrowed from the dry-land-dress fashions, and various tricks in trimming that give them a breath of delightful novelty. From the big collar, tied with a jaunty sailor bow, to the dainty bathing sandals, which protect the wearer's feet from stray crabs of an inquiring turn of mind, there is a positively stylish air to the up-to-date bathing suit.

It was not long ago when the idea of a bathing suit was associated with everything that was awkward.

Then again there was, and is, the other extreme of a microscopic skirt and dreadfully striking suit, about which yards upon yards of jokes are written every summer.

But there is also the sensible, pretty and modest suit. Mohairs and serges make the best bathing suits, both for their light weight and their duck-like way of shedding the water.

Flannel becomes so heavy when wet, and has such an unfortunate tendency to shrink—two serious drawbacks for a suit of this kind.

Braid always makes a good trimming and a pretty one as well. Besides it has great wearing qualities, and water does not hurt its looks.

It is also very effective to have, say, a blue serge suit, with red serge trimmings. But in bathing suits as in everything else there are styles enough to suit everyone.

* * *

Little lace frills have taken to appearing on cuffs. They fall out the side opening of the cuff in a very pretty bunch of fluffiness, and give a very elegant air to the sleeve.

Wash-silk waists and pongee-silk waists continue to gain favor. The pongee silk washes very well, and comes from the laundry looking as fresh and as good as new.

Some of the so-called wash silks wash well in name only. Very delicately colored ones are nearly sure to suffer from an interview with soap and water, though, there are numbers that wash and wear beautifully.

A nice, cool silk waist, made without too much lining, is the most satisfactory thing in the "half-dressy" waist line for summer—something more dressy than a shirt waist, but still as comfortable.

GRADUATING GOWNS.

A Description of a Few Charming Creations.

Probably no other event in a girl's life is attended with quite so much anxiety, planning and expectation as her graduation. Already numerous gowns for the sweet girl graduate are in course of construction in the leading dressmaking establishments of the city, says Evroll Adair in the Kansas City World. However, the greater number are for the pupils of out-of-town colleges. One particularly girlish and fluffy is made of white organdie over white satin. It is to be worn by the valedictorian of the graduating class of a Missouri college. The waist is made with a slightly low, round neck, with the organdie gathered full into the neck and at the waist over the plain satin underlining. The skirt has one ruffle, which comes to the knee. At intervals of about six inches, rosettes of white baby ribbon are placed at the top of the ruffle. A broad sash of white ribbon is to be wound twice around the waist in a corselet effect, with ends reaching almost to the bottom of the skirt. Tucked into the belt a bunch of lilies of the valley will be worn, which will complete this toilet.

Another gown which would give one an idea of the occasion for which it is meant without being told is almost completed and is for a Kansas high school graduate. It is made of creamy China crepe in a sort of Marguerite style, with a plain, long skirt and a short waist with a heavy white cord around the waist. At the side, suspended by a white cord, hangs a reticule made of the same material as the dress. From another cord, a small white empire fan dangles. The neck is cut round and only low enough not to be called high. The waist is plain, and the sleeves are made in three puffs, which brings them just below the elbows. The effect all around is very simple and girlish. The young woman who is to wear this charming gown is a bright-faced, fair-complexioned, brown-haired creature with childish features, and will undoubtedly present a very interesting picture.

MANY FABRICS

In the matter of fabrics, the variety has practically no limit. However, the thinner and more gauzy materials are preferable and are more appropriate for young girls. The organdies come in so many styles and textures that one must be very hard to please if they fail to offer something acceptable. Then there are Swisses, which still hold their own with the newer fabrics. The quaint old linen lawns come in for some consideration, and are very sheer. Some are blushly white, while others have a creamy tint and may be lined with white or any color which the fancy may dictate. These thin fabrics may be made as fluffy as may be desired, but if the material for the gown is to be of silk or some richer material, it must be fashioned more simply.

Besides the fan and flowers, the girl graduate may carry a reticule. If it is to be made for the occasion, one of white brocade or white leather is pretty. Often they are made from the same material as the gown, and hang from the belt by a small chain or ribbon. Others carry them suspended by a chain from the wrist. Those of leather are often mounted with silver. Those of brocade are usually lined with some delicate-colored silk and close with a small silk cord. In the matter of flowers, the choice is not limited to any one or two varieties, and roses, violets, lilies of the valley, arbutus—in fact, anything which happens to bloom at this time may be used. A new favorite is a large rose of a creamy tint of the tea rose family; it has a long, strong stem.

GRADUATION PRESENTS.

A subject which assumes some importance with the friends of the girl graduate is the custom which is now more in vogue than ever of giving graduation presents. The question is more easily solved this year than usual, and a visit to the large jewelry stores confounds one's ideas as to which novelty would be most acceptable. Bon-bon boxes are dainty and are never undesirable. A pretty one of cut glass with a miniature top of silver gilt costs $10. A gold cream box, slightly larger than the bon-bon box comes at $12. A puff box with a silver gilt top with an ivory miniature set in it, costs $25. These miniatures are all painted on ivory and bear the stamp of genuineness because there are no imitations which cannot be easily detected. The silver gilt is a new perfection. It wears almost forever and does not tarnish. A cut-glass salts bottle with a gold top costs $10, and is a very pretty accessory for a summer girl. Salts bottles which are very pretty with solid silver tops can be bought at from $1.50 up. These bottles are to be engraved on the top.

New effects in shell are shown, and all are lower in price than they have been. The low, broad comb for the back hair is new and very quaint. Plain shell is not popular this season. These ornaments in many beautiful designs and colors come at from $4 to $15. The toara made of shell is new. It has a sort of crown effect in the front and comes half around the head on each side. It is held in place by a comb fastened on a small hinge in the middle. These in prettily colored tortoise shell come at $6.50 and $7.50. Another pretty conceit is the lorgnette with a tortoise shell stick prettily carved which costs from $5 to $10, owing to the elaborate nature of the carving. The silver gilt chains which go with these lorgnettes cost from $7 to $9. A particularly pretty chain which might be used for a lorgnette or watch was shown in one of the large jewelry stores and measured forty-two inches. At intervals of four or five inches there were little oval-shaped, four-sided settings containing thirty-five pearls each, making 280 pearls in the chain, which was marked $58. Lighter weight solid gold chains which may be worn with the lorgnettes cost from $6 to $20.

FOR ENGAGED GIRLS.

A new novelty for the engaged girl is the engagement locket. They are either round or heart-shaped, and are worn with a guard chain or with a pin. The plain ones, solid gold, run from $7 to $30. They open and will contain two miniatures. Others are more elaborate and are set with diamonds, emeralds, pearls, etc., and cost anywhere from $20 to $150, according to the quality and quantity of the setting.

Another appropriate gift for a girl is a quantity of stationery. The new Louis XV styles are very pretty. The miniature effect is carried out in this to some extent, although a small monogram with a background of a delicately colored enamel is quite as pretty. In every case, the ornament is very small and very dainty. One hundred sheets of paper stamped with monogram, die and envelopes to match cost $7.50. The paper is of excellent quality and may be had in any tint desired.

A number of new leather novelties are costs $16. A pretty one with a miniature shown. Green is the favorite color, although tan and other colors are shown. Silver gilt mountings are the most favored. Card cases and purses mounted with silver gilt run from $4 to $15, and make very acceptable presents at any time.

The most appropriate stones for young girls are turquoises and emeralds. The latter is popular on account of its color, but the former is always a favorite with young girl. Few new or novel settings in rings are shown. Turquoises, of course, are always set with small diamonds.

BELTS ARE POPULAR.

Belts are popular just now, but the style is the all-absorbing question. A leading jeweler who has investigated says that the narrow belts will not be worn during the summer for the reason that they are not satisfactory with shirt waists. He says that the summer belt will be a webbing an inch and three-quarters wide with a silver gilt buckle. Of course, sterling silver buckles will be worn, but the most stylish things are the miniature and enamel. The silver gilt miniature belt buckles cost from $3 to $15. It is rather sad to think that the pretty narrow leather belts must go, when they have been with us such a little while, but if the shirt waist miss decrees it, what can be done?

A charming little white leather belt with a leather buckle may be seen in the show window of a large jewelery store, and it cost $2.25. It is ornamented with a delicate hand-painted wreath in tan. The solid silver gilt ones of the same style costs $17. Between the hinges are little plates for engraving.

The solid silver chatelaine with five pendants, with strong pin and chains, is shown. These chatelaines are extremely "nobby" and are a valuable addition to the summer girl's list of accessories.

A good suggestion to brothers who are at a loss to know what to give as a graduating present is a little enamel watch. They are shown in several different shades and colors, green preferred, and, with the chatelaine, costs from $50 to $150. Of course, there are other watches which are new and acceptable and which cost less, but the enamel is the latest and more of a novelty.

In one of the big dry goods stores a new fan with amber sticks is shown. One at $7.50, of the empire style, with amber sticks and made of white corded silk with Watteau figures, is shown. Larger ones of the empire style cost $10. There are numerous other fans which are dainty and which all girls like to have.

ABOUT FANS.

A Proper Time to Pick Them Out.

The young woman who is gifted with proper forethought is not waiting for the suns of July to scorch her and the sirroco-like breezes of July to fan her before laying in a stock of fans. Already the shops are displaying those accessories to the summer wardrobe, and the wise damsels and prudent dames are matching them to their summer frocks.

The French fan of all periods—one such as Marie Antoinette waved, the kind that Josephine flaunted and the sort that Mme. de Pompadour flirted gayly about—are all to be favorites. Besides these, which are more or less expensive, there are charming ones shown which are distinctly of this especial year of grace. They are made of silk grenadines and organdies to match certain gowns and they are as fascinating ad possible with their blurred blossoms and their trailing vines. There are, moreover, feather fans—fluffy affairs which are dear especially to the heart of the women who love to wind about their necks great ostrich boas. And then there are simple gauze and lace fans for the "buds" of simple tastes and economically inclined woman to use.

The sticks are of as many sorts as the fans. For the impecunious there are sticks of split bamboo. For those of greater wealth there are ivory sticks and tortoise shell sticks and carved mother of pearl sticks. Black fans, when they do not have tortoise shell of the deepest shades for their sticks and handles, have hopeless bony split into thin pieces. Horn and imitation ivory colored are also used for sticks.

MINIATURES DISCUSSED.

The miniature which is popular in everything, from soup plate decorations to lockets, has an important place in fans. In the middle of a black gauze one, for instance, a medallion-shaped portrait is let and is surrounded by a line of gold in color to represent the miniature's frame. French and English beauties of olden times are the favorites for fan miniatures. Marie Antoinette's curls, the child-like face of Lady Arouthnot, Mme. Pompadour's impossibly pale of powdered hair, all appear in the midst of the fans which Dorothy and Grace of 1896 are to flutter to and fro. Sometimes the rest of the fan is hand-painted with vines and blossoms, but oftener there is nothing to attract attention from the miniature.

The wise damsel, however, does not generally choose the miniature fan. She must be an exceedingly attractive person who can with impunity challenge comparison between herself and the pictured heroine of the past. So that the fan which does not bear a beauty's face is apt always to be popular with the multitude. Point lace fans with carved mother of pearl sticks are beautiful and expensive. Gauze fans of all colors, with lace at the edge or with a fluffy border of feathers, are also pretty and have the advantage of being moderate in price. Fans made of parchment paper are durable and are often quite pretty. Some of them show blue windmills and blue ships, and are doubtless designed for the Dutch-stricken maidens who carry their affections for their favorite style of china into their wardrobes. Black gauze fans barred with lines of gold and silver are affected by young persons of Spanish tastes. But most bewitching of all are the made-to-order fans of organdies and silk muslins to match certain gowns.

There is to be worn this summer a slender "fan belt," from which the dainty little object will hang when it is not in use. The girdles are slender ones of flexibly connected bits of silver or gold braid studded with mock jewels. The fan hangs by a slender silver or gold chain, which is long enough to allow the wearer to raise the fan easily and gracefully as high as her head. With light muslin gowns, ribbon belts and ribbon strings will sometimes take the place of the metal support. The young woman who already boasts a chatelaine with nine or ten dangling objects attached, will simply purchase another longer chain and attach her "every-day" fan to that. But the evening fan is the subject of especial attention and requires a girdle and chain exclusively for itself.

SHIRT WAISTS.

Cool and Airy, and a Seasonable Garment.

Direct descendant of the Spencer body, the shirt waist has for six seasons or more made all womankind happy. Nothing so cool and neat for summer wear has been found since the Spencer was laid on the grave of dead grandmothers, and it is really to this estimable old garment that we owe the later invention, says Nina Fitch in the Indianapolis News.

Its great-granddaughter, the "shirt waist, was originally intended for plain uses, but some of the later ones are taking on such fine airs that the name shirt waist seems a misnomer.

In general outline, with the exception that bishop sleeves take the place of the old gigots, the new shirt bodies differ in no great degree from those of last season. They have the same pointed yokes at the back, and the fronts slightly gathered or laid in three narrow, pressed down plaits each side of the button hem.

The cuffs, however, are now of the same material as the waist, and the white turnover collars are no longer sewed on. They are made detachable, to admit of several changes, the waist outlasting, of course, the collar in freshness, and are worn with a narrow mannish bow tie.

FOR MORNING USE.

With shirt waists strictly for morning use, those of percale, cambric and cheviot, a stylish variation of the white collar is a stiff stock and little bow tie made of the waist material. This last detail, however, is not a frequent accompaniment to the ready-made article, but is fashioned to order by the shirtmakers.

A parasol to match the wash waist, whatever its material, is also in high feather, and by skillful manipulation may be as easily laundered.

The cuffs of all of the sleeves are less deep than formerly, and are held together by link fastenings. Round pearl buttons, to imitate those in front, are popular.

The prettiest shirt waist of the season, though, is the one made of some fragile textile.

Batistes, dimities and lawns, striped, plain and figured all over, make some of the most useful of these, and a becoming point with many of them is to have the collar and cuffs in a solid color.

For the smarter affairs white Swiss, figured, dotted, plain or ribbon-striped, is an effective and elegant material. Again the Swiss may be in large checks or small ones, or, perhaps, be self-striped with a dainty embroidery of dots or figures in colored silk between.

One of the novelty textures used for these dressy waists is a curious linen batiste, showing big, rough figures, like Turkish toweling. The background of this is a pale mahogany-brown, in a web as thin as grenadine. The figures, huge leaves or strange flowers are white and are raised with all the thready loops of the familiar bath towel.

Then it goes without saying that all the plain and fancy linens and batistes of the season are seen among the new shirt waists, and so elegant are some of these, with their lace insertions and open work yokes and collars, that they seem fine enough for almost any occasion.

Many of the Swiss waists have the necks finished with the usual stiff collar. But others, and the colored novelty textures as well, will have ribbon stocks or else made ones of white, black or tinted satin, showing white satin pipings at the edges and the proper narrow tie.

COOL GINGHAMS.

Here endeth the chapter of shirt waists! Still let it be added that there are ginghams left, and the daintiest, coolest affairs in swivel silk, and some plain black or white satin blouses that are the very newest things from London. Then there is a dashing new material called "sailcloth" that will be much used for country and yachting waists.

With a proper supply of all these neat washable articles one may with three skirts alone—a black peau de soie, a brown linen homespun, and a white duck—effect many changes of costume and go through a summer outing with peace and health. Since both the skirts and waists may be bought ready-made, it is never too late to learn and buy.

Another useful and economical summer purchase is one of the little Louise Seize bodices, which are now being made in a airy summer textiles over rich silk linings. This graceful little model was found too universally becoming and easily accomplished to be done away with, and though some of the new coats—for they are still called coats—are made of the lightest summer materials they have the general look of those seen in the spring. These are the same short Marlborough tails and narrow gold belts, but the thin textures lend themselves better to the new sleeves with all their tucks and shirrings.

A pretty pair of models are taken from two Louis Seize summer coats, just imported. In one, black dotted Swiss—that is, white, with black dots—is a novel combination, with pink and blue striped silk. This is shown with the round yoke, which is of plain white Swiss, edged with a swirl border of yellow Valenciennes insertion.

OF LINEN CHIFFON.

A very fragile ecru linen batiste, called linen chiffon, was the foundation of another Louis Seize bodice. This was combined with corn yellow chiffon, on which there were black velvet applications in slender willow leaf patterns.

With plain, tight sleeves of this, over yellow silk lining, there were short puffs of the linen above crimped and crinkled in a highly ornamental fashion. This curious crosswise and longitudinal crimping, by the way, is a feature of many of the new sleeves, but beyond its uniqueness there is little to be said in its favor.

A charming short body is made of white silk muslin laid entirely in broad crosswise tucks. A folded belt and stock of white taffeta ribbon finish neck and waist, and complete a dainty summer garment as elegant as it is simple.

In the way of belts for the dressy bodices those of gilt braid still hold their own. There are other smart, narrow ones, however, in white or colored kid in delicate tones that show off the hand-painted porcelain buckles to perfection. Very natty little affairs of leather in any color may be found in the shops as low as 35 cents, and are a trim finish to shirt-waists. Then there is a wide, thickly gilt-spangled elastic band that Loie Fuller introduced to New York. This is fully five inches deep, and with a full bodice in some airy texture; on a slight figure its effect is very graceful.

REDFERN'S FASHIONS.

The Great Outfitter Talks About Ladies' Sleeves.

The sleeve is probably that portion of a woman's dress, which, since its first invention, how many years ago I dare not try to think, has undergone the greatest and most varied changes. It has been lengthened, shortened, broadened, by turn, to suit the exigencies of Dame Fashion. Among the earlier races only the Romans seem to have known anything of it. There it is that we can dimly trace the first rudimentary sleeve, and the fashion was then to cut the right sleeve off at the elbow, while the other arm was entirely covered.

A period quite remarkable for its artistic style in sleeves was that of Henry VIII and a little previous, when the sleeves were slashed, and fine linen worn beneath them pulled through the slashings of the outer sleeve. Never have sleeves been so lavishly decorated since that time, and so they have continued to change as time rolls on, altering this way and that to suit Madame Fashion, a lady who is evidently fond of variety, and demands that her subjects shall submit to her wishes, and in most cases they do. Whether it be beautiful or frightful appears to be a matter of small consideration so long as we are "up-to-date."

A material that is daily becoming more popular is transparent canvas mounted over bright shades of satin. A gown I saw the other day at the Redfern establishment and thought exceedingly stylish was composed of this material over yellow satin, with large cream lace revers over a ground of dark green; green chiffon formed the full vest and appeared in the neck band. I also had the pleasure of seeing some very delightful silk shirt waists. One particularly novel in make and most pleasing, which is likely to form an interesting subject is as follows:

Cream silk is used in this instance, the front of the waist is loose, falling a little over the band, but quite plain at the top to allow for the fine tracing of round black cord which is here used for decoration, as well as on the sleeves, these last being cut in bishop style with wide turned-back cuffs edged with narrow lace, as round the roll collar. The skirt worn in this case is brown covert cloth, but for the later summer use "sack-cloth" will almost entirely take the place of linen and a great many other materials also by reason of its lightness of weight and great durability. An extra advantage it also has over linen is in its crumpling and creasing, consequently we shall not be at all surprised if it remains in vogue for some time.

I much admired a novel gown of blue mohair, of which the skirt is entirely new, being draped on either side and caught down with large fancy buttons; the waist is cut in the shape of a Zouave, and has revers falling back in frills which are faced and strapped with white satin, while beneath appears a drawn satin vest trimmed with black insertion. This trimming also decorates the sleeves, which are pleated from elbow to wrist, ending with a frill over the hand. A straw hat trimmed with lace and flowers is worn with this very lady-like walking costume.

A JUNE TROUSSEAU.

Frills and Furbelows---Some Pretty Underwear.

There is something very fascinating in looking over the pretty things of a girl about to be married—the underwear all a-flutter with ribbons and laces, the negligees of soft, silky prettiness, and the dresses and hats and lingerie galore; all this, taken with the face of the girl who draws them forth and hoids them up with girlish laughter, makes one of life's bright pictures, says the chatty writer about fashions in the Boston Beacon.

And so I am going to tell you of a lovely trousseau which is being prepared against one of the June weddings.

It was a pretty white curtained bedroom to which I was admitted—a fitting temple of the sweet girlhood it enshrined. I had to admit also that it seemed fashion's own temple, as bed, table and chairs became fast covered with the pretty things upon which that dame had put her stamp.

From the kaleidoscopic vision I gathered some facts. I observed that in that dainty underwear the square neck was the rule, varied occasionally with one cut round; that the trimming was lace or finest embroidery, with always a finish of beading of varying width, through which was run ribbon of corresponding width, ribbon of different color to every garment. The empire effect of these pretty robes is very bewitching.

A negligee of pale blue silk seemed like a bit of the sky, and the lace which festooned it like a cloud trimming borrowed from the other world somewhere. It was made empire with a round baby neck finished with the soft lace. Blue ribbons the shade of the silk caught the fulness at the waist line in a soft bow.

A SILK UNDERSKIRT.

One of the silk underskirts was, I think, the prettiest I ever saw. It was of handsome silk of mingled blue and brown and black shades. It was finished with a deep flounce of the silk into which was let black lace inserting several inches wide; an edging of the same lace finished the flounce underneath, while a second flounce of blue silk shot its color effectively through the black lace trimmings.

This skirt is to be worn with the going-away gown—a tailor-made suit which inconsiderately hides away its pretty neighbor entirely out of sight. This suit is one of simple elegance—a brown cheviot lined throughout with silk, which is golden-brown with a narrow yellow stripe. This lining is evident also in the jacket. The bodice is of a brown striped silk, while the traveling hat is a jaunty little turban of rough straw, trimmed with black velvet and feathers and an emerald ornament effectively placed.

The visiting gown is of green silk of rather a neutral shade; the skirt made plain, the bodice elaborate—a yoke of white silk covered with linen embroidery and finished artistically with pale green ribbon constituting its trimming. The hat which completes this pretty costume is a big picturesque leghorn with pale green flutings of chiffon about the brim, a touch of black velvet here and there, and a fall—or a rise, just as you prefer—of black plumes which give it its stylish finish.

One of the most charming gowns in the trousseau is one made of a soft, sheer, white goods called cotton chiffon. This pretty stuff is simply made into the coolest, most girlish of gowns—bodice and skirt made all in one, a pale blue satin collarette finishing the throat, while a sash of the same girdles the waist.

And the shirt waists—their name is legion. And the most fashionable, you must know, have the adjustable white linen collars.

SLEEVES ARE FOREMOST.

Outside of brides and their loveliness, just now all interest is centered in the sleeves; skirt, bodice and adjustment of garniture are ignored, and even the Easter bonnet lacked in interest in comparison with the puzzling sleeve. Fashion articles and the latest letters from Paris tell of the doom of the big sleeve, yet in spite of all that has been said concerning the passing of the balloon sleeve and the advent of its close clinging rival, the former is still an ever-present fact in the shops, on the fashionable promenade, at the theater, and yea, even on the cutting table of the most fashionable dressmaker.

But between change and a sudden and complete revolution in styles there is a wide difference. New styles are not launched without difficulty; the designers may turn out new models for sleeves all fast enough, but the final test of adopting them must be left to the public taste. "One swallow does not make a summer," no more can a few eccentric sleeve designers create a new fashion.

For all their variety, the distinctively new sleeves may be classified. Either an inner sleeve, wrinkled or plain, outlining the shape of the arm and surmounted by a loose drapery short puff or epaulette at the top, or the shape of the shoulder is left defined, and the puff is pushed down toward the elbow.

In the midst of all this sleeve confusion the best dressed women are contenting themselves with sleeves that are almost identical with those of the winter. The appearance of volume has been lessened somewhat by the absence of stiffening. But be not deceived in the hope of making a stylish waist out of less material.

For the tailor-made gown a medium-sized leg o' mutton sleeve is a "safe" design. Whatever change may come, these sleeves may be depended upon to be at least acceptable. In the more elaborate gowns and fancy, silk waists all styles and sizes of puffs are offered as a compromise between the large and small sleeve, and finally the bishop sleeve, which might be renamed the shirt waist sleeve, so prominent is it in this popular article of dress.

AN EXTRAVAGANCE.

How often shall I tell you that silk petticoats are almost a wicked extravagance? Have one nice skirt, a silk petticoat made at home. That is, silk to the knees only, and that may have merely a finish at the edge, or perhaps a ribbon ruffle, is all anyone really needs for a silk skirt. These frivolous ones in the stores don't wear—they are made to sell. Still, when you come to think of it, it costs about as much to make them at home, material and time and all considered; and as to wear—a "best" skirt does not get so very much wearing, so what does it matter? Then again, the interest tuck in front or at the back, or wherever it doesn't hang, makes it all right. And it is so nice to see beforehand just how it is going to look. Besides, the ready-made skirt has lots of dainty ruffles and things that you cannot get a seamstress to put on. Really, they are not a quarter of what they were last year, while they are every bit as pretty. A dainty petticoat, too, gives an air to the simplest dress; and if there is a touch of the same color at the throat, or in the lining of your coat, you get a French effect without any serious outlay. As for their going out of fashion, that has been threatened for years and years, but they stay in fashion just the same. Still I am firm, and say just what I did at the start—they are delusions and extravagant snares—but aren't they pretty, just the same?

SOME TAPESTRY.

Mrs. Huntington's Gorgeous New Boudoir Described.

Eleanor Lexington writes to the St. Louis Star about one house in New York which is beautifully hung with tapestries, as follows:

Apropos to tapestry, among the most beautiful and costly decorations of C. P. Huntington's new house on Fifth avenue, of which he has just taken possession, are the tapestries, hung in hall and dining room. There are Gobelin and Aubusson tapestries, and while most of them are originals, a few are replicas of famous hangings which adorn the walls of the old castles and palaces of Europe.

Opening from Mrs. Huntington's boudoir is the tapestry room, which is almost as beautiful as that famous apartment in the old palace of the Knights of Malta.

The walls are entirely covered with splendid needle work pictures, some sixteen in number. Richly carved furniture, upholstered in crimson velvet, complete the furnishings of the tapestry room.

ASTOR'S EGYPTIAN HANGINGS.

Other New York members of the Croesus family—the Elbridge Gerrys, for instance, and the Phelps-Stokes, own many kings' ransoms worth of tapestries; some are so old that they are almost on the eve of dissolution, but like an Eastern rug, the older the better. You then cherish the delusion that it has descended to you from a long line of ancestors.

In Mrs. Astor's splendid new mansion are also delightful examples of tapestries, particularly of Brussels tapestry—the silk and gold point as it is called; some of the very oldest of her hangings are said to be replicas of Egyptian tapestries, seldom seen nowadays. So old is the art of making tapestry that it is spoken of in the Bible, and probably the making of these delightful stuffs originated somewhere in the shadow of the pyramids.

"I have woven my bed with cords. I have covered it with painted tapestry brought from Egypt," says a woman in the Book of Proverbs.

ORIGIN OF THE ARRAS.

An authority on the subject of tapestries, Mr. Getz, says that from Egypt, through Western Asia, the art of tapestry making found its way to Europe, and was followed in Flanders, Germany, England, Italy and Spain. Monks were among the best workers at this, and the walls and altars of their convents were hung with tapestry; trade guilds were formed in France and ancient Flanders, and several places won special fame, but Arras outran them all, so that "Arras-work," "Arras-hangings" or "Arrazzi" came to be a common word, meaning all sorts of tapestry woven by hand.

It is but one among other terms by which, during the middle ages, tapestry was called wherever it was made, for during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, Arras was the city from whence came the most important tapestries. They stood for all that was richest in color and choicest in material.

We all know what an important part Arras hangings used to play in old novels—indeed a story without its tapestry covered walls was very tame indeed.

GOLDEN AGE OF TAPESTRY.

The famous Gobelin tapestries originated with a family named Gobelin. Jehan Gobelin, of Rhelms, towards the middle of the fifteenth century, founded on the banks of the River Bievre, a dye-house which became celebrated and brought to its proprietors a fortune.

As to its manufacture, tapestry is neither real weaving nor true embroidery, but in a manner unites in its working these processes into one, to again quote Mr. Getz. Though wrought in a loom and upon a warp stretched out along its frame, it has no woof thrown across these threads with a shuttle or any like appliance, but its weft is done with many threads, all variously colored and intertwined by hand from the spool or "flute" upon a series of closely set white strings or "chains" of worsted or wool, thus forming a web and producing combinations of lines and tints analogous to those obtained by the painter with his brush.

FASHIONS FOR MEN.

Chicago Dispatch: Strait jackets are now being worn at all the fashionable asylum resorts.

Fringed pants are popular in newspaper and literary circles.

Cuffs will be turned end on end during the hot weather, and free drinks will be turned down.

Hemp collars will be much worn at the county jail this season. They will be cut to fit close under the left ear.

Razor-toed shoes will continue to be the correct thing in colored elite society.

Amateur sailors will wear frogged waistcoats during the coming yachting season.

Crooked cashiers will continue to take theirs straight both during and after office hours.

ALL ARE VAIN.

How a Traveling Man Won a Wager.

A reporter for the Washington Star was contending the point that however vain a person might be, especially a woman, her vanity was not strong enough to destroy her sense of truthfulness. The opposite side was defended by a New York traveling man, commonly known as a "drummer," and he was not only a stylish fellow, but he had the nerve that is sometimes ascribed to that peripatetic fraternity.

"Come," he said, "and I'll prove my point."

It was about 11 o'clock in the morning and the conversation was in an office on F street.

"How?" inquired the reporter.

"I'll show you how if you'll come with me."

The writer agreed to the proposition, and the drummer escorted him to a dry goods store where women congregate, and led him inside. They moved about the place for fifteen or twenty minutes, the writer asking for an explanation of the strange maneuvers every time he had a chance and getting no satisfactory answers. Finally the drummer overheard a lady telling the clerk she wanted her packages sent down to the train in time for her to get them there and carry them home with her. The next minute, as she turned away, he rushed up to her, with his hand extended, and the lady shook hands with him.

"How do you do?" he said in a friendly way.

"How do you do?" she responded, but with some doubt in her voice.

"I don't believe you remember me," he said in a hurt tone.

"Your face is quite familiar, but I don't quite place you."

"Don't you remember," he explained, "that I met you at the German ambassador's not long ago, and also at the dinner dance at the Brices, and again at the Assembly?"

She hesitated a moment, looking him over as she did so.

"Why, yes," she said, smiling very pleasantly. "I remember you quite well now, but I wasn't expecting to see you, don't you know, and didn't recognize you at first. You know how it is in Washington."

She smiled again, and he smiled and chatted with her a while, then they parted, and the drummer came back to the writer and took him out on the street.

"Now what do you think of it?" he asked.

"Think of what?"

"Of my proof that I was on the right side of that discussion."

"I don't see any proof. You merely met a lady whom you had met before and recalled yourself to her. There wasn't any proof in that."

"Wasn't there?" and the drummer laughed. "Think a minute. You know I don't know anybody in Washington outside of three or four merchants I sell to here, and them only in a business way. I never was at the German ambassador's in my life, nor any of those other places I mentioned. I have read of them in the papers that's all. And the lady? Why, she doesn't live in this town at all. Didn't you hear her order her packages sent to the train to meet her? I never saw her before. Just the same when she saw a well-dressed man identifying her as a member of the fashionable set of the capital, and knew the clerks and other women were hearing it, too, she let it go at that and never said a word to correct me. She never was at any of those places any more than I was, but she was too vain to deny it, even though she had to lie to maintain her position. See?"

STRANGE LAKE IN KENTUCKY.

A remarkable lake has been discovered in Marshall county, Ky., near Benton, says the Chicago Chronicle. It is known to very few even in the county, but a person who explored it vouches for the following facts: The lake is about fifty yards in width and 150 yards in length. The remarkable part of it is that this sheet of water, which is said to be bottomless, rests on the brow of an elevation 150 feet high. The water is exceedingly clear and the rain and drouth has no effect upon the stage of water. It is evidently not supplied by springs, for it freezes in winter. All manner of fish abound in its clear depths.

WAS GOULD INSANE?

Financial Worry and Physical Exertion Not the Greatest Destroyer of Human Life.

For Humanity's Sake. After Thirty-Six Years of Nerve-Creeping Slavery. He Tells How He Was Set Free.

Caldwell, N. J., May 15.—(Special.)—S. J. Gould, who has suffered terribly from tobacco tremens, has, in behalf of humanity, made known his frightful experience. His written statement, which is attracting widespread attention, says: "For thirty-six years I chewed, smoked, snuffed and rubbed snuff till my skin turned a tobacco brown and cold, sticky perspiration oozed from my skin, and trickled down my back at the least exertion or excitement. My nerve, vigor and life were slowly sapped. I had to quit tobacco or die. I tried to stop time and again but could not. I saw double and my memory was beyond control, still I knew how to chew and smoke, which I did all day, until my system got tobacco-soaked again. Finally I gave up in despair.

"Now, for suffering humanity, I'll tell what saved my life. Providence brought to my kind wife's attention a booklet called: 'Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.' What a sermon and warning in these words! Just what I was doing. It told about a guaranteed cure for the tobacco habit called No-To-Bac. I sent to Druggist Hasler for a box. Without a grain of faith I spit out my tobacco end and put into my mouth a little tablet upon which was stamped No-To-Bac. I took eight tablets the first day, seven the next, five the third day and all the nerve-creeping restlessness and mental depression was gone. It seemed too good to be true. I used one box. It cost me $1, and it is worth a thousand. I gained ten pounds in weight, and lost all desire for tobacco from the first day. I sleep and eat well, and have been benefited in more ways than I can tell. There's happiness in No-To-Bac for the prematurely old men who think as I did that they are old and worn out, when tobacco is the thing that destroys their vitality and manhood.

FINLEY'S POSITION.

Defined By a Circular From James J. Hill.

St. Paul, May 18.—W. W. Finley has been appointed second vice president of the Great Northern railway. The following circular was issued to the local railroad office this afternoon:

"W. W. Finley has this day been elected second vice president of the company. He will have, under the board of directors and the president, general charge of and supervision over all freight and passenger traffic and mail service, and of all revenues and income derived therefrom.

"Officers and employes of the company will report to him and be governed by his instructions in respect to all matters herein above referred to. (Signed)

James J. Hill, President."

PENNSYLVANIA FIRES.

Clearfield, Pa., May 18.—Forest fires are still raging in many places throughout this country. Word was received from Magee's Mills this morning that five houses and a church had been destroyed. At Montgomery the fires are burning fiercely and many houses and barnes are in danger. The Barret hotel at Barret was burned last night and the town is entirely surrounded by a big wood, which is all ablaze. In Goshen township Archer Spencer's barn was burned last night.

BOYCOTT IN MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, May 18.—The street railway strike is unchanged. The cars are running today as usual, after yesterday's idleness. The worst feature of the situation is the boycott, which is permeating every branch of business. The boycott has probably never been brought into such general use. A secret conference of Milwaukee Republicans was held this morning for the purpose of devising some means of alleviating the paralyzing situation. Nothing was accomplished further than arranging for a conference with the officials of the street railway company this afternoon.

A NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, May 18.—(Special to The Herald).—Elizabeth Jayn was today appointed postmaster at Dean, Rice county, Minn., vice Adolph L. Ludwig, resigned.

"MRS. EVERETT" AGAIN IDENTIFIED.

New York, May 18.—There has been another identification of "Mrs. Everett, of Boston," the Colonnade hotel suicide. This time Judge Ralph Hill, of Indianapolis, asserts that the woman was the wife of his son, E. E. Hill. The son is at present in London. His wife is said to have come to this country about a month ago.

CYCLONE

This Time Kansas Suffers From the Fury of the Winds.

Several Towns Are Devastated--Seven People Dead ---Many Injured.

Only Five Houses Left Standing in Reserve---Storm Notes.

Kansas City, May 18.—News of the loss of life and destruction of property by yesterday's cyclone in Kansas is slow in coming in, caused by the crippled condition of telegraph wires. What has been received makes it plain that previous estimates of the damage done were none too high, and in fact, may be added to when communication is completely reopened. Fully half a dozen towns were struck by the twister and the known dead are seven. The injured number fully thirty, many of whom it is feared are fatally hurt.

Reserve, a village on the Missouri Pacific in Brown county, seems to have felt the brunt of the storm. But five houses are said to have been left standing there. The list of killed and injured at Reserve follows:

KILLED.

D. W. Terhune, aged 60.
Ralph Sweeney, 9 years.
Viola Phillips, 4 years old.
Mrs. John Ryndler.

Injured—John Ryndler, fatally, blind son, leg broken; William Mellions, father of Mrs. Duertson, internally injured; Mrs. D. W. Terhune and daughter, internally hurt; Sherman Phillips, bruised and cut; Jerry Young and wife, cut and hurt; George Kennedy, cut and severely bruised; Ed Phillips, arm broken; Harry Thompson and wife; Frank Jones, jaw broken; Mrs. Sweeney and three children, hurts and bruises; Rev. Mr. Parker, wife and daughter, internally hurt; William Margrave, face and head bruised.

A special to the Star from Reserve says: This town was almost wiped out of existence by yesterday's cyclone. Hardly a house remained standing and wreckage is strewn everywhere. The white populace is homeless and great confusion prevails. Forty-four buildings in Reserve alone were razed. The barns and sheds of all the farmers living in the track of the storm were destroyed. The destructor came upon the villagers with scarcely any warning to them. The people fled precipitately to their cyclone cellars.

Many never reached the cellars. The confusion was indescribable. Darkness, added to the crash of falling timbers, the cries of the hurt and the almost deafening hiss and roar of the wind struck terror to the hearts of all. After the storm had passed those fortunate enough to have escaped its ravages set about helping the victims. All night long they searched for the wounded and missing and lanterns could be seen darting here and there. The injured are being well cared for. The few houses standing are wrenched and broken.

The cyclone crossed the central branch of the Missouri Pacific at Blue river, twenty miles east of Irving, then followed the railroad and the river to Frankfort; thence north to Baileyville, Seneca, Sabetha and Reserve, entering Nebraska at Fall River.

At Falls City it overturned twenty-six freight cars, demolished the Band M. freight depot and damaged twenty-six houses. Mr. and Mrs. Hinton are reported hurt at the latter place.

STORM NEAR SABETHA.

A special to the Star from Sabetha, Kan., says: At Sabetha there is one dead and fifteen injured, and twenty-five houses were totally destroyed and twice as many wrecked. Northwest of Sabetha three were killed and the desolation is widespread. Northeast of that town four killed and many injured. Six are reported killed near Oneida. The identified dead in the vicinity of Sabetha are:

Mrs. Jacob Meisner.
Hattie Buehne,
Helen Curry.
Sherrard and Conwell children, number not given.
Mrs. Dan Sailer.
Mrs. Schugg.
Mrs. Beachey.
Unknown woman.

The injured are: W. M. Carey, George Carey, William Machamer, S. P. Hay, Artisle Hagg, Mrs. Carey, two Carey children, Mrs. Dica Murphy, the latter not expected to live.

All are more or less seriously hurt. Forty Sabetha families are homeless and all their household effects are gone. A meeting of citizens has been called to render aid.

The cyclone seems to have spent its force at Preston in Nebraska where half of the buildings are reported wrecked and several people reported injured, some of them dangerously. Details are lacking, telegraph wires to that point being down.

FOREST FIRES RAGING.

Parkersburg, W. Va., May 18.—Forest fires are raging in Tucker county. Yesterday hundreds of men ineffectually fought the fire, which is burning more fiercely this morning than last night. Lumbermen estimate the loss at $500,000. The Middle Fork portion of the county is completely wiped out. The adjoining forest is now burning, with indications that the entire county will be devastated unless a rain prevents. Weather dry and warm with high winds. Farmers have left their homes to seek refuge in larger towns. So far no deaths are reported.

NEW CUSTOMS REGULATION.

Washington, May 18.—The house committee on ways and means today decided to report favorably the bill to permit custom officials to deliver packages not exceeding $500 in value to express companies and other inland carriers, under bond, after appraisal on the wharfs. Jewelry and precious stones are excepted. It also authorized Mr. Evans, of Kentucky, to call up in the house, under suspension of the rules, the bill to permit the bottling of spirits under bond in distilleries.

IS AGAINST WEBSTER.

Federal Supreme Court Hands Down a Decision.

Washington, May 18.—(Special to The Herald).—The supreme court affirmed the decision of the Minnesota supreme court in the case of A. F. Webster vs. Milo J. Luther, involving the ownership of lots 1 and 2, section 18, St. Louis county. The decision is against Webster.

WILL CONFIRM LOCHREN.

Senate Committee Favors His Judicial Nomination.

Washington, May 18.—The senate committee on judiciary today ordered a favorable report on the nomination of Pension Commissioner Lochren to be United States district judge of Minnesota.

A. P. A. OFFICERS.

Business of the Council About Closed.

Washington, May 18.—The list of new officers of the A. P. A. was completed at today's session of the supreme council. The additional officers are as follows:

Secretary, W. J. Palmer, of Butte, Mont.; treasurer, C. C. Campbell, of Minneapolis; sergeant-at-arms, J. W. Ellis, of South McAlester, I. T.; guard, W. B. Howard, Omaha, Neb.; sentinel, T. S. Henson, of Ohio; trustees, Allison Stocker, of Denver, Col.; George Hesler, Cleveland, Ohio, and W. J. White, Richmond, Va.

The election of officers occupied the entire time of the morning session. At noon the meeting adjourned, and a large body of the order went to the capitol and had personal interviews with members of the houses regarding the forthcoming action on the Indian appropriation bill. They regard their mission as satisfactory, and claim they are confident that the sectarian features of the measure will be stricken out. The afternoon session and probably final meeting of the order was begun at 2 o'clock. Most of the members have returned to their homes and only about 100 were present. The principal discussion was on the selection of place and date of the next meeting.

LI HUNG CHANG.

Chinese Envoy Cordially Welcomed at Moscow.

Moscow, May 18.—Li Hung Chang and suite arrived here today from St. Petersburg. The Chinese envoy was received in a most brilliant manner, and afterwards presided at a reception given in th Chinese embassy, which was profusely decorated with flags.

Field Marshal Yamagata, the Japanese envoy; the duke of Najera, the representative of Spain, and the crown prince of Roumania, have also arrived here. The latter was received at the railroad station by the grand duke, grand luchess and high officials with military honors, the band playing the national anthem.

Representatives of the rural population, to the number of about 600, have reached here and are lodged in the Korch theater, whose stage has been transformed into a vast dining hall. The costumes of the country visitors present a most picturesque sight, comprising all kinds from Middle Poland to the extreme Asiatic districts of the Russian empire.

Over Maison Peglow, in which the Chinese embassy is located, (the building belonging to an important firm of tea importers) floats Li Hung Chang's crest, the double dragon. The house is furnished throughout in Chinese style.

HOTEL BURNED.

Sioux Falls Loses the Merchants Hotel.

St. Paul, May 18.—A Sioux Falls, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: Early today fire broke out in the Merchants' hotel, owned by ex-Mayors Willy and Williams, and the blaze, which started in the kitchen, crawled between the walls to the roof, making it difficult to handle. About half the building was consumed and the rest rendered practically worthless.

So suddenly did the flames spread that the servants on the third floor barely escaped in their nightclothes, while the guests lost practically everything. Loss estimated at $20,000; insurance, $16,000.

NOT WORTH NOTICE.

Washington, May 18.—The attention of the state department has not been officially directed to the publications appearing in certain Spanish newspapers over the signature of Lieut. Sobral, the naval attache of the Spanish legation in this city, setting out the defenseless condition of the sea coast of the United States. Ordinarily, if the subject were deemed worthy of complaint, the initiative would be in the shape of representations from United States Minister Taylor at Madrid to the state department, stating the fact of these puns, but so far, nothing has been said of the matter beyond some gossip, in the diplomatic circles in Washington.

TRADE MARK DECISION.

Washington, May 18.—In the supreme court of the United States today Justice White handed down the opinion of the court in the case of the Singer Sewing Machine trade mark. The judgment of the court below, the circuit court of Illinois, northern district, which was against Singer, was reversed. The supreme court held, however, that others using the name Singer as a trade mark should show the source of manufacture.

PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS.

Washington, May 18.—The president today sent to the senate the following nominations: Interior—Kenneth M. Jackson, of Alaska, to be commissioner in and for the district of Alaska, to reside at Wrangel; Henry C. Fink, of Colorado, to be a receiver of public moneys at Montrose, Col.

EX-CHIEF STONE DEAD.

Denver, May 18.—Ex-Chief of Police John Stone died today after a brief illness. He was in charge of the force that defended the city hall against the state militia in April, 1894, when Governor Waite attempted to oust the police board by force. He has relatives in Philadelphia.

VOTING

Southern Fraternal Delegates Received Cordially--A Lot of Business.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 18.—Bishop Newman presided at today's session of the M. E. conference. As soon as the reading of the journal was completed a motion was made to take the ninth ballot for bishop. Dr. Buckley at once opposed this, on the ground that many of the ministers who went out of the city to preach on Sunday had not returned, and the voting was made a special order for 10 o'clock. In the meantime the routine proceedings began with a continuation of the consideration of the report of the committee on itinerancy. A brief interruption was made to introduce Dr. J. C. Morris and A. B. Perkins, of Texas, fraternal delegates from the Methodist Episcopal church South. It was Dr. Morris concerning whom an unfortunate complication arose at the time of his first visit and he has returned in order that the conference may redeem itself. The gentleman was shown scant courtesy on the occasion of his previous appearance before the conference a day or two after it had met here. Both gentlemen were received this morning with applause.

The time until 10 o'clock was fully occupied in a discussion of the committee on itinerancy, and at that hour the ninth ballot was taken. Immediately after the recess the tellers entered the room. The report of the Bible society was being read, and the customary applause broke out, but Bishop Newman promptly suppressed it. The ninth ballot was then announced. The result on the leaders was as follows: C. C. McCabe, 238; Earl Cranston, 236; H. A. Buttz, 218; J. W. Hamilton, 159; T. B. Neely, 57; J. W. Bowen, 17. No choice.

The result of the ballot proved to be a great surprise. The loss for McCabe was 32, Cranston 27, Bettz 62, Bowen 20, while the gain for Hamilton was 59, and for Neely 40. This bore out the rumor of a break to Neely and Hamilton, and the result of the tenth ballot was awaited with intense interest. The vote was taken when Dr. Teter, of Iowa, moved to defer all further balloting for bishop until the next general conference in 1900. No second was secured, and a general laugh was caused, and the tellers retired to count the vote.

Bishop Newman at this point presented Rev. W. L. Watkinson, fraternal delegate from the British Wesleyan conference, who said a few words of farewell. Bishop Newman's response was a gem, and called forth most prolonged applause. The report of the committee on resolutions was then read. It showed no changes other than minor matters of routine were recommended.

The tenth ballot resulted as follows: Cranston, 259; McCabe, 223; Buttz, 193; Hamilton, 180; Neely, 81; Bowen, 12. Necessary for choice, 341. Before the tenth and last ballot of the morning was announced, rumors of a Cranston-Hamilton combination began to gain circulation. This union of the East and West seemed to be a certainty when the result was announced. It was a gain for Hamilton of 21, for Cranston of 23, for Neely of 24, and a loss to McCabe of 15, to Bowen of 5 and Buttz of 25. The combined vote was going to Cranston, while, so far as the East was concerned, it divided between Neely and Hamilton. Should the next ballot show the Cranston-Hamilton combination to be non-effective, a trial of the Cranston-Neely combination will probably be made, as the friends of Cranston are determined he shall win if possible. The eleventh ballot was taken, and the conference recessed until 2:30 o'clock, when the result will be announced.

On the eleventh ballot as announced 580 votes were cast, making 339 necessary to a choice. Of these Cranston received 245; Hamilton, 191; McCabe, 214; Butlz, 174; Neely, 131, and Bowen, 7. The twelfth ballot was ordered, after which the conference adjourned until 5:30 p. m.

EXTRADITION REFUSED.

New York, May 18.—Consul General Williams has telegraphed from Havana, Cuba, that the authorities there refuse to deliver for extradition to this country Martel Martin, alias Gonzales Mendoza, who is wanted here on the charge of swindling August Belmont & Co. out of $24,000 by means of forged drafts. It is learned at the state department that the reported refusal of the Spanish authorities to extradite Mendoza or Martin is an error arising out of the fact that Consul General Williams wired that the man was under arrest, not on the charges made against him by the United States, but for other causes, the nature of which he did not know. The state department papers asking for his extradition have not yet reached Havana.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE CASE.

Chicago, May 18.—The trial of John W. Rinehart and John A. Hanley, ex-officials of the Santa Fe railroad, for violating the interstate commerce laws, was continued in Judge Grosscup's court today until May 21. Gen. Black, the district attorney, asked for the continuance on the part of the government, on account of the absence of James H. Shields, the Iowa attorney, in charge of the prosecution. It is not probable that the case will then be tried, as the two important witnesses, Nelson Morris and V. S. Jenkins, of the Hammond Packing company, are out of the country, and no subpoena has been served upon them. They, with Isaac Thompson, of Kansas City, are said to have received the reduced rate on cattle, upon which the indictments are based.

AN HONORARY COLONEL.

Berlin, May 18.—Emperor William has appointed the empress of Russia to be honorary colonel of the Second Dragoon guards, which regiment will hereafter be termed the Empress Alexandria's dragoons.

HOLT WILL CASE.

Noted Action at Last Before the Court.

Washington, May 18.—The trial of the noted Holt will case began today. It has been pending almost a year. The question at issue is the genuineness of a tattered alleged will of the former Judge Advocate General Joseph Holt, of Kentucky, which was found in the mails of the register of wills here last year.

Judge Holt, who died in August, 1894, was supposed to have died intestate, and the validity of the alleged will, whose mysterious appearance created wide-spread conjecture, has been vigorously contested. A notable array of counsel were present. The beneficiaries under the will are Mrs. Josephine Holt Throckmorton, and Miss Lizzie Hynes, of Kentucky, between whom the estate was equally divided. Luke Devlin, a war department clerk was named as executor and for these appeared ex-Congressman B. J. Butterworth, J. J. Darlington and Blair Lee, the counsel for the heirs-at-law are ex-Congressman Jere Wilson, ex-Assistant Attorney General Worthington, and Attorneys Head, of Washington, and Poston, of Louisville, Ky.

The signatures of Gen. Sherman and Mrs. W. T. Sherman, which are on the will, were identified as genuine by Senator Sherman, of Ohio, and Col. Fred Grant, of New York, testified to the genuineness of the signature of the late President Grant.

TELLER'S CANDIDACY.

Colorado Paper Suggests Him For President.

Denver, May 18.—The Rocky Mountain News, in a leading editorial, today says: "The question of Teller as the Democratic candidate for president should at once interest the Democrats of the mountain states. Might it not be worth the efforts of Colorado Democrats to organize with the Democracy of its neighboring states, to present Teller, should he bear himself at St. Louis, as there is right to expect he will, to the Southern Democrats and say to them: 'If you will accept him he will have the support of all the mountain region, and we will unite with you in making him the leader of the movement for the restoration to a bankrupted and well nigh hopeless people of the money of the constitution the life blood of commerce and the wand by the touch of which prosperity will rise and take the country once again in its healthful, invigorating embrace?'"

COCKERILL'S FUNERAL.

Impressive Ceremonies Over the Dead Writer.

New York, May 18.—The obsequies of the late Col. John A. Cockerill were held today. From the Press club, where the body had lain in state since Saturday, the remains were conveyed to Scottish Rite hall. Over the casket was thrown the mortuary banner of the Loyal Legion, and on this was a wreath of white roses and immortelles which bore the inscription: "From John's Wife."

The services at the hall included brief addresses by the following: T. F. Bryan, exalted ruler of the B. P. O. E., and J. Howard, Jr., president of the Press club. Then the body of the distinguished journalist was conveyed to Calvary Baptist church, where religious services were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. McArthur.

SEPARATE COACHES.

Must Be Provided For Whites and Blacks.

Washington, May 18.—The supreme court of the United States decided today, in what is known as the "Jim Crow" car case of Plessy vs. Ferguson, that the statute of the state of Louisiana requiring railroad companies to supply separate coaches for white and colored passengers is constitutional, affirming the decision of the court below. Justice Brown delivered the opinion. Justice Harlan dissented.

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Conferees' Report Will Be Ready Tomorrow.

Washington, May 18.—The conferees on the river and harbor bill expect to have their report ready tomorrow night. Of the senate bill so far passed upon, the house has yielded about one-half. The main questions in dispute are the additional contracts authorized by the senate.

The senate amendments authorizing contracts to the extent of $1,173,000 for Bayou Plaquemine, La., and the house provision of $315,000 for the Calcasieu river, Louisiana, together with the Delaware river projects, the boat railway on the Columbia river and the Lakes Union and Washington canal at Seattle, Wash., are the main points still in dispute. It is quite probable that no agreement will be reported on them at present.

ATLANTA'S FIRE VICTIM.

Atlanta, Ga., May 18.—A close search of the ruins of the Markham block, which was swept clean by fire last night, revealed this morning the charred remains of a human body, which proved to be that of W. T. Zachary, a negro driver, who was asleep in a carriage in the Millam & Patterson livery stable, which was one of the first buildings destroyed. So far as known no other lives were lost.

OTTO CAMPHAUSEN DEAD.

Berlin, May 18.—Herr Otto Camphausen, formerly Prussian minister of finance, is dead. He was born in 1812, and as minister of finance in 1870 had to meet the necessities of the situation caused by the war between Prussia and France. His services upon that occasion were highly appreciated and upon the retirement of Gen. Von Roon, in 1873, Herr Camphausen was appointed vice president of the ministry of state.

SUNDAY LAW UPHELD.

Washington, May 18.—Justice Harlan today delivered the opinion of the supreme court in the case of Hennington vs. the State of Georgia, involving the constitutionality of the state law prohibiting the running of freight cars in Georgia on Sunday. The opinion held the law to be valid.

SPANISH PETARD EXPLODED.

Madrid, May 18.—A petard was exploded today in the street near the royal palace. No damage was done.

RECEIVED

Largest Queen's Drawing Room of the Season Held Today.

Duchess of Marlborough and Other American Ladies Were Presented.

London, May 18.—The princess of Wales, assisted by her daughters and Prince Charles of Denmark, held the largest drawing room of the season at Buckingham palace today, in behalf of the queen. The weather was warm and great crowds lined the hall. The marquis of Salisbury and the commander-in-chief, Lord Wolseley, as well as all the members of the diplomatic corps, were among those present.

The Americans presented were the duchess of Marlborough, formerly Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, Mrs. Calvin Brice and her two daughtes and Mrs. Douglas Grant, of New York. Mrs. Henry Asquith, formerly Miss Margot Tennant, was also presented.

Thomas F. Bayard, United States ambassador, and Mrs. Bayard and Mr. Carter, Mr. Bayard's secretary, were the only representatives of the United States embassy present.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Week's Market Opened Quiet and Depressed.

New York, May 18.—The stock market opened quiet and depressed, with marked pressure against some of the high-priced shares. Manhattan declined 2 points to 100¼; Consolidated Gas, 1⅝ to 154¾, and Sugar lost ¾ per cent. The concessions in the other shares were less important. The engagement of $1,100,000 gold for export to Germany tomorrow accelerated the selling movement after 10:15, and general recessions were made extending to 1 per cent in Chicago Gas. Tobacco was an exception to the general trend of values, rallying by 11 o'clock to 66.

Trading was without notable feature during the second hour. Manhattan rallied about a point on covering by shorts, but did not retain the improvement. A slight reduction in the price of refined sugars imparted heaviness to the market for the shares, the common declining to 121⅛. At midday the general market showed fairly steady at a slight recovery from the lowest. The sales to noon were 67,700 shares.

A BLAZING VILLAGE.

New Jersey Hamlet Threatened With Destruction.

New York, May 18.—The village of Waretown, N. J., is reported to be burning. It is a place of about 200 population. Assistance has been summoned from Manchester, N. J. Fire was started in the woods near Waretown by sparks from a locomotive and it was driven by a high wind upon the village which was without a fire department. There are rumors of loss of life in consequence of the conflagration.

A BATCH OF BILLS.

Senate Disposed of Several Minor Measures.

Washington, May 18.—In the senate today the following bills were passed:

Authorizing the purchase by the United States and the making free of toll roads passing over the Yosemite National park; regulating the pay of non-commissioned officers of artillery, cavalry and infantry as follows: Sergeant major, $30; regimental quartermaster, $30; first sergeant, $30; sergeant, $25; corporal, $17. A proviso to the last bill provides for a continuance of longevity pay as heretofore. Appropriating $200,000 for a public building and site at Deadwood, S. D.

Mr. Chandler secured the adoption of a resolution calling on the attorney general for a statement of the condition of the government suits instituted in New York city as to the joint Railroad Traffic association between Chicago and the Atlantic seaboard.

IMMIGRATION BILL PENDING.

Washington, May 18.—The house committee on rules today decided to bring in a special order for the consideration of the McCall immigration bill and amendments today and tomorrow. The McCall bill provides an educational test, and is substantially similar to the Lodge bill. The Stone bill, which provides for consular inspection, will be offered as a substitute. The rules committee also decided to give the committee on labor some time this week for their report.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY.

Springfield, Ill., May 18.—Edward M. Hoy, for nine years manager of Ryan's branch drug store a man of excellent reputation and family, was arrested today charged with being implicated in the Buffalo bank robbery. Hoy was manager of the store where Joseph Kloppenberg clerked. The latter states that Hoy put up the job to rob the bank, and secured the largest division of the stolen money. Hoy refuses to talk.

HORSESHOERS' CONVENTION.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 18.—The twenty-second annual convention of the Journeymen Horseshoers' International union, of the United States and Canada, opened its sessions here today. The convention will last probably until Friday. The secretary's report shows a membership of about 25,000.

WEYLER

And That Official Threatened to Withdraw His Passports and Consulate.

Then There Was a Great Commotion in the Captain General's Palace.

New York, May 18.—A special to the Herald from Havana says: The action of Consul General Williams in protesting against the methods of trial of the prisoners of the American schooner Competitor adopted by the Spanish authorities is worth more than a passing mention. Before the court-martial closed, Consul General Williams' letter of protest was read. The representative of the United States quoted the treaties existing between the United States and Spain, and denied the right of the latter to try American citizens and others sailing under the American flag by other than civil hands, adding that even in the latter case they must be judged by ordinary and not by drum head military and naval courts, and be permitted to employ legal counsel and present witnesses in evidence.

A note by the judge advocate general, which had also been endorsed by Admiral Navarro, the highest naval officer of Spain in Cuba, ruling Consul General Williams' protest as without good ground and ou. of order, was also read and noted.

Within three hours after the court-martial closed its session, at a special meeting in the afternoon its members sent to Admiral Navarro a sealed verdict, which was immediately opened and approved by the naval chief. The sentences of all five prisoners to death in accordance with the verdict were signed at once, and preparations were made to have the men shot.

Receiving no satisfactory response from the admiral, nor even an invitation to attend the proceedings, neither Consul General Williams nor any attache of his office was present at the court-martial, nor was he allowed to see the prisoners after the trial had closed. Naturally he laid the whole case before the state department at Washington by wire early, and promptly received instructions. When these arrived he went directly to the palace, where a stormy interview with Capt. Gen. Weyler occurred. The captain general told the consul general that if the men had been convicted, as the latter supposed, they would most certainly be shot at sunrise the following morning, despite any protest that the United States might make.

"If you shoot them," said Mr. Williams, "my government instructs me to close its consulate here and demand my passports, as it shall most certainly hold you and your government responsible should these prisoners be executed before our protest be given due consideration."

When Consul General Williams bowed himself out of the captain general's presence and drove back to his office the excitement that followed at the palace became almost indescribable. The president and judges of the supreme civil tribunal of the island, the chairman of the leading conservative parties and the managing director of the Spanish bank were called into consultation by Capt. Gen. Weyler and Admiral Navarro. The majority of these personages advised the authorities to suspend the execution pending higher instructions from Madrid. Gen. Weyler said "no," that if the men were not executed he would resign. He so telegraphed the Spanish ministry, it is reported.

In the meantime, it appears, the United States was, through Minister Taylor, bringing pressure to bear also at Madrid. Orders came from Spain to suspend all proceedings, and directing the captain general and Admiral Navarro to transmit all documents in the case to Madrid for consideration there by the supreme military and naval council and cabinet. Gen. Weyler, it is said, also received a message telling him to await a more opportune moment to give up his command, as for diplomatic reasons the government could not afford at this crisis to have him suddenly resign. Consul General Williams had won. The transfer of the case to Madrid will give the prisoners at least a month or six weeks' respite.

SUICIDE'S FUNERAL.

Made the Occasion For a Pretoria Demonstration.

Pretoria, May 18.—There was a great demonstration today upon the occasion of the funeral of F. L. Gray, the reform committee man, who committed suicide by cutting his throat while in jail, laboring under melancholy induced by his prosecution. Barney Barnato rode in the first carriage. The streets were packed with people. Many wreaths were sent by Gray's fellow prisoners.

HORRIBLE TORTURE.

Witchery and Murder Among Coast Indians.

Seattle, Wash., May 18.—In jail at Juneau, waiting trial on the charge of murder, is Chief Ye-Teetleeh, the Tyee of the Hoonan Indians, a small tribe of some hundred members occupying Chilekakoff islands, about 100 miles southerly from Juneau. The offence with which the old chief is charged is the murder, by torture, of his nephew, whom he accused of witchcraft. The chief had a disease affecting his right leg, which had gradually eaten the greater part away. He dreamed that his nephew had bewitched him, and on the strength of this, he proceeded to inflict punishment due the crime.

The victims' knees were bent close back, and in this position he was bound tightly to a tree. An iron band, a quarter of an inch thick was then placed around his face, sinking into the nose and covering the eyes, and this was also made fast to the tree, so that he was unable to move his head in any direction. He was left in this position to starve to death. He lived five days. He was 25 years of age.

FOREIGN CROPS.

Europe Will Have Plenty Wheat This Year.

Washington, May 18.—The foreign statistics gathered by the agricultural department show the crop conditions throughout the year. The summary follows:

Great Britain—The crop outlook everywhere is good and promises a harvest about two weeks earlier than usual. This would diminish the imports for the remainder of the current cereal year by about 5,000,000 bushels.

France—With normal weather until harvest the wheat crop will more than suffice for home requirements. A surplus for export is confidently predicted by French agricultural journals and statisticians, some expecting that it will amount to 40,000,000 bushels. This quantity would affect prices, especially if the French government should pay a bounty on exports.

Austria-Hungary—The weather has been favorable, and the crops promise well.

Roumania—Cold weather in April retarded the crops, but the outlook is generally promising.

The unfavorable March weather in the south is found to have done no serious damage. Spring sowings have been completed under good conditions.

BRITISH BARK LOST.

Wreckage of the Cadzow Forest is Found.

Vancouver, B. C., May 18.—At last some definite news has been received as to the fate of the British bark Cadzow Forest, which has so long been missing, and which has been given up as lost. From news received yesterday it appears that the fears that the vessel was wrecked were only too well founded. It will be remembered that the vessel was last seen off the mouth of the Columbia river, having come up from San Francisco to load grain for Portland. Owing to the storm, she was blown out to sea, and never again heard of.

The little missionary steamer Glad Tidings, belonging to the Methodist church, arrived in port from a cruise among the Indian missionary stations last night. While at China Hat, on the west coast of Vancouver island, Capt. Alcock reports that some Indians showed him a life buoy bearing the name Cadzow Forest, which they had picked up the day before on the beach. The Indians also say that a large amount of wreckage and lumber was also strewn along the beach.

FIXING A CRIME.

Evidence of Murder Against Young Blanther.

San Francisco, May 18.—Evidence is accumulating against J. E. Blanther, suspected of the murder of Mrs. Philoppena Langfeldt on Friday night. Through the unwilling aid of his bosom companion, George Dodge, and the voluntary statement of J. H. Lynch, a fellow-roomer, Blanther's movements have been in part traced. It is believed that the murder of Mrs. Langfeldt took place before 11 o'clock on Friday night. Between 11 o'clock and midnight Blanther entered the bedroom of the residence where he roomed to wash his hands.

When J. H. Lynch started to enter the room Blanther hastily disappeared without saying a word, and as Lynch stepped to wash in the basin he was surprised to see that it was reddened as though with blood. It is said that the police have recovered from a pawnshop the diamond ring which was stolen from Mrs. Langfeldt by the murderer. A description of Blanther has been telegraphed all over the country.

AN ITALIAN MURDER.

Catskill, N. Y., May 18.—Joseph Caserta, a leading member of the Italian colony, was murdered last night by a fellow countryman, named Pascal. The deed was committed at a christening, at which there had been considerable indulgence in liquor. A quarrel arising among the men about a woman, Pascal seized a gun and shot Caserta through the back. Pascal was arrested.

MEXICAN MILLS BURN.

Torreon, Mex., May 18.—The largest flouring mills and grain elevators of the Allanza Manufacturing company, situated here, have been destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $150,000. The mill was the largest in Northern Mexico. The amount of insurance is small. There was a large stock of grain consumed.

A LYNCHING PROBABLE.

San Antonio, Tex., May 18.—There is a prospect of a lynching taking place in Duval county, south of here. Two weeks ago Benito Orita and Yidefonso Garza, two well known and highly respectable citizens of that county, were shot and killed from ambush. Valentine Colonzo confessed that he did the deed. The murdered men had numerous friends, and they are making strong threats of lynching Colonzo. The latter is in jail.

MURDER

Discarded Lover's Terrible Revenge on His Old Time Sweetheart.

Murders Her and Her Husband and Then Kills Himself.

Tacoma, May 18.—In Beaver Prairie, Clallam county, in the dense forest, 70 miles from a telegraph office, last Tuesday, Charlie Paul, of Wisconsin, killed David McConchie and his wife, and then took his own life. The tragedy happened at the home of the McConchies. Paul was a discarded lover of Mrs. McConchie, who married McConchie last fall while Paul was away. As soon as Paul learned of the marriage, he wrote letters to her swearing he would kill her and her husband.

Charles Terwilliger was examining his bear traps on the shore of the lake on Tuesday, and saw a note pinned to the door of a deserted cabin, which gave directions to look in a certain place in the house for a letter. This letter was addressed to Christian Grossklaus, by Paul, and said Paul had gone to kill Mr. and Mrs. McConchie, after which he would take his own life.

A party was formed, and, reaching the shore of the lake opposite McConchie's house, they found McConchie's boat and in it the dead body of Paul. The body of Mrs. McConchie was found on the floor of her home, her head nearly severed from her body, and everything showed that a fearful struggle had taken place between the woman and man.

He was a remorseless victim of misapplied devotion.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Since President Hill, of the Great Northern road, took the Fargo Argus from Maj. Edwards, there have been many changes in the morning paper and another is billed to occur within a day or two. Frank H. Irons and Frank L. Gage, who have been running it for some time, are frozen out, and Col. Robinson, of Mayville, chairman of the state republican central committee, buys Hill's interest. It is alleged that Jud La Moure, Senator Haggart, Bailey Fuller, of Jamestown, and Hon. Mr. Jennings are interested, but this is denied, and Robinson is said to be the sole owner. Col. J. C. Warnock, the veteran editor of Jamestown, is to be editor in chief and E. Hoskins, clerk of the state supreme court, business manager. Irons and Gage are to buy the Commonwealth, Populist evening paper, and convert it into a morning paper in opposition to the Argus. Some surprise is manifested that Robinson would buy a paper and the move is said to be in the interests of his candidacy for the United States senate against Hansbrough, though Robinson's friends claim he is in no sense a candidate and merely bought the paper to sell. Consolidation of the Argus and the Grand Forks Herald, the leading morning dailies of the state, will both be against Hansbrough. The policy of the Argus will, it is said, be a change from its present Great Northern proclivities to a policy more favorable to the Northern Pacific.

J. D. Bacque, a sea captain, secured a divorce at Fargo Saturday afternoon. Desertion was the formal charge, though the suit had been instituted on a more serious charge, as the result of a domestic scrape between the captain and a prominent government official at Halifax, N. S., in which the latter came off much the worse.

J. P. Semmer, aged 40, was found on his sister's farm, hanging from a beam in the barn, dead, at Mekinock. He had complained for several days of having severe pains in the head. An inquest held today resulted in the conclusion that he came to his death while temporarily insane.

The Great Northern has dropped its case against Dan Stewart, its defaulting cashier, at Grand Forks. The sum was $2000, for $900 of which Agent Pegan was held responsible. Stewart was acted once and acquitted, but was held for trial a second time.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Before Governor Sheldon left Pierre, a week ago, he left a note to Attorney General Crawford, then absent, directing him to at once demand from Regent J. W. Shannon the return of the $150 alleged to have been illegally taken by him from the Hatch fund of the agricultural college, and if it was not at once returned, to begin suit to recover. The demand was made, and Shannon replied in an attempt to justify his action. Suit has been commenced, the first papers being served yesterday. This will make another interesting chapter in the agricultural college muddle.

The first $75,000 of state warrants that were issued after the discovery of the embezzlement of State Treasurer Taylor in February, 1895, to pay running expenses with, have been paid in full. The First National bank of Deadwood held $50,000, and the American National bank $25,000. When this issue of warrants was announced these two banks immediately wired State Treasurer Phillips for the amounts. Their purchases were the only ones made by banks in this state and the first made by any one.

FOR YOUR PROTECTION.

Catarrh "cures" in liquid form to be taken internally usually contain either mercury or iodide of potassium, or both, which are injurious if too long taken. Catarrh is a local, not a blood disease, caused by sudden change to cold and damp weather. It starts in the nasal passages. Cold in the head causes excessive flow of mucus, and, if repeatedly neglected, the results of catarrh will follow, and oftentimes an offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles, and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug.

WEST END

Capt. Mann, of the Mary Mann, Troubled By Hoodlums.

W. E. Lawrence Ran Into a Wagon While Cycling Friday Evening.

The Saw Mill Men Had a Session on Saturday Evening.

Capt. Mann, of the steamer Mary Mann, was a visitor at the police department this morning making complaint about parties who he says exasperated him yesterday while taking a ride on his ferry. He claims that they rang the bell, blew the whistle and made a nuisance of themselves generally. He attempted to put a stop to their diversions and finally the affair wound up in a general scrap, during which the captain pummelled the face of one of the fellows and he in turn got one of his fingers broken. The captain said this morning that he did not know their names, but he intended to find out who the parties were and have them arrested. He claims to have been troubled considerably by such actions during the past two summers and says that he proposed to put a stop to them, if possible.

COLLIDED WITH A TEAM.

W. E. Lawrence collided with a team while riding on his wheel Friday evening on Grand avenue and now carries a face which very nearly necessitates an introduction to his most intimate friends. He did not see the team coming and ran plump into the neckyoke between the horses. He received a deep cut in the forehead and both eyes present a very much battered appearance. It is fortunate that he was not more seriously injured and his accident is a warning to other wheelmen not to ride on the streets at night without a lantern. It will be interesting to bicycle riders to learn that the wheel was entirely uninjured.

SAWMILL MEN MEET.

The sawmill men held another rousing meeting at Great Eastern hall on Saturday evening. J. S. McCormick presided. One hundred new members were added to the roll, making the union one of the largest at the head of the lakes. Speeches were made by James Murray and Mrs. S. G. Akin.

OWNS 35,000 DOGS.

Gustave Javanovitch has a fondness for dogs, says the New York World. He has altogether 35,000 of the animals. That ought to prove the case. Javanovitch is not, however, insane or a monomaniac on the subject of canines. In addition to his tremendous kennels he has the largest herd of sheep in the world. When his flocks are all rounded up at shearing time the figures show that Gustave has 1,500,000 bleating lambs and butting rams. It is because of the sheep he owns the dogs.

Javanovitch is the sheep king of Russia. On the lower plateaus or steppes of the lower country he has thousands of acres of land. Men are needed, of course, to see to the comfort and well being of the animals, but it would require a good sized army of employes to look after 1,500,000 sheep.

Nearly all of Javanovitch's sheep dogs are Scotch collies. The shepherds of Scotland have used them for centuries in carling for their flocks. When Javanovitch started the nucleus for his immense establishment he imported fifty of the dogs from Scotland. Under careful coaching they developed the traits of their canine ancestors, and now care for the flock as well if not better than an unlimited number of men could do it. The great foes of sheep on the Russian plains are wolves.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Did you ever think how readily the blood is poisoned by constipation? Bad blood means bad health and premature old age. DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills, overcome obstinate constipation. S. F. Boyce.

The things that people see are inside of them and not outside. No two people see the same thing exactly alike. One woman may look out at a beautiful landscape and see all the beauty and restfulness and grandness that there is in it. Another one will look out at the same scene and see nothing. The man who is perfectly well and vigorous enjoys life to the full. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes people well. There isn't anything miraculous about it—it is the most natural thing in the world. It simply puts the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, in perfect order and thereby makes the blood pure and rich. All diseases live and thrive on impure blood. Keep a stream of pure, rich, red blood flowing into a diseased spot, and the disease will not stay. A man lives on rich, pure blood, and disease dies on it.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

This is berry week—strawberries, of course—on Michigan street, and the luscious fruit is coming in in carloads every day, fresh and juicy, and prices are about as low as they will get. Pineapples were in evidence yesterday in great quantity, but the price ruled steady. Green stuff was very plentiful and eggs ruled ½c lower. Poultry was scarce and dressed meats firm. Hay and feed were unchanged.

DECLINED

Wheat Was Weak and Uneasy Today and the Price Dropped.

All the Principal News Was of a Rather Depressing Character.

A Very Small Decrease in the Visible Broke the Market.

Wheat was weak and rather uneasy today. There were good rains over the winter wheat belt, cables were indifferent, the world's shipments, according to private advices, were large, the Northwest receipts were large and the decrease in the visible supply was not large. In fact the agricultural news was of a rather depressing character. Notwithstanding that, the price kept remarkably steady for an hour at about ½c under Saturday's closing quotations with a momentary advance to even a shade above the last trading point at which the week had closed. It was not until the visible supply statement was finished and brought keen disappointment to the bulls, by the smallness of the decrease it showed in the stocks, that their courage deserted them and they bowed their heads to the accumulation of bearish advices. Not that there was wanting in the market news of a bullish nature, but the other kind predominated and increased its influence up to the middle hour of the day. The visible decrease was only 854,000 bus against 3,129,000 bus decrease a year ago, and this had a very weakening effect.

July opened ¼c lower at 62c and fluctuated between 61⅝c and 62¼c during the first hour, after which it declined to 61⅜c and reacted ¼c but the strength was shortlived and before 1 o'clock the price was down to 60⅝c, with the last sale at 61c bid. The mills bought 15,000 bus to arrive at ⅛c under July, and 75,000 bus were taken at ⅛c under July to go into store. The close was 1⅛c lower all round than Saturday, except for June, which was ⅝c lower. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 61⅜c; May, 61¾c; July, 62¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 60⅝c; May, 60⅝c; July, 60⅜c bid; July, 61c bid; September, 61c. No. 2 northern, cash, 57¾@58¼c. No. 3, 56@57c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 18.—Under the influence of growing weather and improved prospects in the Southwest, the crowd overlooked the continued rains in the Northwest and had wheat for sale all day. French cables reported the drouth broken in Spain and the world's shipments of last week were enough to demoralize holders here as our own country shipped less than one-quarter of the aggregate. Long wheat came out all day, the very small and disappointing decrease in the visible adding to the weakness. The agricultural department's report of foreign crops is quite bearish in its tone. There was little demand for cash wheat here but some business was done at the seaboard. A few small lots of red wheat which were bought some time ago for shipment to country millers were for sale again today and met no buyers. The market looks weak enough to be a purchase but will probably go lower in the absence of outside speculation.

Corn and oats weak and lower.

Provisions steady and some investment buying noted in lard.

Puts, July wheat, 60@⅝c.

Calls, July wheat, 61⅝@¾c.

DESECRATING THE DAY.

A letter from a Grand Army veteran protesting against the desecration of Memorial day by the holding of horse races, bicycle races, baseball games and other forms of sport, was recently published in The Herald. It is to be deeply regretted that such a protest should be necessary and the low tone of public sentiment should be responsible for this desecration of the day set apart by the nation to the memory of the heroic dead. Preparations are now being made in Duluth and neighboring towns for elaborate programs of amusements on Memorial day. It would be a wise and patriotic idea on the part of those who have projected these events to postpone them to some other date. Surely it is not necessary that they should be held on the annual "festival of the dead." There is a time for everything, and certainly Memorial day is not a fit and appropriate occasion for indulging in public amusements of this character. Some respect should be shown for the memories of the nation's heroes and for the feelings of those who lost fathers, husbands, brothers and sons in the great struggle for the perpetuation of the Union.

The following extract from the Philadelphia Inquirer should be read carefully by those who, perhaps thoughtlessly, are preparing to desecrate the day: "For several years past the Inquirer has called attention to the growing impropriety of the popular observance of Decoration day. This year the Grand Army posts of the state have asked Governor Hastings to issue a proclamation deprecating the desecration of the day. Ten thousand survivors of the war have united in this protest and appeal, and that the action was necessary is as true as that the necessity is to be regretted. Perhaps the worst taste manifested in the wrong observance of Decoration day is the selection of the day by the fashionable society of some of the Eastern cities for a horse show. That being the case, it is hardly surprising that in other circles the day is coming to be devoted to horse racing, games of baseball, picnics, dances, and other amusements that are altogether out of keeping with the purpose for which the solemn Memorial day was established. In all grades of society there are thousands of persons to whom the misuse of Decoration day is almost as offensive as a game of baseball in a church yard on Good Friday morning would be. To the thousands of men and women whose fathers and brothers fill soldiers' graves, Decoration day possesses a solemnity beyond that of any other day in the year. While there is no way to restrain individual liberty by law on this day, something is due to the memory of those who died for their country and the feelings of others who sacrificed their best beloved in its behalf, and Philadelphia's higher social circles should question the propriety of being seen at horse shows on a day which is so full of solemn memories for so many thousands."

The Herald believes in sports of all kinds and is always ready to give every assistance in its power towards making a success of all the races and games which may be arranged, but it deprecates most strongly the turning of Memorial day, a solemn and sacred national festival into a day of sport and jollification.

THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

The indications are now quite strong that the silver men will elect a majority of the delegates to the Democratic national convention. The administration or goldbug Democrats are putting forth great efforts to stem the silver tide, but so far they have not succeeded to any great extent. The battle has been raging fiercely in Kentucky, where Secretary Carlisle is using all the influence at his command to elect gold delegates. But the silver men are getting the delegates. The other day in ex-Governor McCreary's district, despite that influential politician's opposition, the silver men elected the delegates by large majorities. Illinois will elect a silver delegation, and reports from all parts of the South and West show that the silver Democrats are carrying everything before them.

Meanwhile there is talk that the gold men, who are in control of the Democratic national committee, will endeavor to nullify the verdict of the primaries and district and state convention. The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times-Herald, who is usually well informed respecting the purposes of the administration, says: It is apparent that the administration hosts are preparing to play desperate politics at Chicago. They mean to control that convention by hook or crook. The inside gossip here is that the national Democratic committee is ready to do the president's bidding, and that it intends to put enough sound money delegates on the temporary roll to give a majority to that faction, no matter how many silver delegates present themselves for admission. As these things go, it may be necessary for the president's friends to resort to rather questionable means to accomplish the object in view, but they are proceeding upon the theory that the end justifies the means. In plain English, the president and his advisers intend to take possession of the convention by fair means or foul, and if there is to be any bolting the other fellows will have it to do." Should this be done, there will be the liveliest kind of a time at Chicago in July.

IS INSANITY INCREASING?

A paper contending that insanity is not on the increase in the United States has been published by Dr. Edwin A. Down, superintendent of the hospital for the insane at Hartford, Conn. Dr. Down claims that a large number of the persons to whom the term lunatic seems difficult to apply come within the limits of the definition and are registered as insane. Eccentric characters who are harmless enough, if not molested by small boys, and weak adults come to be included among those of unsound minds and are sent to the state institutions." Dr. Down says that the placing of such cases under state care is most wholesome. Such persons are prevented from wandering to and fro, a daily reproach to the community, and are placed in a position which effectually prevents the propagation of their kind.

It would be gratifying to suppose that insanity is not increasing, as Dr. Downs contends, but unfortunately for such a comfortable thought the figures upon the subject to do not sustain the claim. In Dr. Down's own state, according to the published statistics, there has been a steady increase of insane during the past forty years. In 1850 the number of insane in Connecticut was 470, one to each 788 of the population. In 1870 there were 772 insane, one to each 696 of the population. In 1880 the insane numbered 1725, or one to each 360 of the population. In 1890 there were 2056 insane, one to each 368 of the population. Thus the increase of the insane considerable exceeds the ratio of increase of the population. What is true of Connecticut is no doubt true of other states. It is certainly true of Minnesota and Wisconsin, according to the statistics compiled by the state boards of corrections and charities. Instead of endeavoring to prove that insanity is not increasing, Dr. Down and others in similar positions would do well to study the causes of the spread of insanity and apply the remedy.

DELEGATES ALL ELECTED.

All the delegates to the Republican national convention have been elected. The following is given as an accurate summary of the way they are divided between the various candidates: McKinley, 445; Reed, 95; Allison, 32; Morton, 66; Quay, 56; Cullom, 12; Bradley, 16; doubtful, 78; contested, 118; total, 918. In this summary no delegate whose seat is contested is assigned to any candidate, and only those who have been instructed or have pledged themselves are counted as favorable to any candidate. There being 918 delegates, 460 are necessary to a choice. Therefore it will be seen that Mr. McKinley is 15 short of a majority, but there seems to be no doub. that he will get the necessary votes without any trouble and that he will be nominated on the first ballot.

There are enough men classed as doubtful who will be ready to jump on the McKinley band wagon as soon as the opportunity presents itself. Many delegates will desire to vote for the winner, and this fact will be sufficiently powerful to give the fifteen votes now needed by Mr. McKinley. Platt, Quay and Clarkson still talk of fighting him to the bitter end, but they are impotent to defeat him, and before the date of the convention arrives they may conclude that their best policy is to quit the struggle and nominate Mr. McKinley by acclamation.

The "funny papers" in Spain must be the military journals, says the Boston Transcript. One of these has an article evidently written by a Spanish sabreur with his sword, which he has dipped in gore, sanding his paper with gunpowder. This Spanish cavalier wants war declared against the United States right off—no postponement on account of weather. He thinks the juncture opportune, for he is convinced the Southern states are ready to leave the Union, and that Mexico would at once invade this country and reconquer California. Evidently this student of American affairs does not read the papers. If he did he would know that a considerable party had been organized in Mexico, which is not bent upon war with the United States, but upon the annexation of Cuba to Mexico. The platform of this party proposes a peaceable change of allegiance for Cuba, payment to be made in cash to Spain for the "pearl of the Antilles."

Dave Martin, who is at swords' points with Matthew S. Quay, the New York Evening Post declares to be so depressed by the president's recent action in favor of civil service reform that he may take no part in the presidential campaign. The Post adds that "the boys of the land will have it in their power this year to demonstrate the truth of their original objection to the cause, namely, that if there were no offices to be got, nobody would take any interest in politics, and elections would go by default. In the election of 1892 there were about 42,000 offices to be got, for only 43,128 had been put under civil service rules at that time. The inducement to engage in politics had merely been reduced one-half; now it has been annihilated."

The Omaha World-Herald, in reply to a Republican seeking literature on the money question, says: The writer of this letter represents a large number of Republicans who are studying the money question. Every such Republican should send a postage stamp to Congressman Charles A. Towne, Washington, D. C., and ask him to send a copy of his silver speech. This speech presents the question from a Republican standpoint and will convert any unprejudiced man who reads it.

The Mankato Free Press is repeating the false statement that Editor Rosewater of the Omaha Bee proved that Mr. Harvey was wrong in asserting that no paper, when the act was passed in 1873, published the fact that silver had been demonetized. Mr. Rosewater did not produce any paper making such an assertion. Why not be fair and publish the truth?

The Grand Rapids Review, published by Graffam & Orr, announces in its last week's issue that it will cease publishing. It was originally a Republican paper, but shortly after the election of 1892 became Democratic. Grand Rapids could not support three weekly papers, and it was only a question of time when one would be forced to the wall.

The Herald of Saturday was the largest newspaper published in Minnesota on that day, and was larger than any Sunday edition published in the Northwest outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis. The Saturday Herald always leads at the head of the lakes.

Duluth people, as they read of the terrible loss of life in Texas and Kansas, can congratulate themselves that they live outside the "cyclone belt." Even a rainy spring season is preferable.

The Aitkin county Democrats held a convention and elected delegates, instructed to support T. R. Foley, of Aitkin, for delegate to the national convention.

A statistical fiend says there are 34,518 woman musicians in the United States, all doubtless doing their best to increase the discord and concord of life.

The paragraphers are so busy working up bicycle jokes this season that the iceman is getting a well deserved rest.

A Kansas editor asserts that running for office is a sure cure for rheumatism. Also for a swollen pocketbook.

NONE ANTI-TOWNE.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: While there are Republicans who do not agree with Congressman Towne on his financial views, there is not an anti-Towne Republican in St. Cloud, and no meeting will be held here for the purpose of secretly killing him off. Someone of the Twin City papers will soon try to make a reputation for itself by employing a man to write up the political news of this state who knows something about politics.

HE WILL BE MISSED.

Cloquet Pine Knot: This week Senator W. P. Allen sent his resignation to Governor Clough. In resigning the senator specified that his resignation should take effect after his successor has been elected and qualified. Senator Allen's resignation removes from the state a tireless worker for the good of his constituents and a man honored and respected by all political parties for his integrity and worth.

LEE MEETING WITH FAVOR.

Wadena Journal: There are cogent reasons why Wadena county Republicans should support Mr. Lee, and we believe that when the matter is fully considered they will gladly do so. While looking with favor upon other candidates, it will be easily understood why we should prefer our neighbor, the gentleman from Todd. His ability, character and public services as well as his residence in the same congressional district, all unite to draw us strongly to him. His candidacy is meeting with cordial acceptance in all localities and we believe his popularity as a candidate will increase steadily.

THE WAGER.

We played a careless, listless game,
And both declared 'twas dull and tame,
And hastened to get through it.
"And now," said I, "I know a way
To add some interest to the play,
If you'll consent to do it."
"Agreed," said she, "I'm willing quite,
And e'en a bet I'd call all right,
But I've no money handy."
"Suppose," said I, "we play like this,
I'll bet you 'gainst a single kiss,
A five-pound box of candy."
She blushed a little, then she cried:
"I'll do it—luck is on my side—
I'll win the wager squarely.
We'll play one hand of High-Low-Jack."
I cut, and then she took the pack
And dealt each nine cards fairly.
"We'll bid for trumps then discard three."
"Here's two!" cried I "give three," cried she,
"And heart is what I make it."
The three cards that she laid aside
Down in her lap I saw her hide,
Then chose a card and played it.
And now our interest was intense,
Nor was the game long in suspense,
For easily I won it.
My queen was high, my four-spot low;
She flushed—got angry—didn't know
"How in the world I'd done it."
But when I tried to claim my bet,
She struggled hard, and somehow let
Those three cards fall unguarded.
The ace, the duce, ten-spot, at her feet;
Dear girl, she didn't want to beat,
For these she had discarded.

TIME FOR A CHANGE.

Hibbing News: It is about time to commence thinking about whether y 1 desire to see the poor man with a lien on property footing the bills for running the state, county and township administrations while the corporations, owning the bulk of the property are, through the operation of an unjust law, of their own making allowed to escape without paying a cent. Do you believe that a law by the provisions of which a poor man is made to pay a heavy tax upon the little home he happens to own, while his neighbor with mineral lands valued at millions of dollars is exempt from all taxation is either just or constitutional? Isn't it about time that this monstrous injustice to the common people for the benefit of the rich in Northern Minnesota was removed the same as in other localities where like corporations once prevailed?

LEE SENTIMENT STRONG.

Cloquet Pine Knot: In an interview with A. D. Davidson recently that gentleman told the Pine Knot that in his opinion St. Louis county will send a delegation to the state convention favorable to Mr. Lee. Mr. Davidson says the Lee sentiment is strong in Duluth and on the increase.

BOB DUNN FEELS BADLY.

Long Prairie Leader: The Princeton Union, one of the strongest Clough papers in the state, is sorry for Mr. Lee because he went into that combine in Hennepin county to down Clough. "It will not profit him in the least," says the Union. "He will not get a smell there." Then why does the Union feel so badly? Forward the Union says is a fact, it ought to feel quite jubilant.

WILL LABOR IN VAIN.

Cloquet Pine Knot: The Princeton Union is laboring hard to stir up a Clough sentiment in the Sixth district. Fruitless labors.

OF DIFFERENT STUFF.

Mille Lacs Times: Some of the goldbug Republican papers in this state are giving forth the assurance that Congressman Charles A. Towne is prepared to renounce his free silver views and advocate the gold standard side of the monetary question at the dictum of the Republican party bosses. Some people may be able to change their opinions at the caprice of party leaders may require, but we believe Charles A. Towne is made of different material.

ANCIENT VS. MODERN.

Truth: "Well, this makes me sick!" said the brilliant reporter; "yes, people say that Caesar was a great man."

"What's that?" asked the managing editor.

"Why, he reported to Rome his defeat of Pharnaces in the words 'I came, I saw, I conquered.' Now that story was worth at least an extra, two whole pages and a double scare head."

NORWAY

Yesterday Was the Eighty-Second Anniversary of Her Independence.

Celebration In Honor of the Event at the Pavilion.

Speeches By John Rustgard and Page Morris---Fine Program.

Yesterday was the birthday of Norway and the advent among the nations of that country that has given to America so many citizens, such a wealth of brain and brawn, was faithfully celebrated in Duluth not only by those who boast a descent from the vikings, but by those of this land who are their brothers, not in blood, but in the love of liberty and pride in the story of those who won it by blood and sacrifice. And it was made the occasion, too, of gathering in the spirit about the tomb of one of Norway's greatest sons—a son of Norway, but a builder of all mankind—the bull; he who, as it was aptly expressed by one of the speakers at the Pavilion yesterday, sang into life the slumbering instincts of the Norse people for gentler things than war and conquest.

The clouds lowered and the wind swept around the shoulders of the hills, but the threatening weather did not prevent the gathering of a large concourse to listen to the recital of the story of Norway, that thrills not only her native sons, but all men for it is the tale of all humanity in its faring toward higher ground and better things. An excellent program had been arranged for the occasion consisting of speeches by Hon. Page Morris and John Rustgard, chorus singing and music by the City band.

The male chorus awoke the greatest enthusiasm by its rendering of Norwegian national and folk songs. "Ja vi elsker dette landet," being the first, which was followed by "Norge Fjelds" and "Norge! Norge!" The eyes of many glistened and perhaps the sight of a few children of the Northern land was temporarily obscured as the songs of their people welled from the throats of Norway's sons. The band pleased as always, its selections being charmingly rendered.

MR. RUSTGARD'S SPEECH.

John Rustgard was the first speaker. He reviewed briefly the struggle that ended in the independence of Norway—the struggle maintained by a small, but hardy band panoplied in courage and rendered invincible by the ardor of their love of liberty. The Norwegian people, said the speaker, had been reproached, even, with having been pointed the accusation of treason, when, not repenting of their choice of an adopted land they had turned for a moment their eyes and hearts to the sea-girt isle in the frozen north from whence they sprang and where their forefathers lived and died. It was not, and should not be considered, a falling away from the fealty the Norwegians owed to the country in which they had made their homes; it was a just pride in a story that should warm the heart of every true American—the story of a people animated by the example set them by America and struggling, as Americans had done before them for freedom and national autonomy.

"Tenaciously as we maintain," said the speaker, "that the cradle of liberty stood among the mountains of the far north and that its spirit was carried from the pine-clad forests of its native land to inspire other peoples, yet we recognize the fact that it was for the people of America to set the example of staking all for its realization as a national possession, and that without that example there would be no seventeenth of May for Norwegians to celebrate."

"The idea, the dream of liberty is old. It has been discussed and brooded over for years, but it was the courage of the American patriots of 1776 to make it a living reality that should be a mark to direct the struggling steps of other nations. And so this celebration of the birth of national liberty in Norway is an American as well as Norwegian festival. Who shall say that sympathy with all nations and all men who engage in the struggle for that great boon, liberty, in which the victory of one is the triumph of all, is disloyalty to flag and country. If this was disloyal, then LaFayette and Kosciuszko were traitors.

"Ole Bull was the messenger who bore to other lands the credentials of Norway to sit as of right among the enlightened and progressive nations of the earth. It was his strains that opened the eyes of the world to the fact that the Norsemen had long since laid aside the helmet and the spear and had directed to the pursuits of peace those energies that had made them prominent in war. Born where the Atlantic lashes the rocky coast of Norway, reared among its mountains in which are set like gems, valleys smiling with greenery and flowers, he was thoroughly imbued with the spirit of his native land and his song was the expression of the genius of his people.

The address closed with a brief sketch of the musician's career from his birth in Bergen in 1810, through his wanderings, marked with triumphs, to his death in his native land in 1880.

JUDGE MORRIS SPEAKS.

Judge Morris prefaced his remarks by saying that, owing to a misunderstanding of what was expected of him he had prepared no speech and that he was prepared to say but a few words on the subject foremost in the thoughts of all children of Norway on this day. As he understood it, this was a celebration of the birthday of Norway by American citizens as such. Were it otherwise, the speaker would not have been present. This celebration, it was understood, was by those who were there as Americans with the accent on American.

"This," said the speaker, "is now your country and your only country. But love and reverence for the native land is proper and commendable, and with these in your souls you will make better American citizens."

There was another purpose for which those present were gathered together—to honor the memory of music's king—Ole Bull, said he. He belonged to no country, but to all, and his genius will live as long as the memory of man shall last. Poet, philanthropist and hero, he sang for all men, and his fame will last so long as patriotism and love spring up in the breasts of man.

At the conclusion of the address, the audience testified its appreciation by continued applause. The proceeds of the affair will be used to help defray the cost of the monument to Ole Bull unveiled yesterday at Minneapolis.

CARLTON COUNTY'S SLATE.

Largest Deposit Known to the World Today.

D. V. Scott contributes the following to the Cloquet Pine Knot: Carlton county has the largest deposit of slate known to the world today. It is superior in quality to other known deposits for roofing purposes, from the fact that it is not only lighter, but it is also rougher; sufficient work has already been done to prove this fact, and Eastern experts have admitted it, after a careful test.

The reason it has not been developed more is owing to the lack of capital; those who have developed to some extent have labored under this disadvantage. Levi Deetz has made most of the developments, and now has one pit down nearly 100 feet, with two other pits started. His slate has always found a ready market, and he has not been able to come anywhere near supplying the demand. The new school house in West Duluth is roofed with slate from his big pit, and it will bear the closest inspection; his quarries are in section 30-49-16.

There is also an old quarry open in section 24-49-17 from which are taken immense slabs, suitable for billiard or pool table tops, sidewalks, mantles, stairways, monuments, and, in fact, for anything requiring large slabs of slate, of almost any desired thickness.

Slate can be manufactured and placed in the Duluth and Twin City markets for less money than it costs for freight from the Pennsylvania or New Jersey quarries to the same markets. This fact alone proves what a vast field for safe investment lies in the slate quarries of Carlton county. Big slate finds a ready market, as does also roofing, and the refuse from the manufacture of these two kinds can be ground up and made into the finest brick in the world, thus nothing will be wasted. The manufacture of slate brick is now past the experimental stage, as the big plant of the "St. Louis River Slate Brick company" down here at Thomson, will prove. These brick stand a pressure of 238,000 pounds before cracking and it requires a pressure of 249,000 pounds to crush them, and 7246 pounds to the square inch, making them one of the best building brick in the world today.

Slate lands can be bought here for $50 to $100 per acre, while those of Pennsylvania brings from $500 to $1000 per acre. The time is near at hand when our immense deposits will be developed, as capital is bound to soon see our great advantages over the Eastern quarries in the way of cheapness of the lands, the practically unlimited home markets, and the fact that our freights would even enable us to compete successfully with the Eastern quarries.

Therefore, I say, that a man can make no investment more sure than one in Carlton county slate lands; and if he develops the lands his profit will be all the greater. The opening of a slate quarry is not such an expensive thing as many imagine, as very little machinery is required for their successful operation. Our timber supply is rapidly diminishing; at the rate they have been devastated during the past ten years, it will not be long before the people of Carlton county must look to her agricultural, slate and mineral wealth for support.

Did Not Play Ball.

Duluth did not play ball with Hamm's Export nine, of St. Paul, yesterday or the day before, for obvious reasons. Saturday it was raining, and Sunday, while the rain let up for a little while during the afternoon, the grounds were in such a sticky condition that it would have taken all day to get around the bases. The games were, therefore, postponed, but it is hoped that the beermaker's nine will try it again with better success. There will be games next Saturday and Sunday, if the drouth gets through being broken in the meantime, when the same nine will try conclusions with Duluth.

THE FAIR

Agricultural Society Will Hold Its Annual Meeting Next Month.

Possibility That the Fair Will Be Held at the West End.

In That Case There Will Also Be a Race Meet.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis County Agricultural society will be held on Tuesday, June 9, and it will then be decided when and where the county fair will be held this fall. The active members of the association are all anxious that there shall be a fair, feeling that to abandon them now would be taking the backward step at a time when real results are about to be felt. They feel that the fairs have been of great benefit to the county. It is true that the bulk of the work has fallen on a few, but it is always so. It requires considerable work and expense to manage and present exhibits, and it is difficult to trace any direct results. The general good which comes from it, however, is more than a recompense. It is about the only way to attract attention to the farming possibilities of the community, and to build it up, and if there is any one thing that St. Louis county needs most, it is the development of the farming lands.

There is a project under way which may establish these fairs as an absolutely permanent feature. A syndicate, in which Dr. G. W. Davis is the most active spirit, is working to secure a lease of ground at the West End for an amusement park. The deal is almost completed, but there are still one or two obstacles in the way. If it goes through, a half mile race track, a fine bicycle track, baseball grounds, grand stand and buildings will be provided. Several thousand dollars will be spent in fixing up the grounds. The syndicate, if its plans materialize, will propose to the Agricultural society that the fair be held on its grounds, and it will present strong inducements for it. This would mean that a racing meet would be held in connection with the fair, and nothing could be better calculated to insure its success. Each would help the other. There is scarcely a county in the state that attempts to hold a fair without races in connection with it, and it is recognized everywhere that the two go together. A county fair, with horse races, bicycle races, baseball games, etc., would undoubtedly be a tremendous success. The people of Duluth and the county will be glad to know that there is good prospect for getting it. They would undoubtedly draw from the entire northern portion of the state and from Northern Wisconsin as well.

In the event of the Driving park scheme not being carried out, it has been suggested that the fair be made the formal opening of the new market house which the city is building at the corner of Second avenue east and First street. R. R. Macfarlane has made this suggestion, and it seems to be received with favor.

J. E. Cooley, who is one of the board of managers of the state fair, is very anxious that this county will be well represented there this year. He is receiving many letters already in relation to the fair. The managers have increased the premium for the best county exhibit from $200 to $700 this year, and this will undoubtedly be a great inducement to exhibitors. St. Louis county made a fine showing last year at the state fair, and should not be content to stop with that.

HAVE MADE A TREATY.

The St. Paul and Duluth Roads Make a Deal.

The general managers of the St. Paul-Duluth lines have sent copies of the agreement into which they have entered with reference to the recent trouble over the passenger rates between the Twin Cities and Duluth and Superior.

The "treaty," signed by E. W. Winter, on behalf of the Omaha, H. L. Shute, for the Great Northern, and A. B. Plough, for the St. Paul & Duluth, reads as follows:

"The undersigned have this day agreed as follows for the control and protection of the passenger traffic between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth and Superior:

"First—That no deviation from present tariff rates shall be made for any purpose whatever, and if any special rates, contracts or agreements are now in effect, the same shall be at once withdrawn.

"Second—That no mileage, coupon or other form of ticket shall be sold to points beyond St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth or Superior or any other point that can be scalped or manipulated in any way, that may have the effect of reducing the local rates between the points named above; subject, however, to such modification as you may jointly agree upon.

"Third—That no ticket agent, general agent or any other person shall have the authority to issue any form of free transportation.

"Fourth—That no outside passenger or local agent shall be employed on the line of the D. & W., D. & I. R., D., M. & N., D., M., R. & N. and D., S. S. & A. railroads, and that business shall not be solicited nor tickets placed by either party in territory local to the others, the intention being to fully protect the local traffic of all parties to this agreement.

"Fifth—That no commissions will be paid to other than the authorized ticket agents of connecting lines, and that no tickets issued by connecting lines shall be placed on sale through any other medium than their local offices to which such business may properly belong. That after proper notice to them by the lines here represented, if it is found that our wishes are not being complied with, that we will jointly instruct such lines to withdraw every issue of their joint tickets reading either via either and all of our lines."

FAITH CURE A GOOD THING.

In Some Diseases, But It is a Failure in Stomach Troubles.

Mere faith will not digest your food for you, will not give you an appetite, will not increase your flesh and strengthen your nerves and heart, but Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do these things, because they are composed of the elements of digestion, they contain the juices, acids and peptones necessary to the digestion and assimilation of all wholesome food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest food if placed in a jar or bottle in water heated to ninety-eight degrees, and they will do it much more effectively when taken into the stomach after meals, whether you have faith that they will or not.

They invigorate the stomach, make pure blood and strong nerves. In the only way that nature can do it, and that is, from plenty of wholesome food well digested. It is not what we eat, but what we digest that does us good.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by nearly all druggists at 50 cents for full sized package, or by mail from the Stuart company, Marshall, Mich.

A Cyclist's Parade.

Stole Zien's Whisky.

A complain for larceny was sworn out by Jake Zein, the Superior street saloonkeeper, today, against Fred Smith and Mike Riley, the two individuals who were arrested on Saturday night by Detectives Donovan and Troyer, who found them under the docks in a nest nicely feathered with whisky bottles.

Mr. Zien says that one of the men entered his place early Saturday evening and engaged the attention of the bartender, while the other walked off with a case containing three dozen bottles of whisky which stood just inside the door. When arrested, Smith and Riley had in some manner disposed of half a dozen bottles of their booty. They will have a hearing this afternoon.

Between the Franklin and the Oliver and the Victoria mines at Virginia about 400 cars of ore are being shipped daily.

The concrete work for the three large boilers at the Penobscot is nearly completed and the boilers will be placed in a few days.

The Alworth Mining company is doing some exploration work on section 24-58-20, where E. J. Longyear has contracted to do the drilling.

Capt. Cohoe expects soon to do some exploratory work on the Consolidated property west of the old Sheridan mine about four miles west of Hibbing.

Capt. Roberts has secured an option on six forties in section 5-57-17 near the Fayal mine, and will put in three or four crews with a diamond drill at once. This is considered by experienced mining men most excellent territory.

WAS ALMOST STRANGLED.

Singular Accident to an Infant at Cloquet.

A singular and almost fatal accident occurred in Cloquet last Friday afternoon, says the Pine Knot. The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Stevens was sleeping in its carriage in a room on the first floor of the depot, where the family resides, when Willie, the 4-year-old son of the household, went upstairs and turned the water on in the bathroom directly above where the baby was sleeping. The bath tub became full, and as the water was not turned off it soon flooded the room. A rather large crack in the floor was a convenient place of escape for the water, and was soon running through the ceiling to the room below.

It happened that the baby carriage with occupant was standing directly under the hole in the ceiling, and the water poured down, striking the baby full in the face. The little one was unable to help itself and was forced to be content with the shower bath, as its mother had stepped out of the room for a short time and was not aware of the leak from the bathroom. At last, when Mrs. Stevens entered the room, she was shocked to find the baby strangling and almost drowned. Dr. Allen was summoned at once and by prompt action saved the little one's life. It is not likely an accident of a similar character ever occurred.

WILL BE REPRESENTED.

Board Will Have Counsel at Miss Braithwaite's Trial.

At the school board meeting on Saturday evening a communication was received from Miss Mary Braithwaite, who has been arrested for punishing a refractory pupil, explaining the affair and informing the board that she acted entirely within the rules. She informed the board that the boy had been causing trouble for some time. The board will have counsel at the trial to look after the interests of the school. The members also expressed the opinion that Humane Officer Haskins is too much given to sensationalism and self-advertisement.

The following communication was received:

"To the Board of Education, Gentlemen: We, the undersigned workers in the public schools, appreciate the efforts which the members of the board have always put forth for the upbuilding of our school and feel that the harmony existing between the board and the principals has been mutually beneficial, do hereby beg leave to enter a protest in regard to the salary question.

"We know the times, we appreciate the financial aspect as set forth in the statements made, and we only ask that the question be considered in an impartial and candid way.

"We are glad when one of our specialists can command a large salary, but is it fair for Duluth to pay a specialist as much as any principal of a large school?

"Do other cities on a plane with Duluth pay a specialist as much as a supervisory principal of one of the large buildings?

"If Duluth can pay a specialist on the schedule basis of experience and success as indicated by the $200 raise lately made to one of our corps, should not Duluth work on the same basis with her principals?

"While heretofore we have always worked for the progress of the schools without complaint, now we feel that circumstances demand an adjustment and we are willing to leave this matter with the gentlemen of the board.

"Signed—Mary M. Lennon, Abbie F. Goodall, Belle F. Calverley, Stella Albright, Annie, M. Hixon, Mary R. Foote, Belle Eddy, Mary L. Clarke, Jennie M. Carmichael, Mary Braithwaite."

The specialist referred to is Miss Caldwell, teacher of music, whose salary has been raised from $800 to $1000.

A number of bills were allowed and routine business transacted.

Wires Were Crossed.

The sight of the patrol wagon dashing up and stopping in front of the National Bank of Commerce, in the Lonsdale building, at noon yesterday, attracted general attention and all sorts of rumors were quickly afloat. It was authoritatively stated by some that thirteen burglars who had been concealed in the bank awaiting the coming of the proper time for their labor had been discovered and captured by the janitor. Others opined that it was a daylight raid by some students of the Youngest school of the bank robbing art. There was a rather panicky feeling and the sudden appearance of a face at the second story window nearly caused a stampede.

It was finally discovered that the alarm was a false one and that it had been caused by crossed wires.

CANCELLING COAL ORDERS.

Philadelphia, May 18.—It is stated here on good authority that many of the coal companies that took orders at April prices and are now filling them will cancel all that are not filled by the end of the month. All dealers have been notified of this action, and it has created a better demand for anthracite coal. After May 30 the new circular price is to prevail, and there is talk of making a further advance of 25 cents a ton on July 1, to be followed by another on Oct. 1.

A Heavy Judgment.

Two transcripts of judgment much above the ordinary were filed in the office of the clerk of district cour, this morning from the United States circuit court of the district of Minnesota. They are in favor of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company and against the Northern Pacific railroad, and the amounts are $1,446,948.50 and $686,552.99. This is part of the foreclosure proceedings against the Northern Pacific.

In the case against Miss Mary Braithwaite, principal of the Bryant school, who is charged with an assault on Henry Grytdahl, one of her pupils, Attorney Hanks, for the defense, demurred to a trial by the regular jury panel for the general term on the ground that under the provisions of the statute lately the jurors are empanelled to try civil cases only. The defense insisted that the jurors for the trial of the case should be summoned under a special venire.

The court continued the case to May 28, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and took the demurrer under advisement.

Mr. Kuss Arrived.

Edward C. Kuss, the basso, who will sing at Pilgrim Congregational church, on Wednesday evening, arrived in the city from Chicago yesterday, and is the guest of his friend, Ch. Trautvetter. The program for the concert has been somewhat changed through necessity. Mr. Drake, the organist, will leave this week for a visit in the East, and will not be here for the concert. His organ solo number will be filled by the trio, consisting of Messrs. Tonning, Trautvetter and Flaaten, and Mrs. John Lonnan will play the accompaniments.

Aldermen Sang and Dahl, the committee from the council appointed to look up the matter of the Ore Teamsters' union and its demand upon the Missabe road for employment on its docks, waited upon Vice President McBride this morning. They were courteously received and Mr. McBride cheerfully gave the usual explanation of his position, which the aldermen comprehended. They talked the matter over with Mr. McBride in a reasonable business-like manner, and retired with the best of feeling all around.

Will Build This Year.

E. M. Fowler, of Chicago, is in the city today. He represents the owners of the vacant corner at Lake avenue and Superior street, and is here to attend to matters connected with the erection of a building on that corner. That one will be built is certain, but the details are not yet arranged. Messrs. German & De Waard are working on the plans now, and the foundation plans are out for figures. The height of the building has not been determined upon, but no matter what its size may be, it will be a modern fire-proof structure.

Stole Their Clothes.

Ed Wright, who was arrested yesterday at his home on Duluth Heights, charged with having stolen some clothing from a boarding car on the Duluth & Iron Range railroad near Two Harbors, on Tuesday, was found guilty of larceny in the municipal court this morning and given a $25 fine or thirty days in the county jail. He went up on the hill.

The evidence showed that Wright was very considerate in making his selection of clothing. He evidently did not wish to be too hard on any one of the bridge gang, with whom he had been working, and, accordingly, took the coat of one man, trousers of another and vest of another. A ring which he found in a pocket of one of the garments, he left in the car because, as he said, he liked the owner pretty well and did not want to deprive him of it.

Fagerstrom Was Held.

Charles Fagerstrom, or Ferguson, who was arrested for attempting to pass a forged check for $38 on W. M. Abrahamson, on Tuesday last, had a hearing before Judge Boyle this morning. He was held to the grand jury on the charge of uttering a forged instrument, the bail being fixed at $150. The evidence showed that Fagerstrom was very ignorant, if not actually simple minded, and had probably been made the dupe of some more designing person. It seemed a hardship to keep him in jail until September and bail was fixed as low as possible in the hope that his friends would be able to arrange a bond for him.

REDUCED RATES TO PITTSBURG.

The Prohibition national convention will meet in Pittsburg May 27 to 29.

For this occasion the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company will sell excursion tickets from all points on its lines east and west of the Ohio river for all trains of May 24 to 26 inclusive, valid for return passage until May 30, at one single fare for the round trip.

Tickets will also be sold at all coupon stations throughout the West and Northwest.

The Baltimore & Ohio maintains a double daily service of fast express trains, with through Pullman cars attached, between Chicago and Pittsburg. Be sure your ticket reads via "Picturesque Baltimore & Ohio."

Trial of the Criminal Cases Begun Before Judge Morris Today.

Tinkham Brothers and Cummings Claim They Have Been Acquitted.

John H. Brigham Has Entered a Demurrer to His Indictment.

Judge Morris this morning took up the criminal calendar, which will be a light one this term. The first case which came up for trial was that against Edward Lee, who is accused of grand larceny in the second degree. He is charged with having stolen about $43 in currency from a building on Lake avenue, having abstracted a pair of trousers from beneath the pillow of their sleeping owner and rifled the pockets, even taking with the money a pants' button which the indictment values at 1 cent. A jury was drawn just before noon and the county attorney opened the state's case before adjournment.

The case against the Tinkham brothers and Capt. A. D. Cummings came up this morning and the demurrer to the indictment was argued. The claim of the defendants was that they had already been acquitted of the offense for which they are now under indictment. Judge Moer having sustained a demurrer to the former indictment and ordered their release without remanding the case to the next grand jury. The supreme court has held that the order sustaining the demurrer must embody the order resubmitting the case. Judge Morris reserved his decision until tomorrow morning.

John H. Brigham, accused of grand larceny in the second degree, entered a demurrer to his indictment on the ground that the facts stated therein do not constitute a public offense.

John McLeod, accused by the grand jury of larceny in the second degree, pleaded guilty this morning.

Before taking up the criminal calendar, Judge Morris heard the case of A. D. Davidson against A. R. Wallace et al, in which there was no appearance on the part of the defendants. The suit was to recover $800 on a promissory note, and under instructions from the court the jury returned a verdict for $891.25 for the plaintiff.

Judge Moer this morning was hearing the case of the German-American Savings bank, of Burlington, Iowa, against F. W. Smith et al. Some time ago F. W. and E. S. Smith borrowed $7500 from the plaintiff on a note, and later they secured a renewal on condition that there mother endorsed the note. Another renewal was made and now the bank is suing on the note. The borrowers are letting the case go by default, while the mother is defending on the ground that the note was renewed without her knowledge and that she had supposed that it was paid. She claims that she therefore does not have to pay the note. Ellison, Congdon & Dickinson are attorneys for the plaintiff and Washburn, Lewis & Judson are for the defendant, Mrs. Smith.

Several Vags Fined.

In municipal court this morning, Reed Richards and Otto Helmer, whose peaceful slumbers in a box car were rudely disturbed by Special Officer Axelrod yesterday evening, were each fined $5 and costs for vagrancy, of which they pleaded guilty. They went up on the hill. C. M. Johnson and S. R. McAdams each pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness and were fined $10 and costs, being committed in default.

A Beautiful Picture.

The Canadian Pacific "Empress" steamers, which ply between Vancouver and Japan and China, are famous for their beauty, speed and luxurious fittings. There is now on exhibition at the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic ticket office, 426 West Superior street, and in the lobbies of the Spalding and St. Louis hotels, some life-like pictures of these magnificent vessels. The picture is an exact copy, in color and every detail, of a painting of the Empress of Japan, in Vancouver harbor, made by a noted artist. There are three of these steamers, namely, the Empress of India, Empress of Japan and Empress of China. They are alike in all respects, 485 feet long, 51 feet beam, 36 feet depth and 6000 tons register, twin screws, triple expansion engines, 10,000 horsepower; speed, 19 knots. They sail from Vancouver once every third week, and make Yokohama, a distance of 4283 miles, in about twelve days. They are in every way superior to any ships that have as yet sailed the Pacific ocean.

Cancelled the Risk.

The board of public works has been notified by the Union Casualty and Surety company that the policy held by the city on the ferry has been cancelled, in accordance with an agreement made by the compact companies not to take that class of risks. The only company in the country that has not agreed to the new rule is the Guarantee, of Philadelphia, in which the board will this evening recommend to the council that the insurance be placed.

Will Report Adversely.

The board of public works will this evening transmit to the council adverse reports on the question of erecting a 36-inch storm sewer at Eleventh avenue east, between Second and Fifth streets, and the improvement of Twenty-ninth avenue west, between Railroad alley and Michigan street. The latter improvement would benefit only the Upper Peninsula Brewing company, according to the board, which recommends that Helm street, between Twenty-eighth and Thirtieth avenue west, be improved instead.

AN ATTORNEY'S QUARREL.

C. C. Teare Broke His Umbrella Upon J. D. Holmes.

When Judge Boyle's court, in which is being tried the case of Charles Skully, who is charged with using dynamite to kill fish in the Cloquet river, adjourned this noon, Attorney C. C. Teare, who represents the defendant, and Assistant aut City Attorney Holmes took up a personal point that had arisen and argued it in the hallway. Exactly what was first said the principals would not divulge, but the nearest bystanders heard Mr. Teare ask Mr. Holmes a question, to which the latter replied that it was none of the former's business.

"You're a liar," rejoined Mr. Teare, at the same time striking Mr. Holmes, who was just turning to face Mr. Teare, with an umbrella across his shoulders, so hard that it was broken. Mr. Holmes was taken by surprise and before he could countercheck, Judge Edson, who was leaving his room, recalled both gentlemen to their better senses by telling them that that was not the proper way to try a lawsuit.

A Hole Knocked In the Bow of the Steamer North Star.

Struck a Spile While Trying to Make a Landing at Detroit.

Two Immense Pontoons For Raising the Cayuga Were Lost Yesterday.

Detroit, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer North Star, bound up, struck a spile in making a landing at the D. & M. dock this morning, knocking a hole in her port bow about four feet above the water line. She is awaiting instructions from Buffalo whether to make repairs here or not.

LOST TWO PONTOONS.

Cheboygan, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The L. Reid Wrecking company is beginning its great task of raising the Lehigh valley liner Cayuga with some hard luck. Two of its four monster pontoons which were to be used in lifting the wreck were lost in the southwest gale yesterday off St. Helena island in the straits.

SUPPLIES FOR LARGE FLEETS.

Pickands, Mather & Co., of Cleveland, have established two supply stores at the Sault canal. At one of these establishments the ships of the various fleets under the firm's control will be provisioned, while at the other store supplies of cordage and necessities of the ship's chandlery order will be furnished. The stores are conveniently located and only charges for handling will be necessary. The company believes that in addition to the great convenience the saving will be large. This arrangement, in addition to the company's system of fueling stations and scows along the route, reduces operating expenses to a minimum. The boats that will primarily enjoy the benefits are about sixty-three in number, employing over 1000 men. It is hoped hat in time the supply stations will become self-supporting, as far as operation is concerned, by dealing with outside boats.

STRANDED WHILE AVOIDING COLLISION.

The damage to the steamer J. P. Donaldson at Limekiln crossing was occasioned in this manner: The steamer Wetmore, bound down, got aground just as the Donaldson reached her, and the Wetmore's tow had drifted across the channel to the east bank, blocking it up. The Donaldson was then too near to stop, for fear of her consort going aground, and tried to pass just west of the Wetmore. In going by she struck what was probably a boulder, starting her so leaking fast, and she finally dropped her tow, signalled a tug and beached herself at the shoal below Belleisle. Four or five planks in the starboard bilge of the Donaldson were broken.

MARINE NOTES.

The steamer C. H. Bradley was released last Saturday night by the use of a dredge, the tugs failing to move her. She changed her orders, and instead of loading lumber at New Duluth she loaded grain at the Great Northern elevator.

Last night the steamer Schuylkill, while in tow of the Inman tug Lyon, collided with the steamer Canisteo in the Omaha slip, cutting into her bulwarks from the waistreak up. The Canisteo was lying in the slip and the Schuylkill struck her fairly in the stern.

Including time, dockage, etc., the repairs to the Moran will cost about $14,000, and they will occupy a week or two.

The Christopher Columbus, after giving excursions here, will leave during the first week in June for her old run between Chicago and Milwaukee. On the way down she will give excursions from Marquette, Sault Ste. Marie and Portage lake.

Lake freight rates, so far as Duluth grain is concerned, exhibit a state of extreme debility. The flour trade is light still, and as a consequence the liners are again in the market. The demand is not sufficiently large to go around, so the rate has sunk to 2¾ cents, which is the best that can be done at present.

Were Out Too Late.

Six fair denzens of the "tenderloin" went sailing yesterday. They returned rather late, it being after 8 o'clock, the curfew hour, when they disembarked near the canal. Officer Johnson was heartless enough to arrest the whole party and the laughter of the merry excursionists was turned to wailing. His charges told him he was "a nasty thing" and "real horrid," but he neither quailed nor relented.

At the station they gave their names as Jennie Bailey, Nina Park, Artie Bush, Viola Edmonds, Carrie Kirk and Tresa Leibrandt. All but the last named deposited $10 for their appearance this morning. They failed to materialize today and their bail was forfeited. The Liebrandt woman was fined $10 and costs for residing in a house of ill fame. Friends came to her rescue and the fine was paid.

AT LAST

The Methodist Conference Finally Succeeds in Electing the Two Bishops.

Chaplain C. C. McCabe Was Chosen By a Plurality of Eight.

Rev. Dr. Cranston Elected on Next Ballot With Thirty Plurality.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 19.—Delegates to the Methodist Episcopal general conference were tired of electioneering. Thirteen ballots had been taken when the conference convened this morning and the conference seemed practically in a dead-lock. Bishop Bowman presided, for the second time, today. The reading of the journal had just been completed when Rev. C. L. Stafford, of Iowa, moved to postpone indefinitely the election of bishops, and in support of his motion said there was a large number of clergy opposed to electing a bishop.

Dr. Buckley opposed the motion. The committee, he said, recommended three bishops and the conference, by a majority of the twenty-five substituted two. He reviewed the conference of 1888 when eight ballots were taken. To indefinitely postpone would make the conference ridiculous in the eyes of the world. Dr. Buckley said the difficulty now lies in the fact that individuals who have no possible chance to secure the necessary two-thirds vote for an election still permit friends to vote for them. It is manifest, he said, that no election could be secured if the members persist in voting for those who cannot be elected. If impossible to elect, then the conference can adjourn and the men who blocked the election will have to bear the responsibility for it.

Dr. J. R. Mace, of New Jersey, favored the motion to postpone indefinitely the election, and charged that the great body of the church does not want more bishops. He said the doors had been opened in order that aspiring men might see new fields. Instead of being ridiculous, he said, the general church would be greatly relieved as the present bishop can do all the work.

Rev. C. D. Hillis, of New Hampshire, presented a substitute which provided that if no election should result on the fourteenth ballot the five highest ones shall be voted for on the fifteenth ballot; if no election should then result, only the highest four shall be voted for, on the sixteenth ballot and this process shall be continued until an election results.

Cries of "No, no" greeted its reading and Bishop Bowman ruled it out of order.

Dr. A. J. Kynett, of Philadelphia, said the voting is a good thing in that it holds the delegates in their seats, and at the same time business is being disposed of in a remarkable manner. Eulogized the candidates for bishops and particularly McCabe.

At this juncture Rev. R. D. Munger, of Central New-York, leaped to his feet and protested vigorously against electioneering. Dr. Kynett said no combinations existed, and it was a matter of congratulation. Finally the motion to postpone was defeated by a large majority. Gen. Rusling, of New Jersey, attempted to secure a suspension of the rules in order to present a substitute to elect three instead of two bishops, but the conference refused to do so. Rev. C. J. North, of New York east, attempted to secure the same result by moving a reconsideration of the vote by which the conference decided to elect two instead of three, but the conference refused to suspend the rules and permit it and the fourteenth ballot was ordered and taken.

The report of the fourteenth ballot was received. In all 504 votes were cast, making 336 necessary to a choice. The leaders were Cranston, 261; McCabe, 258; Hamilton, 149; Buttz, 123; Neely, 112; Bowen, 35, and scattering, 70. As compared with the previous ballot this was a gain of 16 for Cranston, a gain of 68 for McCabe, a gain of 6 for Bowen, a loss of 2 for Buttz, a loss of 60 for Neely and a loss of 31 for Hamilton.

The fifteenth ballot was at once taken and the tellers retired. After the transaction of a little business the tellers returned with the fifteenth ballot. There were 504 votes cast. Of these C. C. McCabe, of New York, received 344 votes, electing him by eight votes. The vote on others was: Cranston, 328; Buttz, 112; Hamilton, 109; Neely, 50; Bowen, 30, scattering, 35. The wildest scene then followed.

Delegates stood yelling and waving handkerchiefs. Calls for "McCabe," "Song" and "Speech" rose from all parts of the hall. Delegates rushed back to where he was sitting and he was surrounded by an enthusiastic following. In the first lull a motion to invite "Bishop McCabe" to the platform was heard. It was carried with a whirl, and as Dr. McCabe walked down the aisle the demonstration was repeated, but Dr. McCabe begged to be excused from saying or singing anything.

The conference ordered no report made on those who received less than nine votes and the conference resumed its deliberations. The fifteenth ballot showed a gain for McCabe of 56, for Cranston of 67, for Hamilton a loss of 40, for Buttz a loss of 11, for Neely a loss of 62, for Bowen a loss of 5. The drift was then toward the Rev. Earl Cranston. The sixteenth ballot was soon announced, resulting in the election of Dr. Cranston as the second bishop. In all 504 votes were cast, making 336 necessary for a choice. Of these Cranston received 266, thus electing him by 30. Buttz received 82, Hamilton 36, Neely 16 and scattering 10.

The conference went wild again and cheers filled the hall. Handkerchiefs were waved and the noise continued for several minutes, while Dr. Cranston walked forward and bowed. An attempt by Judge Caples, of Oregon, to make the election unanimous was howled down. The conference took up the election of two book agents for New York. The nominations were announced as Dr. Homer Eaton, of Troy, N. Y.; C. R. McGee, of New England; J. N. King, of New York; R. R. Daugherty, of New York; William Swindells, of Philadelphia; G. B. Mannis, of New York East; W. M. Evans, of Central Pennsylvania, and J. D. Hammond, of California. Dr. Buckley then obtained the floor and moved that nominations be on a call of conferences. Other speeches condemning it were made, and the motion to nominate by conferences was carried.

Nominations for agents for the Western Book Concern, at Cincinnati, were then called for. In both cases two were to be elected. Before the vote was taken the result of the first ballot for New York agent was read. Dr. Homer Eaton was overwhelmingly re-elected and after taking the first vote on the Cincinnati concern and the second on New York, the conference adjourned. Both votes will be announced in the morning.

BANKERS INDICTED.

Denver Finance Sharpers Accused of Crimes.

Denver, May 19.—The federal grand jury now in session has found several indictments against bank officials and others accused of having conspired to defraud depositors in banks in this city which have closed their doors during the past three years. John J. Reithmann, president, and John J. Reithmann, Jr., vice president, Charles M. Clinton, cashier, and Charles Kunzemiller, assistant cashier of the German National bank, are charged with having falsified figures in the report to the comptroller of the condition of the institution on May 4, 1893. It is said that charges of a more serious nature against these men are being considered by the grand jury.

It is also announced today that O. E. Miller, of Chicago, has been indicted on the charge of embezzling $125,000 from the Commercial National bank, and that Charles H. Daw, who was president of the Commercial bank, is charged with having conspired with Miller to defraud Commercial depositors and with having violated the national banking law by loaning to Miller $145,000, whereas under the law the bank could not loan to one individual or company more than 10 per cent of its capital stock, which was $200,000.

O. E. Miller figured quite prominently in Denver prior to the panic of 1893. He was and still is the head of the Miller Hernia company, which handles trusses, and other patents for the cure of rupture, and has offices in Denver, Chicago and other cities. Investigation of Miller's financial affairs, since the crash of 1893, has developed the fact that his entire indebtedness to the National bank of Denver aggregated $345,000. Of this amount $192,000 was secured from the Commercial and German National banks, and the remaining $153,000 was borrowed of banks that survived the panic. The American National, which suspended recently, is said to have been a loser.

Receiver Frank Adams, of the Commercial National and Zeph T. Hill, of the German National have been pressing Miller for a settlement, but the truss dealer, who moved his residence to Chicago soon after his financial backers went to the wall, has been standing them off, with promises to bond his company and square up his indebtedness. Miller floated bonds in Chicago for $325,000, but not one cent of this money ever reverted to the banking institutions in Denver to which he was largely indebted.

It was upon the receipt of the news that he had received the money from his bonding operation that the receivers withdrew. While in Denver Miller was very active in Sunday school work.

Other Eastern members of the Associated Press left yesterday and today over the other routes. Horace White, of the New York Evening Post, and St. Clair McKelway, of the Brooklyn Eagle, and Herman Ridder, of the New York Staats Zeitung, who had expected to attend the annual meeting, were prevented at the last moment by personal and business engagements.

GROVER CANNOT COME.

But He Will Touch the Button at Washington.

Pittsburg, May 19.—President Cleveland has written to the executive committee of the twenty-eighth national sangerfest, which begins in Pittsburg, June 8, that he will be unable to attend, but that he will be with the German singers and the monster audience in spirit at the reception concert and will open the sangerfest by the touch of an electric button at the White House.

A monster flag is to be made of red, white and blue glass bulbs, which, at a given signal, will be illuminated by an electric wire, having a direct connection between the sangerfest hall and the White House. The illumination will take place just before the reception concert, after the audience is seated. In this manner the president will declare the great national feast of song officially opened.

PRISON GOODS FAILURE.

Columbus, Ohio, May 19.—W. E. Joseph, of this city, who is the chief clerk in the headquarters offices here for the Patton Manufacturing company in the state prison at New Albany, Ind., and of the plan at Muncie, Ind., has been appointed receiver of the company in both states. His bond is $50,000; assets not known, but by prudence it is said they may pay out. Discrimination against prison goods, labelled by compulsion of law, is said to be at the bottom of the assignment.

WALLACE'S CONDITION.

New York, May 19.—The condition of ex-Senator William A. Wallace was said today to be unchanged.

DEADLY

Nebraska Has a Cyclone Which Plots Out Many Human Lives.

Death List is Estimated at Forty But Wires Are All Down.

Kansas Losses and Relief Needed---Aid For Texas Sufferers.

Omaha, May 19.—Meager reports continue to arrive of the cyclone which devastated a portion of Richardson county, in the extreme southwestern portion of the state, continue to arrive, but no reliable details have been received as yet.

Near Humboldt and at Pawnee City it is reported that the deaths number forty. Those at Pawnee, or near there, on the reservation, are principally supposed to be Indians, as but few whites were allowed in the reservation limits.

Falls City reports four deaths, as follows, all being whites:

John Smith.
Mrs. Samuel Sailer.
Mrs. Shock.
Son of J. M. Houck.

Among the injured are one or two who may not recover. The list includes William Brannon and wife, J. M. Houcks, severely bruised; Mrs. J. M. Houcks, bruised arm and shoulder; Isaac R. Rhodes, very badly cut and injured internally; son and daughter of Mr. Rhodes, both severely bruised; William Hinton, Mrs. William Hinton, bodily injuries; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hinton, face badly bruised; Granny at Missouri Pacific depot, broken leg and lacerated knee; William Smick, wounded on the left arm and ankle.

THE KANSAS CYCLONE.

Twenty-Eight Dead; Over Fifty Were Injured.

Kansas City, May 19.—Twenty-eight killed outright, fifty or more injured, some of them fatally, and a property loss aggregating about $1,000,000, is now given as the estimated damage done by Sunday's cyclone in Marshall, Nemaha and Brown counties, Kansas. Further reports may increase these figures, as telegraph communication with the stricken points is still imperfect, and consternation prevails. The dead are distributed as follows:

At Seneca and neighborhood, 8; at Oneida, 6; Reserve, 5; Sabetha, 5; Morrill, 4.

Seneca suffered a property loss of about $350,000; Frankfort, $100,000; Reserve, $60,000; Sabetha, $50,000; Morrill, $20,000. Thousands of dollars of damage was done in the country between these towns. Although the pecuniary loss at Frankfort was great, not a life was lost there. Destitution and destruction meet the eye at every turn.

MOB IN MEXICO.

Shouted "Death to Spaniards" and "Cuba Libre."

City of Mexico, May 19.—The question of Cuba, coupled with the hatred of the lower classes here for the Spaniards was the cause of a lively riot in one of the outer wards last night. A drunken man passing a match factory made offensive demonstrations against the owner of the factory—a Spaniard—shouting, "Death to Spaniards."

When the Spaniard, thinking the man was about to draw a knife, hit him, a mob gathered shouting "Death to Spaniards" and "Cuba libre," and then began stoning the factory and smashing windows. The police were telephoned for and soon Gen. Carballada and his adjutants arrived when the mob stoned them, slightly wounding the general. The police dispersed the mob, arresting fourteen persons.

BOYCOTT BREAKING.

Milwaukee Merchants Take an Active Hand.

Milwaukee, May 19.—There is no change to note in the street railway strike, except perhaps the mention that the boycott is breaking. A number of dealers today notified the railway company that they would trade with it, and that it need send no more orders to Chicago.

Merchants are said to be preparing to institute a boycott counter to that of the strikers, by refusing to sell small dealers who will not agree to dispose of their goods to all comers, regardless of their affiliations. Meanwhile, business in all branches is paralyzed, and the cars of the street railway are only meagerly patronized.

DR. FRAKER'S TRIAL.

Richmond, Mo., May 19.—The trial of Dr. George W. Fraker, of Excelsior Springs, for defrauding insurance companies out of $54,000 was begun in the circuit court of Ray county yesterday afternoon. There are five indictments, all alleging the same offense. About 100 witnesses from various sections of the country are in attendance. As soon as the case was called the lawyers for the defendant offered a motion to quash the indictments, and the legal wrangle occupied the entire afternoon. The sympathy of the people seems to be with Fraker. The defense claims to be sure of a speedy acquittal.

ARCHDUKE LOUIS DEAD.

Vienna, May 19.—Archduke Charles Louis of Austria, eldest brother of Emperor Francis Joseph, is dead, at the age of 54 years.

GOLD BUG DEMOCRATS.

Those in Illinois Will Organize Separately.

Chicago, May 19.—The gold standard Democrats of Illinois have decided to have a state central committee of their own and to ignore State Chairman Hinrichsen's combination. After discussion the special committee on state organization reported in favor of organizing a committee, consisting of two members from each congressional district and four from the state at large, to have charge of the campaign against the present state central committee, Governor Altgeld and free silver.

The conference was for the purpose of taking into consideration what should be done in view of the alleged fact that the silver wing of the Democracy of the state was resorting in unfair methods in the primary election, to carry the state convention for free coinage. Resolutions were adopted protesting against the methods of the silver men of the party, and declaring that the fight would be taken to the state and national convention if necessary.

SPLIT AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Ill., May 19.—Five hundred stood in the town caucus of the Ottawa Democracy last night and for twenty minutes, in a scene of wild disorder, sought to howl one another down. There were the adherents of Attorney General Moloney, representing the Altgeld free silver wing of the Democracy, and the gold standard administration Democrats, friends of Controller Eckels. A division of the house followed on the chairmanship question, and was so close a committee was appointed to count the votes. It declared the silver men were winners, and the gold standard advocates almost immediately left the hall. A free silver delegation was then selected to the county convention, which, on Thursday, will elect a silver delegation to Springfield instructed for Altgeld for governor and Moloney for attorney general.

SHOOTING MEET.

Big Time Commenced at Cincinnati Today.

Cincinnati, May 19.—A four-days' shooting tournament will begin here today. It will be exclusively at artificial targets. There will be two sets of traps of five in each set. Rapid firing will be the method used, and American association rules will govern. Targets will be thrown at known angles for amateurs and at unknown angles for professionals. The entrance fee will be $2, $2.50 and $3, according to the number of targets thrown, which will be 15, 20 or 25.

A half a hundred crack shots are here already, among whom are Budd and Gilbert, of Iowa; Critzer and McCormick, of San Antonio; Fulford and Glover, of New York; Bickey, of Boston; Parmalee and Loomis, of Omaha; Collins, of Baltimore; Hollowell, of Tucson, and others. Prizes guaranteed are $2000, and it is believed not fewer that 50,000 shells will be fired during the four days.

RED LAKE RIVER.

Crookston Flooded and the Situation is Serious.

Minneapolis, May 19.—A Crookston, Minn., special to the Journal says: The flood situation is becoming very serious, the rise in the Red Lake river having been very rapid by reason of continuous and copious rains. Part of the town is flooded and water is two or three feet deep on some of the principal streets, while in some of the resident districts the first floors are flooded. The railroads have suffered severely from washouts and all trains are late.

The crop situation in the Red River valley, famous for its hard wheat, is most serious as the wet spring has prevented seeding and the acreage is cut down tremendously.

IOWA DEMOCRATS.

Silver and Gold Wings Will Battle Tomorrow.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 19.—The Democratic state convention will meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. A majority of the delegates have already arrived and have been in caucus today on preliminaries. The state committee had decided upon S. O. Wright, of Tipton, for temporary chairman, but the silver men are today talking of a change on account of objectionable features of his intended speech. Should they refuse to endorse the committee choice, E. M. Carr, of Manchester, is likely to be selected, and he may also be made permanent chairman.

The resolutions will be uncompromisingly for free silver at 16 to 1, and for Boies for president. Silver men claim 700 out of 947 delegates, and unless their present program is changed will begin the fight on the opposition at the very opening.

HOT FIGHT IN ILLINOIS.

Lemont, Ill., May 19.—Joe Bertrand, champion bantamweight of the Pacific coast, and Barney McCall, champion of Canada, met in a 20-round contest here last night. It was one of the best fights ever witnessed in this state. McCall was the aggressor until the seventeenth round, when Bertrand swung both right and left in rapid succession and knocked McCall out. Bertrand was terribly punished.

TAYLOR'S FAMILY LEAVE SPAIN.

Madrid, May 19.—The fact that the United States minister, Hannis Taylor, has arranged with a transport agency to convey his personal furniture on board the steamer Conde, bound for New Orleans tomorrow, led to the report that the minister was to leave Madrid. This, it is stated, is not the case. Mr. Taylor's family is returning to the United States, but their departure has nothing to do with politics, and the minister is going to reside at the legation.

MINISTERIAL CHANGES.

Paris, May 19.—The Figaro this morning says that M. Herbette, the French ambassador to Germany, starts for Berlin today in order to present his letters of recall. According to the Evermont, M. Cambon, the French minister to Turkey, will succeed M. Herbette at Berlin.

WEALTHY DUBUQUE SUICIDE.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 19.—Frederick Weigle, one of the oldest and wealthiest residents of Dubuque suicided today by shooting himself. He was despondent on account of continued sickness.

LIBERTY

Many Will Be Allowed to Return to Southern Parts of Russia.

Peasantry, Jews and Roman Catholics Will Receive Some Benefits.

London, May 19.—The Chronicle's Berlin correspondent reports that the Berliner Tageblatt claims that the czar's manifestoes will give amnesties, partial or complete, to Russian prisoners in Siberia. Those sentenced to a life's penal servitude will receive mitigation of the sentence, and offenders domiciled in Siberia will be permitted to return to any part of European Russia, except St. Petersburg and Moscow.

The sentences of those in jail in European Russia for serious offenses will be reduced by one-third. A large number of minor offenders will be completely pardoned. Numbers of those who left the country for political reasons, will be pardoned on condition of their taking the oath of allegiance. The peasantry, in certain poor districts, will be excused from arrears of crown dues. Even the Jews, says the Berliner Tageblatt, will not be forgotten, and the ill-starred Hebrew agricultural colonies at Akaterinaslas will also be excused from arrears.

The Rome correspondent of the Chronicle also hears that the vatican has received information that the czar will pardon all the Roman Catholic priests who have been imprisoned or sent to Siberia for breach of the public worship laws, and that he also promises to grant gradually a large measure of religious liberty to all the subjects including the Roman Catholics. Cardinal Agliardi, the vatican's representative at the coronation at Moscow, will hand to the czar an autograph letter from the pope urging an extension of religious liberty.

PERUVIAN REVOLT.

Only a Little Affair Says the Government.

Lima, Peru, May 19.—(Copyright 1896, by the Associated Press.)—Via Galveston.—The revolt against the authority of the government which broke out at Iquitos, on the Upper Amazon, sixty miles above the mouth of the Napo is classed in official circles here as being little more than a farce. It is added that it is only a question of time when order will be restored, and great indignation is expressed against the treachery of certain government employes there.

President Pierola will dispatch two cruisers and troops immediately to Iquitos. The town has large government iron works, a shipyard and a floating dock capable of raising a thousand ton ship, as well as other important works.

INCONVENIENT TICKET RULE.

San Francisco, May 19.—The trans-Continental Passenger association has settled, as far as the present meeting is concerned, a number of the important questions before it. The question of issuing tickets in blank by the initial line to the representatives of other lines was discussed. This makes it necessary for all passengers if they buy their tickets in the office of the lines running out of this city to go to the Southern Pacific to sign the tickets. The demand of the Southern Pacific for a differential on trans-continental business out of this territory was on motion of M. M. Stern, of the Canadian Pacific passed for consideration until the next meeting.

A RUSSIAN SIDE SHOW.

Washington, May 19.—The Russian minister has sent to the president and members of the cabinet and a large number of public personages invitations to attend the ceremonies to be held at Beauvoir, in the suburbs of Washington, on May 26, in honor of the coronation of the czar.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

A Bostonian Throws Them Away After Ten Years of Slavery.

"Baco-Cure Will Destroy the Appetite For Tobacco In Every Case."

Telegraph Postal Department, Boston, Mass., Dec 9, 1895.—Gentlemen: I have been an inveterate cigarette consumer for the last ten years, smoking two packages daily, supplemented by cigars. Having used other, so-called, cures without avail I tried "Baco-Curo" and I am glad to say that three boxes have made tobacco, in any form, obnoxious to me. My experience assures me that Baco-Curo will destroy the appetite for tobacco in every case. Yours truly, H. R. Wiggin.

The case of Mr. Wiggin (one of the best known electricians in Boston) is that of thousands who testify that Baco-Curo is the only scientific, harmless and certain cure for the tobacco habit. Don't stop tobacco suddenly; Baco-Curo notifies you when to cease. It is a cure not a substitute, and is sold with iron-clad, written, guarantee to cure or money refunded.

Sold by all druggists at $1 per box; three boxes, (thirty days' treatment), $2.50, with written guarantee, or sent direct upon receipt of price. Write for booklet and proofs. Eureka Chemical and Manufacturing company, La Crosse, Wis., and Boston, Mass.

TELLER'S INDIAN BILL.

Washington, May 19.—The secretary of the interior has forwarded to Chairman Sherman, of the house committee on Indian affairs, a favorable report on the Teller bill, providing for the abolition of the office of commissioner of Indian affairs, and the assistant commissioner, and the substitution therefor of a board of three Indian commissioners. The board is to consist of two members of opposite political faiths, and the other is to be an army officer. The only change in the bill suggested by Secretary Smith is the striking out of the provision that the army officer must be above the rank of major.

PUNISHMENTS IN THE NAVY.

Washington, May 19.—After careful examination the president has approved the report of a naval board appointed to prepare a code of uniform punishments for naval offences, and hereafter the navy will enjoy with the army the advantages of uniformity in the sentences that may be imposed by court-martial for offences of a similar character. The new code will be published in general orders in the course of a few days.

BLANTHER

A Suspected Murderer the Holder of Many High Honors.

Knighthood, Iron Cross and Other Enviable Distinctions Were His.

San Francisco, May 19.—Joseph Blanther, the suspected murderer of Mrs. Philipena Langfeldt, was a lieutenant in the army of Emperor Francis Joseph, and served with so much distinction that he received a special token of imperial favor, at least four crosses, and decorations of knightly orders. The decorations, and the documents accompanying them, found among the effects of the missing man, establish these facts beyond a doubt. The most important of these documents is the highly illuminated imperial order of Dec. 12, 1878, conferring knighthood, crest, and a coat of arms upon Joseph Blanther, who is described as first lieutenant in the Sixty-fifth Austrian infantry commanded by the archduke Ludwig Victor.

This document interests the police here in the fact that it fixes beyond a doubt the age of Blanther at 37 years. He was born in 1859 at Rankolburg, in Stolmarc. He must have descended from a good family to get such a berth as first lieutenant in the archduke's regiment when only 19 years of age. Previous to that he had evidently done some peculiarly noteworthy action, for the highly prized iron crosses of the third order already had been conferred upon him.

Later on, from other papers found among Blanther's effects, it would appear that he was with his regiment at Bangkok, Siam, with the title of major. By some special act of bravery the attention of King Humbert was attracted to the Knight Von Blanther. Among other documents found by the police is the bearing of the royal seal of Italy, whereby knighthood in the order of the crown of Italy is conferred. This was in November, 1881, and in obedience to the royal will, the golden insignia of the order, the double headed eagle of the house of Savoy, and a patent conferring the right to wear it, was dispatched to Blanther who was then a lieutenant in the Thirty-second infantry regiment of Austria. Blanther arrived in the United States about ten years ago and resided in New York, Chicago and numerous towns in Florida. Blanther arrived in San Francisco on Feb. 2, and with the exception of a short trip to Portland, Oregon, he remained in this city ever since.

CIGARMAKERS MAD.

Weyler's Proclamation Will Cause Them Great Loss.

Tampa, Fla., May 19.—Gen. Weyler's proclamation, forbidding the exportation of tobacco from Cuba after ten days, has caused great consternation among the large manufacturers of Tampa. Many of them have large quantities of tobacco already purchased in Cuba and they fear they cannot get it out in the time prescribed. Some firms have eighths of the new crop in Cuba to last a year, and it is in a condition to be moved and will not be for months. A scarcity of bonded warehouse room here has caused a large amount to be stored in Havana and a fleet of schooners will be necessary to take it away, the regular steamers being entirely inadequate. A mass meeting of the entire Spanish population of Tampa has forwarded a vigorous protest to Madrid against the enforcement of the proclamation. The move is regarded here as one intended to throw the cigarmakers out of work, thereby cutting off revenue from the Cuban cause, as the cigarmakers have been contributing largely to the fund.

INDIAN CONTRACTS.

Letting Will Be Completed at New York.

Washington, May 19.—The annual letting of contracts for supplying the Indian service begun at Chicago over two weeks ago, will be completed at New York beginning today. The force of five clerks from the Indian bureau here who were detailed to Chicago have gone direct from there to the New York warehouse. Commissioner of Indian Affairs Browning went to New York yesterday with Inspector McLaughlin and Superintendent Taylor, of the Chilocco, Oklahoma, Indian school, who will act as experts in selecting Indian clothes.

"The amount involved in the New York contracts is estimated at $800,000, and the bids mostly will be for furnishing goods, coffee, etc. Assistant Commissioner Smith will relieve Commissioner Browning later in the week.

Denver, May 19.—W. W. Hamilton has received a letter from Chairman Gideon, of the L. A. W. racing board, announcing that he declined to open his case in regard to the unpaced mile record. THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The Jamestown Capital says in reference to the sale of the Fargo Argus: "Col. Warnock spent Sunday in Fargo. He states that the Argus deal is practically consummated. The incorporators are Col. Robinson, R. D. Hoskins and himself, Fuller, LaMoure and Haggart having nothing to do with the deal, and Ball only in the capacity of attorney. Irons and Gage are to get out their issue of the Argus Sunday and the new management takes possession Monday. Col. Warnock going to Fargo to assume his duties as editor."

The Business Men's union, of Devils Lake, met for the purpose of appointing two agents to visit Crookston and induce disappointed reservation land seekers to come here to locate. It will also consider the question of putting in a telephone and electric light system.

For some days past a party of surveyors have been working in the western part of Pelk county a few miles east of Grand Forks, and their movements have been shrouded in mystery. It appears now, however, that the party is one sent out by the Great Northern Railroad company to locate a new branch, which the company expects to build this summer. The line will start somewhere between Fisher and Mallory and run north through Hamtsville, Sullivan, Northland and Sandville township and on about fifteen miles into Marshall county. This will tend to attract a great deal of trade which was once taken from the Great Northern by the Keystone spur of the Northern Pacific and will also tap a section which heretofore has been tributary to the river and from which wheat could be transferred to the Northern Pacific at this city. The building of this line will mean a great deal to the farmers of the section through which it runs, as it will increase a competition which has already become close. Other branches are also projected in the eastern part of the country.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The great irrigated farm of the Milwaukee road at Mellette will be added to materially this year. Altogether nearly 800 acres will be under water or will raise crops from water flowed last year. A 20-acre lot will be turned into an experiment station, and in these will be seeded eighty varieties of seeds, grasses and vegetables, preference being given to those which thrived most the past season. A car load of trees from the Jewell nursery will be sent out this year. These include elm, maple, cottonwood, ash and other trees, which it is believed will flourish in this soil with plenty of water. It is found that clover will only last one or two years in this state, and then has to be seeded over again. This is said to be due to the lack of bacteria in the soil. To change this there has been received at Mellette considerable clover soil from Minnesota. This will be tested beside the Dakota soil. The government is experimenting in this line and believes that with these germs the gnawed root will absorb just so much of the necessary oxygen, bromine and inermis, which it ordinarily cannot get owing to the smoothness of the root. The alfalfa and other grass which was planted last year on irrigated land was on May 6 21½ inches high and very heavy, demonstrating the great productivity of this grass here when water is plenty. This year the farm will be seeded to the following crops: Potatoes, 220 acres; oats, 200 acres; wheat, 160 acres; millet, 40 acres; corn, 40 acres; barley, 100 acres. The Salter Seed company will also continue its experiments.

At Wanbay, burglars broke into the postoffice Sunday night, blew open the safe and got about $150 besides $200 worth of stamps. A brace and three chicks belonging to Martin Erickson, a blacksmith, whose shop was only half a block from the postoffice, were found. The burglars had their own drill. The same night the Odd Fellows' hall was broken into, but nothing was taken. Postmaster Harrington, who is president of the Wanbay creamery, had $1500 deposited for erecting the building, which they were evidently after, but did not get, as it had been deposited elsewhere.

All the saloons at Pierre excepting Odmarck & Samuels', have obeyed the orders of Mayor Molloy to remove all chairs and tables and take screens from the windows. And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in the form which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

WEST END

J. A. Murray Has Purchased the Missabe Hotel at Proctorknott.

Murray House Will Hereafter Be Run By H. R. Patterson.

Mrs. Frank Schurtz Lost and Found Her Pocketbook Today.

Hotel changes took place yesterday in rapid succession. J. A. Murray, of the Murray house, purchased the Missabe hotel at Proctorknott of P. F. Smith, and will tomorrow take possession of his new property. If there is one thing that Landlord Murray excels in more than others it is in running a first class hotel, and the Proctorknott people are to be congratulated on securing him for the Missabe house.

The Murray house will not be closed up, as reported, but will be kept open and operated by H. R. Patterson, who has already assumed its management. Mr. Patterson is an old and respected citizen, and his popularity will add to the patronage and future success of the Murray house.

LOST AND FOUND.

Mrs. Frank Schurtz lost her pocketbook on Central avenue this morning, and for a time there was a much excited woman on the street. The fact was reported to Victor Anderson, the patrolman, and the officer was fortunate enough to find the purse on the sidewalk in front of Hendrick's dry goods store. It contained $20.10, and its return to the owner was joyously received.

HIS MOTHER DYING.

Alderman Sang received a telegram last night with the sad intelligence that his mother, 85 years old, was at her home in South Hampton. Mr. Sang left this afternoon on the South Shore to reach her bedside as soon as possible.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The following births were reported yesterday: To W. J. Green and wife, a daughter; Simon Carpenter and wife, twin daughters; J. W. Nelson and wife, a son.

G. D. Wedan, of Carlton, is visiting his son, Gus Wedan.

T. C. Hayes has gone to Chicago for a ten-days' business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Auby, of Two Harbors, spent Sunday in West Duluth.

J. M. Martin and family left last evening for Ada.

Mrs. Frank Clippert and daughter have returned from a visit at Wrenshall.

Tonkey Was Noisy.

William Tonkey was arrested last evening for being drunk. He had been at work all day rotting together a jag, and as he had put on the finishing touches he was put behind the bars, where he could not enjoy it and the admiring attention it would have attracted. He expressed his disapprobation in a series of yells that were calculated to arouse the Sioux and Chippewa braves who slumber on the shores of Lake Superior and make them tumble out in the belief that the war whoop of the Indian resurrection had been sounded. They floated through the windows of the council chamber, where the city fathers were in session, sounding with painful distinctness in the silence caused by Alderman Harwood's absence. This morning Mr. Tonkey was more tractable, and paid his $12.50 into the city treasury without demur.

Found an Old Offense.

Frank Riley, one of the gentlemen who helped get away with a case of whisky from Jake Zien's establishment on Saturday last, probably regrets having attracted the attention of the authorities to himself. He was arrested today on an old charge of assault and battery. The offense was committed, according to the complaint, on William Orchard in September last, the affair occurring in the St. Paul & Duluth yard office. Since that time Riley had been out of the state, having but recently returned. He pleaded not guilty, and the trial was set for Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Bail was fixed at $15, in default of which Riley was committed to jail.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

The following births have been reported to the health department: A son to Fenwick and Carrie Brewer, of 18 Fifteenth avenue west; a son to Morris T. and Mary E. Beck, of 320 East Sixth street.

The following deaths have been reported: J. Hanson, of 1922 West Fourth street, of convulsions; Swan Anderson, at St. Luke's hospital, of typhoid fever.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Berries were the leader in the classic precincts of Onion terrace, commonly known as Michigan street this morning. There were carloads of them, and there were lots of other stuff. A few cherries were in—about the size of French peas and a little harder, too. Green stuff was plentiful, and there was not a chicken on the market. Eggs were firmer and asparagus went up 15 cents a dozen and mutton climbed up to 8 cents a pound. Tomorrow the Monday shipments will arrive and prices may suffer a material change.

DULUTH QUOTATIONS.

Note—The quotations below are for goods which change hands in lots on the open market; in filling orders, in order to secure best goods for shipping and to cover cost incurred, an advance over jobbing prices has to be charged. The figures are changed daily.

PUTTING IN A CULVERT.

A culvert is being put in at Sixty-third avenue west and Main street, West Duluth, to drain the section between the St. Paul & Duluth tracks and the base of the hill. During the recent storm the 24-inch storm sewer at this point named proved inadequate to carry off the water, the result being that the pavement on Sixty-third avenue west was washed up from the tracks as far north as Main street. The culvert will prevent a recurrence of such a happening.

RETURNS FROM CHICAGO.

ADVANCED

Wheat Went Up Half a Cent Today But Ruled Very Dull.

The Early Part of the Session Weak on Bearish Reports.

Stories of Fly Damage in Michigan Caused the Later Strength.

Wheat started on a market that was featureless today. Bearish reports from the wheat belt caused a decline. A reaction followed but more bearish reports came and another decline occurred. The market was very dull all day. The Michigan reports of fly damage were very persistently sent in all day from various parts of that state and, a most curious circumstance, some of them were accompanied by orders at Chicago to buy wheat. That was the chief influence on the market in the afternoon and the reason for an advance about twenty minutes from the close. The details of the world's shipments of wheat were received by the board of trade from their London agent and the total proved to be only 7,663,000 bushels and not 8,750,000 bus as was very generally believed yesterday. Bradstreet's made the world's visible 9,181,000 bus less than it was a week ago.

July opened unchanged at 61c, advanced ¼c, sold down to 60⅝c, reacted to 61¼c, fell off ⅛c, and after 1 o'clock became firm again and sold up to the split 61¾@⅞c. Shippers bought 65,000 bus to arrive at ⅛c under July, and the mills paid ¼c under for 10,000 bus. The close was ⅛c higher all round than yesterday. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62¼c; May, 62¼c; July, 61c. No. 1 northern, cash, 61c; May, 61c; June, 61¾c; July, 61¾@⅞c. No. 2 northern, cash, 61⅛c bid. No. 2 northern, cash, 58¾@58¾c. No. 3, 55¾@57½c. Rejected, 53¾@57½c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 62¼c; No. 1 northern, 61c. Rye, 35c. No. 2 oats, 20¼@20½c; No. 3 oats, 19½@20c. Flax, 86c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 358; oats, 19; rye, 5; barley, 32; flax, 5. Receipts—Wheat, 109,165 bus; oats, 3570 bus; rye, 2244 bus; barley, 8338 bus; flax, 2248 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 149,567 bus; barley, 45,297 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, May 19.—Wheat declined early on a continuation of yesterday's weak feeling and liquidation, then advanced and closed 1c higher on covering by shorts, influenced by a new batch of bad crop news from Indiana and Michigan. Cables not important except that they quoted a weaker feeling in London on account of increased Russian offerings. News from the Northwest was of improved weather, and good authorities express confidence in a fair crop notwithstanding the lateness of the season. Seaboard clearances are very disappointing, and the advance of today probably checked the little demand that had sprung up on yesterday's decline. Today's reaction was a healthy one but has taken a good deal of support away from the market by the covering of shorts and large purchases against weekly puts.

Corn and oats steady with light trade. Larger receipts are predicted but are not in sight.

Provisions remain firm. Some buying by shorts, but packers continue sellers and outside trade is light.

Puts, July wheat, 61¼c.

Calls, July wheat, 62⅝@⅝c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Brisk Inquiry For Northern Pacific Securities.

New York, May 19.—The stock market opened quiet but firm. In the railway bond department a brisk inquiry was noted for the Northern Pacific and improvements were scored in the bonds extending to 1½ per cent in the seconds. Trading in stocks was without noteworthy feature up to 11 o'clock, and was largely confined to the industrial group.

The Rubber shares gained liberal fractions despite the uncertainty that appears to prevail in some quarters as to the outcome of the annual election of officers, which is to be held today. The Hannington and Evans interests are well represented, and a stubborn contest may be looked for, although the present management were confident of re-election. London prices for Americans were discouraging, but had no influence on the local market, which held firm. The foreign houses appear to be without orders aside from purchases of Northern Pacific bonds.

Considerable pressure was exerted against Sugar during the second hour and a concession followed of 1⅝ to 120⅜. The apathy of the market encouraged something of a demonstration against the list and fractional recessions occurred except in Rubber shares, which rose to 25 and 35 respectively for the common. The first mentioned, however, reacted to 23½ bid at noon. Louisville & Nashville and Manhattan were prominent in the reactionary movement and lost ¾ per cent each. The market at midday was heavy in tone. The sales to noon were 57,300 shares.

SCHOOLS OF MINES.

Washington, May 19.—The house committee on public lands has ordered a favorable report on the bill for the maintenance of schools of mines in the public land states and territories by granting each state, from the proceeds of the sale of mineral lands $15,000 for the current year, and an annual increase of $1000 a year for ten years.

PROFESSOR BOECK DEAD.

Philadelphia, May 19.—Professor Leopold Junius Boeck, at one time private secretary to Gen. Louis Kossuth, and in 1852 an intimate friend of Victor Hugo and Victor Cousins, and known as the "father of the Poles in America," is dead from heart failure. He was 76 years old. During the uprising of Hungary, Boeck became a major in Kossuth's army and afterwards the great leader's secretary. Professor Boeck was twice married. His widow is a member of the old New York family of Lounsberry, who are closely connected with the family of ex-Senator Platt.

GERMANY'S AFRICAN TERRITORY.

Berlin, May 19.—During the debate in the reichstag today on the credits asked for Damarland, German South Africa, Dr. Kayser, chief of the colonial office, declared that in the opinion of the government Germany should never abandon her possessions in Southwest Africa, and expressed the hope that reinforcements of 400 troops would be sent there by the end of the month. D. Kayser denied, during the course of this debate, that Germany's action was intended to aid the British, saying that it was intended to maintain German rule there and was of general political importance.

AWARDED TO THE HERALD.

The Herald is gratified by the action of the common council in awarding to it the contract for the city printing during the ensuing year, despite the fact that the morning paper's bid was slightly lower, on its face. The aldermen, however, very properly took into consideration the question of circulation, as provided by the section of the city charter dealing with the award of the city printing contract, and found that, figuring upon the basis of comparative circulation, The Herald's bid was by far the lowest. The result was that by a practically unanimous vote, the council passed a resolution making The Herald the official paper.

This action will undoubtedly be pleasing to the great majority of the taxpayers and voters in Duluth, who are all readers of The Herald, and who will during the coming year find the official proceedings of the council and all city notices in the columns of their favorite newspaper. It will also have the effect of adding to the number of The Herald's readers, and thus further increase the value of the paper as an advertising medium.

TO SUPERSEDE GAS.

It is claimed that the discovery which has long been dreamed of by Edison and other great inventors, the means of converting coal directly into electricity and without the intervention of the steam engine, has at last been accomplished in Boston by Dr. W. W. Jacques a chemist and electrician in the employ of the Bell Telephone company. He has filled an iron pot with caustic soda, heated the latter to a liquid mass, put into it a stick of carbon, and then forced air through the soda, and the result has been a flow of electricity in "phenomenal volume" between the carbon and the pot. Here is the promise and potency of Edison's imagined conversion of coal into electricity at the bottom of the mine without the expense of digging and transporting it, and as Edison's greatness has always been the utilizing of other people's inventions, why should he not now realize his favorite dream?

A lengthy account of Dr. Jacques' experiments and final success is given by the Boston Herald, and the following extract will give some idea of the great revolution that will be worked in all industry by this invention: "Boilers, engines and dynamos are complicated and costly. They are continually getting out of order and require constant attention and frequent repair. A 100-horse-power electric plant of the usual type would be very cheap at $10,000, and it must be suitably housed, with engine and boiler rooms separate. There are large amounts of coal to be handled, ashes to be removed and disposed of, water to be paid for, and endless supplies to be provided. And the result is, 5 per cent of the potential energy of the fuel. Contrast with this a brick structure ten or twelve feet square at the base and five or six feet high. In this are one hundred iron pots containing caustic soda and the necessary carbon, and under them a mild fire. And that is all. The terminals of such a generator yield the same energy as the $10,000 plant with one-tenth the consumption of fuel and attendance reduced to a minimum. That is what the invention means."

If this be true, and there is no reason to doubt that the invention is a success and perfectly practicable, electricity will be greatly cheapened and gas will be almost entirely superseded. Of course Dr. Jacques has probably patented his invention and will expect to make a fortune out of it, as he should, but even after paying him a heavy royalty companies that acquire the right to utilize the new process can furnish electricity at very low figures.

THE CHANNEL LIGHTS.

It is stated that many persons interested in the proper buoying and lighting of the channels in the harbor called at the government engineer's office to complain that the work is not being properly done, although Maj. Sears has nothing whatever to do with the lights in the channel, that matter being under the supervision of another department of the government service—the lighthouse board.

When Capt. J. W. Miller filled the office of harbormaster here three years ago he found that the lights were not attended to, and the inspector of the Eleventh lighthouse district, whose headquarters are at Detroit, was not disposed to pay much attention to the repeated complaints on this score. In June, 1893, Capt. Miller wrote to the lighthouse board at Washington respecting the matter, and in October made another protest, addressed to the same board, as to the inefficiency of the service. In reply he received the following letter from "Fighting Bob" Evans, who is now in command of the United States steamship Indiana:

"Washington, Oct. 10, 1893.—Mr. J. W. Miller, harbormaster, Duluth, Minn.: Sir—The lighthouse board is in receipt of your letter of Oct. 6, 1893, relative to the inefficient way the lights in St. Louis bay are kept. The board has today directed the inspector of the Eleventh lighthouse district to take measures to have these lights properly kept. Respectfully yours, "R. D. Evans,
"Commander, U. S. N.,
"Naval Secretary."

As a result of this correspondence the lights were properly looked after during the rest of that season. The chamber of commerce or some of the people directly interested in the proper maintenance of these lights might obtain a change in the present state of affairs by addressing a communication to the lighthouse board at Washington.

MR. CARLISLE'S ESTIMATES.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean has been comparing Mr. Carlisle's treasury estimates with the results of that department's operations during the fiscal year now nearing a close. He finds that the treasury receipts for the first half of the month of May are $12,843,488, and the deficiency for the fifteen days of the month is $5,000,000. It is apparent that the month of May is going to be as disappointing as have been practically all the months since the new law went into effect. Receipts for the month will not reach over $26,000,000, thus falling $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 below the average monthly expenditures. The deficiency for the fiscal year thus far is a little over $28,000,000, or a trifle of $25,000,000 below Mr. Carlisle's latest estimate and $56,000,000 more than his original estimate.

On Dec. 3, 1894, Mr. Carlisle in his report to congress said: "It is assumed that upon the basis of existing laws the revenue of the government for the fiscal year of 1896 will be: From customs, $185,000,000; from internal revenue, $190,000,000; from miscellaneous sources, $15,000,000." Following this statement he presents his estimate of the expenditures, which he puts at $357,000,000, exclusive of the postal service. His full statement rounds up with the estimate that the surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, would be $28,814,920.

"We are now," says the Inter-Ocean's correspondent, "within forty-six days of the end of the fiscal year. The customs receipts which Mr. Carlisle estimated would be $185,000,000 are now $145,000,000, and to this the next forty-six days will add about $15,000,000, bringing it up to $160,000,000 in round figures, or a trifle of $25,000,000 below Mr. Carlisle's estimate. He also estimated that internal revenue receipts would be for the year $190,000,000. They now amount to $127,000,000, and will be at the end of the year, forty-six days hence, about $142,000,000, or a trifle of $47,000,000 short of Mr. Carlisle's estimate. It is now apparent that the operations of the fiscal year, instead of producing a surplus of $28,814,920, as estimated by Secretary Carlisle, will produce a deficiency of about $35,000,000 besides the postal deficiency, which will probably amount to about $10,000,000, making the real deficiency for the year in the vicinity of $45,000,000, instead of a surplus of $28,814,920. Had Secretary Carlisle carried out the orders of congress in regard to the refunding of internal revenue taxes paid on alcohol withdrawn for manufacturing purposes there would have been taken from the proceeds of the revenue law another $12,000,000 or so, thus increasing the deficiency to that amount. These figures, it should be remembered, include nothing for the sinking fund. The law requires that a given amount be set aside each year for the sinking fund to extinguish the public debt. Had the requirement been complied with it would have added $45,000,000 to the deficiency, making it over $100,000,000 for the year."

The prediction that the Wilson tariff law would furnish more revenue after it got in full working order has not been realized so far. The customs receipts for April fell nearly $1,000,000 short of the corresponding month in the preceding year, while those for March were $1,500,000 short of those for the preceding year. The total deficiency for the month of May, 1895, was $3,286,135, while the deficiency of May, 1896, up to today is $5,000,000. The falling off in the custom receipts is due to the falling off in the importations which were enormously in excess of public demand during the first year of the Wilson law. So excessive had been the importations of last year that those of the present year have fallen off greatly. The April importations were but $58,705,299 against $68,794,958 in the corresponding month of last year, a falling off of over $10,000,000 and a consequent reduction in the customs receipts. Since the Wilson law went into operation the total deficiency has been $85,000,000, but it is also worthy of note that the deficiency since the present administration came into office is $150,000,000, so that $65,000,000 of this deficiency must be ascribed to the operations of the McKinley law previous to the enactment of the Wilson law. Therefore, while Mr. Carlisle's estimates have been wide of the mark, it is hardly correct to say that the Wilson law is altogether responsible for the decreased revenue.

Col. George E. Waring, Jr., chief of the department of street cleaning in New York, made a notable speech at the recent session of the National Municipal league at Baltimore. His subject was the "Separation of Politics From Municipal Business." He accepted the position on the distinct understanding that he was not to be interfered with by politicians, and he said Mayor Strong had not interfered with him from that day to this. He was roundly denounced for his large expenditures. The G. A. R. attacked him, and so did the labor unions, but Mayor Strong stood manfully by him, and he cleaned the streets of New York, much to the surprise of its population. His subordinates were alarmed, so great was the clamor against the colonel, but he told them to make the streets shine and they would win. Such was the fact. The extent of his triumph is seen by the circumstance that one of the "Big Four" of Tammany Hall wrote: "If we win, you shall stay in, do not trouble yourself." That is what efficient non-partisanship work, even in a city like New York, can achieve. It furnishes an object lesson for other large cities.

It is announced that Hon. James W. Griffin, who has been prominent in the silver organization of Hennepin county and the state, has been appointed state chairman for Minnesota for the American silver organization. The appointment has been made on recommendation of Elwood S. Corser, of the Minneapolis Gold and Silver club, by Chairman J. J. Mott, of the national committee, confirmed by the national executive committee. Mr. Griffin has always been a Republican, and as such represented the Twenty-ninth Hennepin district in the Twenty-fourth legislature, the session of 1885. He is an organizer, and his associate silver men say that Minnesota will be heard from under his direction.

Mr. Howells contends, in the last issue of Harper's Weekly, that the acceptance of tips by waiters in this country is the practice of beggary without the beggar's excuse of destitution. In Europe tips form the wage money of the servant class, and their amount is fixed. Much inquiry has convinced him that in this country there is no fixed rule for tipping. "This," he says, "makes it doubly corrupting, and still more like sturdy beggary; for the man who expects something beyond what he has earned expects that chance will befriend him in the amount, and gambles upon it in his heart."

The Boston Transcript says: "The inability of one squaw to raise enough corn to provide properly for an ex-warrior complicates the woman question in Oklahoma. Polygamous Indians now officially ordered to choose among the members of their household, and to let the others go, are thus forced to assist in the economic independence of women in an unusual but none the less admirable fashion."

The election of two bishops by the Methodist general conference is as exciting as the election of a United States senator by a legislature. Many of the Methodist preachers are keen and alert politicians. Chaplain McCabe was elected this morning, and there will now be a warm fight over the second bishop to be chosen.

The Southern delegates are said to be climbing into the McKinley bandwagon at a lively rate. They are thinking of the offices which the president will have to distribute after March 4 next.

Mr. Addicks could not secure the Delaware senatorship, but he prevented any other Republican from getting it, and he will try again, with the powerful aid of his "barrel." He belongs to the Merriam class of politicians.

LITCHFIELD IS GRATIFIED.

Litchfield Ledger: The fact that Litchfield has been freed from a disagreeable and perhaps expensive land title law suit is a matter fit for most hearty congratulation, and that she is now free there is not the least chance of a doubt. No one will think for a moment that this result has been achieved without earnest, persistent and able work on the part of sympathetic friends in Washington, and we take pleasure in naming Senator Davis and Congressman Heatwole as those friends—at the same time acknowledging friendly interest manifested by Senator Nelson, Congressmen Towne and Tawney.

RUBINSTEIN FESTIVAL.

To Add to the Great Composer's Fund.

New York, May 19.—A Rubenstein festival is to be held in this city tomorrow. It will serve the double purpose of honoring the memory of the great musician, the Paderewski of his time, and furnishing through the receipts a contribution—the first from America—to the fund established by Rubinstein in St. Petersburg for the encouragement of rising musicians of all nationalities. When Author Rubinstein died it was found by the provisions of his will that he had set aside 100,000 rubles to start a fund for the distribution of prizes to the winners of international musical contests, to be held every four years. It was stated in the will that he expected the public to add to and maintain this fund. His idea was to accomplish through it the development of artists who, without encouragement, would probably remain in obscurity. Many American musicians have been anxious to show their appreciation of this fund, and now the consul general of Russia in this city, Alexander Olarovsky, having been asked by the musical societies of New York, has consented to act as the executive head of the festival. Chauncey M. Depew will deliver an oration on the occasion. It is also expected that Sir Henry Irving will make an address. All the artists who have been approached have cheerfully volunteered their services. Such artists as Fran Katherin Lohse-Klafsky, Miss Saglo and Signor Abramoff have said that it would be a pleasure for them to take part in the festival. An orchestra of seventy-three pieces is to accompany the artists. It will be conducted by Professor P. G. Brounoff, a former pupil of Rubinstein, and president of the Rubinstein club.

THE ROUNDER.

Judson Clark is a bright Duluth boy, about 12 years old. He is a son of S. W. Clark, the patriarchal proprietor of the Troy laundry, and a general favorite among his school fellows. Among his many possessions is a large-sized pony, which is called Maud, chiefly because Maud is a pretty name, and, then, it's that kind of a pony. Between Judson and Maud there is an affinity, and the four-legged animal has learned a number of tricks which the two-legged animal has patiently taught her. One of these tricks is Judson's way of mounting his steed. He stands with legs wide apart, and Maud, at his bidding, slowly and softly pushes her head between his legs and then, with a quick upward sweep of her graceful neck, Judson is hoisted up until the slope of the neck permits him to slide down to the animal's back. Of course he is "supposed to," but he soon reverses himself and the mount is complete. While out riding the other day his cap blew off and he dismounted to get it. A gentleman and ladies, near by, who did not know of his trick, offered to assist him to mount, and stepped forward to give him a hand. A whispered word to the pony and Maud performed her little trick, the boy turned round and the astonished would-be assistants could only show their appreciation by a vigorous clapping of hands.

AS TO THE MACHINE.

Todd County Argus: The Wadena Pioneer affects to sneer at the statement that the fight between W. E. Lee and Governor Clough is a war of the people against the machine. The statement is true, however. Governor Clough has complete control of every part of the machinery of the party in the state. Neither Mr. Lee, nor Mr. Van Sant, nor Mr. Eustis, can avail themselves of any of the information in the hands of the central committee, and that sometimes is of great value to a candidate. If they did apply we have no doubt they would get the information, but it would lay bare to the eyes of Governor Clough's managers their plans. Whatever force is back of Mr. Lee in this fight is outside of the machine and opposed to it. This element of the party which has taken up the fight against Governor Clough and the machine will prevail, and W. R. Merriam's plans, which he hoped would land him in the United States senate, will be overturned.

FOUR FEET IN THE TROUGH.

Glencoe Register: Ex-Governor Merriam is in favor of Clough's re-election for the reason that the latter cannot possibly stand in his (Merriam's) way in the senatorial contest of 1898. Merriam has already had more from the Republican party than he was entitled to, and his ambitions to succeed Senator Davis will be knocked into a cocked hat long before the latter's term expires.

IS NOT A TOOL.

Hinckley Enterprise: The politicians are making a strong fight for the nomination of Clough. The people want either Lee or Van Sant. Lee's prospects for carrying every county in the Sixth district are good. Wherever he is known, his friends and well-wishers are numerous. Do we want a man of the people or a politician's tool for governor? Lee is the tool of no one.

HITS AT DULUTH.

Minneapolis Journal: A Duluth fakir sent out a preposterous story to a Philadelphia paper about a Russian miner at Virginia, Minn., which the Tribune has swallowed whole and printed three times so far. What is the use of swallowing other people's fakes when one can invent his own.

Minneapolis Tribune: Duluth has but a few rods of street level enough for bicycles, and the selfish inhabitants along that protest against its being used. Hence there is a slump in the wheel industry in Duluth.

A Woman Answers "To Me"—Anxious Inquirers Intelligently Answered—Thousands of Grateful Letters.

Women regard it as a blessing that they can talk to a woman who fully understands their every ailment, and thus avoid the examinations, experiments and theories of incompetent physicians, whose sex deprives them of knowing by experience. The endless confidence placed in Mrs. Pinkham by American women, prompts them to seek her advice constantly.

Female diseases yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. Inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement of the womb, ovarian troubles, spinal weakness and kidney complaints, all have their symptoms, and should be "nipped in the bud." Bearing-down pains, backache, headache, nervousness, pains in groins, lassitude, whites, irregularities, dread of impending evil, blues, sleeplessness, faintness, etc.

Here is testimony right to the point:

"The doctors told me that unless I went to the hospital and had an operation performed, I could not live. I had falling, enlargement and ulceration of the womb.

"I was in constant misery all the time; my back ached; I was always tired. It was impossible for me to walk far or stand long at a time. I was surely a wreck. I decided that I would give your Compound and Sanative Wash a trial.

"I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used two packages of Sanative Wash, and I am now almost well. I am stouter and healthier than I have ever been in my life. My friends and neighbors and the doctors are surprised at my rapid improvement. I have told them all what I have been taking."—Mrs. Annetta Bickmeier, Bellaire, Belmont Co., O.

ADOPTED

The Ordinance Prohibiting Riding Bicycles on Sidewalks Was Passed.

Council Awards the City Printing to The Evening Herald.

Insurance Rates Declared By Resolution to Be Too High.

The council last evening passed an ordinance to compel bicyclists to keep in the middle of the road. If the road is muddy or sandy the cyclist will have to walk. The ordinance was introduced by Alderman Coventry for the benefit of his Lakeside constituents, whose sidewalks under the original ordinance were given over to wheels.

Alderman Stevens proposed an amendment, allowing bicycles to be run on Minnesota avenue, on Minnesota Point beyond the canal. He made an eloquent plea for the cyclists, but Alderman Trevillion, in whose ward Minnesota avenue is situated, objected. The latter said his constituents wanted the use of their walks themselves. If cyclists were allowed on the sidewalks, pedestrians would be crowded off.

Alderman Nelson acked on a second amendment, providing that bicycles might be ridden on the walks outside of a limit three miles from Lake avenue, the speed to be not more than six miles an hour, and riders to dismount on meeting pedestrians.

Alderman Sang laughed this idea to scorn. He said a bicycle rider who would dismount on meeting a pedestrian would be a curiosity worth going miles to see.

W. H. Loud, of the Duluth Cycle club, who was present as the representative of that organization, asked that it be allowed that bicycles be ridden on the walks in the outlying districts where the streets were impassable because of mud and ruts. But all the efforts of all its friends could not keep the wheel on the walk. The amendments were lost and the ordinance, having been put on its passage, was adopted by a vote of 9 to 6.

THE ASSESSOR'S SALARY.

The assessor's salary was filed down to the dimensions of $1500 per annum, a motion to that effect introduced by Alderman Coventry passing unanimously without debate.

A resolution remitting penalties and interest on delinquent taxes and assessments on property of the First Christian church, in accordance with a petition presented by it, was the occasion of some debate.

Alderman Richardson put in a plea that the petition be granted.

Alderman Sang inveighed against the granting of the concession on the ground that it would establish a bad precedent. If poverty were allowed as a sufficient reason for remission, the council would have plenty of business in that line to attend to. The council might as well let it be understood that charges on property must be paid, and a church was as good as any to start in with. Alderman Olafson, too, was adverse to granting any favor.

The resolution was lost by a vote of 9 to 6.

Alderman Coventry introduced a resolution that The Herald be awarded the official printing contract. He said that The Herald's affidavit of circulation was the only one received in accordance with the resolution passed at the last session of the council, on the strength of the opinion by the city attorney that circulation might be considered in making the award. The fact that no affidavit had been put in by the News Tribune, said he, had been considered to be prima facie evidence that the latter paper could not show a sufficiently large circulation to justify an award to it. The resolution was carried by a vote of 13 to 2.

Alderman Crandall and Hale voted against it.

TO INVESTIGATE THE MATTER.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Stevens was passed, providing that the health department in conjunction with the city attorney investigate the water being at present supplied to the city. Alderman Stevens said that in his part of down the water drawn from the main was greasy and of the odor of an egg that missed its vocation and failed of its mission.

The council expressed its opinion, by a resolution introduced by Alderman Olafson, that insurance rates are at present much too high and that an effort should be made to procure a reduction.

The committee appointed to investigate the question at issue between the Ore Trimmers' union and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway reported that the dock to which the trimmers desired access to bid for work is the private property of the railway company and no interference with its use of the same would be warranted.

In connection with this report Alderman Dahl, of the committee, introduced a resolution to the effect that it was the sense of the council that as the captains of vessels pay for the trimming of cargoes, they should be allowed to engage whom they pleased, and not forced to take the men placed on the dock by the railroad company.

In response to a question as to what the resolution meant, Alderman Dahl said it was intended as a mark of sympathy with the trimmers.

Alderman Krumsieg said the railroad company needed a good warming up, and he would be glad to vote for a resolution that meant something, but the present one did not go far enough. On motion of Alderman Christensen the resolution was referred back for a week "to be finished."

A resolution, introduced by Alderman Nelson, was passed, providing a wagon for the West Duluth police service.

ENTERTAINING THE FIREMEN.

A resolution for an appropriation of $500 for entertaining delegates to the State Firemen's association convention was laid over for one week. A resolution, introduced by Alderman Trevillion, was passed for the appointment of a committee of six, of whom three were to be members of the council, to co-operate with the fire commissioners in raising money for the entertainment fund, and the chair named Aldermen Trevillion, Christensen and Coventry, and Messrs. Buchanan, Brace and Atmecke.

The city engineer reported that the West Duluth Light and Water company had 170 hydrants in place and, in addition, thirty-two which were not attached to the mains. The company, by its charter, was allowed to charge for 156 hydrants, and it had, in its bill for the last quarter, charged for 164, an excess of eight.

A resolution was passed directing the comptroller to report to the council the number of hydrants the West Duluth company had received pay for since its organization.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Harker, providing a schedule for the Lakeside Railway company, was, on motion of Alderman Coventry, referred to the committee on railroads and transportation for one week.

The appointment of F. H. Russell as deputy assessor in place of George E. Long was received and confirmed.

The expert accountant employed to make the usual examination of the books of the city treasurer, comptroller and clerk reported their accounts to be correct. According to his report the total amount of bonds and coupons remitted for the American Exchange bank, of New York, and not returned amounts to $2851.91. The use of an improved cancelling machine in the treasurer's office was recommended.

FIRE COMMISSIONERS' STATEMENT.

A communication from the fire commissioners relative to the expenses of the department was received. Referring to the recommendations of the retrenchmen, committee's report, the commissioners stated that since March, 1894, a reduction of $14,140 in salaries had been effected, which had been accomplished in part by closing the house on Park Point, a measure initiated by the commissioners, and dispensing with seven men. The service is not attractive, despite the retrenchment committee's report to the contrary, according to the communication, and the chief has now applications from but three men who are qualified. Attention is called to the fact that the deficit of $213,148.16 was created by the purchase of real estate and the erection of department buildings, which are permanent improvements, and for hydrant rentals, which are for general use, and which should be transferred to the general fund. The communication was referred to auditing and finance.

A communication from Judge Dillon was received. He said his fee would be in the neighborhood of $1000, unless the investigation should prove to incur very little labor, in which case the fee would be less. On the other hand, he reserved the privilege of naming a higher figure. The letter referred to a communication from Col. Harris on the subject, and Alderman Christensen inquired if Col. Harris was a member of the auditing and finance committee. He said he asked merely for information. The communication was placed on file.

A PROTEST RECEIVED.

A protest was received from numerous citizens against the construction of a sewer at Eleventh avenue east, between Second and Fifth streets, which was referred to drains, sewers and parks.

A petition from a number of business houses asking for a light at the night customs office at the foot of Fifth avenue west was received and referred. H. C. Hanford put in a bill for $119 for damages caused by back water from the sewer at Eleventh avenue east and Third street, which was referred.

The matter of getting insurance on the ferry in place of the policy in the Union Casualty company, which was cancelled by reason of a recent agreement among the compact companies, was referred to the committee on harbors, docks and tunnels.

The assistant city attorney transmitted an opinion that the council has authority to place under the control of the park board Forty-third avenue east, between London road and the shore of Lake Superior. The assistant city attorney informed the council that the Brett case would be heard by the supreme court not later than June 15.

On motion of Alderman Krumsieg it was ordered that the city attorney and the attorneys retained in city suits relating to the water question appear before the council on Monday afternoon and furnish information in regard thereto.

Alderman Richardson, of the committee on auditing and finance, reported as to the tender by City Treasurer Voss to A. W. Hartman on special taxes of $200,000 worth of bonds due by the terms of sale, and the refusal thereof by A. W. Hartman. The report went on to state that A. W. Hartman was informed that O. C. Hartman had said the money would be ready when the Perry suit was disposed of, and that that suit had been dismissed. A. W. Hartman had declined to be bound by the statement of O. C. Hartman, on the ground that the bid had been made by him on his personal account, and he said he would follow his attorney's advice not to take the bonds. The bonds were subsequently destroyed in Alderman Richardson's presence.

The council then adjourned after an ineffectual effort had been made to fix 8 o'clock as the hour for convening, Alderman Harwood was absent.

May Adopt the Hooks.

In many of the large cities the street railway companies have recognized the bicycle fad to the extent of putting hooks on the sides of the cars for carrying wheels. The Duluth company some time ago was considering the advisability of adopting this plan, but as the hooks have not yet made their appearance, it is to be supposed that the idea has been given up. It might be a paying investment here, and it might not. It would, of course, be a great boon for any rider who has a breakdown a few miles out on London road and has to carry his wheel in to the city on his back, or who breaks down in any outlying portion of the city. Whether they would be profitable in any other way probably nothing but an actual test would determine. It is possible that the company may yet decide to do it.

It is quite possible that there will be a run of summer opera at the Pavilion this year. The Duluth City band and street railway company, who are operating the resort this year are figuring with a company and may conclude to take it. It is their purpose to secure an excellent organization, one that will please the people and whose work will recommend it to public patronage, or none at all. They have such a company in view now and if engaged the season will open some time next month. The drawing power of summer opera at the Pavilion has never been tested but it is safe to say that it will become very popular. The run of the Wilburs at the Lyceum last summer was such as but few cities in the country saw and there is no reason why a season at the Pavilion should not be quite as popular.

Sold it Too Soon.

H. N. Randall, of Duluth, lately held a ticket in a horse raffle in Superior. It was the right ticket, but Mr. Randall did not discover it until after it was too late. The raffle was conducted by one W. H. Brown, and when it took place Mr. Randall was in Duluth and ignorant of his luck, so he was glad to take $1.50 for his ticket when it was offered by a small boy emissary of Brown's. When he discovered the imposition, however, he was wroth, and he replevined the animal. The suit will be heard in municipal court at Superior, May 23.

Not Yet Settled.

The flour mill strike at Superior is still on, and it seems to be as far from settlement as ever. Nearly all the mills are working, and at a meeting of the Millers' association yesterday it was decided to hold out and to run without the strikers. Saturday the Anchor and Grand Republic mills discharged some employes because they refused to take the places of strikers, and yesterday their places were filled by men to their own positions a number of them decided to stay out until the strike was settled.

The Kuss Concert.

The concert to be given by Edward Kuss, the basso, tomorrow evening, will be one that promises to enthuse local music lovers to no small extent. Mr. Kuss is a singer of many years of operatic expatience. He has sung with the Carl Rosa Opera company, with Minnie Hauk and many other famous singers. The program which will be given is a fine one. He will sing numbers from Schuber, Gounod, Schumann, Wagner, Nazar, Cluty and the famous selection "Archibald Douglas," by Louve. Mr. Kuss will be assisted by a trio consisting of Ch. Trautvetter, violin; G. Tonning, piano, and J. Flaaten, 'cello; also by Misses Mae Kelly and Louise Hall, sopranos, and E. W. Prophet, baritone.

A DISASTROUS FAILURE.

Financial convulsions which disturb the equilibrium of the business world are productive of far less misery than the failure of the kidneys to perform the office assigned to them by nature. When these organs become inactive the circulation acquires impurities which bring on dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel, catarrh of the bladder and other maladies. To impart to the kidneys and bladder a healthful impetus, very different from the excitement produced by an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest diuretic in existence. This excellent remedy for inactivity of the kidneys is also of the greatest service in malarial, dyspeptic, bilious and rheumatic troubles, and has received the unqualified endorsement of eminent physicians. The nervous, the elderly and infirm and convalescents derive unspeakable benefit from its use. Use it regularly in moderation and at fixed intervals, and anticipate with confidence the happiest results.

THE PRIZE BABY OF KANSAS CITY MO.

Cured of Disfiguring ECZEMA By the CUTICURA REMEDIES

Our baby when three weeks old was badly afflicted with Eczema. Her head, arms, neck, limbs and nearly every joint in her body was raw and bleeding when we concluded to try CUTICURA REMEDIES. We began with CUTICURA (Ointment) and CUTICURA SOAP, and after the first application we could see a change. After we had used them one week some of the sores had healed entirely, and ceased to spread. In less than a month, she was free from scales and blemishes, and to-day has as lovely skin and hair as any child. She was shown at the Grange Fair, and took a premium as the prettiest baby, over sixteen others. Mrs. & Mrs. PARK, 1629 Bellevieww Ave., Kan. City, Mo. Sold everywhere. POTTER DRUG & CHEM. FELL DOWN THE SHUTE.

Edward Edwards Dropped Forty Feet in a Mine.

A very serious accident happened at the Pioneer mine at Ely about 1:30 a. m. last Wednesday, whereby Ed Edwards was seriously injured. Mr. Edwards, says the Times, was attempting to climb from one sub-level to another at the sixth level of the mine and had placed his hands on a board overhead for the purpose of helping himself up. This board was set on slats on each end, but in some manner had got shifted to one side, barely leaving enough space to keep it in position, and as the extra weight was placed upon it, it gave way, and Mr. Edwards, having no other place to hold himself by, fell down the shute, a distance of about forty feet, striking on his head, causing concussion of the brain. His face and body was badly bruised and arm sprained by coming in contact with the side of the shute in the fall. He was taken to the hospital, where he received all the attention that medical skill could afford. On Thursday afternoon Mr. Edwards had so far recovered from his injuries as to be taken to his home.

DON'T NEGLECT

A COMMON CASE OF PILES.

It May Lead to Serious Results.

When people generally understand that all such fatal diseases as fistula, ulcer of the rectum, fissure, etc., almost invariably begin in a simple case of piles, they will learn the wisdom of taking prompt treatment for the first appearance of troubles in this quarter. The Pyramid Pile Cure will certainly cure every form of bleeding piles, itching, bleeding protruding or blind piles, and hundreds of lives have been saved by using this cheap but effective remedy right at the start, because at such a time a single package will affect a cure, while in the old chronic, deep-seated cases, several packages are sometimes necessary before a lasting cure is effected.

Physicians are using the Pyramid Pile Cure in preference to surgical operations and with uniform success. The remedy is prepared by the Pyramid Drug company, of Albion, Mich., and for sale by all druggists everywhere at 50 cents and $1 per package.

JUDGE NELSON PLEASED.

Well Satisfied With Lochren as His Successor.

Judge Nelson is home from Duluth, and is smiling pleasantly over his return to private life, says the St. Paul Dispatch. He had little to say concerning his retirement, when seen in his office.

"I gave them all a surprise," he declared with a smile; "I shall enjoy my retirement after so many years of work, but I have no plans to announce. For the present I shall be busy settling my private affairs, for my judicial work is all cleaned up, and there is nothing more to be done in that line."

"How do you like the appointment of Judge Lochren?"

"An admirable appointment. He is a good citizen, an able judge, a conscientious gentleman. Every one speaks well of the appointment."

This agreement witnesseth that the undersigned do hereby associate for the purpose of incorporation under and by virtue of Title one (I), of Chapter thirty-four (34) of the General Statutes of Minnesota, 1878, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and adopt and sign the following articles of incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

Then beginning again in the state of Minnesota at a point on the boundary line between the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin at a point on said boundary on the western border of township number forty-eight (48), north range fifteen (15) west found to be most feasible for crossing said boundary, and where said line of railway will meet and coincide with a line of railway to be built through the northwest corner of the state of Wisconsin as aforesaid, thence extending in a general westerly course, by the most practical route through and across the north central portion of the state of Minnesota; passing near the southern boundary of Hubbard county, thence westerly to a point near the southwestern corner of White Earth Indian reservation, thence in a northwesterly direction to a point on the western boundary line of Minnesota on the Red River of the North at or near Caledonia where said river can be most easily crossed; thence westerly through the state of North Dakota to the Missouri river by the most practical route to be more specifically determined and located. Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, with power of sale therein contained, bearing date the twelfth (12th) day of October, 1892, made, executed, acknowledged and delivered by John F. Landry and Rose Anna Landry, his wife, mortgagors, to Alexander Macrae, mortgagee, given to secure the payment of the sum of sixteen hundred (1600.00) dollars, and interest, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note for said sum, bearing even date with said mortgage, made by the said John F. Landry and Rose Anna Landry, his wife, payable to the order of said Alexander Macrae on the 1st day of October, 1897, with interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, upon coupon notes thereto attached, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 17th day of October, A. D. 1892, at eight o'clock in the forenoon (8 a. m.) in Book 103 of mortgages on page 184, and

Whereas said Alexander Macrae, mortgagee, did on the 17th day of October, 1892, by a written instrument, sell and assign all his right, title and interest in and to the said mortgage aforesaid, and did on said day, for value received, sell, indorse and deliver the said principal note together with the interest coupon notes attached thereto and the assignment of said mortgage as aforesaid to Marsdel F. Smith, which said assignment was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of October, A. D. 1892, at four o'clock p. m. in Book 83 of mortgages on page 294, and

Whereas said assignee of said mortgage has paid the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) in insurance premiums for insurance upon the buildings situate upon the property hereinafter described, said mortgagors having failed to keep said buildings insured, which payments in and by the terms of said mortgage is made a part of said mortgage debt.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said note and mortgage due October 1st, 1895, with grace, amounting to the sum of sixty-four (64.00) dollars, the payment of which was secured by said mortgage, and such default has continued for a period of more than six months after the same became payable, by reason whereof the said assignee of said mortgagee has elected to exercise said option and has heretofore duly declared, and does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage with all accrued interest thereon, to be now due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of seventeen hundred thirty-eight and 60-100 dollars, principal, interest and exchange and twenty-five dollars in insurance premiums paid by said assignee.

BRIGGS

The New York Presbytery Resents Any Dictation By the Assembly.

Foreign Missions Will Be a Prominent Feature---The Next Moderator.

Saratoga, N. Y., May 19.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States will hold its sessions here this week. What seemed like a harmonious meeting some months ago now promises to be a hot-bed of bitter crimination and recrimination owing to the reappearance of the Briggs ghost, which has given signs recently of a desire to revisit the glimpses of the moon" and stir up more trouble than did the shade of Hamlet's father. A few weeks ago at the meeting of the New York Presbytery an innocent little resolution was introduced merely reciting that the general assembly at its 1895 meeting had attempted to dictate to presbyteries by declaring against the employment of preachers whose theological education had been received at an institution to whose teachings the assembly could not subscribe. All this looked to mal enough, but the New York radicals went on to denounce in a brotherly way any attempt to dictate the choice of pastors. Immediately the old Briggs controversy arose from its grave. Some speakers declared the assembly had aimed at Union seminary in which Dr. Briggs was professor, and declared that they would not, they did not see him, hit with left-handed blows. The matter went over, but it is expected to be sprung on the assembly. If it so happens, a renewal of the Briggs fight will be the result.

Rev Dr. David R. Breed.

The convention will be called to order by the moderator, the Rev. R. R. Booth, D.D., Ll. D., of New York city. His successor will probably be the Rev. Dr. David R. Breed, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Pittsburg, although there are other candidates who have a strong following. Dr. Breed is a native of Pittsburg, where he was born in 1849. He imbibed his early religious feeling in the Third Presbyterian church of Pittsburg, and was named for his pastor, the Rev. David Riddle. He studied in the Western university and graduated at Hamilton college in 1867. He entered the Auburn Theological seminary and received his divine degree there, although he is the stanchest of the orthodox. He served for a time, while he was a student, at the House of Hope church, St. Paul, Minn. Later he went to Chicago and was pastor of the Church of the Covenant. At the last Saratoga assembly Dr. Breed made a powerful speech against Professor Smith and was the hero in a bit of dramatic oratory rarely equaled. He is a strong, sympathetic man of robust physique and tremendous vitality. The friends of the higher criticism, who are, therefore, friends of Dr. Briggs, do not expect to receive much encouragement from his robust orthodoxy. They expect to be able to defeat him and secure what they call a "broader" man for the chair.

Church unity has been before the general assembly for many years, and it will come up again this year. There has been a correspondence, a sort of theological flirtation, between the representatives of the Presbyterian church and the Protestant Episcopal church for a long time. As the assembly meets every year, and the general convention only once in three years, there have been more overtures from the Presbyterian end of the sofa than from that occupied by the other party. The general assembly, however, played the stern-father act a year or so ago, and directed its committee to suspend further correspondence with the Protestant Episcopal commission until it secured from its general convention instructions to accept and act upon doctrines already laid down. The burden of the correspondence with the Episcopalians has been that "mutual recognition and reciprocity between the different bodies who profess the true religion is the first and essential step toward practical unity; in other words, that if there is to be a permanent union the concessions must be mutual, and a step in that direction, the Presbyterians think, would be the exchange of pulpits by Presbyterians and Episcopalians. This step the latter body has not been willing to take yet, but it is not probable that at this day the incident would be repeated which is told of the Rev. Dr. Arthur Cleveland Coxe, the present Episcopal bishop of Western New York, who is said to have remarked to his father, the Rev. Samuel Hanson Coxe, Presbyterian, of New York:

"While I am glad to acknowledge you as my father, I am sorry to say that I cannot recognize you as a clergyman."

"May the Lord forgive me for begetting a fool," was the rejoinder of the pious Presbyterian preacher."

The question of the federation of the Reformed churches of the United States holding the Presbyterian system will be considered by the assembly. The Presbyterian church in the United States of America (commonly known as the Northern Presbyterian church), the general synod of the (Dutch) Reformed church in America, the general synod of the (German) Reformed church in the United States, the synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church, the Cumberland Presbyterian general assembly, the United Presbyterian general assembly and the Associate Reformed synod of the South. Every denomination entering into this union will retain every power, jurisdiction and right its distinct individuality as well as which is not by the constitution expressly delegated to the new body. The object of the federation is to promote the co-operation of the federated denominations in their home and foreign missionary work, and to keep watch on current religious, moral and social movements, and to take such action as may concentrate the influence of all the churches in the maintenance of the truth that our nation is a Protestant Christian nation, and of all that is therein involved.

Special emphasis will be laid on foreign missions. A foreign missionary conference will be held on May 20 in which each synodical and presbyterial foreign mission committee chairman in the church has been invited to participate. It will be essentially an experience meeting in which all plans and methods in use in various sections will be thoroughly discussed. Results will be looked into searchingly. Synodical conferences, Presbyterian conferences, city campaigns, pastoral exchanges, distribution of literature, Sunday-school foreign mission activity, young peoples' societies and foreign missions, plans for co-operation with the women's boards, and all women's synodical foreign mission societies have been invited to send representatives to this conference.

A THRIFTY CORONER.

Topeka Capital: Few people who followed the trial of the Hillmon case knew just why two coroner's inquests were held over the body of the man found at Crooked Creek, in Barber county.

This is the reason:

There was $25 in bills found in the coat on the body. The coroner took charge of this money, as was proper. When the first jury had finished its deliberations and adjourned he drew out these bills and paid them for their services. This took $12.

There was $13 remaining. Clearly, it would never do to turn this money over to the county to be held in trust for the dead man's relatives, if he had any. But what should be done with it?

The mind of the coroner was equal to the occasion.

He declared himself dissatisfied with the verdict, and called the jury together for a second inquest. The verdict was the same as that given at the first sitting, but the mind of the coroner was satisfied. The $25 was exhausted.

TOBACCO CAUSED CONSUMPTION.

Used 3½ Pounds of Tobacco Weekly For Thirty-Two Years.

Two Rivers, Wis, May 18.—(Special.)—Great excitement is being manifested over the miraculous recovery of Joseph Bunker who for several years has been considered a hopeless consumptive. Investigation shows that for over thirty years he used three and a half pounds of tobacco a week. A short time ago he was induced to try a tobacco habit cure called "No-To-Bac." Talking about his cure today he said: "Yes, I used No-To-Bac, and two boxes completely cured me. I thought, and so did all my friends, that I had consumption. Now they say, as you say, 'how healthy and strong you look, Joe,' and whenever they ask me what cured my consumption, I tell them No-To-Bac. The last week I used tobacco I lost four pounds. The morning I began the use of No-To-Bac I weighed 126½ pounds; today I weigh 169, a gain of 42½ pounds. I eat heartily and sleep well. Before I used No-To-Bac I was so nervous that when I went to drink I had to hold the glass in both hands. Today my nerves are perfectly steady. Where did I get No-To-Bac? At the drug store. It is made by the Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Montreal and New York, who will mail the famous booklet "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away," written guarantee and free sample for the asking. All druggists sell No-To-Bac under absolute guarantee to cure."

Mayor Truelsen is Dissatisfied With the Water.

Mayor Truelsen is dissatisfied with the water which the Duluth Gas and Water company is furnishing lately, and thinks that its muddy appearance is due to a leak in the pipe. The mayor appeared at the caucus of the council yesterday afternoon and told the aldermen that he had almost positive proof that there is a leak in the intake. Health Inspector Colby Smith took samples from near the mouth of the intake, and the mayor said it was so different from the water coming through the mains that there must be a leak. The council in the evening ordered an investigation.

General Manager Van Bergen, of the company, said this morning: "I cannot believe that there is a break in the pipe. Three months ago we extended the pipe and put everything in first-class shape. Six weeks ago we had a diver go over the entire intake, and he found everything in excellent condition, with no signs of a break anywhere.

"Two weeks ago we had a diver out putting a strainer on the Lester Park intake. We had then been waiting for several days to do it and had just caught two days of quiet weather. It was our intention to again make a thorough examination of the pipe, and after fixing the strainer the diver started at this. He had been at it but a short time when the northeast winds began to blow again, and since then there has not been a single day of quiet water. It is absolutely impossible for a diver to work if the water is rough, because the scow or tug from which he works will not remain stationary. Just as soon as the lake is quiet the entire pipe will be inspected, and it is our intention to do this at regular intervals, especially in the spring after the ice goes out.

"We are doing our best to improve the condition of the plant. We have forty men at work now. We flush the 'dead ends' of hydrants twice every month, on the 1st and 15th. The Superior people are experiencing the same trouble as we. The water which is pumped up over there now has the same discoloration, which goes to show that the continued northeast winds and the great amount of water which is being brought down in the rivers is responsible for the bad appearance which it has. I am confident that the trouble does not lie in the pipes."

No time will be lost by the health department in complying with the injunction of the council to make an examination of the intake pipe of the company's plant to ascertain whether people are getting water taken from the mouth of the intake or water that finds entrance to the pipe through loose joints and holes along its length.

Health Officer Routh today requested the Inman tug people to furnish him an estimate of the cost of a thorough investigation by a diver, with the view of commencing the work at once.

CHARRED CHECK.

Badly Scorched But it Proved to Be Good.

One of the greatest curiosities in the check line has just come to light in this city, says the San Francisco Bulletin. A lady brought it to the Bank of California to be cashed. It was in a paper box and had to be handled very carefully, for it was in two pieces and both were burned to a crisp. There was not a decipherable word on either piece. The lady said that the bits of crisp paper represented a check for $125, which she said was drawn by the national bank of D. O. Mills, of Sacramento. She had removed the letter from the envelope and had thrown the envelope on some live coal in the grate. Upon reading the letter she found a reference to an inclosure of a check for the sum named and burned to the fire in the grate with sore disappointment. The fire had done its work. The crisp paper lay on the coals. She carefully removed the same, placed it in a box and hurried to the Bank of California to get the money before the pieces were further crumbled.

After listening to the story the officers of the bank made a careful examination of the pieces of burnt paper and by the aid of powerful glasses they were able to make out portions of the words from the pen impressions made on the paper. There was enough of these lines left to show that "Ella" had been written and part of the word "hundred" was also made out, with two or three letters of the name of the bank. These discoveries corresponded with the story of the lady, and the bank officers then communicated the circumstances to the national bank of D. O. Mills & Co., of Sacramento and asked for a duplicate check in favor of the lady. This was forwarded and the money was paid. The circumstance disproves the charge about the curiosity of women. Had there been more curiosity about the inclosure of the envelope the trouble would have been avoided. The practical application of the story is to be careful that what you throw into the fire has no further value for you.

ONE ON MAHANY.

Washington Star: The other day Congressman Stone, of Pennsylvania, who is one of the practical jokers of the house, approached Mr. Mahany, of New York, who is an authority on Celtic orthography and orthoepy.

"Mahany," said Stone, "how would you pronounce this word," and he spelled it out very carefully—"M-a-c-H-i-n-e-r-y-"

"That's easy," said Mahany, "that's the name of an old Irish dook—MacHinery, a little bit of Danish mixed with Milesian."

"You're mistaken," said Stone, "that's pure English—machinery."

Mahany collapsed. "Don't tell anybody," he implored, "if that got out among the Irish of my district it would ruin me."

MARINE

There Is Said to Be a Great Scarcity of Tonnage Yet.

The Rates Must Be Advanced Again Before Boats Become Plentiful.

A Lawsuit Is Expected Over the Recent Onoko-Ayer Collision.

Buffalo, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tonnage continues very scarce, and rates will have to be advanced again before boats become plentiful. Brokers are advised that the drop in grain freights at Duluth is due to the scarcity of flour for the large fleet of package freight boats that are engaged especially in flour trade. The flour mills were idle for a period of several days, and have not as yet worked up stocks sufficiently large to supply the regular flour carriers. It is hoped that when supplies of flour are more liberal, a few days hence, grain rates will again strengthen. Ore shippers are offered a few more vessels than they can take care of, but there is no indication as yet of any further decline in rates.

THE AYER'S LOSS.

Chicago, May 19.—Phillip Minch, managing owner of the steamer Onoko, which collided with the steamer Mary D. Ayer Saturday night, arrived here yesterday from Cleveland. Attorneys have been engaged to defend the expected lawsuit over the collision. The Onoko carries, in addition to collision liability, a special insurance for liability in personal injuries, and if she should be held liable for the loss of the five men who went down on the Ayer, that will also be an insurance loss.

THE ESCANABA ASHORE.

Manistee, Mich., May 19.—The steamer Escanaba, loaded with iron ore from Escanaba, went ashore on the southwest end of Gull island reef at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. She lies on a rocky bottom, and her stern has settled in 19 feet of water and is in bad shape. It is doubtful if she is ever released.

MARINE NOTES.

A Houghton dispatch says the steamer Peerless broke her shaft Sunday night when entering the ship canal. She will be towed to Duluth for repairs.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin of yesterday said: The barge C. N. Ryan, which was recently sold by Commodore Inman, of Duluth, to Capts. Samuel and Sidney O. Neff, arrived here yesterday and today received a pony hoisting engine at the south yard. The price paid for the Ryan was $4500.

Thus far the present season the steamer Masaba has performed wrecking service three times. On her first trip she released the McDougall pig 107 from Grosse point, Lake St. Clair; next she released the steamer Marina from the bottom in St. Mary's river, and on the succeeding trip encountered the big steamer Victory in disabled condition and towed her to Sault Ste. Marie.

Bissell's dock at Detroit has been leased by the Northern Steamship company for ten years at an annual rental of $10,000.

Duluth clearances—Arabia, 14,000 barrels flour, Bulgaria, 1800 tons ore, Cadillac, 1900 tons ore, Washburn, 2250 tons ore, W. B. Morley, 1750 tons ore, Lizzie A. Law, 1200 tons ore, Northwest, 1500 tons ore, Tasmania, 1400 tons ore, 102, 2000 tons ore, Buffalo; Canisteo, 725,000 feet lumber, R. Stewart, 800,000 feet lumber, Tonawanda; Viking, 1,100,500 feet lumber, Chicago; 105, 2200 tons ore, South Chicago.

The grain rate is still at 2¾ cents, and owing to the scarcity of flour cargoes the liners are controlling the market. Some of the liners which are able are refusing wheat at that figure, preferring ore at $1.

The steamer Bothnia, while loading square timber this side of Sucker river, swung on the beach last night and is still fast. The Singer tug Avery has gone to her.

RARE AND VALUABLE.

Mrs. Peary's Unique Collection of Rich Furs.

In Mrs. Robert E. Peary's home on Brooklyn Heights is the finest collection of furs of Arctic animals owned by any single individual in the world.

The little girl who came to Mrs. Peary during her stay in the cold land of the North has robes fit for an Arctic princess. She has a cloak made from the skins of Arctic rabbits, and there is none other in the United States. It is so soft and warm that the youngest may venture out in the coldest weather and laugh at chill and frost.

Of all the Arctic animals the fox is perhaps the shrewdest, and, for that reason, the most difficult to capture. Only a small amount of fur from the back of each animal can be used, and thus a garment made of this fur is exceedingly valuable. Ten of these skins have been made up into a collar, boa and muff, and $300 has been offered for these three articles alone.

At a recent reception in Brooklyn, Mrs. Peary wore a cape made of 230 loon skins, which was the most valuable wrap carried by any woman in attendance.

Her dress on the same occasion was of hair seal fur, trimmed with the fur of the blue fox. The train consisted entirely of the tails and flippers of seals.

Perhaps the most valuable articles in the collection are three eiderdown quilts, each composed of the skins of 160 eider ducks. Each quilt is of sufficient size to cover a large double bed. In appearance they are beautiful in the extreme. The tops are snow white. Below the color changes to a soft and very light slate, and gradually grows darker, until at the bottom it resembles in appearance the breast of a dove. All through the quilts there are gleams of white, seemingly woven with no particular system, but a more careful examination shows that the entire fabric gives a general impression of a series of crescents. The down used for the body of the quilts is from the breast of the ducks. A border four inches deep is formed of the plumage of the head, and resembles nothing more than a combination of peacock feathers of the softest and most beautiful variety. Each quilt is edged with slate colored down, and the whole forms a charming combination.

A PHILADELPHIA ROMANCE.

Curious things sometimes happen, even in Philadelphia, says the Chicago Chronicle. Recently a widower under 40 went to a florist's near Laurel Hill to get some flowers to put on his wife's grave. In the florist's was a widow under 30 getting flowers to put on her husband's grave. As it happened the graves were not far apart, and they were in sight of each other quite a while. Although leaving the cemetery separately they struck the same car. Getting out of the Manayunk car the widow's veil caught and the widower untangled it. In the Ridge avenue car the widow wrestled with an open window, and there was nothing for the widower to do but raise it. Both were in deepest black, and, as luck would have it, both got out at Fifteenth street, and there was only room for two together in the Fifteenth street car, and there they sat side by side silent until Walnut street was reached, when both got out and one went one way and one the other. It is believed there will be more of this item by and by.

HAWAIIAN IDOLS.

Finally Returned on Payment of $8000.

Among the treasures in the rooms of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions was the collection of idols from the Hawaiian islands, says the New York Times. These images, all of the most hideous aspect and of a strange composition, have for more than half a century attracted the attention of visitors. They were sent to the rooms of the board soon after the first missionaries from America set foot on the soil of the Sandwich islands, in 1820. Now, however, they have been sold for $8000 and have been returned to the Christian land whence they came, and they will in the future grace the museum of the Historical society of Honolulu.

How old are these images it is impossible to tell, but that they date long back of the advent of the missionaries is beyond question. They are the only idols of the Hawaiians which were saved from the universal destruction of idols in a revolution which broke out in Hawaii in the year 1819, just before the missionaries landed. They are made of wood several feet high, with necks and head of fine wickerwork, covered with red feathers, to resemble the skin of a bird. The face was hideous, having a mouth which extended from ear to ear, armed with a triple row of sharks' teeth and eyes of mother of pearl. The head was adorned with long tresses of human hair and crowned with a shapely feather helmet.

Of the seven or eight idols forming the curious collection of the American board, the name of only one is known. This one, Kalaipahoa, the poison goddess of Molokai, is one of the most hideous objects imaginable. The natives believed that it was made of poisoned wood, and many hundreds are said to have died by coming in contact with it. The other images are supposed to have represented the four principal deities, Kane, Kanaloa, Ku and Lono, and Laamaomao, the god of the winds.

PLACE OF HARDSHIPS.

Such is the Lot of Alaska Gold Seekers.

When nature planted an inexhaustible quantity of gold in the Yukon valley she evidently determined that those who should be successful in obtaining it would have to earn it, literally as well as figuratively by the sweat of their brows, says the Juneau News. Innumerable are the obstacles she has placed in the way of the sandy prospector and equally countless are the hardships she has imposed upon him before he is allowed to reach the land of golden promise, and once there, his life is anything on earth but a pleasant one. If his claim is an old one he has worked during the winter with the thermometer from 40 to 70 degrees below zero, burning the holes and throwing out gravel for the coming season's washing. He has had to make a horse out of himself and "snake" wood perhaps half a mile to get fuel for his fires. Spring comes and finds him out of grub, and before he can begin work he must needs travel to the post, from fifty to 100 miles distant, and lay in a fresh supply. If he has good dogs, he can pack a portion of his goods back to his claim; otherwise he must pack them himself.

In many places he will find swamps and tundras he must cross, where the footing is most precarious and where a misstep may precipitate him into a seemingly bottomless pool of mud and slimy water. Added to this he will find millions and millions of mosquitoes, gnats and other winged insects, which will pester him and make his life a hades upon earth. Such are a few of the things which go to make up the life of an old timer. To the recent arrival, who is seeking riches, his trouble begins when he leaves the steamer with his outfit at Dyea. Twenty-four miles of a portage stares him in the face, in traveling which distance he must ascend from sea level to an elevation of over 3500 feet, then down again to fresh water on the opposite side of the range. If he has funds to spare he can have his outfit packed over by Indians for the modest sum of 14 cents per pound.

Once across he will have to pull his sled and outfit seventy or eighty miles to where he can find suitable timber with which to make his boat. If he is a tenderfoot, strictly speaking, he will never think life at home with mother was so inconceivably sweet as he will after an eight hours run on the upper end of a whipsaw. Should this not squeeze every atom of romance out of his soul he may consider himself invulnerable and possessed of the necessary qualities to make a successful Yukon miner.

PECULIAR TRADES UNIONISM.

The Greek and Italian fishermen of the Columbia river have some ideas of trades unionism peculiarly their own. They have made a rule that no fisherman may catch fish except for his own consumption, and that if he takes more than he can use, he must divide the spoils with his neighbor fishermen who have not been out. No fisherman will be allowed sell to the markets or to private trade. It is further ordered that all non-union fishermen shall refrain from casting a line into the river either for pleasure or business.

NORODOM'S COURT.

Curious Country and Its Queer Old Potentate.

The night after my arrival in Pnompenh there was a reception in sate at the French residency, says a correspondnent of the London Times. It was known that the king was to be present, and twenty-three of his loyal subjects crouched in the shade opposite the residency to witness his reception. A body of native militia, the Milliciens Cambodians, kept untidy guard in the street and when he drove up in a victoria, escorted by eleven Cambodians on ponies and followed by the victorias of a selection of his sons, there was considerable enthusiasm. His majesty was received with "present arms!" and the fanfare of a cornet that was not in tune. Music was played during the reception by the royal band of Manilla, men who would have played, perhaps, with more spirit had their wages been less in arrears.

King Norodom is quite a curiosity; he is a little, wizened-up man, with gray hair and a stoop, and with that peculiar expression of feature which is usually I write with that respect—associated with the higher anthropoid apes. All the royal family live in Pnom-penh, in a mock palace, a rambling pile of disjointed buildings of different shapes, scattered over a large enclosure, surrounded by a wall of brick and plaster. Where there is plaster it is falling off in flakes, where there is wood it is worm eaten and rotten, where there is iron it is rusting and useless. It is not a palace fit for such a king. At the main entrance to the palace two Cambodian militiamen keep guard with their hats away, their khaki coats in rags, their rifles held like brooms. On the river bank in front of the palace there is an old flagstaff, while drawn above the water line there a royal state barge, with dragon head, seven-forked tail, but the paint has peeled off and the craft is no longer seaworthy.

King Norodom has reigned in his own peculiar way in Cambodia since 1860, but since 1867 he has had the advantage of being directed and protected by the French. It was in 1867 that France effected by a treaty with Siam, by which she agreed that the two provinces of Angkor and Batambang should remain in Siamese possession, and by the same treaty Siam formally recognized the French protectorate in Cambodia. Since 1867, then, we are always told that Siamese influence was withdrawn from the councils of Cambodia. As an actual fact, however, Siamese influence counts for something, though the French will not allow that it is so, in the Cambodian court. Norodom passed his early years in Bangkok, and spoke Siamese before he did Cambodian. It was Siam which gave the crown of Cambodia to his father, Angk Duong, and it was Siam which selected him king on the death of his father. The king is not a prince of high moral character; he has probably never attempted to escape from the trammels of his environment; he will even on occasions mock at Buddha; but none the less he cannot forget that for him the highest living object of religious veneration must be the king of Siam. In Pnom-penh there are nearly forty Siamese employed by the king in positions of more or less confidence, and I have it on authority which is beyond cavil, that the most intimate personal friends of the king and his only confidants are Siamese, and that Siamese is the language which the royal lips speak from choice.

King Norodom is a very much married man, his establishment comprising at least 300 wives and concubines. He has fifty-six sons and daughters, who are recognized by the French as his lawful progeny. Of this number more than half are sons, so that the succession, if ever the French permit him to have a successor is well assured. King Norodom came to the throne in 1860, and the same year a statue in his honor was erected in Pnom-penh. It is an equestrian statue and is the only public monument in the city. It was, of course, made in France, and represents the king dressed as a French general, mounted on a charger, and saluting the armed hosts of Cambodia. Rarely have I seen a more impressive work of art; and it is unfortunate that, left neglected in some waste land, it has become overgrown with jungle. On the pedestal there is an inscription which testifies that the statue was erected to Norodom by his "grateful mandarins and subjects." The statue, we are told, was a spontaneous offering of a grateful people, and one can well believe it, though it surely has not often happened that indigenous tribes in Asia have ordered from Paris equestrian effigies of their newly-crowned kings.

FOUND A COFFEE VEIN.

One or more employes of a wholesale grocery house in Terre Haute, Ind., were so desirous of getting bicycles that they opened not less than 500 packages of coffee to get the coupons, for a certain number of which the manufacturers give a bicycle, says a correspondent of the Washington Star. When a change was made in the wall of the building on the ground floor it was found necessary to remove some bricks from the flue. At once there flowed from the aperture thus made a torrent of the brown berries. The workman thought he had got into the wrong place, but his surprise was exceeded by that of the clerks.

It was found that the flue from the third floor to the basement was full of coffee. Another flue was opened and it, too, was full of the loose coffee. The flues are not used because the house is heated by steam. Investigation developed the fact that someone had been opening the packages of coffee, taking out the coupons and throwing the coffee into the flue at the third floor, which is the floor on which the coffee department is located. For some time the foreman of the department has been reporting that he could not make his coffee stock balance with his account, but he could not imagine how his shortage occurred. One of the employes was discharged after the discovery was made.

IS BARRED

Case Against the Tinkhams and Cummings Cannot Be Tried.

Decision on the Demurrer Was a Bar to Further Trial.

Duluth Coffee & Spice Mill Closed Yesterday Under an Execution.

A further argument of the demurrer of the Tinkhams and A. D. Cummings to their indictment was heard by Judge Morris this morning, and while Judge Morris decided in favor of the defendants, the matter is still unsettled. The first indictment was for stealing $4000, the amount of the mortgage on the land sold to McAlpin, and the present indictment was for stealing $900, the amount received for the property.

County Attorney Arbury thought this made it a different case, and if the court's decision was against him there was something radically wrong with the law.

Mr. Hollister thought that there was something radically wrong with the county attorney, not the law. He had made a blunder in his former indictment, and now he wanted to lay it on the court and have another try at it.

Judge Morris held that under the statute the fact that the judge in sustaining the demurrer did not order the case resubmitted to grand jury was in bar of another trial for the same offense, and that the offense was the same in both cases, though the county attorney, in drawing the first indictment, had missed the offense altogether.

The matter was for the jury, however, and Judge Morris said that if it came to trial he would direct a verdict for the defendants on the showing of the judgment roll. The county attorney, however, could not nolle pros, so the case will come to trial as a matter of form, and under the court's findings a verdict for the defendants will be rendered without their putting in any testimony.

The demurrer to the indictment against J. H. Brigham will be argued tomorrow morning. C. O. Baldwin is defending him.

The jury in the case against Edward Lee this morning found him guilty of grand larceny in the second degree. At noon Judge Morris and a jury were trying the case against John F. A. Behning, accused of passing a forged check upon one Louis Berklund.

In the case of the German American bank against F. W. and E. S. Smith and their mother, the plaintiff yesterday sprung a paper which was a surprise. It was a waiver by Mrs. Smith of all the rights she sought to avail herself of, and a number of bank clerks testified that it bore her signature. However, the jury returned a verdict in her favor and against her sons, who put in no defense.

Judge Moer this morning was hearing the case of Leeberman & Co. against W. B. Silvey. The plaintiffs keep a clothing store in the Michigan basement of the Spalding block, and they claim that the hotel has leaky pipes, which have damaged their stocks to the amount of $1000.

LEVIED ON THE PLANT.

Duluth Coffee & Spice Mill Company Seized.

The Duluth Coffee and Spice company is in the hands of the sheriff, the plant at the West End having been levied upon last night on an attachment issued by virtue of a judgment for $5400 in favor of William S. Vent. The case has been on the calendar some time, and after its decision in favor of Vent in the district court it went to the supreme court, where judgment was affirmed.

Vent some time ago purchased stock in the company to the amount of $5000. He claimed that it was sold to him under a guarantee to repurchase it at the end of a certain time if the profits were not satisfactory and if he so desired.

He elected to sell the stock back, but the defendants refused to purchase it, hence the suit. Vent won the suit in both courts, and he has now taken possession of the plant through the sheriff. The company has not made an assignment as yet.

The bondsmen of the American Loan and Trust company have appealed to the supreme court from an order of the district court overruling their demurrer to the suit of the county to recover its deposits on the bonds of the trust company given as a county depository.

On the application of the Armour Packing company, F. H. Sigrist, assignee for A. P. Dodge & Co., has been ordered to file his final account by May 30.

WILL SIGN IT.

Mayor Approves of the Bicycle Sidewalk Ordinance.

The mayor will sign the bicycle ordinance. He said today that he would approve the measure, although he thought that the several blocks of sidewalk on Minnesota avenue, from the canal to where the street railway turn into the avenue, might have been excepted without hardship to the residents on that thoroughfare.

"However, that is not of enough moment to justify my vetoing the measure," said he. "Possibly, after a time the council may come to the conclusion to make some changes in the provisions."

The mayor has also determined to enforce the ordinance requiring bicycle riders to have bells and to carry lanterns at night. He has so instructed the police department. He will also require a rigid enforcement of the regulation that the speed of wheels coming down the avenues shall be limited to four miles an hour. The last named rule he considers essential to human safety and will see that violations of it are punished.

HAS THREE EYES.

Peculiar Development in a Portland Infant.

A child has been born with a third eye. It is not to be regarded as a freak or a deformed creature, but rather as exhibiting an extraordinary but not unnatural development. It has long been known to physicians and men of science that a rudimenthary third eye exists in every human head. This rudiment is known as the pineal gland. It is undoubtedly this gland which has developed into a third fully organized eye, says the New York Journal.

It is not uncommon for certain trifling physical features possessed by all members of a lower order of animals, and possibly by the human race at an earlier stage of its development, to recur in men and women at the present day. For instance, there is a little knob which appears in the outer edge of some human ears near the top. This is the last trace of the ear as it exists in beasts. The knob is not found in the majority of human ears. But, of course, the recurrence of a fully developed third eye is a phenomenon of a very different order. This organ is not possessed by those animals which come nearest to man. They have, like us, the pineal gland. The functionating third eye is only possessed by certain of the very lowest species of vertebrate animals. The parents of the three-eyed baby are Mr. and Mrs. W. P. O'Neil, of Portland, Ore. Mr. O'Neil is a railroad man and a widely-known and respected citizen. The baby was born nearly a month ago.

It was not at first understood what the strange development on its forehead was. The child seemed in excellent health, and the doctor expressed the opinion that it was something which would pass away. But it persisted, and at the end of three days the doctor, at the urgent request of the mother, made a more careful examination of the child's head. Mother and nurse could hardly believe that the strange thing was what it appeared to be. This time, however, the doctor announced that the child undoubtedly possessed a third eye. As the days went on the unusual organ could be seen more clearly. As the little one crowed and clasped its chubby little hands, the three eyes blinked in unison. The child is still in good health, and appears to see as well with its central eye as with the other two. The eye is situated midway between the two others —that is to say, it is in a vertical line with the nose. It is above the others. It appears through an aperture in the skull, immediately above the bony ridge with which the forehead terminates. The pineal gland, which is so developed in this Portland baby, is described by Gray's Anatomy—a standard work—as a small, reddish-gray vascular body, situated behind the third ventricle in the brain. The name is derived from the Latin word pinea, a pine cone. The gland is also called a conarium, from its conical shape. It is about four lines in length and two or three in width at its base—that is to say, about the size of a small pea.

It is larger in the child than in the adult, and in the female than in the male. The same is true of other obsolete and rudimentary parts of the body. Woman has a larger vermiform appendix than man. She has not progressed as far as he in the scale of evolution. The pineal gland consists chiefly of gray matter, and at its base is a small cavity, which contains a transparent viscid fluid, in which are granules of phosphate and carbonate of lime. It is commonly considered to be the remains of the pineal eye of some of the lower vertebrates. It appears as an eye in certain lizards. Only in extinct reptiles of earlier geological periods, however, is it believed to have been a useful sense organ. That the pineal gland has a function as it exists today in the ordinary human brain is possible, but that function is not known.

Professor George Owen, of London, a famous authority on the brain, has made the curious discovery that there appears in the gland between the age of 7 and second childhood several brilliant grains of sand. They are not present during first or second childhood and are not found in the pineal glands of idiots. Their origin and use are still a mystery. The possession of three good eyes would have certain advantages over our present condition. The extra eye would enable us to give the others a rest, and, in these days of excessive pressure and work, that would mean much. Newspaper writers and other busy men should certainly have three eyes, if they can get them. There have probably been several other babies with three eyes. In the museum of Bellevue hospital the head of one of them is preserved, but it is not nearly as pretty as the Sunday Journal's baby.

The O'Neil baby will become one of the most conspicuous figures in the world, should it survive, as every scientist must hope that it will. To study the revival of an organ which has fallen into an obsolete and rudimentary condition in the human frame for countless ages will be a most fascinating problem.

There is nothing repulsive in the appearance of the child's face. On the contrary, many people would say that the unusual visual organs gave it an individuality and a charm which are lacking in many babies of the same age. It is Mrs. O'Neil's ninth baby. The others are healthy children, with no unusual features.

A QUESTION IN FRACTIONS.

Bright children in school are in great danger sometimes of passing over the border line of mathematics into the forbidden domain of common sense. A teacher once said to her class in mental arithmetic:

"Now, boys, I have a few questions in fractions to ask. Suppose I have a piece of beefsteak, and cut it in two pieces. What would those pieces be called?"

"Halves!" shouted the class.

"Right. And if I cut each half into two pieces?"

"Quarters!"

"That is correct. And if the quarters were each cut in half?"

"Eighths!"

"Yes. And if those were chopped in two?"

The answers had been growing fewer and fewer, but one boy meditated a moment, and answered:

"Sixteenths!"

"Very good. And when the sixteenths were cut in half what would they be?"

There was silence in the class, but presently a little boy at the foot put up his hand.

"Do you know, Johnny? Well, you may tell me."

"Hash!" answered Johnny, confidently—and truly.

GROWING HOUSE PLANTS.

To make house plants grow Professor Boessf says: Saturate the earth around them every day with the coffee left over at breakfast. Five or six drops of ammonia to every pint of water once a week will make them flourish. To make bulbous flowers bloom fill a flower pot half full of quick lime and the remainder with good earth; plant bulbs and keep the earth damp. The heat of the lime, tempered by passing through the earth, will cause the bulb to send forth shoots to blossom. The colors of red and violet flowers are rendered extremely brilliant by covering the earth in their pots with about one-half inch of pulverized charcoal. Charcoal does not affect yellow flowers at all in this way.

Miss Burnetta Ehrmannbraut, of Ashland, and William J. Stewart, of Duluth, were married at the residence of the bride's parents by Rev. Cordis, on Monday, at 11 o'clock a. m. The wedding was very quiet, only the members of the family being present. The bridal couple left on the Wisconsin Central for a short trip in Northern Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will be at home at 118 Prentice avenue, Ashland, Wis., after June 1, 1896.

An enthusiastic meeting of the French Canadians of Duluth for the purpose of organizing a branch of the Franco-American Republican league of the state of Minnesota, was held Saturday. The constitution of the state league was signed and 104 members signed the roll. Preliminary steps were taken to draft the local bylaws and temporary election of officers took place. There is no doubt that such an organization is important as the number of its members can be expected to reach 600 in this city.

Joseph Polinsky, a dealer in second hand goods doing business at 505 West Superior street, was arrested today charged with receiving stolen property. Sprinkle Your Lawns.

Duluth lawns in the warm summer months to come will need lots of water to make them fresh and beautiful and among the very best appliances for this purpose are sprinklers manufactured by the E. Stebbins Manufacturing company, at Springfield, Mass., and which are coming into general use in this vicinity. The advertisement of this house appears elsewhere in this issue, and the "Turn Comet" and "Little Giant" are two famous water disseminators that will last a lifetime and do good service.

THEIR CUSTOMERS REAP THE BENEFIT.

Panton & White, of the big Glass Block store, are preparing for a tremendous sale in some of their departments. A combination of circumstances compels them to take a big loss, brought about by a change in their buyers for those departments. Mr. Wilson, that succeeded F. M. Stephenson in their shoe department, says there is about $5000 worth of last year's shoes that the firm will allow him to sell at a quarter, a third and half their former prices. They are splendid goods and will be a snap for their customers. Mr. Gilkenson, the new buyer for the gents' furnishing department, says he will surprise the gentlemen of Duluth if they will only condescend to go and see him.

Controlling Interest in the Park Point Railway Has Been Transferred.

Several Boston and Philadelphia Parties Have Made the Purchase.

G. A. Leland is President and Will Manage the Line Hereafter.

A controlling interest in the Minnesota Point Street Railway company was sold this morning and Eastern parties will hereafter direct its affairs. H. O. Underwood, of Boston, and clients of Dunn Brothers, of Philadelphia, through their Duluth agents, Hartman & Patterson, are the purchasers. The consideration is not made public, but it was a stock transfer and not an outright sale.

Few changes will be made at present, except that some of the officers will make way for others who will act as the representatives of the Eastern owners. G. A. Leland will be president and superintendent, and will have the management of the line. Capt. J. J. Hibbard, who has been president of the company for many years, retiring.

Improvements such as are necessary to place the company in a position to accommodate the traffic, will be made at once. As soon as owners can see a good investment in the construction of an electric line one will be put in, and other improvements made.

The rumor was passed around this morning that "the Hartmans" had bought it. O. C. Hartman says, however: "We have no interest in the deal whatever, except that the purchasers are our clients. We have our hands full with the electric and gas and water companies at present, and are not looking for any more troubles just now."

The bicyclists will undoubtedly hope to hear that one of the immediate improvements will be a bicycle track between the rails, now that they are barred from riding on the walks.

FOR BOIES

Silver Men Are in Absolute Control of the Meeting.

Ex-Gov. Boies Endorsed For President---New Hampshire Democrats.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 20.—The Democratic state convention did not meet until after 11 o'clock, when C. S. Ranck, chairman of the state committee, rapped for order and announced prayer by Rev. W. D. Benson. After prayer, Chairman Ranck announced the state committee's choice of temporary officers. The first was S. S. Wright, of Cedar Rapids, for temporary chairman. This was received with a silence that, notwithstanding the agreement made last night, foreboded trouble, but when Mr. Wright was formally presented, the hearty welcome given him by the convention set at rest all anticipation of an open protest from the silver men.

Mr. Wright spoke of Iowa as the farmers' Eden, and the "State of Dubuque" as one of the flower gardens of Democracy, and the Democratic party as the champion of the cause of labor, equal rights and exact justice. He scored the famous mulct law, which he described as "a hideous, unsightly creature, a being without a conscience, without a soul, and with a paramount that dares not claim its own. It has neither head or feet; can neither think nor walk. It was brought in to the world without sense, reason, mind, locomotion or sex; and you can only tell what it is and where it came from by the gracious assistance of a legislative placard upon its humped back and hollow, consumptive breast."

He generalized the aims, aims and achievements of the Democratic party, and when he touched upon the money question, he said in brief: "Money is a medium of exchange—a something by which we are enabled to measure the value of all commodities in the most convenient manner. To this end it has been made lawful for the government, under the direction of congress, to coin certain metals. The coinage of gold and silver is defined by an eminent political writer as being the right to assay and purify them and mark on each coin its weight and fineness. In other words, the government has the right to declare the purity and certify the actual weight of the metal to be used as a circulating medium. I believe that the government should do no more than to stamp upon a coin that which represents its purity, fineness and weight and let it battle for supremacy among the commodities and in the markets of the world. The stamp placed upon a metal should be regulated by its real, intrinsic value. This is all the government should do in reference to coinage. It is certainly fair to the owners of silver bullion for the government to offer to stamp it at its real value as universally accepted, and I believe that this is all that should be asked by the most radical exponent of free silver."

He closed by saying: "Whatever this convention does, let it be done conscientiously. Let us ever remember that a failure, based upon honesty and truthfulness, is far more to be desired than a temporary victory bought at the price of falsehood and deceit. Let us look beyond the overhanging clouds and learn the cause of the pending storm. Let the future historian write the record of Iowa Democracy from the organization of the state all along down through the ages without being able to point to a single spot where principle was dragged in the dust that victory might be written upon her banner. For myself, I would infinitely prefer to go down with my party on a platform of broad principles rather than by a meaningless, evasive declaration to ride the crest of a victorious wave in the great storm which sweeps the political sea. For myself, I can wish for Democracy nothing better than that upon every page of her history shall be written: 'This is an honest party.'"

Mr. Wright's speech was frequently interrupted with applause, and when he mentioned the name of Gen. Weaver, the silver men's enthusiasm found vent in cheers, and his declaration that silver should be considered as money at proportionate value with gold, called out prolonged cheers from the gold standard people, while the silver men remained silent, except a mild protest from one or two delegates, to which no attention was paid. The speaker followed this line and created immense enthusiasm among the anti-silver delegates. Boies' name brought the convention to its feet, and cheers continued fully five minutes. Intimation of Boies' inconsistency was interrupted by cries of "Boies," "Boies," and cheers from the gold men. Cleveland's name was also enthusiastically received.

At the conclusion of Mr. Wright's speech the roll of districts was called for names of committees. After the naming of committees the convention adjourned until 2 p. m. District delegates were announced as follows:

First—W. H. Stackhouse, Des Monies county; W. R. Wherry, Van Buren county. Second district—Max Mayer, Johnson county; T. M. Gobble, Clinton county. Third district—J. S. Murphy, Dubuque county; D. M. Wilkins, Wright county. Fourth district—T. Donovan, Chickasaw county; F. D. Bayless, Clayton county. Fifth district—T. F. Bradford, Marshall county; J. M. Terry, Linn county. Sixth district—H. C. Taylor, Davis county; W. A. McIntyre, Wapello county. Seventh district—M. H. King, Polk county; J. S. Cunningham, Marion county. Eighth district—S. A. Brewster, Union county; Charles Thomas, Taylor county. Ninth district—F. D. Allen, Audubon county; W. H. Wear, Pottawattamie county. Tenth district—R. F. Jordan, Boone county; C. C. Caleo, Carroll county. Eleventh district—T. P. Murphy, Woodbury county; C. L. Soister, O'Brien county.

Alternates: First district—Ed Lyman, Louisa county; H. M. Elsher, Washington county. Second district—Dr. Fullian, Muscatine county; W. L. Clark, Scott county. Third district—C. M. Green, Butler county; A. M. Foster, Greene county. Fourth district—J. B. Blaise, Cerro county; J. J. Kieran, Fayette county. Fifth district—J. Fallen, Benton county; Richard Fitzgerald, Tama county. Sixth district—G. E. Taylor, Mahaska county; J. H. Tucker, Poweshiek county. Seventh district—Dr. E. T. Likes, Polk county; G. T. Leneger, Madison county. Eighth district—W. T. Davis, Fremont county; James Steele, Page county. Ninth district—G. E. Ferguson, Harrison county; S. L. Morrissey, Shelby county. Tenth district—John Mulrooney, Palo Alto county; Charles Bellock, Crawford county. Eleventh district—G. E. Smith, Plymouth county; J. Dalton, Cherokee county.

The entire delegation to Chicago except those from the First and Second districts will be silver men. The platform will declare for free silver and nothing else, as it will be made in line with the overwhelming sentiment of the convention.

The contest in the First district was decided in favor of gold standard delegates, who chose Messrs. Stackhouse and Wherry delegates to Chicago, with instructions in accord with the sentiment of the caucus. The contest in Blackhawk county was referred to the committee on credentials. The Fourth district caucus was decidedly silver, and their men were chosen delegates to Chicago.

It was 2:30 when the convention was called to order. The committee on rules and permanent organization reported in favor of E. M. Carr, of Delaware county, as permanent chairman. His introduction by the temporary chairman, Mr. Wright, brought cheers from the convention. Mr. Carr said:

"I congratulate you gentlemen, because I know that you are here pledged to the cause of human rights, and opposed to the selfishness of wealth. A great question is now before the people of the United States. It affects every home and every individual in the land. It is a contest between man and mammon, and I rejoice to know that the Democracy of Iowa stands true to our party's teachings, true to the wealth producers of the nation, true to the toiling millions of the land. In this campaign all masks must come off, all deceptions and necromancing end. Four years ago the platform of each of the great parties declared for the coinage and use of silver as standard money. They appeared quite fair to the casual observer, but upon close inspection were found to contain secret trap doors large enough to allow the escape of every gold standard official. There are only two sides to this question. It is bimetallism against the single gold standard, or 'one lung' standard, as Harvey calls it. There is no middle ground for any party to honestly stand upon, and should such an attempt be made in this campaign the object will be to deceive, and retribution will follow.

"When the gold standard advocates voted for the repealing of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law they promised prosperity to the country. Have their promises been kept? Have not results verified the worst fears of those who opposed unconditional repeal? Since then has not our bonded indebtedness increased hundreds of millions of dollars? Has not every industry suffered from steady fall in prices? Is a tree to be judged by its fruits, must not a law or policy be judged by the effects which it produces?

"A gold standard is making money dearer, and of course prices cheaper, because there can be no such thing as dear money and good prices for labor and the products of labor. It is making a deficit of about a million a week in the revenues of the national government and creating an excuse for the issuance of interest bearing bonds in a time of profound peace. It is preventing people from conveniently and honestly dealing with each other, because money is constantly increasing in value is not an honest money.

"It makes good times for syndicates with a rush for bond deals and bad times for the nation's wealth producers, who have the bonds to pay. It presses the burden of all debts and intensifies business depression. A gold standard policy cuts down our national revenues and makes money scarcer in this country, because, by destroying the price of our products, the greater quantity we export is still insufficient to pay our interest and other charges abroad, and we have to export gold to make the balance good. Such conditions make hard times and a shortage in purchases and revenues. The party that stands for such a ruinous policy cannot command the support of a majority of the American electorate.

"The shortening up of a country's money is a new method of conquest, but a method quite as effective as any ever planned for plunder by Alexander or Charlemagne, or Napoleon. The old plan was to organize a great army and lead it into the country to be despoiled. Now the campaign is conducted on quite a different plan. The modern Alexander, or Charlemagne, or Napoleon, organizes no army of conquest. He simply invites a half a dozen modern kings of finance to a conference in the back office of some Rothschild or Morgan in London or New York. If this conference decides to attack the finances of a country, the luckless country is forthwith pillaged in a manner well calculated to make the crimes of the Spaniards in Mexico appear like petty larceny. Cortez may have taken his millions, but the modern financial Cortez takes his hundreds of millions.

"The value of money depends upon the amount of money in circulation as compared with the things to be bought and sold, and debts to be paid. Prices depend upon the volume of money much more than upon the material of which the money is made. Suppose that one of the numerous theories about producing or making gold should succeed. Suppose the process should be perfected that would extract thousands of tons of gold from the waters of the ocean, or that by the fusing of certain chemicals and base metals thousands of tons of pure gold could be made, what would be the result? If the law fixing the weight of the gold in a dollar should remain unchanged the price of everything might be increased a thousand times. A horse now worth $100 might then be worth $100,000 and why? Simply because the quantity of money metal in the country had increased a thousand fold. And for similar reasons, whatever tends to lessen the volume of money in the country, lessens prices.

"With a certain volume of money in the country hogs would sell at 6 cents per pound, butter at 30 cents per pound, horses at $100 apiece, and other commodities at corresponding prices; but divide that volume of money in two and you divide the price of everything. The $6 a hundred hogs would then only sell at $3 per hundred, and the 30 cent butter would find a slow market at 15 cents, and the well-bred $100 horse would only bring $50. These things would continue to be just as useful as ever, but the money measure being changed, the change affected the price. The men who produce no wealth are the men who are interested in making the wealth they now possess double itself in actual value; they are striving to reduce the volume of the country's money. As soon as they succeeded in closing the mints against the coinage of silver they commenced a campaign for the destruction of the greenback, and kept congress from taking its usual holiday recess last December, in a desperate attempt to reduce the volume of our money by destroying a third of our present stock."

In concluding, the speaker strongly objected to destruction of greenbacks, and declared that to be the gold standard program, and gave his views of what he termed cheap and dear money. "To restore free coinage safely and justly is the mission of the Democratic party," said the speaker, "and I rejoice to know that Iowa's voice in the great national council will be for the nomination of Horace Boies, a man who, with God's help, will be the efficient instrument of the people's will in this great work. And if the rank and file of Democracy win this present contest, as it now seems almost certain that they will, our party will deserve the respect of every friend of government by the people in this and other lands. A party with sufficient inherent strength to enable it to maintain and protect its principles, after being betrayed by many of its chosen leaders, and after the loss of a considerable portion of its most influential press, possesses the attributes of immortality and deserves them. Such a party will continue to live while the republic lasts, to benefit and bless the homes of the many, instead of to promote the schemes of the few."

HORACE BOIES.

IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Democrats There Favor the Gold Bug Cause.

Concord, N. H., May 20.—The New Hampshire Democratic state convention met today to choose delegates at large to the national convention. Hon. Harry Bingham presided. In a brief address Mr. Bingham said that the platform of the national platform must be broad enough for every true Democrat to stand upon, and its declarations so plainly expressed as to be capable of only one construction; and that the nominees for president and vice-president must be men whose lives and records are in harmony with the platform. After the committee on credentials had reported the chairman of the committee on resolutions submitted his report.

The financial plank of the platform is as follows: "Under present conditions there can be but one standard of value, and that every kind of currency should rest upon a gold basis, so long as gold is the standard recognized by the general commercial nations of the world; and we heartily commend the action of President Cleveland in so firmly maintaining our public credit and faith in the face of formidable opposition."

The platform was adopted without a dissenting voice, as was the report of the committee on reorganization of the state committee, which was then submitted. The following delegates at large were elected by acclamation: Hon. Frank Jones, of Portsmouth; Hon. W. A. Sulloway, of Franklin; Hon. Irving W. Drew, of Lancaster, and Col. Charles A. Sinclair, of Portsmouth.

These alternates were chosen: Frank N. Chase, of Somersworth; Sylvester H. Danforth, of Concord; Col. Frank G. Noyes, of Nashua, and William A. Plummer, of Laconia. The convention adjourned.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Gold Men Are Hopeful of Ultimate Success.

Minneapolis, May 20.—A special to the Journal from Aberdeen, S. D., says the probability is at 2 o'clock that the sound money Democrats will organize the state convention there. They received some important reinforcements this morning, notably from the Black Hills, whose delegates had been for silver, but changed to a right about because of the flood of protests from that part of the state. Senator Ramsey, of Woonsocket, sound money candidate, was agreed on for temporary chairman.

Last night the silverites had matters their own way, and even yet do not consider that the battle is lost. In case the administration and sound money wins, the delegation to Chicago will probably be: Carland, Sioux Falls district; Culver, Aberdeen district; Cook or Martin, Watertown district; National Committeeman Woods, from Rapid City district; Steel, from Deadwood district; Ramsey, from Mitchell district; Stover, from Yanktown district, and either Arnold or Maxwell, from Pierre district.

The state officers' nominating convention was called this noon to be held in Deadwood, Sept. 16.

SOUTH CAROLINA DEMOCRATS.

Columbia, S. C., May 20.—The state Democratic convention met at noon today, organized, appointed committees on resolutions and platform, and revision of the party constitution, and then took a recess until 8 p. m.

PEACEFUL

Book Concern Agents Elected For Several Important City Positions.

Congress Asked to Pass the Anti-Capitol Liquor Selling Bill.

Cleveland, May 20.—Bishop Foster presided today at the Methodist Episcopal conference, and the first half hour was devoted to an attempt to prevent such scenes of confusion as attended the nominations yesterday. It was finally decided to permit but one nomination and one second to be made. The first ballot for book agent in the Western Book Concern at Cincinnati was announced. The whole number of votes cast was 496. Of these Louis Curts received 301, thus electing him. A second ballot was ordered to elect the second agent.

The second ballot for junior agent at New York was announced as follows: Whole number of votes cast, 480, thus making 241 necessary to a choice. The result was: Magee, 186; Manis, 132; Dougherty, 59; Swindells, 45; Evans, 27; King, 24; scattering, 7. As no election had resulted a third ballot was ordered.

Resolutions denouncing as disgraceful the sale of intoxicating liquor in the capitol at Washington, and commending the bill reported by the house committee prohibiting it, were adopted. The resolutions closed with a strong appeal to both the senate and house to pass the bill.

A third ballot for a New York agent resulted in no election. The whole number of votes cast was 498, making 250 necessary for a choice. Manis led with 236 and Magee was second with 194. A fourth ballot was taken.

The committee on state of the church reported in favor of no change in the rule prohibiting the use or encouragement of liquor, dancing, games of chance, theater-going, circuses and horse races. The recommendation that there be no change was greeted with great applause. At once a half dozen delegates were on their feet, but Dr. Levi Masters, of Michigan, was recognized. He did not object to the restrictions, but the list should be revised if it was to remain. He though if the restrictions were to stand, why not add football, billiards, etc.? The law is a dead letter, and he moved to strike it out.

At this point the second ballot on the Cincinnati Book concern was announced. The whole number of votes cast was 487, making 249 necessary to a choice. The leaders were: Johnson, 142; Jennings, 127; Diehle, 77; Whitlock, 54. As no election resulted the third ballot was taken.

The discussion on the proposed change of the rule prohibiting certain amusements was resumed. Dr. J. B. Graw, of New Jersey, violently opposed any change. Dr. Berry said he had carefully investigated the desires of the young people, and on behalf of the young people of the church he protested against any change. Further debate was closed by moving the previous question. Dr. Walsh, of Kentucky, who was presenting the report, insisted on his right to speak, but cries of "vote, vote," drowned his voice. The rule was then voted on, and remains the same by an overwhelming majority. Only about forty voted in favor of striking out the restrictions.

The fourth ballot on agent for New York was announced. In all 509 votes were cast, making 255 necessary to a choice. Of these Dr. Manis received 339, thus electing him. The third ballot for second agent at the Western concern in Cincinnati was then announced. The whole number of votes cast was 508, making 255 necessary. Of these Jennings received 253, Johnson 177 and other scattering. A joint fourth ballot was ordered.

After deciding to change the jurisdiction over the San Francisco depository from the New York to the Cincinnati book concern, nominations for missionary secretaries were called for. Three are to be elected. Before nominations were begun, the report of the fourth ballot on the Cincinnati book concern was taken. In all 510 votes were cast, making 256 necessary to a choice. Dr. H. C. Jennings received 344 votes, thus electing him and making the Cincinnati agents Louis Curts and H. C. Jennings.

Nominations for the secretary of the Missionary society were taken. In all 512 votes were cast, making 257 necessary to elect. On the first ballot Dr. A. B. Leonard, of Cincinnati, received 338, and A. J. Palmer, of New York, received 300, thus electing them both. The second ballot was taken for the third secretary, which showed 499 votes cast, making 248 necessary to elect. The leaders were: Hamilton, 178; Brodbeck, 102; Smith, 101, and Baldwin, 57. Adjournment was taken without further balloting.

VICTORY FOR MR. TOWNE.

Vital Points of His Bill Agreed Upon.

Washington, May 20.—(Special to The Herald).—The conference committee of the house and senate, having consideration of the Nelson and Towne bills for relief to settlers on the Northern Pacific railroad second indemnity belt, have agreed to report a substitute which embraces the frame work of the Nelson bill, and all the vital points upon which Mr. Towne insisted, namely, the right to select their new homesteads anywhere on the public domain instead of being confined to Minnesota, and that the law governing homesteads shall, as in 1889, require but eight instead of fourteen months' residence, so that settlers who have occupied their homesteads for six months and were entitled to prove up may now do so without residing the additional eight months.

STATE EXHIBIT.

Washington Will Splurge at Philadelphia's Museum.

Tacoma, Wash., May 20.—The Tacoma chamber of commerce has issued a call for a convention of the commercial bodies of Washington to be held here June 15, to take action on the invitation of the Philadelphia museum, for Washington as a typical western state, to make a permanent exhibition of the natural and manufactured products of the state in the great commercial museum now being established in Philadelphia. Pending the erection of permanent buildings, space is limited to allow an exhibit from each state. Washington was recently chosen to represent the West and Georgia the South.

The museum is international in scope, one of the chief objects being to show the products imported and sold in foreign markets, where the United States can, by special efforts, secure a share of the trade. It is intended to raise funds and make even a more complete exhibit of her timber, mining, fish agricultural and horticultural resources than Washington did at the Columbian exposition.

PRISONERS RELEASED.

Pleasant Rumor on the London Stock Exchange.

London, May 20.—The secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, has not received any news this morning of the final decision of the executive council of the South African republic regarding the commutation of the sentence of the Johannesburg reform prisoners, but a private dispatch from Pretoria today states that no decision has yet been arrived at on the subject. On the other hand it was rumored on the stock exchange today that all the prisoners had been released unconditionally.

Another private dispatch received from Pretoria today says that President Krueger has pardoned the fifty-nine prisoners who were condemned to imprisonment and banishment and to pay a fine of $10,000 each. No mention is made of the further commutation of the sentences of Col. Rhodes and Messrs. Hammond, Phillips and Farrar.

ENGLISH HORSE RACES.

London, May 20.—Six horses ran for the Dyerham park mile maiden plate at the Bath and Somerset county meeting today, including Mr. Croker's Nashville, which was unplaced. Gobyras won, Southmore, second, Featherstone, third. Mr. Croker's Sir Excess was among the eight starters in the race for the Somersetshire stakes of 400 sovereigns, but was unplaced. Malgo won; Give It Up, second, and Coast Guard, third.

LIVELY

Such Promises to Be the Conditions of the Presbyterian Assembly.

It Commences Tomorrow at Saratoga and Will Last Several Days.

Lots of Old Sores Will Be Adjusted at the Meetings.

New York, May 20.—The 108th general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America is to begin its sessions at Saratoga at 11 o'clock tomorrow. The retiring moderator, the Rev. Robert Russell, will preach the opening sermon. The scheduled business of the assembly is the consideration and furtherance of the benevolent and missionary work of the denomination. For this purpose certain days and hours are set apart according to a fixed schedule. The ministerial relief is to be considered on the morning of Saturday, the third day of the session; the freedmans' board and education on Monday; home missions and aid for colleges on Tuesday; foreign missions and publication and Sabbath school work on Wednesday; church erection and benevolence on Thursday, and temperance on Friday.

On the evening of these days special popular meetings are held at which the same interests are considered in longer and more formal addresses. Interspersed among these regular orders is the consideration of other incidental matters, which have great interest to many who are outside as well as inside the church. Prominent among those this year is a report to be submitted by a committee of eleven, Dr. David R. Breed, of Pittsburg, chairman, to which was committed the consideration of "The Whole Subject of Young People's Societies and Their Relation to the Church." All attempts to anticipate this report, which is regarded with wide-spread interest, have been unavailing, and it will probably be carefully concealed till it is ready to be presented to the assembly.

An attempt has been made to agitate for the restoration of Professor Henry Preserved Smith, D.D., formerly of Lane theological seminary, who was suspended from the ministry two years ago on account of heretical teachings. It is reported that the conservatives have threatened to complete the process in his case by deposition, unless a stoppage is put to this movement, and it is said that Professor Smith would prefer such action rather than to remain longer under suspension.

In connection with Lane seminary at Cincinnati, there will come before the assembly, for acquiescence or veto the recent appointment of the Rev. Henry Goodwin Smith, of Freehold, N. J., to its chair of systematic theology. Mr. Smith is regarded as a hereditary theologian, his grandfather having been Dr. William Smith, president of Bowdoin college, in the old days, and his father, the famous professor of theology in Union seminary in New York twenty-five years ago.

Another burning question has regard to the answer of New York presbytery to the action of the last assembly, enjoining it from ordaining under its care with a view to licensure, the students from Union seminary. The presbytery adopted a resolution drawn by Dr. John Hall declaring that the previous practice of the presbytery had been to receive all applicants who could answer the requirements laid down in the constitution of the church, and announcing its determination to proceed in future according to the same plan. There is no probability that the assembly will recede from its position, and it remains to be seen how near it will regard this action of the New York presbytery as insubordination or contempt. Meantime other presbyteries have been receiving and licensing Union students, as though there never had been an injunction placed upon the New York presbytery.

Another report that will be awaited with interest is one dealing with the relations of the assembly to the theological seminaries. It is claimed that no attempts have been made to interfere with the autonomy of these institutions, but nevertheless they have been shy of entering into any closer relations with the assembly or of giving the assembly power through a commission, to enforce any supposed rights in any court of law. Some of them have flatly refused to consider the matter any further, and others are still uncertain. But the movement promises to end in failure, except in the case of a few minor seminaries. The report will be heard with interest, and the attempt to persuade the reluctant seminary boards of directors will probably continue another year.

Last year a lawyer addressed the assembly on the subject of Union seminary, and said that when it terminated its relations with the assembly, it "stole" its endowments away from the Presbyterian church. He was instrumental in having adopted the following resolution, and was promptly placed on the committee having the matter in charge:

"Resolved, that the committee on conference with theological seminaries be requested to inquire into and report to the next general assembly as to the rights of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, in the property now held by the Union theological seminary of the city of New York, and to recommend what measures should be taken to enforce said rights."

The report of this committee is also held secret, and its contents have not yet leaked out, but it is reported, on good authority, that the committee has not been idle in its investigation. Many other matters of interest will fully occupy the ten or twelve days of the assembly's sessions, though in the absence of such causes as those of Drs. Briggs and Smith, the body ought to be able to adjourn even before the usual time—noon of the second Tuesday.

Talk as to the next moderator is already rife, but most of the electioneering and caucusing will be done as usual on the trains tha; bring the large delegations from the West. The home missionary interests seem likely to center upon Dr. T. L. Sexton, of Seward, Neb., the well known synodical missionary of the state of Nebraska. It will not be the first time that the home missionaries have dictated a moderator for the assembly. The straight out conservative party seems to be divided, but the majority of that vote would probably go to Dr. David R. Breed, of Pittsburg, rather than to Dr. Frank C. Montfort, of Cincinnati. Dr. John L. Withrow, of Chicago, is also mentioned.

Low Vitality

means a condition of health very susceptible to disease. If there is a hereditary tendency to Consumption or Scrofula it will manifest itself at that time.

WAR AGAINST EVIL.

The Indian Kills Only That Which is a Menace to his Life, or What is Necessary for the Preservation of his Health.

His Activity and Foresight has Proved a Blessing to Civilization.

Thousands Living To-day, who but for him Would Long Since Have Been in Their Graves.

EVILS of Nature do exist. Why, man has never been able to determine. Nature, however, stands ready to make amends for her faults, by giving us a remedy for every evil of her making.

Where the deadly rattlesnake flourishes there grows a weed whose juice when applied to the wound caused by its bite acts as an antidote. So it is with other poisons and disease; there exists somewhere in Nature's garden a cure.

To the "red man," obliged to avail himself of Nature's remedies in times of sickness, does the civilized world owe thanks for the most wonderful panacea ever discovered, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, the great blood purifier. An infallible cure for Dyspepsia, Gastritis, Nervousness, Biliousness, Scrofula, Bright's Disease, Catarrh and all Blood Diseases, General Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa and hundreds of other terrible infirmities, resulting from a deranged condition of the great life-maintaining organs:—the kidneys, liver, stomach and blood.

Remember, Sagwa not only cures by aiding Nature to dispel poisonous secretions from the system through the natural channels, but, if taken at the first premonition of troubles, acts as a tonic, and by its curative, blood purifying, cleansing, and invigorating qualities will ward off disease, and just this is what every man should bear in mind, if you have such symptoms as sleeplessness, loss of appetite, irritability, coated tongue, bad breath, blotched skin, etc. Some internal poison is at work; a break-down is sure to come.

Better spend a few dollars now and get health, than see your family suffer for the want of the money you will miss earning during a long sickness.

Sagwa contains no mineral or other poisonous ingredients. It is endorsed by the highest medical authorities of the day. Sold by all druggists; $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00. If you wish advice as to your symptoms, write us, and same will be given you free by one of our staff of physicians.—Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., New Haven, Conn.

OUR GOLD

Russia Holds Over $30,000,000 in American Gold Half Eagles.

No Other Nation's Money Held in Such a Large Quantity.

Washington, May 20.—The state department has received a report from United States Consul General Laarel, at St. Petersburg, in relation to the amount of American gold held by the Russian government. The consul general says that he has seen no less than $30,769,115 in good United States gold coin in the coffers of the Russian government. That was on the first of last January.

The consul general was invited, with the consuls of other countries at St. Petersburg, to witness the transfer of a sum of 50,000,000 roubles in gold from the Russian treasury to the exchange fund of the government bank, where it was needed for the redemption of paper roubles. Included in this store of gold he saw 14,371,756 roubles in value of United States half eagles. While the coinage of all the nations of the world was represented in this particular pile of gold, no other nation save Russia itself came anywhere near the store contributed by the United States to the Russian coffers.

Japan came next: with only 1,678,519 roubles worth of yens, while of British gold in this pile of Russian money there were pounds sterling to the amount of less than a million roubles. Afterwards, to make the impression stronger, the consul general was taken into the bank vaults and permitted to look upon the balance of the bank's funds held on that particular day, and he saw more United States gold, this time a stock of 3,933,823 United States gold half eagles, amounting in value to 25,624,945 roubles, so that the Russian bank had in its possession on our gold coin $30,769,115.

When he asked how that amount of United States gold came into the possession of the Russian bank, the governor informed Mr. Laarel that 'the Russian minister of finance had purchased it at different times in Berlin, Paris and London. The gold was kept in small bags, and these again in larger ones, which were piled up in tiers, each bag being sealed and ticketed with the denomination and value of its contents.'

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The second annual tournament of the North Dakota State Sportsmen's association to be held in Fargo June 10 and 11, promises to be the largest and best attended tournament in the state this year. Secretary Smith has been hard at work for some time formulating a program which will give satisfaction to all classes. This is to be strictly an amateur tournament, and the events will be so arranged that the poor as well as the good shots will be sure of paying expenses, besides acquainting themselves with the latest and most approved methods of trap shooting. One of the many good features will be the Rose system of dividing moneys, which has been commended very highly by both the press and the shooters of the East and South. It entirely does away with dropping for place and pays each man in proportion to the number of targets broken.

The local horsemen at Grafton are making some preparations for holding a race meeting on June 25 and 26, as is reported, on good authority, that the committee has not been idle in its investigation. Many other matters of interest will fully occupy the ten or twelve days of the assembly's sessions, though in the absence of such causes as those of Drs. Briggs and Smith, the body ought to be able to adjourn even before the usual time—noon of the second Tuesday.

Talk as to the next moderator is already rife, but most of the electioneering and caucusing will be done as usual on the trains tha; bring the large delegations from the West. It will not be the first time that the home missionaries have dictated a moderator for the assembly. The straight out conservative party seems to be divided, but the majority of that vote would probably go to Dr. David R. Breed, of Pittsburg, rather than to Dr. Frank C. Montfort, of Cincinnati. Dr. John L. Withrow, of Chicago, is also mentioned.

Workmen are engaged at Bismarck in getting some of the machinery and other movable material off the steamer Rosebud, which sank in the Missouri river at this point last Saturday. One end of the steamer rests on the bottom and the other is up in the air.

Enough property owners at Grand Forks signed the paving petition to make the improvement a sure thing. The three principal streets will be paved.

The state firemen's tournament, which was to have been held at Bismarck June 9, 10 and 11, has been postponed until June 16, 17 and 18.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

White Buffalo Man, a policeman from the Cheyenne reservation, has made application for a pension on a claim of permanent injuries sustained while a member of the Third United States cavalry. He has been examined by the pension examiner at Gettysburg, who reports injuries, which, sustained by a white man in the military service, would entitle him to a pension. At present there is but one Indian drawing a soldier's pension from the government, and he resides near Chamberlain. White Buffalo Man claims to be a son of Sitting Bull, and has been a faithful member of the Indian police for a number of years. When Hump, the commander of the police at the time signatures to the last Sioux treaty were being secured, broke loose from control, and declared he would kill the first Indian signing, the command of the forces was turned over to White Buffalo Man, who suppressed all trouble and proved that he was to be trusted at all times. If faithful service to the government, both as soldier and police deserves any recognition from the government on the part of an Indian, this is a case in which the recognition should certainly be granted.

A sensation was created at Sioux Falls by the announcement that Hunt Hubbard, son of Sheriff Hubbard, and Miss Carrie Zellers, daughter of J. M. Zellers, had eloped to Alton, Iowa, and been married there. Hubbard is 21 years of age, and Miss Zellers 16. The girl went to Sioux City a month ago to visit her grandmother, and Hubbard went there a week ago. They are now spending their honeymoon at Orange City. They will probably return here in a few days to make it their home.

Citizens of Redfield are preparing to rebuild their burned college building. The trustees are about to begin repairing the foundation, and the work of raising funds has been in progress for months. The income from 1000 acres of wheat in Spink county has been promised by individual farmers, and days' labors have been volunteered in large numbers. Every honorable and unique way that can be devised will probably be resorted to to raise the amount desired.

A long distance telephone line is being constructed between Aberdeen and Redfield. It may be extended to Watertown later on.

Winners at St. Louis races were Gath, Buck Vider, Battledore, David and Jane.

Winners at Louisville races yesterday were Strathreel, Roy Carruthers, Lester, Ethel Lee and Nannie D.

Henry Bigelow, a well-known newspaper man, died of cancer in a hospital at San Francisco. One of his most notable achievements was securing an interview with the bandits Evans and Sontag at the time they were in the mountains and were holding the officers of the law at bay. Bigelow was 56 years old and leaves a widow and two children.

At Chicago last night Schaefer defeated Garnier by a score of 500 to 275.

At Parkersburg, Ind., Walon Wagner, aged 20, yesterday cut his wife's throat with a razor and then killed himself. Their 6-year-old child witnessed the murder and suicide.

A fire in the coal bunkers of the battleship Indiana caused a big commotion at the Brooklyn navy yard yesterday. It was located next to the magazine and the ammunition was hurriedly removed and the fire was put out with some difficulty, but without any explosion. The soft coal had caught fire by spontaneous combustion.

CALIFORNIA VICTIM.

Young Man Sentenced to Death in Cuba.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.—If the rumor afloat in this vicinity be correct, Los Angeles has a victim among the list of filibusterers captured by the Spanish two weeks age off the coast of Cuba and sentenced by Gen. Weyler to be summarily shot. It is stated upon good authority that when Frank P. Baldwin, a young man well known in military and social circles of this city, left Los Angeles five weeks ago he was bound for Havana.

Young Baldwin was a member of one of the local militia companies, and before he left here is said to have shown to several of his acquaintances a captain's commission in the Cuban patriot army. He is said to have been on board the schooner Competitor captured on the coast of Cuba two weeks ago. Baldwin's relatives here are firmly of the opinion that he is now a prisoner in Cuba. Letters have been sent to United States Senator White requesting him to look into the matter and if possible to save the young man's life.

In Some Diseases, But It Is a Failure in Stomach Troubles.

Mere faith will not digest your food for you, will not give you an appetite, will not increase your flesh and strengthen your nerves and heart, but Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do these things, because they are composed of the elements of digestion, they contain the juices, acids and peptones necessary to the digestion and assimilation of all wholesome food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest food if placed in a jar or bottle in water heated to ninety-eight degrees, and they will do it much more effectively when taken into the stomach after meals, whether you have faith that they will or not.

They invigorate the stomach, make pure blood and strong nerves, in the only way that nature can do it, and that is, from plenty of wholesome food well digested. It is not what we eat, but what we digest that does us good.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by nearly all druggists at 50 cents for full sized package, or by mail from the Stuart company, Marshall, Mich.

The Box Factory Is Being Rushed More Than Ever Before.

Other Industries Are Working Steadily--New Police Wagon Here.

The bay front is beginning to assume its old-time activity. The sawmills are all running to their fullest capacity, and lumber shipments are very large. A large crew is at work and the machinery is being pushed to its utmost capacity.

The planing mill department of the Duluth Manufacturing company is working steadily with a large amount of orders. The Marinette Iron works are doing the usual amount of repair work at this season of the year and the Duluth Brass works, although not rushed with heavy orders, are doing enough to keep the machinery in motion and employ a number of hands.

NEW WAGON OUT

Lieutenant Briggs turned out this morning with the new wagon ordered by the council at the last meeting for use by the department at this end of the city. It is a one horse rig not very large but capable of carrying several jags in case of necessity.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

THE workman often eats his lunch on the same bench where he does his work. The office man turns his desk into a dining-table. Neither gets the out of doors exercise he needs, neither takes the proper time for eating. It is small wonder that the digestion of both gets out of order. In such cases Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets come to their assistance by aiding nature in taking care of the food.

The cause of nine-tenths of the sickness of the world is constipation. From this one cause come indigestion, disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys; biliousness, headaches, flatulence, heartburn, impurity of the blood and the serious complications that follow. To begin with, constipation is a little thing, and a little thing will cure it. The "Pleasant Pellets" are tiny, sugar-coated granules. They will perfectly cure the worst cases of constipation and indigestion. If the druggist tries to sell you some other pill that pays him greater profit, just think of what will best pay you.

TO THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION WITH THE CELEBRATED REPUBLICAN FLAMBEAU CLUB.

A special vestibuled train of sleeping cars, dining and baggage cars, will be run from Minneapolis and St. Paul to St. Louis, June 13, via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway (the popular "Hiawatha route"), to accommodate the Republican Flambeau club and their friends throughout the Northwest.

Leave the Twin Cities afternoon of June 13, and arrive at St. Louis next day.

This train will be side-tracked at a point within two blocks of Auditorium convention hall and six minutes walk to the principal hotels. Passengers desiring to do so can occupy the sleepers during the convention at low rates.

The service, in every particular, will be absolutely first-class and all may depend upon thoroughly comfortable and pleasant accommodations, both going and returning, and while occupying the cars in St. Louis.

The Republican Flambeau club is composed of leading business and professional men in Minnesota, and their trips to former national conventions and inaugurations have always done great credit to the Northwest.

The railroad rate is one fare for the round trip. For exact information as to sleeping car rates and accommodations, meals, etc., address Frank P. Nantz, secretary Republican Flambeau club, 604 Guaranty block, Minneapolis, or J. T. Conley, assistant general passenger agent, C. M. & St. P. Ry., St. Paul.

Did you ever think how readily the blood is poisoned by constipation? Bad blood means bad health and premature old age. DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills, overcome obstinate constipation. S. F. Boyce.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GO FISHING.

Commencing May 15, the Northern Pacific railroad will resume the sale of tourist tickets at reduced rates to all principal points along its line. For further information call at city ticket office, 423 West Superior street.

Wheat Was Strong Today and the Price Took an Upturn.

Damage By the Hessian Fly to Michigan Crops the Factor.

The Other News Relating to the Business Was Mainly Bearish.

The weather and crop bulletins were decidedly bearish, cables were easier and as a result wheat opened easy today and sold off on bearish reports, but soon firmed up again on insect damage reports. The market soon became very strong. The principal agent in creating the strength was the Hessian fly in Michigan wheat. The Detroit grain men appeared to have plenty of leisure to indite voluminous dispatches to their Chicago correspondents regarding the damage which the insects in question were doing to the growing wheat plant. The trade at Chicago was in a more receptive mood concerning the crop killing telegrams than on any previous day since they had calmed down from the similar scare about the Illinois and Indiana crops. Due to the Michigan news and to the working for export of 50,000 bus of No. 1 northern wheat from Chicago, July wheat early in the session, declining after a drop to 69½c, rose to 69¾c about half an hour from the close of the session. The news relating to other features of the business was in the main bearish. Trading was only fair while yesterday it was the largest in the history of the Duluth board, aggregating 5,000,000 bus. The mills today bought 200,000 bus, to arrive at 4c under July, while 50,000 bus was purchased to go into store at 1c under July. The close was 1c higher all round than yesterday, except September which advanced ¾c. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 69¾c; May, 69¾c asked; July, 69¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 61¾c; May, 61¾c; July, 62c bid; September, 63¾c bid. No. 2 northern, cash, 59½@59¾c. No. 2, 57@58c. Rejected, 54@55c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 20.—Wheat opened easy but firmed up quickly on reported sale of a cargo of wheat for export from here. A decided effort was made early to depress the market but there was scattering buying by commission houses which was credited to the country. Cable to Michigan and Indiana which absorbed the offerings and thus added to the heavy buying of several local operators caused a fair advance, closing easier on realizing and a suspicion that a great deal of the red wheat which Michigan millers bought here recently at fancy prices had been sold out by them on the firm market caused by their damage reports. Though some very bad crop reports come from Michigan there are many others that deny serious damage. The situation is still two-sided and the market is ripe for developments either way.

Corn and oats ruled dull.

Provisions weak on renewed selling of lard and ribs and prospects of increased run of hogs.

Puts, July wheat, 61¾c.

Calls, July wheat, 62¾c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Dull and Irregular Opening This Morning.

New York, May 20.—The opening on the stock exchange was dull and featureless with quotations irregular. The only important change was for Consolidated Gas, which lost 1 per cent. Speculation tended toward improvement after 10:15, with trading a little more active. Sugar was marked up 1 per cent, Tobacco ¾. Manhattan ⅝ and other shares to a less extent. The engagement of $500,000 gold for tomorrow by a German steamer with the probability of the sum being increased, exerted no influence on the trading.

The industrial shares monopolized most of the trading in the second hour. The changes in prices were unimportant, except toward noon, when Sugar eased off ¾ per cent on realizations. The general list exhibited a reactionary tendency, but the losses scored were light. The speculation was steady in tone at midday. The sales to noon were 59,500 shares.

BOYCOTT LIFTED.

Union Labor Wins the Armour Strike Affair.

Kansas City, May 20.—The striking firemen of the Armour packing plant who went out May 6 for increased wages and fewer hours compromised their differences today, lifting the boycott against the company's meat, and will return to work tomorrow morning. The 1000 or more employes in different departments of the plant who were laid off because of lack of work will also be reinstated. The firemen gain an increase of 1¼ cents an hour for eight hours, which is practically all they demanded.

J. E. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Industrial council, has accordingly issued the following: "Kansas City, May 20.—To Organized Labor Everywhere. The boycott placed upon the product of the Armour Packing company has been declared off. Existing difficulties have been amicably adjusted."

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS.

Election of Officers Completed at New York.

New York, May 20.—At today's session of the American institute of electrical engineers the tellers reported that last evening's ballot for officers had resulted as follows: President, Dr. Louis Duncan, Baltimore; vice presidents, C. P. Steinmetz, Schenectady, N. Y.; Professor Harris J. Ryan, Ithaca, N. Y., and Professor W. M. Stone, Chicago; managers, T. B. Stillwell, Pittsburg, Pa.; Professor W. L. Puffer, of Boston; G. W. Lieb, Jr., and F. A. Pickernell, of New York; treasurer, George A. Hamilton, New York; secretary, Ralph W. Pope, New York.

The report of the sub-committee on standards of light was received by the convention. This committee consists of Dr. E. L. Nichols, Clayton H. Sharp and Charles P. Matthews.

MINISTER TERRELL.

Washington, May 20.—United States Minister Terrell is still in Washington in daily consultation with the officials of the state department respecting the condition of affairs in Turkey, when he will return to his post, and whether or not it will be necessary for him to do so before the expiration of his leave of absence is in a measure dependent upon the developments at Constantinople.

For some time past there has been talk here which is always traceable to a few disgruntled individuals, to the effect that the administration is dissatisfied with Mr. Terrell's conduct at Constantinople, but it can be stated authoritatively that no charges have been lodged with Mr. Terrell's superiors. Consequently no official notice can be taken of this kind of talk.

NORTHERN PACIFIC'S BILL.

Washington, May 20.—The house committee on judiciary has finished its hearing on the bill to authorize the reorganization of the Northern Pacific, and the consideration of the bill have been given to a sub-committee of five who may propose amendments. The members of the subcommittee are: Connelly, of Illinois; Milnes, Maryland; Gillet, Massachusetts; Terry, Arkansas, and Dearmond, Missouri.

DEFEAT THE MACHINE.

The supporters of Mr. Towne in other portions of the district are naturally surprised that any friend of Mr. Towne in St. Louis county should aid the movement to send a Clough delegation to the state convention. Their surprise is chiefly due to the fact that the active managers of Mr. Clough's campaign in this county are anti-Towne men, who fought him bitterly two years ago and would fight him again this year if they thought they could defeat him. They are now making loud professions of their desire to see Mr. Towne renominated, but they do not mean it. If the opportunity presented itself, if they could obtain control of the county convention here and be able to name the delegation to St. Cloud, they would not select any of Mr. Towne's true and trusted friends, and if there was any show of opposition to him at St. Cloud they would be ready to abandon him at any time. These are facts to which no true friend of Mr. Towne should shut his eyes. To let these men carry this county for Clough would be extreme political folly. They would use a victory of this kind to advance their own fortunes. They would go to St. Paul and blandly tell the Republican leaders from other parts of the state that they had downed Mr. Towne's friends and were again in control of the political situation here. Making this claim, they would demand recognition as the representatives of the St. Louis county Republicans.

Will the Republicans of this county, who fought so valiantly and so successfully for Mr. Towne two years ago, permit the defeated upon that occasion to become the victors this year?

The machine was downed two years ago. Keep it down.

Mr. Lee is the anti-machine candidate for governor, just as Mr. Towne two years ago was the anti-machine candidate for congress. The machine is really against Mr. Towne now, and he and his friends cannot afford to allow St. Louis county to be carried by the machine for Clough. The Herald does not believe that they will permit it, but the fact should not be overlooked that the machine is pulling every string at its command to accomplish this result, and Mr. Towne's friends must not be idle. A victory for the machine and Clough in St. Louis county would be regarded outside as a defeat for Mr. Towne. Let every friend of Mr. Towne remember this fact and act accordingly. Even Mr. Towne himself cannot afford to remain neutral in this fight.

Governor Altgeld of Illinois has been much amused by Comptroller Eckels' statement that the adoption of a free silver plank by the Democrats would cause the loss of several Eastern states. "Mr. Eckels would have done us a service," said the governor, in discussing the matter, "if he would have indicated what there is left for us to lose in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. As I remember, an election was held there not long ago, involving a gold platform, and when the fight was over we had not men enough left to bury our dead. A similar fight on a similar platform was made in Maryland and Kentucky, as well as a number of other states, and if there is anything left for us to lose in any of those states, it certainly is not visible, or else the Republicans would have loaded it into their wagon, for, when the fight was over, they found that 'the earth and the fullness thereof' was theirs." Mr. Eckels is a very nice young man and fills his position well, but he should not talk so much.

SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

An excellent suggestion is made in a communication today from T. W. Hugo. He proposes that a Saturday half-holiday should be established here as a permanent institution during the summer months. This idea was suggested by the remonstrances made against bicycle races, baseball games and other programs of amusement arranged for Memorial day, and which many people regard as a desecration of the day which should be sacred to the memory of the men who fought, bled and died to save their country from dismemberment. As Mr. Hugo well says, with a Saturday half-holiday made a permanent feature of our social life, the excuse for sports of any kind on Memorial day would in a large measure be removed. Bicycle races, baseball games and other sports would be in order on Saturday afternoons, and the people would attend them in large crowds.

Aside from this point, however, there are strong arguments which can be offered in support of the establishment of a Saturday half-holiday. The physical and mental rest and enjoyment which the holiday would afford would be highly beneficial to the whole community. It would conduce to the betterment of the people in every way. They would gain renewed health by the opportunity to get outdoors and enjoy themselves in whatever way suited their fancy. They are now cooped up all week in their offices and homes and have but little opportunity to go out in the sunshine and breathe the pure, health-giving air. It is a mistake to assume that a half-holiday would mean more patronage for the saloons. The experience of other places where the Saturday half-holiday has been established disproves this idea. The natural tendency is to leave the dust and heat of the city and go into the country, with its green fields, clear air and running brooks. Let no one be afraid that the saloons would be the gainers.

The Saturday half-holiday is not a new idea. It is an old custom in many places and it is a popular custom. In New York, Boston and other Eastern cities it has long been established and is an unqualified success. In England and other foreign countries the people would as soon think of working on Sunday as on Saturday afternoon. It is held sacred to rest and enjoyment. From a religious standpoint the half-holiday should meet with favor. With the opportunity for indulging in sports and other amusements on Saturday afternoons, the people would be less inclined to seek amusement on Sunday. The latter would gain in strength as a day of worship and religious study and meditation, and this fact should bring to the support of the Saturday half-holiday the powerful influence of the churches.

QUAY AND M'KINLEY.

Senator Matt Quay states that he is going to Canton, Ohio, to see Mr. McKinley. Why? Because he is anxious to learn exactly what the Ohio Napoleon thinks about the money question. Boss Quay says he is really and truly anxious on this point, and he wants to learn from Mr. McKinley's own lips the views which he holds upon this subject. The Pennsylvania patronage may be in the senator's thoughts? Perish the idea. It is the money question solely that he is interested in. He does not care who holds the offices, so long as the gold standard prevails. At least this is the impression that he conveys, and who shall doubt that he is not telling the whole truth and nothing but the truth about his prospective pilgrimage to Canton?

Bu there are some people who do not believe that Mr. Quay is only interested in Mr. McKinley's financial views. The suspicious correspondents at Washington impute other motives to Mr. Quay. They say he will bear a flag of truce to Canton from the anti-McKinley leaders. Having realized at last that they are hopelessly beaten and that nothing but a miracle can prevent the Ohio man's nomination at St. Louis, they are anxious to effect a compromise and possibly make terms with him. It is stated that Mr. McKinley has consented to receive Mr. Quay and discuss the situation with him. This is good politics. It is well to have harmony among the party leaders. Mr. McKinley realizes that he must largely depend upon these men for the conduct of his campaign in the Eastern states, and to obtain their aid he will no doubt be willing to make some concessions. One correspondent says: "For some time Senator Quay has been resigned to the inevitable, and it is understood that he has advised Mr. Platt to cease his bitter personal attacks on the ground that they are only injuring the party's interests. So far from being prepared to make terms with McKinley, Quay will endeavor merely to secure a promise that, in case the former is elected, he will not have pledged any cabinet offices or laid any plans for vengeance upon his enemies. Speaker Reed and Senator Allison are in sympathy with the motives of the proposed visit."

If this be true, there is no reason why peace should not be declared. Mr. McKinley will undoubtedly see the political wisdom of not planning any vengeance upon his enemies. He will need the support of Quay and others in the senate, and this would not be forthcoming if he determined on a policy of revenge. The result of Mr. Quay's visit will probably be the abandonment of any fight on Mr. McKinley at St. Louis and his nomination by acclamation.

A Minneapolis paper says that Hennepin county silver Democrats are fully determined to send a silver delegation to the state convention. Active work having that end in view is being done, and they express themselves as being confident of success. The candidate for delegate-at-large is P. B. Winston, while A. D. Smith and D. B. Johnson are both candidates for district delegates. There is a division of feeling as to whether Michael Doran shall be chosen a delegate-at-large. Some of the silver men favor it, arguing that if the state convention adopts a silver platform Doran will abide by it. The silver men are a unit in one thing, however, and that is that Winston shall take Doran's place as national committeeman.

The Methodist general conference had an exciting discussion over a resolution authorizing the licensing of evangelists and for the placing of restrictions upon public travelling evangelists. Rev. Dr. Forbes, of Duluth, took a hand in the discussion. He said that people were getting converted too fast. In some places all you have to do is to hold up your hand and shout: "Come to Jesus!" and you are saved. It will soon be so that you may get saved by sending your cabinet photograph and having it baptized. Salvation will soon be on sale by telephone and telegraph.

The Morris Tribune says: "If the country press were to decide the gubernatorial contest, Governor Clough would be nominated on the first ballot. There are more Republican papers in favor of Clough than all the other candidates together." This is not correct, at least in the Sixth district, from which most of The Herald's state exchanges come, and surely no one will seriously claim that in Southern Minnesota he has any support worth mentioning from the Republican papers. But the Tribune's claim is in line with the policy of the Clough men to "claim the earth."

No friend of Mr. Towne can afford to remain neutral in the governorship fight. Mr. Lee's friends are ready to secure Mr. Towne's renomination by acclamation. The best that the Clough men offer is the vote of several counties sufficient to control the district convention, but there is no possibility that they could do what they promise. Besides, Mr. Lee lives in the Sixth district, and St. Louis county should support the candidate of the district for governor.

Mayor Truelsen's statement that he will enforce the ordinance requiring bicycle riders to have bells and to carry lanterns at night and to observe the regulations as to speed on avenues will be pleasing to pedestrians. It is also in the interest of the bicyclists, many of whom are reckless riders and likely to meet with serious accidents unless restrained in some way.

Speaking of bulls, here is one which the Dayton, Ohio, Herald attributes to Congressman Northway when he spoke in advocacy of the bill granting a pension of $75 a month to the widow of Gen. Thomas Ewing: "She is as much entitled to a pension as the widow of any living man on the face of the earth."

Push the Saturday half-holiday idea.

This was ex-Governor Boles' day.

LEE VERSUS THE MACHINE.

Minneapolis Journal: The Cloquet Pine Knot has had an interview with A. D. Davidson, the Little Falls banker and mayor, now temporarily residing in Duluth, where he is winding the affairs of a defunct bank, to the effect that, in his opinion, St. Louis county will send a delegation to the state convention favorable to Mr. Lee for governor. Mr. Davidson told the Pine Knot that the Lee sentiment in Duluth was strong and on the increase. This agrees with what has come from other reliable sources in St. Louis county. When the Clough men say that St. Louis county is theirs, and that they have the fight there as good as won, it is evident that they are not playing with the card. There are two strong factions in that county, each confident of winning out in the gubernatorial contest. The Duluth Herald is wording the anti-machine crowd, and is friendly to Lee the News Tribune is the organ of the machine and Clough, and is saying all that it can to belittle the candidacy of Lee. Inconsistent as it may seem, both papers are for Towne, and an outsider is at times really in doubt as to whether Towne's genuine friends in Duluth are for Clough or for Lee, or whether they are keeping hands off of the state fight, this latter being their attitude as reported from men who profess to represent Mr. Towne's views.

CURIOUS EPITAPHS.

Here are a couple of curious epitaphs unearthed in Framingham, Mass., churchyard, which will prove amusing, if nothing else, to Herald readers:

"In memory of John Glover, who, being struck with lightning, died June 3, A. D. 1770, in the 42d year of his age.
"O may you all, both far and near,
Who of this dispensation hear,
Now hearken to the call of heaven
And take the warning God has given.
Surprising death to you soon may
Come in some unexpected way;
I pray that all make it their care
For sudden death now to prepare."

"In memeory of Comd'r Abraham Rice, who departed this life in a sudden and awful manner, and, as we trust, entered a better, June 3, A. D. 1777, in the 81st year of his age.
"My trembling heart with grief o'erflows,
While I record the death of those
Who died by thunder sent from heaven,
In seventeen hundred seventy-seven.
Let's all prepare for judgment day;
As we may be called out of time,
And in a sudden and awful way,
Whilst in our youth and in our prime."

THEY STUFF THE KID.

Crookston Tribune: The St. Cloud Journal-Press roasts the Minneapolis Journal for allowing the use of its columns to a kid to write state politics. The aforesaid kid is too soft a mark for the politicians, who stuff him full of "the situation," which he prints in the Journal as facts.

A CROP O' KISSES.

From her side I go a singin' in the mornin' cool and gray,
When the dew shines in the furrow, an' the hills climb into day;
An' I kiss her at the partin'—she's the sweetest thing in life—
Like I use' to kiss my sweetheart, 'fore my sweetheart was my wife.

It's kind o' "good-bye" kissin'—though it's kissin', mighty soon!
An' I say: "I'll make it last me till the shadders point to noon."
An' the keen larks sing "He kissed her!" and the winds sing "So did we!"
When some wild rose comes a-climbin' an' jes' steals her kiss from me!

Then the plow stands in the furrow, an' my dreamin' eyes I shield
As I look where last I left her, as I sing across the field;
"Here's the wind's a-laughin' at me; here's the lark a-singing' this;
"He's kissed her, kissed her, kissed her—but the rose has stole his kiss!"

Then, with all the birds a-singing' and a-twitin' me so sweet,
I lose sight o' all the grasses 'roun' the corn blades at my feet,
An' my horse looks 'roun' a-wonderin', till he almost seems to say:
"Will you make a crop o' kisses, or another crop o' hay?"

And I don't know how to answer, for I'm thinkin', an' I seem Like a feller just a-wakin' from the middle of a dream;
An' horse is out of harness, with his mane a-flowin' free,
An' the rose that stole her kisses—well, she kisses it an' me!

CASTLES IN THE AIR.

There's a building boom in Nowhere land—
It's the one that comes each year.
When the spring is new
And the skies are blue
And the south wind whispers cheer.
With Fancy as architect, we've planned
(His charges are small but fair)
Improvements great
For each vast estate
And our castles in the air.

It's only a minute we need to see
The minarets and towers
In beauty rise
'Neath our very eyes,
And these treasures all are ours.
Your likes may be fickle and strange and free,
For easily you repair
The wreck that falls
When the old charm palls
In your castles in the air.

When the golden rivers at twilight start
And the scarlet sun sinks low,
It's a journey slight
To that land of light
Where the maybe blossoms blow.
And it's only the friend with the honest heart
Who has followed through ill and fair
Who can be your guest
As you dream and rest
In your castle in the air.

A CRY FOR BUMBLEBEES.

Youth's Companion: A striking instance of the practical usefulness of a knowledge of entomology was cited in a paper read at a recent meeting of men of science. Red clover was imported into a British colony from the mother country, but to the great disappointment of the farmers it did not thrive. Then the etomologists told the farmers what the matter was; they had neglected to import bumblebees with the clover. The bumblebee, with his long proboscis, was the only insect that could reach the honey in the red clover heads, and therefore the only one that could fertilize the flowers.

CAUSED BY CURRANTS.

London Globe: Overproduction of currants has upset Greece's finances. The world's consumption is about 130,000 tons. When only this amount is raised the crop sells for about $10,000,000, while a crop of 170,000 tons sells for only $5,000,000. France's demand for the grapes some years ago led to planting new vineyards, the acreage being doubled in fifteen years, but the improvement in the French vintage and heavy import duties have closed that market.

HOW TO MELT SNOW.

Science: The toll road from Truckee to Lake Tahoe, Cal., is closed early every winter by the immense snowfall, which in places buries the road to a depth of twenty to thirty feet. At the beginning of spring the owner of the road has black dirt scattered along on the surface of the snow, where he knows that his hidden road runs. The layer of dirt is not made so thick as completely to cut off the sunlight from the snow. The effect is described as wonderful. In a short time a long depression is formed in the snow, and days before the ground is clear on either side the stages are running on bare ground." This is the result of the natural law by which white substances reflect heat, while dark ones attract and absorb it.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT FOR THE INCORPORATION OF THE DULUTH GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

This agreement witnesseth that the undersigned do hereby associate for the purpose of incorporation under and by virtue of Title one (I), of Chapter thirty-four (34) of the General Statutes of Minnesota, 1878, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and adopt and sign the following articles of incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be "Duluth Great Western Railway Company" and the general nature of its business shall be to survey, locate, construct, equip, maintain and operate for the transportation of persons and property for hire a line of public railway with one or more tracks or lines of rails, commencing at the city of Duluth, in the county of St. Louis, Minnesota, where terminal facilities can be procured, and extending thence southerly to the boundary line between the states of Wisconsin and Minnesota to the most practicable point of crossing the St. Louis river between Rice's Point and the dividing line between ranges fifteen (15) and sixteen (16) west, where the same crosses said boundary and where said line of railway will meet and coincide with a line of railroad beginning at that point to be built through the state of Wisconsin thence over said last mentioned line to Wisconsin. Then beginning again in the state of Minnesota at a point on the boundary line between the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin at a point on said boundary on the western border of township number forty-eight (48), north range fifteen (15) west found to be most feasible for crossing said boundary, and where said line of railway will meet and coincide with a line of railway to be built through the northwest corner of the state of Wisconsin as aforesaid, thence extending in a general westerly course, by the most practical route through and across the north central portion of the state of Minnesota; passing near the southern boundary of Hubbard county, thence westerly to a point near the southwestern corner of White Earth Indian reservation, thence in a northwesterly direction to a point on the western boundary line of Minnesota on the Red River of the North at or near Caledonia where said river can be most easily crossed; thence westerly through the state of North Dakota to the Missouri river by the most practical route to be more specifically determined and located. Also beginning at a point in the line already described near the southwest corner of the White Earth Indian reservation, thence extending in a southwesterly direction by the most practical route to a point on the boundary line between Minnesota and North Dakota at or near Moorhead to be specifically determined and located, together with the construction, maintenance and operation of all necessary branches, side tracks, switches, turnouts, car houses, depots, machine shops, bridges, warehouses and all other necessary buildings, structures and erections necessary for the proper maintenance and operation of said railway, and to acquire and hold property and do all things necessary and proper for or incidental to the conduct of said business; and further, to construct, maintain and operate a line, or lines, of telegraph on or over its line of railway and branches and to charge a reasonable compensation for the transmission of messages over and by means of the same. The more definite location and selection of said line of railway, spur tracks, side tracks, depots, machine shops and other necessary erections shall be hereafter made, determined and established by the board of directors of this corporation, and it shall be legal and within the province of these articles for the said board of directors to cause the work of construction to commence at any point, upon any of the lines established by them in pursuance of these articles, and, if necessary, to obtain for a reasonable hire the right to run the locomotives and cars of this corporation on other railroads, in the conduct of its business, and if necessary to reach for the time being its own termini over lines so leased, or to procure any of the facilities for the transportation therein contemplated either by purchase, lease or consolidation. A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

Miss Calverly Given a Reception By Jefferson School.

The teachers of the Jefferson school gave a reception yesterday afternoon to Miss Belle Calverly, the principal of the institution, in honor of her birthday. It had been designed to make the affair a surprise to the guest of the occasion, and the outcome proved that the movers are successful as conspirators. Her plot working out without a hitch except that Miss Cloverly chanced to walk into the room where the preparations were going on before the time was ready to be sprung. She, however, considerately beat a hasty retreat.

When all was in readiness, a committee waited on the principal and escorted her to the kindergarten parlors, which were beautifully decorated with hothouse roses, potted palms and appropriate blossoms, when she was received with a burst of music and presented with a mammoth bouquet. After a few impromptu speeches had been made, Miss Calverly was escorted to the head of a table loaded with good things and in the center of which was an enormous cake decorated with sixteen candles, where she presided over the feast that followed. Musical selections, vocal and instrumental followed the banquet.

CURED AT 73 YEARS.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure Victorious.

No other medicine can show such a record. Here is a veritable patriarch, 73 years of age, with strong prejudice to overcome, who had Heart Disease 15 years. He took the New Heart Cure and is now sound and well.

SAMUEL O. STONE.

Grass Lake, Mich., Dec. 28, 1894.

I have been troubled with heart disease 15 years or more. Most of the time I was so bad it was not safe for me to go out alone, as dizzy spells would cause falling. I had severe palpitation, shortness of breath and sudden pains that rendered me helpless. All physicians did for me was to advise keeping quiet. In August last I commenced taking and before I had finished the first bottle I found the medicine was a God-send. I have now used four bottles in all and am feeling entirely well. I am 73 years of age and have held a grudge against patent medicines all my life, but I will not allow this to prevent giving my testimony to the great cure your valuable remedy has wrought in me. I do this to show my appreciation of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. SAMUEL O. STONE.

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

VAGRANTS

The Spring Crowd of Weary Willies Has Made Its Appearance.

Twenty-One Were Rounded Up From One Car Last Night.

They Represented Many States and Had Varied Stories to Tell.

Word was received at police headquarters last evening that a number of tramps had pre-empted a box car in the St. Paul & Duluth yards, and Officers Terry and Threadcroft were sent to the scene.

As the officers approached the car, the hum of voices that saluted their ears sounded like a presidential convention in full blast, and they stood dazed at the results that followed their knock and command to those inside to come out and show themselves. When fifteen had jumped to the ground with more coming, the officers made up their minds they would need an expert cowboy or two to round up the herd. When the last vag had emerged, and poking around with a stick having failed to stir up any more, there were twenty-one of assorted sizes and brands ranged along the track. There were seedy old veterans and apprentices, and one dude, in a cardinal colored sweater, in the lot.

It took the squadron an hour to pass in review before Judge Edson this morning. The municipal court room looked like the drill hall of a regiment of Coxey's army. According to their stories, there were representatives from seven states besides Minnesota in the assemblage. The court called for a report on credentials, and in response the wanderers told their story in turn.

One gentleman said he was from Idaho. He said he was a miner, and was on his way to Two Harbors to get a job. The contingent from the East was composed of a delegate from Cleveland, O., and Pittsburg, Pa. They, also, wanted to get to the mines to get jobs.

The delegate from the South was a colored gentleman, another gratifying proof that the brother of African blood is taking his place on a footing of equality with his erstwhile oppressors. He said he was from Birmingham, Ala., and had come to the North in search of better wages. John Simpson was his name. He looked honest, and his hands were calloused from work, and he was let off with a suspended sentence.

Five of the others, who were evidently victims of adverse fortune, were also let off, and the others were fined $5 and costs each, and were taken upon the hill. James Dailey, charged with being drunk, pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, going on the hill in default of payment.

Freeburg's Case Dismissed.

The case of the state against A. P. Freeberg, charged with assault on Mrs. Annie Boussain, was dismissed in the municipal court this morning, on motion of the prosecution, Assistant County Attorney McPherrin stating that the prosecuting witness is sick and unable to attend court.

Frost Last Night.

Early risers found unmistakable evidences of frost; this morning, and more than one garden patch undoubtedly suffered. The minimum temperature recorded at the weather office here was 38 degrees, which would admit of a pretty feral over Michigan last night.

Populist Conventions.

Populist district conventions have been called for June 4 in the First district at Dodge Center; June 25 in the Sixth district at Duluth; June 10 in the Second district at Mankato; June 12 in the Third district at Chaska. Mary Ellen Lease will be one of the attractions at the Duluth convention.

GERMAN EVANGELISTS.

The twenty-ninth annual conference of the German Evangelical association of Minnesota, which was in session at Lowerne for ten days, has closed. Bishop Horn, of Cleveland, has had charge of the conference, and the attendance has been good. The appointments for the year include Rev. A. Utzinger for Duluth.

AN ALL-WAGNER SERVICE.

The Omaha road will take off all its Pullman sleepers next Monday night, and Wagner cars will be substituted. The road has for some time used Wagner cars to Chicago and Milwaukee, but by the new move nineteen Pullmans which have been in use to Duluth, Sioux City, Omaha and Kansas City will be dropped, and Wagners substituted.

One minute is the standard time, and One Minute Cough Cure is the standard preparation for every form of cough or cold. It is the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results. S. F. Boyce.

WILD With Eczema

I was a sufferer for eight years from Eczema, but now am entirely cured. The palms of my hands were covered and badly inflamed; little white blisters appeared, then would peel off, leaving a red, smooth surface, which would burn like fire and itch. On the inside of the upper part of my limbs, great red blotches would appear, and as soon as I became warm, the burning and itching would begin. Night after night I would lie awake and scratch, and almost go wild. I got a box of CUTICURA, and a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and after a few applications I noticed the redness and inflammation disappear; before I had used one box there was not a sign of Eczema left. I can truthfully assert that $2.00 worth of CUTICURA REMEDIES cured me.

HIS BANEFUL PASSION.

A Great Statesman Punished For His Contempt of Never-Changing Natural Laws.

"I never saw a man with such a passion for work and such a contempt for health," said a French artist of one of the busiest statesmen in Europe.

In a few days the cable brought news that nature had punished this minister for violating her laws. He was reported to be suffering from a heavy cold. "Aggravated," the message said, "by prolonged and excessive labor, and insufficient sleep."

The statesman was said to be weak, nervous and peevish, and to complain of pains in the head and muscles. What his doctors did for him the dispatch doesn't tell. What an ambitious American does in similar circumstances is no secret. Knowing that the first demand of the body is for a stimulant, he takes the best obtainable. Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky and the distress attending a cold soon goes.

The reason why? It is as easy as A B C. Stomach, lungs, liver, kidneys, all the organs in fact, are lagging, and do their work feebly. They need a gentle stirring-up, and then they will go on as usual. What is wanted in this emergency Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky supplies. It surely is not necessary to point out the consequences of a neglected cold. They may last a lifetime.

Prejudice against the use of a good stimulant has been dispelled by Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky which citizens of the highest standing have cordially recommended. The distinction between an absolutely pure whisky and articles made of fusel oil and other mischief-making ingredients is perfectly clear in the public mind. That is why Duffy's Pure Malt is welcome in families.

PLANTED BROOK TROUT.

S. F. Fullerton Put Sixty Thousand in Knife River.

State Game and Fish Warden S. F. Fullerton came up from St. Paul yesterday with 60,000 young brook trout, six cans of 10,000 each. He took them out to Knife River during the day and placed them in that stream. These are about the only trout that have been sent to this vicinity by the state commission, and the people have to thank Mr. Fullerton for it. He set apart a lot of eggs last year to be sent up here, and saw that they were well taken care of. Knife river was at one time a splendid trout stream, but has been pretty well fished out by this time. Even now, however, some very nice messes of fish are caught out there, and not a few good strings have been brought to town. The planting of this large lot will undoubtedly again make it a fine stream within a few years. Some of the trout planted were an inch and a half and two inches long.

Mr. Fullerton has also received applications for fish for Pike lake, near Duluth, and will comply with the requests made. He will, in a short time, bring up a large lot of young black bass and plant them there. Pike lake is just about the right distance from Duluth to make it a nice fishing place and will undoubtedly be very popular if it is well stocked. At present pickerel and pike are about all that are caught there.

Mr. Fullerton also says that the commission has had great luck with the wall-eyed pike eggs. They have come out fine, and large numbers of the young fish have been planted all over the state.

In this connection it has been frequently asked why the state of Wisconsin does not pay more attention to stocking the Brule river. If a systematic scheme of planting was adopted it would keep that stream in fine fishing condition forever, whereas now it is being fished out and in a few years will be like Knife river.

SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

Suggestion That Will Meet With Much Favor.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Your editorial remarks concerning the observance of Decoration day, and a few other scattering shots by the skirmishers along the line, at different times, lead me to think that I can edit your paper, for a couple of minutes, and make a suggestion that will be in accord with your sentiments, as expressed, on the proper observance question, and also with the desires of those who differ with you, and I think both sides are perfectly honest in their opinions, and none desire to do anything that would even seem to be disrespectful, disloyal or unappreciative.

Let us all unite in securing a Saturday half-holiday, and a great measure of the excuse for bicycle sports on Decoration day, or the desire or need of it, would be removed, and especially for the summer months, which are short enough at the best; let us all have an opportunity to enjoy ourselves in a decent, orderly manner, at a time when, if the weather interferes, all we will have to do will be to wait until next Saturday, and the song we will sing will be "Every day'll be Saturday bye and bye."

Do not let us deceive ourselves by the reasoning that a Saturday half-holiday will be the saloons' work day; that is the reasoning of the maligner and the pessimist. Give us more rational amusement and opportunities for its enjoyment and I will foretell the result. It is because we have so little opportunity for recreation that we naturally drift to the place where we think we can get it in the largest doses and in the shortest time, and as we find out, our error we look for something else, but our conditions are such that we do not know how to enjoy ourselves except in such a manner, or in silly, dudish style, repugnant to the more thoughtful. As a consequence we become morose and sour, and while the tariff and 16 to 1 may have something to do with the disjointing of the times, the inability to rationally enjoy ourselves, and the frame of mind into which such a condition brings us, has a great deal more to do with it than we allow ourselves to think.

I believe every preacher can consistently preach from this text, even if it is from the layman's Bible; every employer can agree with the idea and every workingman can afford the luxury. The banks have it, the board of trade has it, most offices have it, and why should not all enjoy it? It is no new thing; it has been tried for years, until in places where it has been adopted the people would sooner work on Sunday than desecrate their Sabbath, holy Saturday afternoon. Let's have it.

T. W. Hugo.

THE MACCABEES.

Five Hundred Will Be Here Friday Evening.

The Knights of the Maccabees will have an interesting time here on Friday, and a "school of instruction" will be held that evening, and it will be conducted under the direction of Supreme Commander Markey, of Port Huron, Mich., and other supreme officers. The attendance of fully 500 Maccabees is expected. Three hundred will come from Superior in a body, and large delegations are coming from the range towns. The school will be held at Odd Fellows hall. A banquet will be held after the exercises.

Last evening West End Tent No. 49 was consolidated with Duluth Tent No. 1, and will hereafter be known under the latter name. This added forty-nine members to Duluth tent, giving it a total of 168. This ceremony was accomplished at the King block, and afterward a banquet was held, and the Oriental degree conferred.

The Maccabees are very strong in Duluth, in fact the lodges here are stronger than anywhere else in the Northwest.

COLLIDED

Both Vessels Badly Damaged and the Choctaw Ran to Shore.

The Strike at the Globe Iron Company's Shipyards Has Ended.

Sault St. Marie, Mich., May 20.—The steamer L. C. Waldo, Capt. John Puddleson, down-bound with ore, and the steamer Choctaw, Capt. John Ward, up-bound light, collided off Spry's lumber dock at the Sault just at break of day. The Waldo struck the Choctaw exactly amidships on the starboard side, cutting a hole about ten feet long from the deck to the bilge. As soon as possible the captain of the Choctaw headed his boat for shore and got her into shoal water. Her stern lies in about fifteen feet and her bow is clear out of the water.

The Waldo lies at Spry's dock with her collision bulkhead full of water, but is floating. She is drawing about fifteen feet. Her bow is broken and twisted from port to starboard from ten feet from the top to below the water line, and several plates are cracked and warped on the port side. Both boats were running under check at the time of the collision, and neither master will make a statement as to the cause of the accident. The Choctaw was headed for the American lock. The current is very swift at this point.

The Waldo will have to lighter about one foot to get over the Encampment. The Waldo is on her first season. She is owned by the Roby Transportation company, of Detroit. The Choctaw is owned in Cleveland, with W. D. Rees as managing owner.

THE STRIKE ENDED.

Cleveland, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—One thousand men who have been idle for the past ten days, as a result of the strike at the shipyards of the Globe Iron company, returned to work today. The company submitted a proposition offering a substantial advance in wages, and after a long and heated discussion the men voted by a small majority to return to work on condition that all hands were taken back.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

Trooping of the Colors Observed With Pomp.

London, May 20.—The official celebration of the queen's birthday, which occurs Sunday, took place today throughout the country and the empire in general. On the parade ground of the horse guards there was the usual attractive ceremony of trooping the colors, and it was witnessed by a large crowd of distinguished people, including the prince and princess of Wales, the duke and duchess of York, Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, the duke of Cambridge, Prince Charles of Denmark and the commander-in-chief, Lord Wolseley.

Her majesty was born May 24, 1819. The attractiveness of the trooping of the colors here, however, was marred by some lively rain showers. There were the usual queen's birthday observances at all the garrison towns and naval stations.

Jealousy the Cause.

On Sunday morning the good people of Duluth were advised through the columns of the News Tribune that strawberries would be very plentiful this week. All of which have come true, and they are offered by your grocers at such low prices it will not pay you to take any chances by waiting for them to get cheaper. This fruit is coming direct in car lots from one of the garden spots of the United States, Arkansas and Missouri. Get your strawberries to put up now for winter, before the hot weather arrives. In shipping berries during warm weather it is very injurious to their flavor. If you wait for Doolittle & Cheap John's 5-cent berries the chances are you will get left. Fitzsimmons-Derring company.

MURDERERS FOUND GUILTY.

Paris, Texas, May 20.—The shanty boat murder cases, in which Silas Lee and Hickman Freeman are charged with killing Ed T. Canady, Jeff Maddox and Paul C. Applegate on Red river near Arthur City on the night of Nov. 13, 1895, were given to the jury yesterday afternoon. A verdict was returned finding both men guilty on five counts. The men made an effort to escape while being guarded from the jail to the court room yesterday morning. Their attorneys filed a motion for a new trial.

JUST A LITTLE CYCLONE.

Wichita, Kas., May 20.—Reports from the town of Rock, in Cowley county, where five houses were demolished by a cyclone late yesterday are to the effect that no one was killed, but it is believed that nobody was seriously injured. Nothing further has been received from the town except the statement that there were no fatalities.

Never afraid, never hesitating, to take a loss

when we have too many of any line of goods. This is the foundation and superstructure of Duluth's Glass Block Store.

ADVERTISING THAT DON'T DISAPPOINT! There never was a time when so many people are reading our advertisements as now, simply because the people have found out that our advertising is straightforward, reliable, helpful and truthful. There are stores where you feel you must depend on your own judgment, and not upon what is told you. There are stores where you know the qualities and prices of the goods will be misrepresented—and there are other stores where you know you can depend on everything that is said to you. The Glass Block is one of this class.

For Three Days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday

WE MAKE DEEP CUTS, THE KNIFE GOES RIGHT TO THE BONE—IN FOUR GREAT DEPARTMENTS.

BOOTS AND SHOES, GENTS' FURNISHINGS, GLOVES, CARPETS AND UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

We only tell you plain unvarnished facts when we say that the bulk of the goods advertised net us a loss of from 50 to 60 per cent. This simply means that you can buy them at about 75c per cent less than the usual retail prices. Think of it, ponder over it; read our ad. carefully, but above all, profit by it. Come to the Glass Block Thursday if you can; if not, Friday or Saturday, and get the ocular proof.

Shoe Dept.

Never was such a house-cleaning, or rather stock-cleaning inaugurated by any mercantile house in the Northwest. Read carefully what we have to offer, and if in any instance you find us exaggerating the former price in giving the comparison between present and former prices, you can have a pair for nothing. "Is that a fair proposition."

MISSIONARIES ABUSED.

Chinese Hoodlums Pelt Them With Stones.

Victoria, May 20.—The steamer Almore, arriving from the Orient last night, brought advices of an anti-missionary outrage at Tai Chau, China. Two English missionaries named Ferguson and Walker were the victims. Proceeding by boat from Shanghai to Chen Kiang, they arrived at Tai Chau on April 13. While awaiting the return of a messenger, whom they had sent with their cards and passports to the residence of the chief local official, they were attacked by a mob that bombarded them vigorously with stones. The two missionaries, finding the situation intolerable, left the shelter of a cabin, and attempted to pull the anchor and shove their boat in the stream, the crew having fled beyond the range of the missiles.

During this operation the stone throwing became more vigorous than ever, and a shot struck Walker, the bullet passing through Mr. Ferguson's left hand. At last the boat was got off, and being rejoined by its crew, dropped down the stream. The boat became again the target for a cloud of missiles as it passed a narrow part of the channel, but no serious injury was inflicted. An officer and ten soldiers arrived on the scene while the outrage was going on, but their presence had little if any effect in quieting the rioters.

MAY FESTIVAL.

Opened in Cincinnati With Much Pleasure.

Cincinnati, May 20.—The May festival is on in its full glory. Last night's opening performance is the topic of all conversation today. Praises of the new hall, mingled with, now and then, a modified regret at the loss of the classic grandeur of its predecessor, are echoed in all the newspapers. But certainly no fairer scene was ever witnessed in a public assemblage here than afforded by the audience, chorus, orchestra and soloists, with the brilliant environments of the new hall, with its lovely fresco and abundance of electric lights.

The financial success seems to be already established. Tonight the modern oratorio of St. Francis, by Edgar Tinal, fills the entire program, and introduces Mme. Henson and Messrs. Ben Davies, Hamlin E. Davies, Greene Mills, chorus, orchestra and organ.

HAWAIIAN BONDS PLACED.

Liverpool, May 20.—Among the passengers sailing today on board the White Star line steamship Majestic for New York is Mr. McFarlane, who has succeeded in placing in London the Hawaii mortgage bonds of the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar company, of San Francisco, owners of Spreckels' plant in Hawaii. The bonds were placed through McFarlane, and the syndicate which voted the loan of 1887. They amount to $750,000, and bear interest at 5½ per cent. London stock quotation for them has been applied for.

AMERICAN MISSION SACKED.

Shanghai, May 20.—Details received in regard to the anti-missionary riots at Kiang Yin, on May 12, during which a mission was looted, show that the disturbance was caused by the admission of a native child to the hospital. This caused the assembling of a mob, which demanded the child, and upon refusal of the missionaries to give it up, the infuriated crowd wrecked the mission buildings, which, it is added, were American property, and not the property of the British missionaries. The missionaries, however, escaped.

FISHERIES SOCIETY MEETS.

New York, May 20.—The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Fisheries society, which is composed of members of the fisheries commissions of the various states began today at the aquarium in Battery park. When President D. D. Huntington called the meeting to order there were among those present, H. B. Mansfield, United States navy; Hershel Whitaker, of Detroit; Seymour Bower, superintendent of the Michigan fisheries commission, and Dr. Rushwood, of Philadelphia, and J. E. Gunckell, of Toledo. The first work of the day was the appointing of committees to audit the accounts of the treasurer, and to select a place for next year's meeting.

WALLACE IS WEAKER.

New York, May 20.—Ex-United States Senator William A. Wallace, who was stricken with apoplexy three months ago and lapsed into unconsciousness twenty-one days ago, was said today to be growing weaker.

GOLD SHIPMENTS.

BAPTISTS MEET.

Publication Society Assembled in New Jersey.

Asbury, N. J., May 20.—The seventy-second anniversary of the American Baptist Publication society began today in the auditorium. This will occupy two days. The session opened with devotional services after which President Samuel A. C. Craser, of Pennsylvania delivered the address. In the report of the board of managers reference was made to the death of Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, first vice president of the society. The destruction of the building of the society at 1420 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, on Feb. 2, was also alluded to. The report said that a new building costing $400,000 is to be erected on the site of the burned structure. Receipts from all sources were $558,500 against 532,763, the previous year.

Dr. W. A. Bradley, Conner-Lafayette Park, next delivered an address of welcome. He was followed by the Rev. W. M. Lawrence, of Chicago, with an address concerning "International Literature and Its Distribution." This ended the morning session.

At the afternoon session there was a "young people's hour" in charge of the Baptist Young People's Union of America. Rev. W. G. Pardridge, of Cincinnati, followed with an address on "The Sunday School Considered in Its Relation to the Kingdom of Christ." Rev. W. W. Main, of Massachusetts, spoke on "The Requisites to Greater Efficiency in Sunday School Work." These requisites, in Mr. Main's opinion were a higher appreciation of the work by the church, as shown in attendance, teaching and furnishing accommodations and adequate supplies; also appreciation of the work by the superintendent, who must be no figurehead, but one truly consecrated to his service, and appreciation of the work by the teachers, who must be a man with a mission. The work must be systematic. Larger classes, graded and the normal classes as well as the cultivation of new fields are earnestly recommended. Rev. C. A. Stakley, D.D., of Washington, discussed "Sunday School Literature." The election of officers will be held late this afternoon.

IRON WORKERS.

Wage Scale Will Be Presented This Evening.

Detroit, May 20.—The second day's session of the convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers opened with an attendance of 200. The entire day is devoted to matters brought up by the representatives, largely of a nature pertaining to their particular unions, and to proposed changes in the constitution and by-laws.

The one thing on which nearly the whole work of the convention hangs, the wage scale, has been completed by the committee in Pittsburg, and is expected here this evening. The delegates will, it is said, instruct its conference committee to accept no reduction in the 1895-96 scale, and as far as can be learned there will be a slight advance in two departments.

RUBBER CONCERN IN DIFFICULTY.

New York, May 20.—Dresser & Goodridge, of this city, have attached the Goodridge Rubber company, of Newport, R. I., for $168,000. The Goodridge Rubber company is a New Jersey corporation, doing a manufacturing business at Newport. Dresser & Goodridge have from time to time made advances of money and these advances got so large that it was found necessary to curtail them. Examination of the rubber company's affairs showed that it was unable to meet its liabilities and the New York firm attached it for damages of $168,000, although the cash advanced will foot up about $120,000.

CALIFORNIA'S HARBOR QUARREL.

Washington, May 20.—The conferees on the river and harbor bill have decided to report a disagreement on the Santa Monica and San Pedro deep water harbor amendment. The contention of the house is that in case the commission provided for in the senate amendment should report in favor of San Pedro, it would give that place two large contracts. It is claimed by the house conferees that the commission should report to congress. All other items have been agreed to.

CUT HIS WIFE'S THROAT.

Watertown, N. Y., May 20.—James Conroy, of Ogdensburg, murdered his wife today, cutting her head nearly off with a knife.

WILL CONFER WITH MORTON.

Albany, N. Y., May 20.—Ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, State Senator Joseph Mullin, Speaker Hamilton Fish and James M. E. O'Grady, of Rochester, arrived here today for a conference with Governor Morton.

A FAST WELSHMAN.

Paris, May 20.—"Tom" Linton, a Welshman beat the bicycle record from the fifth mile upwards here yesterday covering thirty miles within an hour.

FOR YOUR PROTECTION.

Catarrh "cures" in liquid form to be taken internally usually contain either mercury or iodide of potassa, or both, which are injurious if too long taken. Catarrh is a local, not a blood disease, caused by sudden change to cold and damp weather. It starts in the nasal passages. Cold in the head causes excessive flow of mucus, and, if repeatedly neglected, the results of catarrh will follow, and oftentimes an offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles, and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug.

GROWING

Associated Press Holds Its Annual Meeting in Chicago Today.

Receipts Over Expenditures More Than Doubled In Their Amount.

Large Increase in the Number of Stockholders and Memberships.

Chicago, May 20.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Associated Press held this afternoon, 749 of the 1009 shares of stock were represented.

The report of the board of directors for the year ending December 31, 1895, showed that the membership had grown from 381 to 418 and the stock holders had increased from 124 to 138. The present membership is 458 and the number of stock holders is 140. The finances has been brought to a most satisfactory condition. The revenues had been steadily maintained at their maximum while the expenses had been reduced.

The monthly margin of excess of receipts over expenditures had not only been maintained since the last quarter of 1895, but had more than doubled in amount. As a result a dividend of 10 per cent of the principal of the advances on the guarantee fund had been paid. The board congratulated the membership on the great progress made during the year toward the accomplishment of the original and proper purpose of the Associated Press—the control and administration of the news gathering and distributing business of the country by the newspapers of the country.

MORGAN'S RESOLUTION.

Will Be Shelved to Await Department Action.

Washington, May 20.—Senator Morgan's joint Cuban resolution again engaged the attention of the senate committee on foreign relations today, but action was again postponed. The committee is considering the question in the light of the recent occurrences in Cuba involving American citizens, and in order to act intelligently feel that it is necessary to have all the information obtainable on the subject, especially that bearing upon the recent construction of the treaty of 1795, and the protocol.

They have, therefore, decided not to act until the state department can be communicated with. Senator Morgan entered a protest today against this course of proceeding, contending for independent action by congress, and urging that the state department could have very little or no information which was not already in possession of the committee.

BATTLE FOR WEALTH.

Famous Holt Will Case Proceeding at Washington.

Washington, May 20.—The legal battle over the estate of the late Judge Advocate General Holt is now fairly on and the developments already mark it as one of the most remarkable will cases ever tried in the District of Columbia. Several more witnesses were produced today in the effort to establish the authenticity of the alleged will. After Butler, one of Holt's counsel had identified the writing as Judge Holt's, Representative Hitt, of Illinois, took the stand. He said he had known Judge Holt for many years and believed, though he was not certain, that the document bore his handwriting.

Attorney Wilson, for the heirs-at-law, asked the witness if there were any characteristics of Judge Holt in the composition of the alleged document. This move brought out a strong protest from opposing counsel. They contended that the testimony was not competent, and the objection was sustained by Judge Bradley, who ruled that the question trenched too largely on the territory of the jury. Mr. Hitt then went on to testify that the late judge advocate's handwriting was variable, but had certain characteristics which gave it many individuality. Other witnesses gave similar testimony.

HESSIAN FLY RAVAGES.

Detroit, May 20.—Reports of the destruction of growing wheat by the Hessian fly continue more alarming. The insects have made the heaviest ravages in the wheat prairie of the wheat growing regions in Southern Michigan, but the operations extend over the whole peninsula. It is estimated that at least half of the crop will be destroyed.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Berlin, May 20.—A dispatch from Bingenbruck, near Bingen-on-the-Rhine, announces that the boiler of a tug exploded there today, sinking two barges, killing eight people and injuring many others.

A MOTORMAN HURT.

Milwaukee, May 20.—The street railway strike is sullenly continuing the warfare and boycott against the railway company. The failure of the negotiations of the citizens' committe yesterday has had no apparent effect, except perhaps to increase the bitterness in the minds of the more excitable. Today a motorman named Shepar was struck in the head by a stone and very seriously injured. He was operating a car when the missile was thrown.

INGERSOLL IN HELL.

An enterprising Brooklyn artist named Perhaes, of the most pronounced realistic school, has pictured Col. Ingersoll gazing at the throngs of agonized victims as they pass the bark of the grim ferryman, Charon, into the pits of hell, says the Kansas City Star.

Curiously enough, the great agnostic has given his sanction to the painting of the picture in the following letter, written by his secretary:

Mr. Ingersoll has no objection to your calling your proposed picture 'Ingersoll Riding Through Inferno,' or 'Ingersoll in the Drawing Rooms of Hell.' You can get the photograph from C. P. Farrell, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y."

The picture shows a rocky cliff overlooking the mouth of a fierce chasm, from which flames of indescribable fierceness vomit forth. Ingersoll and his guide, Mephisto, prince of darkness, stand gazing at the guilty ones as they are hurried to the place of torment. Every face is distorted with horror. Far up the cliffs myriads can be seen, hurried along to eternal damnation.

Col. Ingersoll gazes on, draped in the toga of the ancient Rome. Satan points out to him some wretch whose sufferings seem more intense than those of his fellows.

AMERICAN CITIES.

European Capitals Are Outstripping Them Greatly

Perhaps the most striking fact to the ordinary American reader of all that Mr. Shaw presents is that European cities have recently been increasing their population at a more rapid rate than those of this country, says Nation. We are so much in the habit of expatiating on our wonderful progress as to make it startling to be told that since 1870 Berlin has overtaken and passed New York; that in fifty years Philadelphia has gained 500,000 souls, while Berlin has gained 1,000,000; that in 1875 Hamburg and Boston had nearly the same number of inhabitants, while in 1890 Hamburg had almost 570,000 to 448,000 in Boston, and that during this period Hamburg's population had increased at twice the rate of that of Baltimore. Leipsic has distanced St. Louis and San Francisco; Cologne has in the last decade surpassed Cleveland, Buffalo and Pittsburg.

So, if we compare Munich and Breslau and Dresden and Magdeburg with American towns of corresponding size—Detroit, Milwaukee, Louisville, Albany, Rochester and even Minneapolis—we find that the foreign cities have grown almost without exception faster than our own. Even Nuremburg, which we associate with the middle ages, increased its population between 1880-90 from less than 100,000 to 142,000, while Providence grew only from 105,000 to 132,000. In some cases, Mr. Shaw observes, the annexation of territory affects these comparisons, but these cases probably offset each other. Moreover, if we take in the smaller towns, the general result is the same, and if we were to bring the comparisons down to 1895 it would be even more favorable to the German towns.

It is quite evident that the plea of infancy, which we have perhaps been caught to make too much of by the protectionists, is no longer available to our cities. As a matter of fact, with the exception of an ancient core, the ordinary German city is newer than the American. If the foreign towns have surpassed our own in the quality of their development, we cannot longer excuse ourselves on the ground of youth, nor can we escape the conclusion that our own backwardness is due not to any parsimony in public expenditure, but to lack of intelligence and honesty of our governments.

CURVES AND STREET CARS.

Various plans have been proposed to obviate the slipping of street cars on curves, says the Boston Herald, the resulting friction, and resistance, ordinarily, adding to the amount of power otherwise required to haul the load, the idea formerly suggested of leaving the wheels free to turn on the axle, somewhat as do those of a wagon proving entirely wide of the mark. The most recent solution of the difficulty, as proposed by Francis Blanding, of Putnam, Conn., consists in securing the wheels to the axle, as now, but with the latter cut in two in the middle, so as to allow unequal rotation of the halves. The flange would keep each wheel from getting too far away from its mate, and, to prevent the inner ends of the severed axle from wearing each other down, each section has fastened to it a stout collar, the latter abutting against a sleve inclosing the middle portion of the axle.

LOST FOR TWENTY-NINE YEARS.

In the mail delivered at his West Philadelphia residence the other day, William May, the well-known ship chandler, received a most remarkable document. It was an invitation to his own wedding, which occurred in 1867, and where the missive has been during the intervening twenty-nine years is a matter of no little mystery. It was addressed to a friend of former years, who then resided at 333 Wharton street, and considering its age the envelope is in a very good state of preservation, although completely covered with hieroglyphics added by postal officials. The invitation card, while yellow with age gives little evidence of its twenty-nine years of strange existence.

On reading and filing the petition of Barbara Frerker, guardian of the estate of said minor, setting forth that no personal estate has come into her hands as such guardian; the amount of debts, as far as the same can be ascertained, which are an existing lien upon the estate of said ward; and a description of the tracts of land of said ward which it is proposed to mortgage; and praying that license be to her granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

Ordered the Matter Referred to the Next Grand Jury.

Case Against William Craig Continued to the Next Term.

Judge Morris this morning sustained a demurrer to the indictmen: against John H. Brigham and ordered the matter referred to the next grand jury. C. O. Baldwin appeared for Brigham and argued that the indictment was generally vague, incompetent and uncertain. For instance, it did not by any means leave clear whether the $500 received by Brigham was a loan or a payment, and whether the transfer of the land was as security or an outright sale.

Judge Morris held that such an indictment would be very unsatisfactory as a basis for proof, and he sustained the demurrer.

This morning the county attorney consented to nolle prosequi the Tinkham case, and an order to that effect was entered, it being understood that on the grounds argued yesterday the court would instruct a verdict for the defendant. The county attorney wished it understood that this measure was consented to to save the expense of a useless trial.

The case against William Craig for manslaughter in the third degree was again continued on motion of the defendant. The county attorney stated to the court that the grounds for continuance had been presented to him, that they were perfectly satisfactory and that he would consent to a further continuance. The grounds were not presented, but the continuance was entered.

Yesterday afternoon the jury found John E. A. Behning guilty of uttering a forged instrument. Samuel D. Lisbon, the alleged directory swindler, withdrew his demurrer, entered a plea of not guilty and will stand trial. This morning Judge Morris was hearing the case against J. W. Fowler, the West End undertaker, for assault with intent to commit rape. Mary Miller, the complaining witness, told her story yesterday afternoon, and she was cross-examined this morning by Fowler's attorney, M. H. Crocker. During this time the room was cleared of the usual crowd of people whose tastes impel them to attend trials of this kind.

Judge Moer at noon was still hearing the case of Lieberman & Co. against the receiver of the Spalding hotel to recover $1000 for alleged damages to stock caused by leakages from water pipes in the hotel.

LAKEWOOD THE BEST.

Mayor is Sure the Water is Pure There.

"I feel sure that we will have pure water from Lakewood," said the mayor today. "While I favored an examination of Minnesota Point, and I believe that, if found practicable, we could secure a supply at much less cost than from Lakewood, still what we want by all means is pure wataer. If it should have been found that pure water could be secured from Minnesota Point, it would have taken a long time to convince people of that fact, and we cannot afford to wait. When we get the Brett suit disposed of, I am satisfied we can readily dispose of our bonds and the work pushed through without any more annoying delay. Of course, as the city grows, we may have to extend the intake or go further up the lake."

Duluth lawns in the warm summer months to come will need lots of water to make them fresh and beautiful and among the very best appliances for this purpose are sprinklers manufactured by the E. Stebbins Manufacturing company, at Springfield, Mass., and which are coming into general use in this vicinity. The advertisement of this house appears elsewhere in this issue, and the "Turn Comet" and "Little Giant" are two famous water disseminators that will last a lifetime and do good service.

WILL EXAMINE IT.

Gas and Water Company Will Inspect the Intake.

Messrs. A. W. and O. C. Hartman and C. E. Van Bergen, of the Duluth Gas and Water company called on the mayor this morning in regard to an examination of the intake pipe of the Duluth Gas & Water company's plant. They informed the mayor that an effort had been made to have the pipe examined before this time, but the work had been delayed by the absence of Capt. Inman. A. W. Hartman said that they had decided not to await the return of the captain from Isle Royale, where he is engaged in getting up the cargo of copper lost from the Centurion and had engaged the Singer company to perform the service.

A thorough examination will be made from the mouth of the intake to the well. The well itself, it was stated, is in perfect condition.

The mayor said today, in regard to the sample of water exhibited at the council meeting, that while it was taken at the end of the intake, Inspector Smith had had no way of determining whether the sample was procured from the level of the mouth of the pipe or at a higher or lower level. Hence, the sample was not conclusive as to the condition of the water taken at the end of the pipe.

PITTSBURG'S CROOKED OFFICIALS.

Pittsburg, May 20.—The city auditors have completed their examination of the accounts of the city attorney's office and have found that the amount of money handled by Maj. W. O. Moreland and W. H. House, his assistant, during the years 1892 to 1895, for which their accounts show no credit, is $125,000. The books were badly kept and therefore the figures only show what the auditors were able to make out of them. The actual shortage may be much more or less than the figures given.

HORRORS

Eight Men Entombed in Ashland Mine at Ironwood, Mich.

Gasoline Explosion in Coffeyville, Kansas, Kills One and Wounds Many.

Buffalo, May 21.—The 4-story brick building 8 to 10 Seneca street, part of it forming a portion of the Brown building recently vacated by the Western Union Telegraph company, collapsed today while a large number of men were at work in the building remodelling it. The falling walls went down upon a couple of smaller brick buildings adjoining on the east side and practically demolished them. Schnertz barber shop next door to the falling building was crushed as if it had been an egg shell. It was full of barbers and customers at the time.

Quickly responding to an alarm a force of firemen went to work to clear away the ruins. Their rush was quickened by the agonizing cries of men beneath the walls. The walls on the west, north and south sides stood nearly intact. The front wall having fallen out gave the ruins the appearance of a hollow square. From the third story of the wrecked portion of the building, an immense piece of ceiling and floor seemed to hang above the heads of the rescuing party. The wall of the south side had broken at the top and a portion of it had been carried away by the roof as it caved in. This wall from the second story up to what had been the third stood unsupported and was regarded as the chief danger to the rescuers and those still beneath the ruins.

After twenty minutes of hard work the firemen reached and extricated one of the victims, mangled and bleeding, but still alive. He was taken away in an ambulance. A little later, directed by groans proceeding from a mass of beams, lath, brick and plaster the firemen reached a second sufferer. He was a young man. Though he had been under ten feet of debris he was able to stand when once he was extricated. He is not dangerously hurt. He is Robert Caster, a steamfitter, who was in the cellar and heard the first cracking warning of the impending ruin. He looked up and saw the rafters and joisting give way. He sprang quickly into the part of the cellar that is under the sidewalk. A moment later the whole structure was about his ears. He was tightly pinned in, although he could breathe easily. He said there were two steamfitters and two helpers in the cellar and he did not see them as the building fell. He thinks they may have escaped injury as they were in another part of the cellar.

Up to noon only one of the dead had been recovered, though it is believed that there are ten or twelve. George Metz, the man who was first discovered by the firemen died on the way to the hospital. Following is a list of the injured as far as is known:

S. L. Hawkes, a carpenter, address unknown, married, severely bruised and cut about the body, not seriously injured.

James Adams, 77 Chandler street, a carpenter, severely bruised, cut and injured internally. Has a wife and one child.

Michael O'Brien, a carpenter, living at 235 James street, his back is broken. Is a married man and has four children.

Missing: Miss Jennie Griffin, cashier in Jones' barber shop, is buried beneath the ruins. Herman J. Schintsek, one of the barbers who escaped uninjured, said that as he was rushing out of the shop he saw the walls and debris fall upon her. Nothing has been heard of her, and the firemen are working hard at the ruins to learn the truth of the rumor.

Another body—that of a man—was recovered after several hours' labor by the firemen. His name is not known. Peter Straub, contractor, William Kuppinger, internally injured; — Fullmeyer, workman, internally injured, have been recovered. Straub, Fullmeyer and Kuppinger were workmen and were pinioned down by beams and bricks. The extent of their injuries is not known. All of Schnertz' employes now, except the woman cashier, have been accounted for. Seventy-five men are working at the pile of debris.

An iron column has been found in the debris which is so full of sand holes that it can be crushed with little effort. The district attorney has taken some of it for use before the grand jury. At the hospitals the surgeons say that all the injured whose names are given above will recover.

KANSAS EXPLOSION.

Kills One and Fatally or Seriously Injures Fifteen.

Kansas City, Mo., May 21.—A special to the Star from Coffeyville, Kan., says: A gas explosion this morning wrecked a 2-story brick building in the center of the city causing the instant death of one man, the fatal injury of two other persons and the wounding, more or less seriously, of thirteen others. The killed and injured follow:

David Carter, killed by falling walls.

Fatally injured: Mat Atkinson and Eliza Pursley, both colored. More or less seriously injured: Dot Irving, Maud Young, A. S. Maxwell, Mrs. P. K. Smith, Mrs. Morris, Kate Morris, daughter of above; Logan Eshom, John Wilson, Joe Short, William Kime, William Stuckey, the others names not given. Several others were in the building but escaped unhurt.

The explosion occurred at 8 o'clock and was caused by the careless igniting of a match in the basement where gas had accumulated from a neighboring gas well. Several men were in the basement at the time and about two score other people were scattered throughout different portions of the building. A terrific explosion followed completely wrecking the buildings which adjoined each other closely and hurling the occupants in every direction.

The fire department and hundreds of citizens were soon on the scene and immediately began the work of rescue. The wildest excitement prevailed, and for a time it was feared the death list would prove appalling. Fortunately, however, but one person was killed outright. The injured were quickly extricated from the debris and carried to places of safety, and all possible will be done for them. The search is still going on for fear some may yet be in the ruins, as the exact number of those in the buildings is not known. The destruction wrought by the explosion was complete and the wonder is that everyone in the building was not killed.

BURIED ALIVE.

Eight Men Imprisoned in a Michigan Mine.

St. Paul, May 21.—An Ironwood, Mich., special to the Dispatch says: Eight men were buried alive in an immense cave-in at the Ashland mine in this city this morning. Their names are:

Ed Ogle,
Paul Nichols,
Peter Moran,
Ed Van,
Gus Beckman,
John Helman,
John Collins,
Peter Guera.

The first six are miners, and the other two timbermen. The men were working in No. 7 shaft, drifting on the third level, about 300 feet from the surface, when the cave-in occurred, at about 5 o'clock this morning. Capt. Thomas Williams, who was working near, heard the fall and rushed to the scene. At that time no great amount of ground had fallen, and Mr. Williams was able to communicate with the imprisoned men. They were all unharmed and in a safe place, and said that with aid and a rope they could be rescued.

Capt. Williams went for help, but before he returned another large piece of ground fell and it was impossible to reach the men. It is still possible to communicate with them, however, by signals, and it is known that at least part of them are alive. The shaft in which the accident occurred is on the line between the Ashland and Norrie mines, and large crews of men are at work in both mines, drifting toward the imprisoned men, in the hope of rescuing them alive. This is the first mine accident of any magnitude here for a number of years, and intense excitement prevails throughout the city.

Later—The eight miners who were imprisoned in the Ashland mine have all been rescued by miners who drifted through to them from the Norrie mine. All were uninjured

METHODIST DOINGS.

Gov. Bushnell Visits the Big Cleveland Conference.

Cleveland, O., May 21.—Bright and early this morning Governor Bushnell came to the Methodist Episcopal conference, and his entrance was greeted with applause. Bishop Merrill, who was presiding, presented him to the conference. The consecration of bishops was set for Thursday next at 11 a. m., and the services will be held in the armory, where the daily sessions of the conference are held. The officials of Epworth Memorial church tendered the use of that structure, but it was declined with thanks, as the armory will seat more persons.

The first ballot of the day for third secretary of the Missionary society was announced. The entire vote was 482. The result was: Hamilton, 180; Smith, 155; Brodbeck, 99; Baldwin, 48. Dr. Emory Miller attempted to secure a suspension of the rules in order to reconsider the vote by which pastors are required to secure the consent of the presiding elder to secure the services of an evangelist other than the conference evangelist. It was this action which created the intense feeling between pastors and elders, and this was an attempt to strike that feature out. The motion was very promptly voted down, as there are 170 presiding elders and but seventy-nine pastors in the conference, and the attempt was lost.

The fourth ballot for third missionary secretary resulted in no election. In all 500 votes were cast, making 251 necessary to a choice. The result was as follows: Smith, 211; Hamilton, 208; Brodbeck, 50; Baldwin, 20. For corresponding secretary of the Church Extension society, Dr. A. J. Kynett and Dr. W. A. Spencer were re-elected on the first ballot. In all 494 votes were cast making 248 necessary to a choice. Dr. Kynett received 395 and Dr. Spencer 391. On the fifth ballot Dr. Smith was elected as third secretary of the missionary society. The total vote was 509, making 255 necessary to a choice. Dr. Smith received 291 and Dr. Hamilton 205.

EMBASSIES SATISFIED.

Turkish Government Pays the Indemnity Asked For.

Constantinople, May 21.—The British, French and Russian embassies here have each received checks of £10,000, as indemnity for the outrages at Jiddah in May last, when the British consul and vice consul, the Russian acting consul and the French consular secretary were attacked and shot by Bedouins outside the town. The British consul, W. H. Richardson, was badly wounded; Mr. J. Brandt, the Russian consul, had his jaw broken and his nose shot away, and M. D'Orville, the French consular secretary, was severely wounded.

The British vice consul died ten minutes after being shot, and while he lay on the ground the Bedouins continued to dive upon him and stabbed him with knives.

MOSCOW

Czar and Czarina Make Their Triumphal Entry into the City.

Thunder of Artillery and Clanging of Bells Greet Their Arrival.

Great Assemblage of Royal People and Distinguished Foreign Guests.

Moscow, May 21.—(Copyrighted 1896 by the Associated Press).—The czar and czarina made their triumphal entry into this city this afternoon amid the thunder of batteries of artillery, the clanging of countless bells and the cheers of a vast multitude of loyal Russians and equally enthusiastic visitors from all parts of the world. Probably never in the history of nations has there been such an assemblage of people Possibly the gorgeous scene may never be repeated in its grand entirety.

At 1 o'clock, in anticipation of the coming of the czar, the entire route from Petrovsky palace, about three miles on the road from St. Petersburg to the Kremlin, was so densely packed with people that movement, except on the outskirts of the immense crowds, was out of the question. From 7 o'clock in the morning the route to be followed by the procession had been guarded by troops, infantry, police on foot and on horseback, in uniform and in plain clothes, until the road may be said to have been lined by row after row, thickness after thickness, of blood and iron. The weather was delightfully fine, a great relief after the bitterly cold and damp experiences of the past ten dyas. The sunshine, however, had not had time to dry the muddy roads and streets, but the warmth was a great improvement and put everybody in a good humor.

The signal for the commencement of the day's movement was a salute of nine guns from a battery outside the city. This was followed by the dull booming of the big bell of the cathedral of the Assumption, and the assembling of the troops at their various mustering points. Then the countless high dignitaries of the empire, and of the foreign countries, began to gather at the Petrovsky palace, to take their places in the gala equipages or to escort on horseback the carriages of their imperial majesties. The grand dukes and grand duchesses, the princes and princesses, the Asiatic potentates, the innumerable representatives of every country under the sun, assembled here to do honor to the czar of all the Russias, the ruler of the mighty empire which half circles the globe.

Generals with their staffs, aide-de-camps riding at breakneck speed, orderlies galloping furiously were to be seen everywhere. The clash of arms resounded on all sides, and most impressive was the gathering of the hosts of the mighty emperor. At 2:30 p. m. there was a further thundering of the cannon, this time from the direction of the Petrovsky palace, and that living mass of men and women gave a sigh of relief, for it was the signal that the czar had started on his journey to the Kremlin.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Gold Men's Victory Provokes Much Bitterness.

St. Paul, May 21.—An Aberdeen, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: The final work of the Democratic state convention was to elect alternates to the Chicago convention as follows: Richard Malloy, of Union county; Dr. F. B. Smith, of Lincoln county; Dr. McKoy, of Duel county; I. W. Weeks, of Brule county; John McLaren, of Beadle county; Andrew Williams, of Potter county; Thomas McKinley, of Fall River county, and Edward McDonald, of Lawrence county. During the evening there were rumors of a bolt and a contesting delegation, but the silverites remained in the convention until adjournment.

A great deal of bitter feeling was engendered, and part of the silver following maintain that the party will be split in twain. A few of the silver delegates held an indignation meeting at the Sherman house early this morning, and threatened to send a contesting delegation because of the admission of so many proxies from the Black Hills. The efforts to that end, local silver men declare, were abortive and nothing regular was done. A few silver men now express regret that the silverites, who actually had about two-thirds of the delegates on the floor of the convention, did not walk out on the start and hold a convention of their own.

It is now stated that a contesting delegation was put up by a few rabid delegates, in the hope that silver will triumph at Chicago and they will be able to gain admission. Resident silver men were not invited to the caucus and are in ignorance of what was done, as the few in the deal left for home immediately after the meeting.

BUFFALO ROAD RACE.

Buffalo, May 21.—The list of entries for the Martin road race, which closed at midnight last night, had 193 names, to which will be added such names as were mailed yesterday. This will bring the total up to around 200. The entries include most of Buffalo's wheelmen, and a number of flyers from other cities.

FOR NASHVILLE'S CENTENNIAL.

Washington, May 21.—The war department has ordered four troops of cavalry and band from Jefferson barracks, Mo., six companies of infantry and band from Fort McPherson, Ga., and four companies of infantry from Fort Thomas, Ky., to proceed to Nashville, Tenn., to participate in the approaching centennial celebration at that place. They probably will be in command of Lieut. Col. Guy Henry.

THE NEW PROFESSIONALS.

Philadelphia, May 21.—The following bulletin has been issued by George D. Gideon, of the racing board of the L. A. W.: "Transferred to professional class. under clause A: H. F. Hendrickson, Omaha, own request; G. A. Madison, St. Paul, own request.

WILL BE CANCELLED.

Secretary Smith's Decision in a Land Contest.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Smith today affirmed Commissioner Lamoreux's decision against the defendants in the land case of John P. Kelly against James G. Forsythe and Charles Warren. The latter's homestead entry is held for cancellation.

RED RIVER FLOODS.

A Third of Wheat Crop Will Be Lost.

Minneapolis, May 21.—A staff correspondent of the Journal, who has been personally investigating the situation in the flooded counties of Minnesota and North Dakota bordering on the Red river, sends today an exhaustive report showing that conditions are very unfavorable for the wheat crop. Large areas are under water and farm work has been so badly delayed or entirely prevented that not more than 60 per cent of the usual acreage will bear wheat. The eight counties in question last year had a yield of 30,000,000 bushels, and this will be cut down at least 10,000,000.

As an instance of the condition of affairs, one can go in a row boat over the open prairie from Warren, Minn., forty miles north to Hallock, and it would be dangerous to venture with a wagon more than three miles from the Great Northern tracks between these points. The streets of most of the towns are flooded and impassable.

FIGHTING A BOYCOTT.

Milwaukee Merchants Unite Against Its Operation.

Milwaukee, May 21.—The business men of Milwaukee have revolted against the boycott incident to the street railway strike. This morning the commission merchants unitedly took the initiative in the movement by issuing the following manifesto:

"The undersigned, while expressing no opinion as to differences between the street railway company and its former employes, nevertheless emphatically assert our right and that of our families, employes and our patrons to transact business with such bankers, merchants, manufacturers and other persons and to patronize such public and private conveyances as may suit our convenience, and hereby give notice that we shall defend our rights in these matters by all lawful means."

BRIGGS' VACATION.

Has Not Rested in Twenty-Three Years.

New York, May 21.—In an interview today, the Rev. Charles A. Briggs, professor in Union theological seminary, says:

It is true that I am to have a long vacation. The seminary managers have decided to give me a year's rest from work. My vacation will not begin, however, until Jan. 1, 1897. In the meantime I will attend to my usual duties at the seminary."

Dr. Briggs said that his health was good, but he has had no vacation in twenty-three years. He will probably go to Europe. In this connection it is reported that the Union seminary directors have added Rev. Henry Preserved Smith to the faculty. Dr. Smith, like Dr. Briggs, has had trouble with the general assembly, it being charged that the teachings of both men have not been in accordance with the doctrines of the Presbyterian church.

BOTH FOUND GUILTY.

Two Murderers Fight When Verdict is Given.

London, May 21.—The trial of Henry Fowler and Albert Milson, laborers, charged with the murder of Mrs. Henry Smith at Muswell lodge, Muswell Hill, on the night of Feb. 15, a case which has attracted much attention, resulted today in sentence of death being pronounced upon both men. At the close of the trial there was a terrible fight in the dock between the two prisoners.

Both men are ex-convicts, and the crime was committed as a result of a burglarious entry into the residence of Mr. Smith, where the prisoners obtained considerable booty and were subsequently tracked and arrested very cleverly by the police.

ENGLISH YACHTING.

Season Opened Today With Fine Winds.

London, May 21.—The yachting season opened today with the matches of the new Thames Yacht club. The weather was bright and windy. The course for the big yachts was from Gravesend round the Mouse lightship and return, a total distance of fifty miles. The entries included the Satanita, the Alba and the Britannia. For yachts of the Niagara or twenty rater class, the course was around the West Oze, a distance of forty miles. The entries included the Niagara, C. D. Rose's new Penitent, especially built to compete with Howard Gould's yacht, and Frank Jameson's the Saint.

FOR UNIFORM CLASSIFICATION.

Washington, May 21.—The senate committee on interstate commerce today authorized the reporting of a bill from the uniform classification of freight rates, framed on lines recommended by the national board of trade. It will require the interstate commerce commission to prepare and publish a classification which shall apply to all sections of the country. The bill is intended to meet the complaint of shippers that the railroads in different parts of the country have different classifications, which renders it impossible to determine accurately in advance the cost of shipping.

ENGLISH HORSE RACE.

London, May 21.—Four horses started in the race for the city bowl, 100 sovereigns, at the spring meeting at Salisbury today. Sir Horace Farquahar's Nouveau Riche won; Sir J. Thursby's The Tartar was second, and Foxhall Keene's B. C. 3-year-old, by Donovan, was third.

Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church Meets at Saratoga.

Moderator Booth Delivers an Eloquent Sermon on Christian Union.

Counsels the Members to Take Steps to Heal All Divisions.

Saratoga, N. Y., May 21.—The 108th general assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church was opened here this morning at 11 in the First Presbyterian church where so many previous assemblies have met. Prayer was offered by Dr. William Durant, pastor of the church. The psalm was read by the Rev. William E. Carr, of Danville, Va., a colored commissioner, and the scripture lesson by the Rev. William S. Marquis, of Rock Island. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Joseph M. Gashen, of Kolhapur, India. The opening sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Robert Russell Booth, of New York, the retiring moderator, on the subject of "Christian union and denominational loyalty."

The text was taken from the gospel of St. John, 17:20 and 21. It was contended that the text considered and defined only the union of believers, and that it had to do simply with an established harmony of purpose and affection, oneness of sympathetic and accordant brotherhood. The text also stated the reason why unity was desired by Christ. It was also held that Christian union does not lie in the line of denominational agreement, or in the surrender of matured convictions on the part of one branch of the church to another. Union is not uniformity. In closing, Dr. Booth spoke of the misunderstandings and conflicts which have divided the church and hindered its work. He deprecated any work or act which might aggravate present troubles.

He said "On one hand there are charges of undue severity in the administration of discipline, coupled with a plea for liberty within certain limits, which up to this time have not been defined. On the other hand there is a fear or conviction that essential truths are at stake, and a belief that the church is contending for honor and life in the stand which she has recently taken in her of us this controversy has been inexpressibly painful and there can be no doubt that it has materially interfered with our financial prosperity. It adds to the painful necessity of the present condition that no real effort has hitherto been put forth to secure a removal of these misunderstandings by brotherly conference and arbitration of differences."

"It may be a dream, it may be a delusion," said the speaker, "but speaking as it were for the last time, in such a place of public authority, I appeal to the sound Christian sense of this venerable assembly to take some proper measures to ascertain what it is that divides us, and what is required for the abatement of strife and a reconciliation of parties at variance."

PRESBYTERIANS MEET.

Southern Brethren Hold an Assembly in Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., May 21.—The thirty-sixth general assembly of the Presbyterian church South, in the United States, convened in the First church, in this city, at 11 o'clock this morning. The opening sermon was delivered by the retiring moderator, Rev. Charles R. Hemphill, D.D., LL.D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Louisville, Ky., and professor in the Louisville theological seminary. Immediately after the sermon the assembly was called to order, and the roll of commissioners called.

The body will choose a moderator and two temporary clerks. If there was any canvassing being done yesterday or last night for the position of presiding officer, there was no evidence of it. Dr. James Woodrow is in the city, and is one of the commissioners. It is quite certain that his name will be placed before the body, and there will be others, but none of the commissioners would today venture to say who would be the presiding officer.

CINCINNATI'S MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Cincinnati, May 21.—As usual, the critics of the performance of the new oratorio of "Francis" last night disagreed. The poor chorus, whose members spent two years in rehearsal and one week in nightly performances, all without one cent of salary, are the victims of the severest censure. But they have their champions, and so the merry war goes on. The orchestra and two vocalists, Nordica and Plunkett Green, appear in the afternoon, and tonight "Samson and Delilah" is to be given, with Brema, Bendavies, F. Davies, Mills and Greene, soloists and chorus and orchestra. The weather is delightful.

THREE MEN LOST.

Boston, May 21.—Special to the Journal from Charlotte, Vt., says: Three men named Fenton, Meyers and Steady, who were at work at Cedar Beach, left that place Sunday for Essex, N. Y., in a small row boat with an improvised sail. They expected to return that evening and left Essex during a high wind when the lake was rough. They have not been seen since. The boat was found yesterday at Ballr's Bay, in Shelburne harbor, on the Vermont shore, with the rudder gone, one seat torn out and partly filled with sand. It is believed that all three men were lost.

MISSOURI RIVER IS HIGH.

Omaha, May 21.—The Missouri river continues to rise and if it continues to rise the danger point will be approached by tomorrow. It rose two feet last night and is gradually rising today. All streams on both sides of the river for 100 miles north are banks full and flood damage is imminent.

RIOTING

The British Missionaries Attacked and One Was Shot Through the Hand.

The Missionaries Finally Retreated With Their Boat From Tichu District.

British Consul at Ching Kiang Will Insist Upon Redress.

Vancouver, B. C., May 21.—The steamship Empress of India arrived from Hong Kong and Yokohama last night, bringing news of additional anti-missionary riots. Just before her departure details of an outrage on missionaries at Ching Kiang were received. Mr. Ferguson, of the British Foreign Bible society, and Mr. Walker, of the National Bible society, of Scotland, left Ching Kiang in their missionary house boat, the Shaftesbury, for the Tichu district.

The place had a bad reputation among foreigners, so the precaution was taken to notify the local officials through the British consul of the intended visit. When the boat arrived at Tichu, however, it was attacked by an immense crowd, and the crew, seeing the state of affairs, deserted. Ferguson and Walker tried to pacify the people, but without effect, and the mob, at the risk the former gentleman was shot through the hand, but fortunately the wound was not serious.

After some delay an official with ten soldiers appeared, but he was powerless, and the only thing to do was for the boat to gradually retreat, which she did, being followed for miles by the natives, who damaged her considerably. The disturbance was a local one, but for some time the missionaries were in great danger.

The matter is now in the hands of the British consul at Ching Kiang, who will insist upon immediate redress.

NEW KANSAS ROAD.

Which Will Have Many Good Connections.

Kansas City, May 21.—It is definitely announced that the financing of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting railway has been finished, and the actual construction of the railway will be pushed as quickly as construction contracts can be let. The railroad is a scheme for amalgamating the Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City and the Omaha & St. Louis lines. The new northern connecting road, to be pushed ahead now, picks up the Omaha & St. Louis at Pattonsburg, Mo., and the Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City at Trenton, Mo. Connection will probably be made with the Des Moines & Kansas City at Gainesville, Mo. Thus a new system is provided reaching directly from Kansas City to Omaha, Des Moines and Quincy.

The Baltimore & Ohio Southwest is now at Beardstown, Ill., and will be brought to Kansas City. This new system will create the first essentially Kansas City railroad north of the Missouri river. The joint promoters and owners of the new railways are the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust company, of Kansas City; the Brockels, of Philadelphia; Gilman & Co., of New York, and the European capitalists interested in the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust company. President A. E. Stillwell, of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas company, returned today from abroad, having interested foreign capital in the project.

A CLASSIFICATION GRANTED.

Denver, May 21.—The Western Classification company this evening acceded to the demand made by St. Joseph and St. Louis shippers, and referred the Denver grievances to the trans-Missouri committee, which meets tomorrow, and adjourned.

FAST HORSE SOLD.

St. Louis, May 21.—Pat Dunne has sold to Tom Ryan the Illinois horse owner, his fast 4-year-old, Free Advice, for $5000.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

FORTIFICATION BILL.

Over $10,000,000 Appropriated For Coast Defenses.

Washington, May 21.—The fortification bill, which passed the senate yesterday, appropriated the liberal sum of $10,765,888. After the committee on coast defenses concluded its investigations, the house committee on appropriations availed itself of the information obtained by the senate coast defense committee, and the house committee also followed up the investigations and concluded to appropriate the sum of $5,845,537. This was beyond all precedent; a new departure in the line of coast defenses, but the senate was not content with this, and after due consideration in the committee on appropriations, the senate increased the amount by $4,918,051.

Senator Squire was invited to sit with the senate committee on appropriations during their review of the subject, and the matters in question were so thoroughly considered in the committee that the main question of the importance of having this large appropriation made was conceded without objections in the senate, so that the fortification bill was passed unanimously.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Ives defeated Schaefer in the billiard tournament at Chicago last night by a score of 500 to 429.

South Dakota Democrats in their state convention yesterday declared for sound money by a vote of 224 to 167. The fight over the financial plank was warm and the platform endorses Cleveland.

Winners at St. Louis horse races yesterday were Astolfina, Muskallonge, Goshen, George P. Smith and Helena Belle.

Winners at Morris Park horse races yesterday were Tom Moore, Mabel, The Peer, Annie Bishop and Mirage.

The North American Milling company held its first annual meeting at Minneapolis yesterday at the West hotel. It was an executive session, but the participants deny that a flour trust has been formed or is in contemplation.

Phillip Allen, who was supposed to have died eight years ago, suddenly appeared at Pioneer, Mont., Saturday night and shot his wife who had married another man, and dashed away again. The woman lived long enough to tell who her murderer was. The governor has offered a reward of $300 for Allen's capture.

Sir Hercules Robinson, governor of Cape Colony, and Sir Graham Bower, imperial secretary, have sailed from Capt Town for England.

John Rutherford, Brady Rutherford and Joe Goodson were hanged yesterday at Brenham, Tex., for the murder of Thomas Dwyer. The trap fell at 2:10. They were pronounced dead in ten and one-half minutes. All died protesting their innocence.

The Northwestern Miller reports the flour output the last week at Minneapolis at 166,115 barrels, against 208,215 barrels for the corresponding week last year. The average miller cannot see any good side to the flour market.

William Taylor and William Dunlop, the men who are held in England on the charge of being implicated in the robbery of $90,000 worth of diamonds from I. Townsend Burden, of New York, in December last, have, it is said, decided to contest their extradition.

H. L. BRYANT DEAD.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 21.—Harry Lewis Bryant, a prominent resident of this city, is dead. He was born in Covington, Mass., in 1814. In 1833 he emigrated to Macomb, Ky., and commenced the practice of law. He occupied many important positions of trust both public and private in Illinois and Kentucky until 1886, when he moved to Los Angeles. Mr. Bryant was an intimate friend of President Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglass. He stumped the state with them and they made their headquarters at his house, in Fulton county. He was a cousin of William Cullen Bryant, being born in the same house and on the same day as the poet.

MISSOURI ARMY WORMS.

Columbus, Mo., May 21.—Reports from various parts of Missouri indicate that army worms are more numerous and more destructive than for years. In some localities the worms have devoured all the growing grain.

Labor Commission Bill Being Discussed By the House Today.

Phillips Makes an Earnest Plea For the Bill's Passage.

Washington, May 21.—The labor commission bill, being up before the house for consideration today, Representative Phillips, of Pennsylvania, spoke as follows regarding the measure:

"This bill calls attention to the fundamental principles of our government, the equality of men, and seeks a more equitable distribution of the burdens and benefits of our free government. While it is not the function of the state to guarantee individual happiness, it is its function to guarantee each individual the right to pursue happiness, and so enact laws that one class may not be compelled of necessity to work solely for another class, regardless of their personal comfort and improvement. This nation took the most advanced stand in civilization and is the best prepared to meet the industrial issues of today by building on the foundation it laid more than 100 years ago, by conforming law to its principles of right, freedom and equality; and thus organize our social and industrial system upon a more just and equitable basis than has yet been obtained in the world.

"The commission provided for by the bill," he continued, "is designed to give an impartial hearing to those who complain of discriminating laws and unequal burdens. It is expected that it will be composed of the ablest and best of each class named. The commission will being into conference representative men of labor, agriculture, manufacturing and business; thus bringing the aggrieved, and those against whom the grievance is made together, whose duty it will be to consider the disturbing causes, and recommend laws looking toward a more just distribution of the burdens and benefits of our free government. It is designed to be impartial, non-partisan, seeking exact facts and conditions, and to conform legislation to the foundation principles of our government; to place all men on an equal footing before the law.

"Philanthropy is one of the noblest traits of men, but it should be expended in teaching, in lifting up the race, in caring for the disabled, the suffering and the helpless; all that others require is an equal chance in the race of life with none to hinder and none to handicap. They require justice and not charity.

"Mr. Chairman, the rights of woman must be more fully recognized in the future than they have been in the past. She is constantly entering new fields and meeting their requirements with fidelity and ability. Her advancement in intellectual and moral pursuits is history. She is a power that is beginning to dominate all along the lines that lead to better the race. She has built and endowed more institutions of benevolence, of charity, for the relief of want and suffering, in the past fifty years than were established by both sexes in all preceding time. Yet, notwithstanding all this, many of her sex still feel it a sweet sacrifice to spend an unequal battle for child and home with avarice and greed. This blot on civilization must be removed, and women's rights and influence be recognized in any future movement for the betterment of our industrial system."

SECRETARY MORTON'S TRIP.

San Diego, Cal., May 21.—Secretary Morton arrived in this city last evening. He was given an informal reception by the chamber of commerce. In regard to the Santa Monica appropriation he declared it was utter folly for the government to expend even $1 in constructing an artificial harbor so near to San Pedro, a natural haven.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

A Great Northern engineer and two assistants have gone to Larimore to lay out the railroad yards and locate the new depot building that will be erected there. Considerable changing will be done at that point in the yards and other railroad property. The building will be two stories high, built of brick, and similar in appearance to the one here. It will be located about where the old one stood. Along with the talk of the new depot comes the rumor that the headquarters of the Dakota division will be located there as soon as the building is completed. Nothing official regarding such a move has yet been given out, but within a few months should an order come to move from Grand Forks to Larimore it would not be much of a surprise to the employes of the division here.

In all there have been about $142,000 of claims allowed against the North Dakota Milling association, Judge John M. Cochrane, of Grand Forks, who has been the attorney for the milling association as well as for the receiver, has for some time past been engaged making separate reports for each and every claim. These reports will be made to Receiver H. R. Lyon. As to all the claims that were brought against the insolvency association, while many were allowed, a goodly number were rejected. Separate reports are made in each case and are now ready to be presented to the reorganization committee, of which W. R. Merriam is chairman, when the sale of the property takes place.

The indictment for murder against Mrs. Lucinda Wadsworth, wife of Marcus Wadsworth, who was tried and acquitted at Bismarck last December for complicity in the same crime, was dismissed in the district court on motion of Gen. Hughes, attorney for the state, thus ending one of the most celebrated cases in the criminal annals of the Northwest. The Wadsworths now live at Medella, Minn.

An interesting case was argued before Judge Templeton at Grand Forks in which the First National bank, of Chicago, and William R. Day and Alice N. Chance are involved in the controversy. It appears that Alice Chance was the half owner of a valuable farm located near the village of Ardoch, in this state. She deeded it to William Day, as her assignee. The Chicago bank as plaintiffs attached the property after deed of assignment had been filed on the grounds that the deed was improperly or inartistically drawn, hence was void and fraudulent as against the creditors. The case was taken under advisement.

Chief Ryan induced two young ladies to return to their homes today. They were but little over 15 years of age, and left their homes about two weeks ago. They first went to Crookston, and lived a very rapid life among a certain class, and it was only a few days ago that they returned to Grand Forks. They rented a room on De Mers avenue, and it was there the chief located them. At first they objected to returning to their homes, but finally decided to do so. They would not do so, however, until the assurance was made by the parents that they would be supplied with good clothes, at all times. They made it very plain that if the clothes were not forthcoming they would again run away.

The weather for the past week has been cool and favorable to growing wheat, with several good showers well distributed at Lisbon. Wheat seeding in Ransom county is virtually finished, and the most of it well up and looking splendid. There is again a slight decreased acreage in wheat, and much seeded is on stubble land, where weeds in many cases are assuming the mastery. Taking all in all, the crops on well farmed land in the vicinity of Lisbon never looked better at this season of the year, and the heavy rains have been a great boon. Grass is excellent, and stocks are showing up in grand style.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The South Dakota Bankers' association is in annual session at Yankton to the number of forty, and representatives from Minneapolis, Chicago, Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Omaha and Sioux City are participating in the deliberations. An address was made bearing on the money question and this was a fierce arraignment of free silver by A. B. Wilcox, of the American Mortgage company, of Yankton. He denied that the depression of the country since 1892 was due to the discontinuance of silver coinage, and produced statistics bearing out his assertions. The bankers are all in favor of the gold standard, but have not yet adopted resolutions to that effect.

The Sioux Falls stone industry is starting up in good shape again. Recently thirty men were put to work in the quarries and they are turning out a considerable quantity of paving blocks. W. B. Holton, of Chicago, a well known contractor, arrived and made a deal for 100 carloads of the stone. Shipment will begin on Saturday. The blocks will be used in repairing the streets of Chicago, where at present there are more than five miles of Sioux Falls paving. Mr. Holton says that this is merely a starter and that large orders will come from there this summer.

Judge J. W. Jones, of Sioux Falls, who tried the Engle guardianship case for Judge Campbell at Aberdeen, has just found that George S. Engle is an unsuitable person to be guardian of his minor child, Urso, and that Mrs. Mary H. Yorks, with whom the child has lived the past two years is suitable and shall hereafter be guardian. Engle is loser on every point and will appeal to the supreme court.

Crop prospects are splendid throughout the Melette section of country. Small grains are coming on very rapidly notwithstanding an abundance of rain, and the lakes and streams are full. Farmers are busy planting corn. The acreage will exceed that of last year about one-fourth.

Several Indians on the Sisseton reservation near Wilmot have died from starvation, which, it is alleged, is due to the failure of the government to pay them what is due them. Over 2000 Indians are in bad shape.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

St. Paul, May 21.—Justice Canty, of the supreme court, yesterday handed down six decisions, in all but one of which the decision of the lower court is affirmed. The exception is one to reform a deed, in which Anselma Blanchard is the respondent and Henry S. Patterson, the appellant. The case is over the conveyance of some land in which the vendor agreed by the terms of an executory contract to convey more land than he actually did convey later. The court finds that neither party to the transaction intended to mislead the other, and that an action to reform the deed cannot be maintained. The only equitable action is held to be rescission of the contract. The decisions follow:

Anselma Blanchard, respondent, vs. Henry S. Patterson, appellant. Order reversed and a new trial granted.

D. S. Erb, doing business as D. S. Erb & Co., appellant, vs. Anthony Yoerg, Jr., as assignee, etc., respondent. Order affirmed.

Warrant Out For Robert Dowse For Assault---Other News.

The Windy City lost a citizen about three weeks ago whose advent to West Duluth has not conduced to the peace and morality of this portion of the city. A short time ago, in one of his carousals, he broke a window in one of the saloons, and yesterday he was released from a ten-days' time served for drunkenness. Yesterday he got on another tear, was arrested and this morning was again taken to Duluth. He claims that he has a job at Ironton, and his sentence was suspended by the judge on condition that he go to work immediately.

J. N. Roach got out a warran this morning for the arrest of Percy Coleman for the larceny of a dog. Both men claim to be the owner of the animal, and there seems to be a cloud on the title which the courts must remove.

This morning Thomas Paulson, employed by the Lasure Lumber company, swore out a warrant for the arrest of Robert Dowse, who, he claims, assaulted him yesterday in the yards of the company with a board.

RATHER MONOTONOUS.

Kansas Yields Up Its Usual Daily Cyclone.

Kansas City, May 21.—A cyclone struck seven miles south of Emporia, Kan., about 8 o'clock last night and travelling northeast, skirted the town of Burlington. Near Emporia the house of William Hughes was badly damaged, and Edward Jenkins was cut in the head by flying debris. Considerable farm property in that vicinity was damaged and orchards and crops for some distance were torn up, the cyclone cutting a swath several hundred yards wide.

Telegraphic communication northeast of Emporia suddenly stopped and nothing more of the storm's course is known here except that it caused Burlington citizens to seek their cellars. The outskirts of that town was struck and fences and minor destruction caused.

GAIL HAMILTON SICK.

DECLINED

All the Early News Was Bullish and Wheat Soared Upward.

Hessian Flies, Rain and Chinch Bugs Furnished Aid to Bulls.

Then the Market Broke and the Day's Decline Was One Cent.

The wheat market started bullish today on renewed reports of damage by Hessian flies in Michigan, more rain in the Red River valley and chinch bugs in Southern Illinois, Indiana and Missouri. Cables were also bullish. July opened ½c higher at 62¼c, and after a decline of ¼c, bulged rapidly on the bullish news until it touched 62⅝c at 10 o'clock. Then, without any apparent reason in the way of bearish news, the market broke and before the close July had declined 1⅝c from the high point. The drop was ascribed to manipulation on a revulsion of the feeling prompted by the early news, although realizing by the longs at Chicago was the most probable cause. The special feature of the local market was the strengthening of the July and September options, as compared with outside markets. Trading here was active throughout the session. Shippers bought 55,000 bus to arrive at ½c under July, and the mills took 10,000 bus at ⅛c under July. The chase was ½c lower all round than yesterday, except for September, which was ⅜c lower. Following were the closing prices:

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of E. S. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 306 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 21.—The wheat market today was a series of disappointments and the result may be summed up as the consequence of too much bull news. Too many local bulls and too little outside trade. Some good buying was noticed early and many bullish tips were floating around, but as usual in such cases the wily speculators sold out when the crowd wanted it most. The Northwest sent dispatches predicting not far from an average crop, and one point in Kansas reported the harvest in progress. Cables gave no encouragement, and the situation in the eastern part of the winter wheat belt was forgotten in the rush to sell. Several lines of long wheat were tumbled out at the close, notably one or two which were held by houses usually identified with the bear side. The close was weak and with an unsettled feeling which would indicate lower prices, but late experience shows that the weakest spots have been the turning points.

Corn and oats dull again.

Provisions weak and lower; packers selling pork. New York longs selling lard, and bear traders selling the whole line.

Puts, July wheat, 60¼@59¾c.

Calls, July wheat, 61⅝@61¾c.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Minneapolis Will Entertain the Northwestern Knights.

Milwaukee, May 21.—As an outgrowth of the decision by the national body of the military department of the Knights of Pythias not to hold any national encampment this year, because of the action of the Western Passenger association, a union encampment by the brigades of Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, the Dakotas and probably several other Northwestern states, will be held with the Minnesota brigade at Minneapolis during the first week in September. For this union or division encampment the city of Minneapolis will carry out all the arrangement intended for the national gathering, including the raising of $5000 in cash prizes for drills, etc.

A similar encampment will be held about the same time at Columbus, Ohio, for the Southern states, and probably another, for the Southern states, at Nashville. Among prominent members of the military department it is believed that this will be the beginning of a general division of the uniform rank into four sections, to be known as the Eastern, Western, Northern and Southern, the object being to hold union or division encampments every second year, and a national encampment every fourth year instead of every three years as at present.

TAXING THE IRON MINES.

Attorney General Childs has given an opinion to the state auditor that the state mining tax law is unconstitutional. The decision is not a surprise, as the view has been very generally entertained in legal circles that section 1, chapter 54 of the general laws, extra session of 1881, is in conflict with section 1, article 9 of the constitution. The act of 1881 imposed a tax of 1 cent per ton on the output of the iron mines in lieu of all other taxation, and of this tax the state received one-half and St. Louis county received the other half. Last year the iron companies in this county paid taxes to the amount of less than $20,000, so that the county's share did not amount to $10,000. If the companies' properties were taxed, in accordance with the attorney general's opinion, as is all other real and personal property in the county, they would pay taxes aggregating about $160,000. As the state levy, for all purposes, is only about 3 mills. St. Louis county and the school districts in this county would receive the greater part of this amount. It is unnecessary to refer at length to the benefit which this would be to the county and particularly to the school districts on the iron ranges, many of which now find it difficult to maintain their schools, although the districts contain some of the most valuable iron mines in the world.

The opinion of the attorney general is probably correct from a legal standpoint, and it is undeniably just in its conclusion that all forms of property in the state should bear its fair and proper proportion of the taxation. There is no valid reason which can be suggested why the iron companies should not be assessed and taxed on their very valuable properties in the same way as the man who owns a small house and lot. Indeed, these great corporations are as a rule much better able to pay their due proportion of the taxation than is the poor man who is struggling to maintain his family and is dependent for his income upon the chance of obtaining steady work. The plea that the iron ore industry has not been prosperous in recent years and therefore should not be called upon to pay any increased taxation will no doubt be made by those who are interested in seeing the present system of taxing the iron properties continued. But the same plea could be made with equal truth by our manufacturers, our wholesale men, our retail merchants, our professional men, our mechanics and workingmen in all lines of industry, not forgetting those who are carrying large burdens in the shape of encumbered and unproductive real estate. These men have been assessed as they were in more prosperous times and they have paid their taxes as usual, or, when they have not paid them, the county has obtained a lien to that extent on their property. All this time the iron companies, mostly controlled by wealthy men who live in Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Pittsburg and other cities in the East and West, have been practically exempt from taxation. They have contributed comparatively little to the support of the local, county and state governments under which they do business and by which they are given all the protection which every other taxpayer receives.

It is right and proper that this great evil of unequal taxation should be corrected, and that all property in the county should be taxed on the same basis. The iron properties on the two ranges are worth many millions of dollars and should be assessed to the same proportion of their actual value as other property in the cities, villages and townships. The attorney general's opinion is given at a time when these properties can be placed on the assessment rolls this year. The township assessors are now at work, and the county auditor can at once direct them to assess all the mining properties in their districts.

No doubt the iron companies will resist this mode of assessment and the matter will have to be determined by the courts, but there is little doubt as to the courts declaring the act of 1881 invalid and unconstitutional. That the companies themselves realized this fact and have been preparing for such a move as has now been made is evidenced by the constitutional amendment to be submitted to the vote of the people of Minnesota next fall. This amendment provides that the legislature shall have power to impose a specific tax and thus perpetuate the present grossly unfair and unequal system of taxation. It will be the duty of the people of the state to defeat this amendment at the November election. When the proper time comes The Herald will have more to say on this important subject.

THE RESOURCES OF ARIZONA.

The annual report of Governor L. C. Hughes, of Arizona, to the secretary of the interior for the year ending June 30, 1895, gives the fullest account of the progress, development and resources of the territory which has yet been published. Probably few people are aware that Arizona is the sixth largest political division in the United States, embracing an area of 113,000 square miles, or 72,320,000 acres. In addition to great deposits of gold, silver, copper, lead, onyx, marble and precious stones, the territory contains nearly 40,000,000 acres of the finest grazing land in the world, more than 10,000,000 acres of rich agricultural land and the largest unbroken forest area in the United States. And yet there are only about 77,000 people in Arizona, exclusive of Indians; of this number fully 7000 settled there during last year. When the many attractions which the territory presents to settlers become more generally known, and the great resources of the territory are appreciated, there will undoubtedly be a large and rapid influx of population.

Some idea of the present condition of the territory may be gained from the statistics presented by Governor Hughes. There were exported from its ranges during the last year 217,213 head of cattle, giving a return of $2,506,556 and leaving the ranges well stocked. The gold output for the year was $4,260,000, being an increase of $2,179,750 over 1894, and $3,257,495 over 1893. The continued low price of silver curtailed this branch of mining, the output being 1,750,000 ounces valued at $1,137,500, being a decrease of $563,560 as compared with 1894. The copper production was 49,661,289 pounds, of the value of $6,207,611, and the lead output $350,000 in value. The total value of the bullion exports was $11,955,111. The lumber exported amounted to 35,000,000 feet; wool, 2,904,130 pounds; sheep, 48,596; hides, 72,500. In addition to the supply for home consumption, the exports of hay, grain, fruit and honey aggregated over $1,779,000, making the total value of the exports of the stock ranges, mines and farms for the year $14,902,341, being more than one-half the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the territory and averaging more than $193 per capita for every man, woman and child of the citizen population. This, as Governor Hughes correctly says, is a marvelous showing and is an indisputable evidence of the territory's wealth resources and general prosperity.

One of the evidences of the territory's progress to better conditions, cited by the governor, is that the number of saloons was reduced thirty-seven and wholesale liquor houses three during the year, and the territorial debt was reduced $50,845, while the cost of county governments was reduced $20,000 and the federal and territorial courts pursued a like policy of retrenchment. The taxable property is valued at $27,518,322, an increase of $156,347. The territorial debt now amounts to $842,139, being reduced over $50,000 during the year.

These figures present a very satisfactory state of affairs and speak well for the progress of the territory and the excellent administration of its affairs. The governor's report contains views of the principal territorial buildings and they are of a character that would do credit to old and better populated states. In Arizona are found the silent marks of a prehistoric civilization, of myriads of people, the remains of cities, systems of irrigating canals and extensive areas of land formerly watered and cultivated from the same. Hence we now see the pioneer civilization of the nineteenth century reclaiming a region of a once powerful civilization which centuries ago lapsed into darkness, mystery and doubt. With its splendid climate and rich natural resources, Arizona presents an inviting field for settlement and enterprise, and there is no doubt that before many years have passed it will again be the home of many thousands of people and rank among the richest and most populous states of the Union.

MEETS WITH FAVOR.

The Saturday half holiday idea, advocated in The Herald yesterday and also at the chamber of commerce meeting, meets with much favor. The movement should be vigorously pushed until the half holiday is made a permanent institution. It would benefit everybody, both employers as well as employes. It has been the experience elsewhere that the half holiday has been established, that the stores do not lose any business by reason of being closed on Saturday afternoons. People quickly accustom themselves to the change and make their purchases Friday afternoon and Saturday morning, or postpone them until Monday. The employes are, by reason of the half holiday during the warm summer months, in a better condition, physically and mentally, to perform their duties, and thus the employer loses nothing in the shape of labor. His employes will perform as much work in five and a half days as they would in six.

An opportunity to show the popular sentiment respecting the half holiday idea will be afforded on Saturday afternoon when the High School Athletic association will hold its field day. Not only should there be a large attendance at these games because of the impetus which it would give to the half holiday movement, but the high school boys are deserving of encouragement in their efforts to develop their muscles as well as their intellects.

THE STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held at St. Paul on July 1. As the law requires that thirty days' notice shall be given of the date of county conventions, the call for the St. Louis county convention may be expected at an early date. This announcement calls for a thorough organization on the part of Mr. Lee's friends at once, in order that the Minnesota Iron company's political manager and the state officeholders who are endeavoring to carry this county for Mr. Clough may be defeated. There is no doubt that the sentiment of the great majority of St. Louis county Republicans is opposed to the nomination of Mr. Clough for governor. His unedinable that Mr. Clough could never have reached the governorship unless Mr. Nelson had vacated that office before his term had expired. Even many Republicans who desired to see Mr. Nelson in the United States senate hesitated to support him for that position because it meant the elevation of Dave Clough to the governorship. Their sentiments have not changed, and neither has Mr. Clough. Notoriously unfit for the high office of governor of Minnesota, it would be a mistake for the Republicans to nominate him for that position this year.

There are other reasons why the Republicans of this county should oppose his candidacy. Mr. Clough is the candidate of the Merriam-Bixby machine, and the chief object of this machine is to advance the political fortunes of William R. Merriam and send him to the United States senate. It would be a disgrace to the state should the plans of the Merriam-Bixby machine succeed, and St. Louis county Republicans have now an opportunity to strike a strong blow at Mr. Merriam's unholy ambition, because the nomination of Dave Clough is one of the chief parts of the plan that he is working. He desires to have in the governor's chair during the next two years a man who will do nothing to thwart his ambition and who will lend him the aid of the state patronage to carry out his designs.

The candidate who is most feared by the Merriam-Bixby machine is William E. Lee. This fact alone should gain for Mr. Lee the support of St. Louis county. But Mr. Lee is also a resident of the western portion of the Sixth district. He will have the support of nearly all the counties in this district. It is undeniably good policy for the Republicans of this county to work in harmony with their brethren in other parts of the district. To Mr. Towne's friends particularly this is important. Mr. Lee is in a position to pave the way in disaffected counties for Mr. Towne's renomination by acclamation, and this fact should secure for him the earnest support of Mr. Towne and all his friends in St. Louis county, especially as Mr. Lee is an able and honorable man, who would fill the position of governor with great credit to the state as well as to himself.

The votes of the St. Louis county delegates to the state convention should be cast solidly for William E. Lee, of Todd county, the Sixth district's candidate.

A Duluth dispatch to the St. Paul Globe, discussing the St. Louis county candidates for delegates to the Democratic national convention, says: "Mr. Gridley favors a tariff on iron ore and free silver. Mr. d'Autremont is a staunch free trader and believes in honest money." This is somewhat misleading, if by "honest money" is meant the single gold standard, because Mr. d'Autremont has always been regarded as a strong bimetallist. Neither do the views of the two candidates disagree very much on the tariff question.

A Washington dispatch says that Gen. Grosvenor asserts that Speaker Reed will be nominated by acclamation for the second place on the ticket, unless he comes out with an absolute refusal.

He adds that he has come to this conclusion through the receipt of a host of letters from all parts of the country urging the nomination upon the ground of expediency and good play. He refers to the precedents of Henry Clay and Thurston, who, it was said, would decline their nominations, but who accepted and with alacrity when the nominations were actually tendered. But Mr. Reed may establish a precedent by declining such a nomination. He certainly can be of more service to the Republican party in the house.

There is a strong fight being made on Boss Platt in New York state and he may lose his control of the Republican machine. A provisional organization in the interests of Mr. McKinley has been made in New York city. It is stated that the plan of the leaders of this new movement is first to see McKinley safely elected, and then to secure the governorship for Lieutenant Governor Saxton, thus retiring Boss Platt to private life. Among those interested in the plan are Republicans of such prominence as Warner Miller and State Comptroller Roberts. But Mr. Platt has had strong opposition before and has managed to come out ahead, and he may defeat the new combination.

Rev. Ira Hicks, the St. Louis weather prophet, is still doing business, and with considerable success. On April 14 he foretold the cyclonic disturbance that destroyed part of Texas, and he was even able to state the exact date, May 15. He now predicts another serious elemental disturbance, the danger period culminating next Sunday.

Senator D. W. Voorhees, of Indiana, who will retire from public life at the close of his present term, has served in congress for nearly thirty years, and will leave it in poor health and also poor in purse.

St. Louis county's delegation to the state Republican convention should be favorable to the nomination of William E. Lee for governor. No true friend of Mr. Towne can afford to vote for any other candidate.

Tams Bixby changed his mind about a late state convention, or perhaps the other members of the state central committee exercised their right to name the date.

"Boss" Platt still claims he can beat McKinley. He will change his tune after the first ballot has been taken at St. Louis, and probably before that time.

It is stated that Senator Hill desires to write the Democratic national platform at Chicago. Perhaps he wants something else.

Why should the iron properties be assessed any differently from other property in the county?

IRISH LEGEND VERIFIED.

New York World: An old Irish legend recently received vindication at Palmyra, Wis. Tradition asserts that descendants of the Irish spaniel that helped St. Patrick to drive the snakes from the Emerald Isle are marked by a white cross on the breast if born during the first week in Lent. During the first week of Lent of this spring an Irish spaniel belonging to Alfred Watson, of Palmyra, gave birth to five puppies. All but one of them were decorated with white crosses on their breasts. The mother seized the puppy not bearing the legendary badge, and crushed it to death with her teeth.

A SUN BURNED UP.

In December, 1891, the astronomers beheld the most wonderful sight that has ever greeted mortal eyes, says the St. Louis Republic. They were watching the queer antics of a star of the ninth magnitude, when all at once it flamed up like a smoldering brush pile to which new fuel had just been added. Within forty-eight hours its brilliancy increased 16-fold, and then the star slowly disappeared from view. The astronomers believe that what they saw was a "sun burning up." The final flash which they saw probably left the doomed orb 20 or even 50 years ago. It is a well-known fact that there are stars removed from us by distances so great that they might have been wiped out of existence 100 years ago and the light still be coming to us through space.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT FOR THE INCORPORATION OF THE DULUTH GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

This agreement witnesseth that the undersigned do hereby associate for the purpose of incorporation under and by virtue of Title one (1), of Chapter thirty-four (34) of the General Statutes of Minnesota, 1878, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and adopt and sign the following articles of incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be "Duluth Great Western Railway Company" and the general nature of its business shall be to survey, locate, construct, equip, maintain and operate for the transportation of persons and property for hire a line of public railway with one or more tracks or lines of rails, commencing at the city of Duluth, in the county of St. Louis, Minnesota, where terminal facilities can be procured, and extending thence southerly to the boundary line between the states of Wisconsin and Minnesota to the most practicable point of crossing the St. Louis river between Rice's Point and the dividing line between ranges fifteen (15) and sixteen (16) west, where the same crosses said boundary and where said line of railway will meet and coincide with a line of railroad beginning at that point to be built through the state of Wisconsin thence over said last mentioned line in Wisconsin. Then beginning again in the state of Minnesota at a point on the boundary line between the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin at a point on said boundary on the western border of township number forty-eight (48), north range fifteen (15) west found to be most feasible for crossing said boundary, and where said line of railway will meet and coincide with a line of railway to be built through the northwest corner of the state of Wisconsin as aforesaid, thence extending in a general westerly course, by the most practical route through and across the north central portion of the state of Minnesota; passing near the southern boundary of Hubbard county, thence westerly to a point near the southwestern corner of White Earth Indian reservation, thence in a northwesterly direction to a point on the western boundary line of Minnesota on the Red River of the North at or near Caledonia where said river can be most easily crossed; thence westerly through the state of North Dakota to the Missouri river by the most practical route to be more specifically determined and located. Also beginning at a point in the line already described near the southwest corner of the White Earth Indian reservation, thence extending in a southwesterly direction by the most practical route to a point on the boundary line between Minnesota and North Dakota at or near Moorhead to be specifically determined and located, together with the construction, maintenance and operation of all necessary branches, side tracks, switches, turnouts, car houses, depots, machine shops, bridges, warehouses and all other necessary buildings, structures and erections necessary for the proper maintenance and operation of said railway, and to acquire and hold property and do all things necessary and proper for or incidental to the conduct of said business; and further, to construct, maintain and operate a line, or lines, of telegraph on or over its line of railway and branches and to charge a reasonable compensation for the transmission of messages over and by means of the same. Mining Men Say Little About the Attorney General's Decision.

Joseph Sellwood Says the People Have Not Voted On It.

J. B. Cotton Would Not Discuss the Matter at All.

The decision of the attorney general to the effect that the law taxing the output of mines 1 cent a ton in lieu of all other taxation is unconstitutional has aroused a great deal of speculation as to what the mining companies will do about it. State Auditor Dunn has notified Auditor Halden to place the mining properties on the list the same as other real estate. This means that it will, if the attorney general's ruling holds, have to pay its share of taxation on the same basis as other owners of property. It would be a good thing for the county, too, for the state could not then collect half of it, as under the 1-cent tax. That the mining companies will test the constitutionality of the law in the courts is certain, but their representatives are saying little about it.

Joseph Sellwood said today that the law, if unconstitutional, is so because it has not been submitted to the vote of the people, and will be at the next election. Until their determination its constitutionality could not be determined.

J. B. Cotton, attorney for the Consolidated company, would say nothing as to the probable action of his company.

The state auditor's letter to the attorney general, requesting his opinion on the constitutionality of the law says:

Section 1, article 9, of the constitution of the state of Minnesota, provides that all taxes to be raised in this state shall be as nearly equal as may be, and all property on which taxes are to be levied shall have a cash valuation, and be equalized and uniform throughout the state."

Section 1, chapter 54, G. L. extra session 1881, provides, in substance, that mining corporations, organized under the laws of this state, may pay a tax of 1 per cent a ton annually on the iron ore mined and shipped or disposed of, which shall be in lieu of all other taxes, both real and personal.

A very conservative estimate places the cash valuation of iron ore mined and ready for shipment at $1 per ton. The specific tax per ton provided for above would thus amount to ten (10) mills on a dollar.

Certain mining companies operating in the cities of Ely, Tower and Virginia, in St. Louis county, in this state, have been paying taxes at the above rate on iron ore from the abstract of the tax list prepared by the auditor of St. Louis county. I learn the average rate of taxation in those cities to be as follows:

City of Ely, 41.5 mills.
City of Tower, 38.1 mills.
City of Virginia, 43.3 mills.

The average rate of the entire county is 26.5 mills.

Through the operation of this law of 1881, it will thus be seen that the mining companies pay less than one-fourth the amount of the tax on the iron ore output alone which would be required of them under the usual assessed valuation basis. This does not include the assessment of lands and improvements. Taking these into consideration, it will be seen that the inequality increases.

Will you kindly inform me if, in your opinion, chapter 54, G. L. Ex. Session, 1881, is in accord with section 1, article 9, of the constitution?

Here is the attorney general's reply, holding the statute to be unconstitutional, and therefore void:

Dear Sir: I have considered the validity of general laws 1881, chapter 54, section 1, of extra session (G. S. 1894, s. 1689). That statute provides, in effect, so far as material, that mining corporations organized under the laws of this state may be taxed as follows: On and for each ton of iron ore mined and shipped or disposed of, 1 cent for each ton. It is made optional with such companies to accept the provisions of said act, and having accepted the same, they are thereafter to be bound thereby and entitled to the benefits thereof.

The constitution of this state contains the following provision: "All taxes to be raised in this state shall be as nearly equal as may be, and all property on which taxes are to be levied shall have a cash valuation and be equalized and uniform throughout the state." (Art. 9, sec. 1.)

The property not exempt by the constitution must be taxed. Says our supreme court, adverting to the provision of the section of the constitution now under consideration: "Equality of burden is therefore the principle of the constitution. There is to be no rule that exempts some property (unless within the specified exceptions) and casts the burden upon the rest. These constitutional provisions render it imperative that all the property of which exemption is not permitted shall be taxed, and preclude any other exemptions than those specified. When there is no power to make an exemption there is none to relieve the property by releasing or refunding the tax after it is levied. What cannot be done directly cannot be done indirectly. Le Duc vs. City of Hastings, 29 Minn., 111.

It is evident that the constitution contemplates that the above class of property shall be taxed upon its fair cash valuation. It is difficult, in my judgment, to conceive of a statute more plainly violative of the constitution than the one in question. It wholly disregards the mandatory requirement of the constitution that taxation shall be based upon a cash valuation and permits a specific and wholly arbitrary tax of 1 cent a ton. Similar statutes under similar constitutions have been held invalid. State vs. Cumb. & Penn. Rd Co., 40 Md., 22; People vs. McCreery, 34 Cal., 432.

It is radically unlike those familiar provisions of our legislation which authorizes the payment of a gross earnings tax. Such a tax is designed merely as a substitute method and is based upon the actual gross receipts. It is presumed to be the equivalent of the ordinary method, and is commended because of its convenience. "It must be supposed that it was contemplated that this system would upon the whole, fairly effect the objects of taxation with respect to such corporations, and be equivalent in its results to taxation of the property owned by them. (31 Minn. 537.)

As to such a tax, courts have hesitated in upholding it when not based upon contract. Neelan vs. City of Milwaukee, 15 Wis. 497.

Under the act of 1881 the company is to pay a fixed tax of 1 cent a ton, whatever the value of the ore. Nor is this all. The tax is to be exacted only in the event that the ore is shipped or disposed of. In other words, a vast quantity of ore may be mined and held for future advance in price, or otherwise, and thereby escapes taxation until the shipment or the disposition thereof.

The act in question was enacted in the very infancy of mining operation in this state, and was evidently designed to foster the same and encourage their development. However wise and salutary the provisions of such a law, I am unable to reach any other conclusion than that they are clearly in violation of the constitution and void. I am, very respectfully,

H. W. Childs,
Attorney General.

MR. AMES WILL QUIT.

Will Retire From the Y. M. C. A. Physical Directorship.

Albert S. Ames, for two years physical director of the Y. M. C. A., will sever his connection with that institution Saturday, May 30, his contract expiring on that date. He has been an able, conscientious and systematic leader of the gymnasium classes and his departure will be viewed with regret by those with whom he has been associated, as he is very popular with all. He will return to the grain business in the firm of C. C. Ames & Co. No arrangements have been made by the association for a successor. To mark his departure an athletic entertainment will be given in the gymnasium Friday, May 29, which will be the largest and best ever held here. A number of graduates of the gymnasium will take part.

A FINE SINGER.

Excellent Concert By Edward Kuss Last Evening.

The concert at the Congregational church last evening given by Edward C. Kuss, assisted by local talent, was a genuine musical treat, one of the most complete which Duluth musicians have been privileged to hear. The audience was fair in size. Much had been promised of Mr. Kuss but he more than fulfilled expectations, for he has a magnificent base of fine quality. The volume is tremendous but he controls and handles it as completely and delicately as could be desired. He is every inch an artist and not a tone comes forth that is not true and correct music. He has the naturally dramatic manner, too, not that which comes with experience—although that has done much to perfect it—but the dramatic genius that is born in one. His dramatic talent was remarkably displayed. In "Whither" by Schubert and his encore "In the Coming of the Spring" there was the light and airy manner, in Wolfram's address to Tannhauser by Wagner, the dignified in the "Two Grenadiers" by Schumann, the patriotic, and, in fact, every number showed a different style.

The solo number "Archibald Douglas" by Loewe was one of the finest things ever sung to a Duluth audience. It is a tremendous number and the manner in which he rendered it proclaimed him an artist of highest ability. "Gipsy John" by Clay was a number which should not go unmentioned for it was one of the very finest.

Mrs. Loman played Mr. Kuss' accompaniments and they were exceedingly difficult but were perfectly rendered.

The trio consisting of Messrs. Trautvetter, Tonning and Flaaten played two numbers and they were rendered with success. Misses Kelly and Carroll sang "Crucifixus" very excellently.

DON'T NEGLECT

A COMMON CASE OF PILES.

It May Lead to Serious Results.

When people generally understand that all such fatal diseases as fistula, ulcer of the rectum, fissure, etc., almost invariably begin in a simple case of piles, they will learn the wisdom of taking prompt treatment for the first appearance of troubles in this quarter. The Pyramid Pile Cure will certainly cure every form of bleeding piles, itching, bleeding protruding or blind piles, and hundreds of lives have been saved by using this cheap but effective remedy right at the start, because at such a time a single package will affect a cure, while in the old chronic, deep-seated cases, several packages are sometimes necessary before a lasting cure is effected.

Physicians are using the Pyramid Pile Cure in preference to surgical operations and with uniform success. The remedy is prepared by the Pyramid Drug company, of Albion, Mich., and for sale by all druggists everywhere at 50 cents and $1 per package.

WATER VERY HIGH.

Swollen Streams Are Causing Lumbermen Trouble.

Reports from Cloquet and vicinity indicate that the high water in the rivers and streams still prevails and with little sign of abatement. Several streams are swollen to enormous size, especially where they spread over the low lands. One small stream, Otter creek, which is usually twenty feet wide, is swollen until it is a quarter of a mile wide in some places. The mills at Cloquet of the Cloquet and C. N. Nelson Lumber companies have been shut down for a week owing to high water, and there is little prospect for their starting up before Saturday or Monday. Thousands of ties have been carried into the woods on the Kettle and Moose river drives, it being impossible to keep them in the regular channel. The lumbermen up that way are earnestly praying for the cessation of the rains.

HESITATE NO LONGER.

Modesty in women is natural. It is one of women's chief charms.

Women have suffered fearfully because of over-sensitiveness in this direction. They couldn't say to the physician what they ought to say to someone. Mrs. Pinkham has received the confidence of thousands. Women open their hearts to her. She understands their suffering, and has the power to relieve and cure.

In nearly all cases the source of women's suffering is in the womb. In many cases the male physician does not understand the case and treats the patient for consumption—indigestion—anything but the right thing.

It is under such circumstances that thousands of women have turned to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and opened their heart and lives—woman to woman—and received her help.

You ask how she can tell if the doctor cannot? Because no man living ever treated so many cases and possesses such vast experience.

Displacement, inflammation, torpid action, stagnation, sends to all parts of the body the pains that crush you.

Lydia E. Pinkham's "Vegetable Compound" is the sure cure for this trouble. For twenty years it has done its grand work and cured thousands.

DIED ON THE STREET.

Patrick McNamara Died Suddenly Last Evening.

Patrick McNamara, an old resident of Duluth, dropped dead on First avenue east, between Third and Fourth streets, about 6 o'clock last evening. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause. McNamara was walking up the avenue and had reached the middle of the block when he was observed by some children to throw up his hands and fall to the sidewalk. When picked up by some of the firemen from Fire Hall No. 1, who had been notified, McNamara was found to be dead. He was carried to his boarding place, 18½ West Fourth street, and intelligence of the affair conveyed to Deputy Coroner Stocker, who will hold a post-mortem today.

The deceased was unmarried. He had been employed as janitor in the Fargusson block, but for the past three years had been living on the income from some property he had accumulated.

Miss Hofer's Lecture.

Miss Hofer, president of the kindergarten department of the National Educational association, addressed a large audience at the Central High School's climate terday on the subject of kindergarten instruction. Miss Hofer was introduced by Superintendent Denfeld, who remarked that she took the lead in work done in this country and Canada for the advancement of the kindergarten system.

The lecturer in opening said that the advanced educational idea is based on an intimate knowledge of human nature. To become acquainted with which the child, as nature in its simplest form, should be carefully conned, even as the Chaldean astrologer studied the stars.

Miss Hofer is a captain of affairs of business, standing at the head of a large printing establishment and being editor of two magazines. Her lecture today will commence at 3:30 o'clock, as she will leave the city at an early hour in the evening.

HOLIDAY

Committee Was Appointed to Present it to Business Men.

Ore Trimmers' Matter Was Talked Over But No Report Made.

President T. W. Hugo, of the chamber of commerce, who in last evening's Herald had a communication urging the adoption of the half holiday in Duluth, brought the same matter before the chamber of commerce at the meeting yesterday, and the movement was well started. Mr. Hugo said that he was a little in doubt as to whether the chamber is the proper place to begin the agitation or not. The Herald criticism on the desecration of Memorial day had brought to his mind the half holiday idea. The only reason the Cycle club has its races on Memorial day is because there is no other holiday. If there were half holidays every week he was sure that Memorial day would be observed. The adoption of the idea would give a great stimulus to outdoor sports, and would be of great benefit to the people. This has proved true in Canada, the United Kingdom and in the American cities where it is observed. In Canada the half holiday is sacred, and a man would work on Sunday rather than on Saturday afternoon. The church people ought to take it up, too, for it would give little excuse for not attending church on Sunday.

E. R. Brace thought the idea excellent and that the chamber ought to begin the agitation. It was eminently proper for the idea to be started by this body.

Others agreed with this, and President Hugo was directed to select two men to act on a committee with himself in bringing the matter to the attention of business men.

E. R. Cobb, of the committee which is investigating the Ore Trimmers' union grievance, said that he would like another week in which to report, having been unable to confer with Vice President McBride, of the Missabe road. He did not know that much would be accomplished, but wished to make a proper report nevertheless. Some questions were asked by Mr. Hirsch, which brought the explanation that the committee found that the road now employs forty men on the ore dock and uses them for trimming boats, cleaning pockets, loading boats and in general work, giving them steady employment. If they did not trim the boats the road could not employ nearly so many. The forty men are good citizens, and many of them own property.

C. E. Lovett asked for more time for the Lyceum boycott committee. Two conferences with Mr. Marsh have been held, but the report cannot be made until some further work is done.

It was left to President Hugo to see that Duluth is represented at the national commercial tariff convention at Detroit on June 1.

Outside commercial bodies requested immediate and vigorous action on the part of the chamber against the congressional bills which repeal the clause providing for imprisonment as punishment for violations of the interstate commerce. The requests were complied with, and the Minnesota senators and representatives will be asked to oppose it.

The only other communication was from a woman living outside the city, who wished to know if Duluth's climate would be beneficial to a case of asthma or not. The chamber has no advisory medical board, and it was left to the secretary to answer as best he can.

HIGH SCHOOL FIELD DAY.

Every Person Should Attend the Games Saturday.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In connection with the half holiday, my attention is called to the fact that on next Saturday occurs the annual field day games of the High School Athletic association. The day ought to be observed by every citizen who can spare the time from work or business, and it should be pressing business that keeps him away. We have been in the habit of paying to see our outdoor sports by the professional. Every thoughtful American citizen must view with satisfaction the wonderful revival of outdoor amateur sports in this country. The fact is important for two reasons at least. It is destined to relieve the gambling professional of his job, and it gives promise of a greatly improved race of people, both physically and intellectually. While it is true that our American athletes have generally been able to hold their own against all foreign comers, it is also true that in Europe, and particularly in Great Britain, greater interest is taken by the people in amateur sports than here. It seems to me our citizens owe it to themselves, as well as to the pupils of the high school, to inaugurate the much-needed holiday next Saturday by a rousing attendance at the games. Cuff.

LET US REASON TOGETHER.

It needs "no ghost to come and tell us" that the sooner dyspepsia is remedied, the sooner we shall enjoy that right to which our ancestors laid claim in the Declaration of Independence—"the pursuit of happiness. A man blessed with a good digestion—provided he has enough to eat—is happy. There are hosts of people with ample means to whom the sole consolation of a healthy pauper is denied. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a certain, prompt and thorough medicinal agent through the use of which sound digestion, and the nerve tranquility which its disturbance causes, can be recovered. Biliousness, malarial and kidney trouble, constipation and rheumatism are also remedied by this fine corrective of a disordered condition of the system. Appetite and sleep are greatly improved by it.

Bankers' Life Association Pay the Bailey Claim.

The Bankers' Life association, of Minnesota says that Abraham Bailey is dead, and as it is the only party enough interested to dispute it, it may be taken for an established fact. Everyone remembers Abraham Bailey's mysterious disappearance. Long on wheat and short in accounts, he is believed to have suicided in Lake Superior. On the evening of June 7, 1893, he was seen rowing out into the lake by the Superior entry lighthouse keeper. A few days later his boat was discovered on the north shore, and Abraham Bailey has never been seen since. The insurance company held off for a long time, believing him to be alive, but apparently it is convinced of his death, for the suit for his insurance policy of $6000 has been settled by the payment of the amount of the policy and $500 interest.

PROBLEM

Police Are Figuring on How to Enforce the Bicycle Ordinance.

All Riders Without Bells Were Given Warning This Morning.

A Large Number of the Wheels Carried Cow Bells Today.

How to stop bicycles was the question that interested the officials at police headquarters today. The general order issued by Chief Hansen yesterday makes it incumbent on the bluecoats to stop any biker who is pushing the ground under him at a faster rate than the law allows. But supposing the rider is whizzing along at twenty miles per hour, or at a speed approaching it, what is the officer to do who relies on the comparatively slow mode or locomotion with which nature has provided him. What hope is there for the guardian of the law in a sprint with a scorcher who resembles a black streak across the landscape. Clearly, none. Strategy must be resorted to; the example of the sagacious hound that captures the fleet jack rabbit by taking advantage of a peculiarity in its method of progression must be observed.

Secretary Force suggested that the career of any bicyclist could be brought to a sudden end by the judicious application of a 2 by 4 scantling, and he cited a few wrecks he himself had caused in vindication of the majesty of the ordinances. This suggestion, however, was met with the objection that damage suits would follow and the city would have to employ a few more lawyers. Besides, an officer would neither cut a good figure nor be fully efficient with his pockets full of scantling.

Detective Murphy, of the St. Paul & Duluth road, who happened to be present, suggested that when the violator of the ordinance was seen coming down the main line, the officer could bring him to a standstill with a couple of railroad torpedoes and the offender could then be run in on a sidetrack.

It was suggested that the officers be provided with wheels themselves to give chase. At this, Capt. Thompson became enthusiastic. He said he would like to be assigned to the charge of the bicycle squad, as he preferred bicycle exercise to taking anti-fat.

Passing to the question of what to do with the wheels when a capture is effected, the plan of taking them to the station and caring for them there was opposed by the hostlers, who said they had enough to do as it is. The officer might ride it in and then when the owner called at the station to get his wheel he might be nabbed. This and several other schemes were spoken of, but no definite conclusion was reached.

The problem of determining the speed at which a wheel was being ridden also gave rise to discussion. It was suggested that having ascertained the number of feet in a block and the time consumed in traveling that distance, any officer with an elementary knowledge of geometry, trigonometry and engineering could readily figure it out. But the idea of the sight that would be presented by dignified officers with watches in their hands following wheels up the streets at a speed of from ten to twelve miles an hour and other officers seated on the curbstones figuring on the data obtained, it was conceded would not be conducive to order and would necessitate an increase in the force.

On motion, the meeting adjourned to await the promulgation of General Order No. 2.

The wheelmen hardly know where they stand on the question of the speed at which they may ride within the city limits. The order issued by Chief Hanson yesterday afternoon omits important exceptions in the ordinance relating to the subject. As published in the order the section is decidedly bob-tailed, being given as follows:

"Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to ride a bicycle or any other vehicle upon any of the streets, alleys, avenues or public grounds within the limits of the city of Duluth at a higher rate of speed than six miles an hour upon First and Second avenues east and avenue east and Seventh avenue west, and not faster than four miles an hour upon First and Second avenue east and First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth avenues west, and not faster than eight miles an hour upon the remaining streets, alleys, avenues and public grounds in the city of Duluth."

If the department acts according to the terms of the order, an amendment in a substantial point will have been effected without the aid of the council, which has hitherto been considered important, if not indispensable. The part struck out by this novel amendment is all the last part of the section regulating speed, reading as follows: Except on London road, between Ninth avenue east and the easterly limits of the city; on West Michigan street, between Garfield avenue and the crossing of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad tracks, and on Grand avenue west, between the crossing of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad tracks, and Fifty-fifth avenue west, and on all streets above Fourth street.

Such of the East End and Lakeside contingent as had no bells were stopped on their way into town this morning and warned to procure them at once. In order that there might be no mistake about it, some of the bicyclists attached cowbells to their wheels, and the streets resounded like rural lanes with the chatter of bossy's favorite bungler.

Other wheelmen procured all sorts of infernal squeaking machines and ki-yi's, and altogether the result was an echo of an Italian carnival.

The police commenced a crusade against the cow-bell, shortly after noon, and acting under instructions from headquarters, all gyhedmen sporting that style of bell were stopped and ordered to take them off. All complied, for although there was a general feeling that the police were exceeding their authority, no one cared to take a ride in the patrol wagon and make a test case. One ingenious rider, who carried a large bell on being told he would not be allowed to use a cow-bell on his wheel, the reason assigned being that it made too much noise, procured a smaller one and tied it around his neck. At last accounts, he was still at large.

THE ROAD RACE.

Those Who Will Be Officers of the Track.

The race and track officers for the annual Memorial day road race, which takes place a week from Saturday on London road, have been selected. They are as follows: Judge of time, Frank E. Wyman; starter, Dr. M. B. Cullom; referee, Henry E. Harris; umpire, W. N. Dalcour; clerk of course, H. O. Swain; timers, C. M. Masseau, A. S. Ames, E. Barnham, Dr. Myron Barlow, C. H. De Vault, Phil Pastoret, George L. Clemens; judges, W. H. Lowd, F. N. MacLaren, Titus Duncan, John Green, Will H. Carey, N. C. Clark, Ed A. Thompson; checkers, Clyde Green, E. M. Barker.

The entries close next Tuesday evening, and the prize list will be ready by that time, also the handicaps, so the programs will then be given to the printer. There will be a more than ordinarily large list of entries.

PRISONERS' PRIVILEGES.

California has a novel and excellent way of maintaining discipline in the state prison at Folsom, and it is said that the method is proving highly successful, says the San Francisco Report. There are no dark cells in the prison, corporal punishment is unheard of, tying up by the thumbs is never permitted, in short, none of the old modes of punishment are recognized in this prison.

The system in vogue is this: When a new prisoner is received he is informed that they have three different bills of fare in the prison, and that it is optional with each man as to how well he lives. If he is industrious, orderly, well-behaved, and in all things conforms strictly to the rules of the prison, he is served with excellent food, nicely cooked.

He can have chops, steaks, eggs, tea and coffee, milk and white bread; if he is only fairly well behaved and does not do his allotted task properly, is inclined to growl and grumble at the regulations of the institution, he is given ordinary prison fare—porridge and treacle, soup and black bread; and if he is very insubordinate he is permitted to feast upon unlimited quantities of cold water and a rather small allowance of bread. There is said to be an intense rivalry among the convicts to enter the first class, and once there it is seldom that one of them is sent back.

WAS CALLED DOWN.

Judge McGindley and Judge Moer Had Words.

There was a little scene in Judge Moer's court yesterday afternoon when the case of Lieberman & Co. against W. B. Silvey to recover $1000 damages sustained from leaky waterpipes went to the jury. Judge Moer charged the jury that it could consider no damages sustained on any day except Nov. 20. All the defendants claimed for this day was $75, so this rather cut down their claim. Judge McGindley was trying the plaintiff's case, and the charge made him wrathy. He arose and remarked that he was a little warm after being robbed by the courts, and he considered it outrageous.

Judge Moer arose to the occasion and said: "Mr. McGindley, I do not want to have any more such language. Because you differ with the court there is no reason why you should retaliate in that manner, and I want you to understand it."

"I intended no reflection on the court," said Mr. McGindley, meekly, and the matter was dropped. The jury, however, returned a verdict entirely for the defendant.

This morning Judge Moer was hearing the case of Stanislaus Yanka against the Hartford Insurance company. Yanka claims that his store in West Duluth, upon which he had $600 insurance, burned down some time ago, and that he went to the company's agent to make the required proof of loss. The agent told him to sign some papers, which he did on the agent's assurance that that was all that was necessary. He alleges that when he went back the agent told him that he had not given the company notice, and that as the sixty days within which notice is required had gone by, he could not have the insurance.

Judge Ensign has returned from the funeral of his father at Ashtabula, Ohio, and his court was again running this morning. The case of William Hare against the Eastern Minnesota Railway company was again taken up.

Judge Morris was still engaged on the case against J. W. Fowler, charged with assault to commit rape, and the defendant's counsel was arguing the case to the jury at noon. The only witness in the defense was Mrs. Fowler, defendant's wife, who testified to a conversation with the complaining witness. On cross-examination the witness admitted that defendant had been accused of similar offenses before.

The case of the heirs of Abraham Bailey against the Bankers' Life association was dismissed this morning.

NANSEN.

Answers: The other day a man in a fur-lined coat that reached to his heels, walked up to an ice cream stall in Newcastle and called for three ices. They were served him and he partook of them.

Several boys were watching him with some curiosity. They stared when the stranger called for three more ices. As the last one disappeared they gaped with astonishment.

At last a youth with a bundle of Evening Chronicles under his arm broke the silence with the exclamation: "By George, that's Nansen!"

FRUSTRATED BY DAVIS.

Job Prevented By Minnesota's Senior Senator.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Times telegraphed the other day: Senator Davis, of Minnesota, recently rendered a public service which is worthy of special commendation. As chairman of the senate committee on territories it became his duty to reach a conclusion concerning a bill providing a right-of-way for an electric railroad through the northeast corner of the Yellowstone National park.

The bill was an innocent one in appearance, and provided that one David B. May should have right-of-way across the park for the purpose of building an electric railroad to connect Cinnabar with Cooke City, Mont., where it is alleged, that some of the richest mining properties in America are located. It was claimed by David B. May and his friends that the mining property is so situated that the ore cannot be worked profitably without easy railroad communication.

The particular attention of the chairman of the committee, Senator Davis, was called to this bill by reason of the over-anxiety of several senators to secure a favorable report on the bill early in the session. It would be needless at this time to give the names of the senators who took such an interest in this bill, but the senators do not interest themselves in such matters unless there is something in it for them.

Senator Davis directed that the bill be sent to the secretary of the interior with the request that a report be made to the committee by the secretary and commissioner of the general land office concerning the feasibility of the passage of such a bill. In all of the arguments before the committee on territories it was claimed that the electric road would run along a little river basin, and would not in any way disfigure the national park or interfere with the surviving game of that beautiful country. The secretary of the interior, however, made a report adverse to the bill and gave some facts which were rather startling to the chairman and some members of the committee.

It appears that after all that has been said about the rich mining property at Cooke City and the desirability of railroad communication with that mining property in order that it might be developed, the whole story was a subterfuge with which to cloak another purpose. The object of David B. May, who is regarded as a figurehead for others, was simply to secure right-of-way through any part of Yellowstone park for an electric railroad, and the passage of such a bill would have been used as a precedent by steam railroads who are anxious to cross the park, so that, if the bill for an electric railroad has been permitted to pass, within another year the steam railroads would have been gridironing the park and ruining the only beauty spot upon this continent, which is as yet and always should be reserved from intrusion by commerce and trade.

By discovering the Senegambian in this woodpile, Senator Davis has rendered his country a great public service.

Narrow Escape of a Ferry Boat Yesterday.

What just missed being a serious accident occurred at the canal ferry last evening, and as it was several people were badly scared and several gallons of water were shipped on one of the boats used to convey passengers across the canal.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the Singer tug Fisk entered the canal from the lake, with a scow in tow, bound for the Booth slip. The current was running out very swiftly at the time, and Capt. Lloyd, of the Fisk, attempted to round the inner end of the pier and enter the slip by a short turn, with the result that, as he slackened sped to take in his line, the scow was carried toward the pier, at the end of which was lying a ferryboat, manned by Carl Knutson, containing several passengers, among them being a young girl named Gilbert. The pilot of the tug, seeing the danger, headed his boat out into the bay and attempted to get the scow past the pier, the effort being ineffectual, however, and the ferryboat was caught between the scow and the piling, the frail craft being forced down into the water as the heavy scow crowded upon her. Luckily, the overhanging sides of the scow striking the pier caused her to sheer off before the ferryboat was forced under, and the passengers lost no time in scrambling up the landing steps.

Miss Gilbert suffered a slight bruise on the shoulder, the others escaping with nothing worse than a drenching. The ferry people blame the captain of the Fisk for trying to cut such a short corner, while the Singer people say that a stroke of Knutson's oars would have carried his boat out of danger. Capt. Stepney, who is in charge of the ferry, says that Knutson is an old sailor and that he did the proper thing in sticking to the landing stairs.

NECK AND NECK.

Washington Times: They were sitting in the twilight, and he was explaining how he lost his money.

"You see it was this way. In the quarter stretch my horse was two lengths ahead, but he gradually lost ground, till in the home stretch he was neck and neck with the young filly"——

"How lovely," she exclaimed, interrupting him and moving a little closer.

"How lovely!" he repeated. "I don't understand. had my money on the horse that was droping behind."

"Yes, Harry, I know; but I was thinking how perfectly beautiful it must have been to be neck and neck."

Then he gave a protracted sigh, adjusted his position, and there, in the silence and gloaming, they illustrated, in pantomime, a modern racing term.

FISHING FOR WINKLES.

Formosans Use Them to Feed Their Ducks.

The British consul at Tamsui, in Formosa, describes a method of fishing there for small winkles, which are required in large quantities for feeding the thousands of ducks that are bred there artificially.

A crowd of boats may always be seen at flood tide, each one with a man in it, who is constantly engaged in hauling up his peculiar net, discharging its contents into his boat, and then pitching the net out again. A large stone carries the net to the bottom; and it is so nicely arranged and balanced as to cause the latter to stand on the bottom of the river at the most convenient angle for the reception of the winkles, which are swept into it by the tide.

The consul also describes the artificial duck-hatching, which is a great feature in the local native industries. A long, low shed is built, mostly of wattles and mud, with a thick thatched roof. Along the inside walls are arranged rough troughs, which are filled up with grain and roasted paddy-husk, on which the eggs are placed as fast as they are laid.

In the summer no particular precautions are taken, but in the winter the eggs are covered over with quilted coverlets; and far more care is exercised to exclude cold draughts than is ever dreamed of in a native dwelling house. The grain, which is sprinkled with a little warm water, sets up fermentation, and that with the help of the warm paddy-husk, which is continually being changed, hatches the eggs in about thirty days. By this simple and inexpensive process the breeder is enabled to raise many young ducklings. Many flocks of young ducks, averaging 500 to the flock, can always be seen up the river at low tide, feeding on the mud banks and attended by a man in a small boat, who occasionally feeds them with some of the winkles, and guides them about from place to place by his voice and by the movements of his boat.

"TOWN HISTORIES" IN DEMAND.

Washington Post: To know what kind of books are most called for at the congressional library would probably surprise 90 per cent of the novel-reading public throughout the United States. The demand is not for general historical or scientific works, nor for romances and dramatic literature, but just for simple "town histories." Under this rubric is comprehended those works which describe the historic events of the foundation and development of general municipalities. And the most remarkable thing in connection with the constantly growing popularity of town histories is the fact that the demand comes chiefly from women.

One of the attaches of the congressional library yesterday asserted within the hearing of a Post reporter that the demand for these municipal records by women was assuming enormous proportions. "What peculiar charm does a town history exercise on modern American womankind?" was asked of the librarian.

"For some time I was puzzled about it myself," said the librarian, "but it is no longer a secret. The craze of women to join the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Colonial Dames is responsible for it. If your grace any female relatives who might have a suspicion that they came of historic stock, just tell them what a great army of their fair sisters are seeking, ect the earliest history of the town in which their ancestors lived, find some family name there, and make out a prima facie case of their eligibility to membership in the Daughters or Dames by tracing a connection with the same name on the roster of the Revolutionary army. This is being done continually, and accounts for the popularity of old town histories.

READY TO BID.

Chicago Tribune: "Now, then," exclaimed the business-like inventor, as he grasped his hat and placed carefully in his pocket his latest improved X ray apparatus, warranted to enable the operator to see through a six-inch plank, "I am ready."

"Where are you going, dear?" asked his wife.

"I am going," he rejoined, "to attend an auction sale of unclaimed express packages."

A POINT OF HONOR.

A delicate point in the duello code has been raised in Paris by the editor of L'Echo de Paris, says the New York Sun. It appears that M. Leon Daudet, son of Alphonse Daudet, recently wrote an article in fulsome praise of Prince Henri of Orleans, whereupon L'Echo printed a caricature representing M. Daudet licking the prince's boots. Daudet sent a challenge to the editor, who had been his friend, which was declined on the ground that the artist was responsible for the picture and was ready to fight. M. Daudet refused to call out the artist, saying that it was not the picture that had offended him, but the breach of friendship on the editor's part in allowing it to be used. He threatens to box the offender's ears, while the editor says that if he tries it he will use a revolver at once.

HOW TO AVOID SEASICKNESS.

The new remedy for seasickness is called "bromidization." Bromidization must be begun several days before sailing, continued several days after and sometimes through the voyage. In this case it defies both wind and weather. Bromide of sodium is preferred for the purpose to bromide of potassium, because of the sodium being milder and more acceptable to the stomach. Few adults will experience the slightest inconvenience from a thirty-grain dose of the bromide of sodium three times a day.

MARINE

Insurance on the Stranded Escanaba Is Nearly Thirty Thousand Dollars.

The Palace Steamer Manitou Will Come to Duluth Next Month.

Steamer Pease, Upbound With Coal, Is Aground at the Encampment.

Milwaukee, May 21.—Capt. C. M. Davis, wrecking master for the Commercial Union Assurance company, left to superintend wrecking operations on the stranded steamer Escanaba, but was intercepted yesterday and ordered to Sault Ste. Marie to look after the huge steel steamer L. G. Waldo, reported as having been seriously damaged by collision. Capt C. H. Sinclair has gone to the Escanaba from Chicago. The insurance on the Escanaba is $29,500, divided as follows: Marine Insurance company, $5500; Union Marine, $5000; St. Paul, $5000; Western, $3300; North American, $3000; Commercial Union, $2000; Mannheim, $2000; Detroit, $2000; Aetna, $1500.

THE MANITOU COMING.

The steamer Manitou, owned by the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transportation company, which runs between Chicago and Mackinaw island, will come to Duluth about June 25 with a party of excursionists from Chicago. This will be the first visit of this fine steamer to Duluth, although she came out three seasons ago.

RECOVER THE PEWABIC.

Capt. Ralph C. Brittain is in Milwaukee for the purpose of signing a contract whereby the American Wrecking and Salvage company will obtain the services of his steamer, H. A. Root, for a period of ninety days in an effort to locate and recover the steamer Pewabic, which was sunk in Lake Huron by collision a number of years ago and is said to have on board a considerable amount of copper. The contract for the Root calls for her services as soon as she can be put in readiness, which Capt. Brittain says will be within a week.

MARINE NOTES.

John N. Young, of Brockville, Ont., has been assigned to duty at Duluth in the Canadian customs department, and will be the assistant of F. W. Bolderick during this season of navigation.

The Pawnee, Orton, Edwards and Young have been placed for lumber from Duluth to Buffalo at $2.

A Cleveland dispatch says that ore men are offered more tonnage than they are able to take care of and the market is weak. A few Escanaba boats were placed yesterday at 60 cents, but tonnage was put in at 55 cents, and cargoes are very scarce at the cut. No charters from the head of the lakes were reported, but shippers will not pay $1, and a break in that rate is almost certain, as offerings of tonnage are liberal.

Capt. W. A. Gordon, mate of the schooner Emma C. Hutchinson, was drowned from that vessel thirty miles southeast of the Point au Pelee dummy on Monday. Gordon commanded the schooner C. C. Barnes last season, and is supposed to have committed suicide. He was 50 years old.

Capt. Reid has recovered the two pontoons stranded on St. Helena island, and there will be no delay in the work of recovering the sunken steamer Cayuga.

While passing through St. Mary's river the steamer Selwyn Eddy broke a bucket off her wheel and had the opposite bucket removed at Sault Ste. Marie.

At Buffalo the steamer Peshtigo crashed into the Lehigh Valley liner Tuscarora, damaging the rail and breaking a plate on the latter craft.

It seems that the barge George L. Colwell is still on the bottom at Peshtigo and in bad shape. She has a steam pump on board.

A Detroit vessel manager ascribes the present freight depression entirely to the iron combine. They hold the balance of power and can pretty nearly control freights to suit themselves.

Some business has been done in grain chartering to Buffalo at 2¾ cents, but the demand is light and the liners are still on the market, though three liners have taken ore rather than wheat at that rate. The flour trade is unimproved.

Duluth clearances—Cormorant, 925,000 feet lumber, A. B. Norris, 766,272 feet lumber, Ogdensburg; Topeka, 48,000 bushels wheat, Prescott, Ont.; Lizzie Madden, 675,000 feet lumber, Tonawanda; Frontenac, 2100 tons ore, Buffalo; Uganda, 54,000 bushels wheat, 20,073 bushels oats, 7782 bushels barley, Buffalo.

The steamer Peerless' shaft is being repaired at the Marinette iron works, and the boat will get out Saturday.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived—Peerless, Chicago, mdse; R. L. Fryer, Lake Erie, coal.

Departed—Uganda, Lindsay, Buffalo, grain; Pillsbury, 103, John Harper, Vulcan, Lake Erie, ore; Cormorant, A. B. Norris, Ogdensburg, lumber; Rhoda, Emily Montgomery, Homer, Lake Erie, lumber.

Special letters of administration on the estate of Patrick McNamara, who died suddenly last night, were issued in probate court this morning to John Wilson.

The Duluth battalion will hold its first battalion drill under Maj. Bidwell in the East End tonight.

The preliminary hearing in the case of Mike and Frank Illley and John Smith, who tugged off a case of whisky from Lake Zoln's saloon, was today continued to Saturday morning.

Five more members passed successfully through the unfathomable mysteries of initiation into the Order of the World at Lake Superior lodge last evening.

The grist of box car lodgers was small in the municipal court today, the visible supply having been pretty well exhausted yesterday. James O'Neil, George Avery and Robert Morris composed the array. They pleaded guilty of vagrancy. Morris was sent up on the rock pile for five days and the others were let off with suspended sentences. Thomas Carty acknowledged that he had imbibed too freely and was fined $10 and costs, being sent to the rock pile in default.

First papers have been issued by the district clerk to John Ruck, of Germany, and Archie Morris, of Canada.

Officer Whalen picked up two small tots of about 2 years of age who were wandering about in the vicinity of the main depot this morning. After much coaxing it was gleaned that their father's name was Willey, a directory was consulted, the patrol wagon called, and in a short time they were on their way home, each seated on one of Officer Mclwen's knee. They were the children of Ernest Willey, an engineer, residing at Eleventh avenue west and First street.

It has been decided not to hold a postmortem examination of the body of Patrick McNamara, who died on First avenue east yesterday evening, there being no doubt in the mind of the deputy coroner that heart disease was the cause of death.

An assignment of the Duluth Coffee and Spice company to the Duluth Trust company was filed this afternoon in the district clerk's office.

IS MR. YORK OUT?

Some Say He is But He Says Not.

Is James E. York out of the Ironton Structural Steel company or is he not is a question which people are now asking themselves. This morning a notice was posted at the plant instructing the men that Superintendent Gray would hereafter perform the duties of general manager in place of Mr. York. This gave rise to the rumor that there was a row in the company and that Mr. York had been frozen out.

Mr. York was seen and denied this. He said it was simply a part of the company's plan that he should not be encumbered with the general routine management, but his connection with the company would be the same. He would have to be much in the East on company matters. There is no trouble in the management he said.

It is stated, however, on pretty good authority that there is friction between the New York parties in the company and Mr. York. It is hoped by those interested that this will be adjusted in the near future.

"Nonsense!" replied Sue. "She was married last week, and can't have a wooden wedding until her fifth anniversary."

"It is not necessary for her to wait that long."

"Why not?"

"Her husband is a regular stick."

SHE HAD DONE THAT.

Testimonials are not much good in a horse trade.

You want to buy a horse to trot in three minutes. Trot the horse, that tells the story.

Every day we get letters saying, "If we only knew that No-To-Bac would cure the tobacco habit we would gladly give five times the price."

Why?

Simply because we absolutely sell No-To-Bac under a guarantee to cure, and at a price within the reach of all. Your own druggist guarantees it, so you don't have to take our word.

Over 20,000 druggists sell and guarantee No-To-Bac; over 1,000,000 boxes sold; over 300,000 cures; over 10,000 testimonial letters with requests to publish. Here are a couple:

MINISTER SAVED AFTER 31 YEARS.

Tyrone, Ark., Sept. 16, 1895.

Gentlemen: I must say for thirty-one years I have been a perfect slave to tobacco, and can safely say as a minister of the gospel, that two boxes of No-To-Bac has completely cured me of any desire for the poisonous weed, so that I feel like a man once more in life. Yours truly,

Rev. J. A. PRESTON.

Galena, Kan., July 27, 1895.

Gentlemen: A year ago I sent to you for three boxes of No-To-Bac, and before two were used all desire for tobacco was gone, and since tobacco has not entered my mouth—and this, after not chewing, but eating it for years. I used over a pound a week. I can say to all who desire to quit tobacco permanently, give No-To-Bac an honest trial and you will succeed.

Respectfully, W. H. BOYCE.

Now, frankly, what more can we do or say? It is for you to act. Just try today, the right time is right now. NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain purchase money mortgage duly executed and delivered by William A. Pryor and Fannie H. Pryor, his wife, mortgagors, to Alfred H. Porter, mortgagee, dated February 1, 1895, and duly recorded in the register of deeds office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, in Book 120 of mortgages, on pages 229, 230 and 231 thereof, on March 6, 1895, at 2:30 o'clock p. m.; such default consisting in the non-payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said mortgage debt which became due on January 1, 1896, amounting to the sum of $105, and which default has ever since continued, and still continues, and also consisting in the non-payment of insurance premiums upon the premises covered by said mortgage, which said mortgagors had in said mortgage covenanted and agreed to pay, heretofore paid by said mortgagee, amounting to the further sum of $5.00 by reason of which defaults said mortgagee has heretofore elected to exercise the option to him given by the terms of said mortgage, by declaring, and he does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage, with all accrued interest, and the said sum so paid for insurance premiums, to be now due and payable.

THE ROAD

Entirely New System of Transportation is to Be Introduced.

A Double Track Road to Fargo is to Be Built.

Last Saturday The Herald contained information of the Duluth Great Western railway to build an air line from Duluth to the Red River valley. On Sunday the News Tribune contained an item sent up from St. Paul saying of it: "It is planned as the Minnesota end of what is known as the 'Hines' road, and articles call for a line from Duluth south across the St. Louis river, across the northwestern corner of Wisconsin and thence west across Minnesota through Hubbard to neighboring counties to the Red river of the North. The company is a mutual affair and the farmers along the way will do the grading, or the greater part of it, and hold stock in the road."

George E. Mansfield, of Boston, who is the promoter, has been in the city for three months. In reference to this item he said this morning that it is entirely false. His road has nothing whatever to do with Mr. Hines, it is not a mutual affair, farmers will not be asked to do the grading, and it is an entirely independent concern. Mr. Mansfield has built several railways in the East, and has come here to push this plan through after a year of careful study. He gave The Herald man an idea of his plans today.

The men who are interested with him, he says, are Eastern capitalists. To them he has presented the necessity for a direct line westward from Duluth, and has convinced them that there is money in it. Duluth, they believe, is to be the Chicago of the Northwest.

The plan which the company proposes to follow is to build a double track railway from Duluth to the Red River valley. Mr. Mansfield has studied thoroughly the elevator and milling system and also the transportation problem. He has taken observations and figured out a chance for improvement in the carrying and hauling of wheat. This is proposed in the plans.

Mr. Mansfield says it might seem almost farcial to talk of a double track road, but this, he says, will introduce an entirely new system and will attract the attention of the railroad world so rapid and cheap will be the transit it gives. The double track will be built and equipped as cheap as the single track of other roads and will be able to move 25,000,000 bushels of wheat in thirty days, thus affording rapid transit in the grain season. He will also be able to give an eight-hour day passenger service to Fargo from Duluth. The line will be operated entirely different from any railroad, but how he declines to say.

He is anxious that people shall show themselves interested in the road and says the Minnesota people have already done so.

As to his backing, he claims it is gilt edged. One of the foremost financiers of the country, one of the wealthiest men in Boston, is behind him, and many other wealthy people are interested. A large party of them expect to come out next fall and go over the line.

Mr. Mansfield declares emphatically that his is not a paper road and that it is not built with the idea of being antagonistic to other roads, but simply to get its legitimate share of the traffic. The road will have the interests of Duluth at heart more than that of any other city.

MADE A FINE DEAL.

M. S. Burrows Purchased a Big Chicago Stock.

News was received by Frank Burrows last evening of a mammoth transaction just closed by M. S. Burrows in Chicago, being nothing less than the acquisition of the entire spring and summer stock of Kuh, Nathan, Fischer & Co. This stock consists of about 3000 suits and 2000 pants, and to buy such an enormous quantity requires Napoleonic nerve and unlimited confidence in Duluth as a market. In his brief dispatch, Mr. Burrows states that he has secured a phenomenal bargain, saying: "This is the largest deal ever consummated by me and is in my estimation, after due consideration, the best deal of my life." It is truly one of those good things secured by that combination of business judgment and wise courage that strikes just at the right time. The purchase price was 33 per cent below the cost of production, and the firm of M. S. Burrows & Co., pledge themselves that the public is going to share in the rake-off. The goods will be placed on sale as rapidly as such an immense stock can be handled and the offers will be the most generous ever made.

Wind Was High.

The wind traveled at a pretty stiff pace this forenoon. The waters of the canal were piled up pretty high and the gallant boats of Duluth's navy bowed and plunged as they tore across the channel. What with the current and the gale, the ferrymen were called on to display their muscle. On the St. Paul & Duluth dock heavy planks were picked up and tossed about, one man narrowly escaping being struck on the head by a flying beam.

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION.

Two Men Trying to Sell a Harness Gathered in.

Detective Troyer this morning captured two men who had been endeavoring to dispose of some harness and robes at Gordon's store. At the station, they gave their names as James Henderson and Frank Boyce and claimed they had purchased the property of a man named Connor. The harness is a heavy single one and has evidently been used on a gray horse. The police would like to find an owner for both it and the robes.

One of the men entered Mr. Gordon's store this morning and said he had a harness and some robes for sale. Mr. Gordon wanted to see the property and the stranger told him a friend of his had it and that he would go out and get him. Mr. Gordon's suspicions were aroused and while the man was gone to get his friend the former sent for a friend of his in the person of Detective Troyer. When the stranger reappeared Troyer was behind the counter trying to look like an innocent harness man. It was no go, however, for with an excuse that he wanted to see his partner, the man who had been negotiating the sale disappeared. Troyer also wanted to see his partner, and started in pursuit, making a circuit through LaVaque's store and introducing himself to the pair as they were ambling along Michigan street with the harness and robes in a sack, and placed them under arrest.

The Field Day.

Athletics at the Central high school have never been in more flourishing condition than this year, and there is every indication of a most successful field day next Saturday. The Athletic society has been doing its utmost toward training the participants and getting the track at Glen Avon in good shape for the races. Every branch of athletics will be represented, and some close contests are assured. Although this meet is a purely high school affair, yet it will certainly be worth the time of every lover of sport to be present, and the society deserves the hearty support of every citizen of Duluth. This sort of athletics, from its all around character, is far more beneficial than football or baseball. One of the greatest drawing cards is a facility bicycle race, in which Messrs. Boyd, Hutchinson, Brocklehurst, Robbins, Lohr, Loman, St. John, Norton and Hopkins will participate. These have all been in training for some time and an exciting contest is sure to take place. The favorites at present are Boyd and Hutchinson, but dark horses may appear at any time.

All members of the Order are requested to be present. A large class of candidates is to be admitted.

Wants Tools Exempted.

C. F. Todd, doing business as the Duluth Butter and Egg company, who made an assignment a short time ago, this morning filed a petition for the exemption of a part of the estate on the ground that they were tools he had to have in his trade. He alleges that he is a butter mixer by trade, and that under the law the tools he uses in that trade are exempt. What he desires to have exempted is an electric motor worth $100, two butter separators worth $50 each, and a butter worker worth $50. The assignee has been ordered to show cause Saturday why the exemption should not be granted.

Summer Opera Company.

The Lizzie Gonzalez Opera company, which is now singing in Wheeling, W. Va., has been engaged for a season of four weeks or more at the Pavilion, beginning on June 7. Lizzie Gonzalez, the well-known comic opera prima donna, heads the company. James Donnelly, formerly with the Wilburs, Teddy Webb and John Young, well-known comedians, are with the company, and the principals are all well spoken of. An orchestra of fifteen pieces will play. The admission prices will be 10, 20 and 30 cents. Roy Smith will be in charge.

May Come to Duluth.

There is a possibility of the removal of the Shores Lumber company to Duluth. A new mill will be built somewhere and the company could be induced to bring it here. The mill which was recently burned there employed 400 men and had a monthly pay roll of from $25,000 to $30,000 a month. E. A. Shores will be in Duluth next week and more may be heard of the matter then.
